At the conclusion of the business the ladies met with the residents in the dining room for the customary birthday party. It was a dual celebration since there will be no parties held during the summer months. Everyone joined in a short sing-song with Mrs. A. Daniels at the piano. The ladies formed a large circle around their guests and sang the birthday song.

The eldest guest present, Mrs. Jessie Lawson who is 90 in June and Mrs. Marie Hardings who will be 91 in July, cut the large birthday cake and pictures were taken. Mrs. Glen Lane and Mrs. W. Kempston poured tea while everyone enjoyed a delicious lunch.

Mr. Robert Odendahl thanked the ladies, on behalf of the residents, for the party; also for the many other acts of kindness over the years.

Forty Business Women Form Hostess Committee

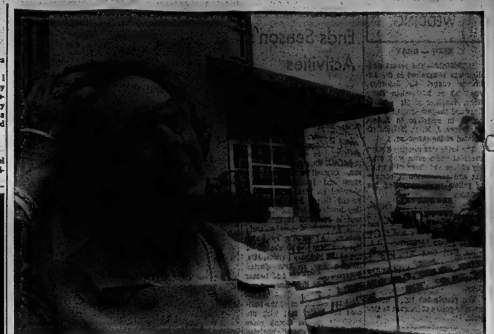
MONTREAL (CP)—A group of 40 bilingual Montreal business women have formed a hostess committee to welcome VIPs and official delegates to this city.

The women, who call themselves Hostesses-Montreal, have a mandate from the provincial government and Mayor Jean Drapeau which permits them to act as "qualified voluntary hostesses" from now until Expo 67 finishes in October, 1967.

They are all members of the women's branch of the Montreal District Chamber of Commerce and have been organized by president Therese Duranceau.

Mrs. Duranceau says they are bilingual, attractive and personable, qualified as tourist guides and "well versed in Canadian business, economics, history, politics, arts and handicrafts."

Sixteen of the hostesses have gone to France, Italy and Central Europe to publicize Expo and Montreal before various associations.



During the world's fair, the hostesses will work in shifts of eight women a day and will be identified by a brooch bearing the arms of the City of Montreal and the Chamber of Commerce.

Their duties include getting in touch with visitors before their arrival, meeting them and accompanying them to official receptions, restaurants, theatres and stores.

Introductions and special tours will also be arranged by the hostesses, who will be reimbursed for the expenses they incur by the civic or business organization which required their services.

DROPOUTS WORRY HER — Denise Moncion, dean of women at the University of Ottawa, is convinced that if a girl is admitted to college she usually has the ability to succeed. This view governs her attitude in dealing with the potential dropouts among the 944 girls in her charge. (CP Photo)

"It's a Woman's World," Says Dean of Women

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP) — There are supposed to be four girls for every man in Ottawa, what with the civil service and all, but at the University of Ottawa the ratio is reversed.

"It's a woman's world," says Denise Moncion, the new dean of women. "You can tell from telephone statistics in the residences — the boys use the phones all the time, the girls just sit there and wait for the calls."

Miss Moncion is a blue-eyed, brown-haired native of Hull, Que., a former Montreal social worker who came to the University of Ottawa last summer as assistant to Eveline LaBlanc, who retired as dean this spring.

Perfectly bilingual, she got her MA in social work from St. Patrick's College here, then worked in Montreal for nine years. "Living in Montreal spoiled me: I like to go to plays and concerts and sometimes I go back by train for an evening."

There are 944 girls at the university. Miss Moncion doesn't try to interview them all, preferring to meet them through student committees or the residence.

"I'm not sure I believe in interviews where everything is artificially arranged. They can see me if there's a reason, not to say a few words because they have to."

About half her time is spent in direct services to students, arranging housing and programs such as orientation week and discussion with individual girls.

TALKING MAY HELP

She tries to talk to students who have failed exams or are thinking of dropping out.

"I think if they have been admitted to university they can achieve. Often it's a problem like living arrangements or organizing social life. The student may just need to talk it out with someone else."

The other part of her schedule is filled with administrative duties such as making final arrangements for a new women's residence to open in the fall.

There will be more double than single rooms. — "I think it's a good idea for fresh especially to share rooms, or else it may be four months before a new girl makes friends or meets people."

Since students are about equally divided between French- and English - speaking, some girls talk to share with a girl of the other language.

Miss Moncion says a girl starting university still needs close contact with her family. "This may mean one letter a month or a visit home every three or four weeks, but it gives her a chance to think about the values of her home life and compare them with values on campus."

Money from home to pay the trips is often welcome. "Parents may not realize that a student's financial problems are acute. A certain number don't even eat properly, and a trip home shouldn't mean the girl has to go on a diet for three or four weeks."

Church Groups

CHRIST CHURCH PARISH GUILD

A most enjoyable picnic-potluck luncheon was held recently when members of Christ Church Parish Guild journeyed to "Treetops," the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hickey on Lake Consecon, for the closing meeting of the season.

All were accorded a warm welcome by the host and hostess, although the picnic had to be held indoors because of wet weather, all thoroughly enjoyed the variety of food and the wonderful view of the Lake.

Mrs. J. M. Coulins conducted the business portion of the meeting which consisted for the most part of reports of recent activities of the Guild. Two dinners had been catered for, also a wedding reception and, largest project of all, a most successful Blossom Tea, sale and exhibition of paintings had taken place. Not only was the tea a most satisfactory financial success but it was voted as one of the most unusual and attractive in recent years. It was also gratifying to see the talent of so many of Christ Church members. A hearty vote of thanks was given to all those who had done so much to make this project worthwhile.

The next project for the Guild will be the painting and repairing of the outside of the rectory and this will begin in the near future. Several wedding receptions are planned for the summer months.

BAKED BANANAS WITH MEAT

Casually I suggested in a recent column serving baked bananas with a ham slice.

Several readers wrote asking me how to bake bananas to accompany meats.

The last time I gave the recipe for Baked Bananas was in October, 1959 to be served with Chicken Curry at an Indonesian meal so it is not too soon to repeat it.

Baked Bananas should be part of the repertory of all good cooks who read this column. I suggest that you serve them as an accompaniment the next time you bake a ham or picnic ham or ham slice.

Or go all out and make a South Sea Island Luau (pronounced Loo-ah-oo) and serve them with Kona Chicken (below).

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Roast Shoulder of Lamb; Fresh Mint Sauce; Pan Roasted Quartered Potatoes; Creamed Asparagus; Tossed Green; Apple Cake with Lemon Sauce (see Tues.); Tea.

BAKED BANANAS (serves 4):

6 underripe bananas (must be green-tipped), 1/3 cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, juice of ½ lemon, 3 tablespoons melted butter.

Peel bananas and arrange in a horizontal row in shallow baking dish. Immediately combine sugar, salt, lemon juice and melted butter and spread over surface of bananas. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. 15 minutes. Carefully lift with spatula and transfer to platter and serve as accompaniment to baked ham or serve with

KONA CHICKEN (serves 5):

¼ cup butter, 2 teaspoons curry powder, ¼ cup finely-chopped onion, 1/2 cup sliced mushrooms, 1/3 cup finely chopped inner celery, 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper, ½ cup diced canned pineapple (drained), 2/3 cup diced apple, 2 cups cubed cooked chicken, 2 cups milk, 3½ tablespoons cornstarch, 2 tablespoons cold milk, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ cup shredded cocoanut.

Melt butter in frying pan; blend in curry powder; add onion, mushrooms, celery and green pepper; fry until barely tender. Stir in pineapple, apple, chicken and milk. Bring just to boil. Combine cornstarch and cold milk and stir into chicken mixture. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Stir in salt. Just before serving, add cocoanut.

NOTE:

To serve Kona Chicken authentic Polynesian fashion, use a hollowed out cocoanut shell for a serving dish and border the top with a rim of mashed potatoes, piped mid-fashion, then browned. Or serve on rice.

FONDA'S SON NABBED

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Peter Fonda, 26, son of actor Henry Fonda, and three others were freed on bail Tuesday after surrendering on warrants charging possession of marijuana. Officers reported that marijuana plants were found under cultivation at a home they said was maintained by Fonda in suburban Tarzana.

WHY DAIRY FOODS ARE YOUR BEST FOOD VALUE

Dairy foods are good foods. Milk is often called "nature's most nearly perfect food" because the minerals, proteins and vitamins contained in milk are found in no other single food.

Milk can't be made by machines. No one has yet invented a substitute for the dairy cow for the many skills of the dairy farmer. Yet compared to most other foods, dairy foods have remained fairly constant in price.

Since May 1954, to the beginning of 1966, in most Canadian markets, the aggregate increase in home delivered milk (standard home) has increased only 5 cents a quart.

In the same period, the dairy farmer shipping to these markets received only 2 cents per quart more for the milk produced on his farm. And yet the costs of farm operation have increased a great deal. So much so, that dairy farmers are leaving their farms at the rate of 10,000 each year. This could result in a future shortage of dairy foods and increased consumer prices.

Canada's dairy industry is vital to our economic and nutritional health. If dairy foods cost a little more than they used to, they'll still be your best food buy.

Showers Dampen Fashion Flare at Wimbledon Courts

LONDON (Reuters) — It was mini - raincoats rather than mini-skirts at Wimbledon Tuesday as continual showers damped down the traditional fashion flare among ladies' day crowds at the All-England lawn tennis championships.

The number of girls sporting white mini-dresses who were mistaken for tunic-clad tennis players by keen autograph hunters emphasized the narrowing gap here between current high fashion and sportswear.

Players themselves have had their choice of outfits curbed by the All-England Lawn Tennis Club's no - nonsense attitude. The Wimbledon authorities insist on plain white costumes.

Leading sportswear designer Teddy Tinling cancelled his fashion preview this year in disgust over reinforcement of the rules, and warned down his designs for the 35 women players wearing them at this season's Wimbledon.

"I have been accused of bringing sin into tennis," Tinling, a former championship player himself, protested.

Tuesday's prettiest on - court outfit was worn by one of the most feminine players, Italy's pallis Lea Pericoli.

She showed a glimpse of frilled lace panties beneath a crocheter angleless shift during her unsuccessful match against British star Ann Haydon Jones, who trounced her 6-4, 6-2.

One player determined to beat the ban on frivolous tennis year — and eclipse Brasilian Maria Bueno's shocking pink pants and swanadown dress of previous years — is Australian Sue Barr.

The Adelaide girl, here on a tennis - playing honeymoon, is waiting impatiently to wear the "see-through" dress, a chiffon skirt with flowers appliqued across bust and hip.

Centennial Wedding Gowns Touch of Current Trends

MONTREAL (CP)—A collection of wedding gowns, tastefully designed for brides during Canada's upcoming centennial year, was shown Tuesday by Portrait Gowns of Montreal.

Although the designers were drawing on Canadian heritage, the gowns showed a lively awareness of current trends.

In some cases the new was harmoniously mixed with the "touch of antiquity" that permeated the collection. Older gowns, more timeless and traditional, sought a Canadian heirloom look.

Despite the emphasis on bygone fabrics and silhouettes, there were two dresses definitely meant for the mod or teen-age bride.

The first, above the knee, was a fish net cale that covered a plain, poor boy shell. It had a Tulle - the - Toiler hemline and was worn with seamed white boot stockings and a doily-type headdress.

The second was a more conventional dress and coat ensemble in crepe-like satin. It came with a minute pillbox.

The empire style was popular as was a Victorian bour-glass shaping of the princess line.

Sheaths were less popular than full or controlled skirts and most gowns had trains or detachable diversion coats that left the front of the dress uncovered and looked like trains. These coats usually had flat bows on the shoulder line.

Traditional white was often replaced by creams or oyster shades and tinged antique-looking lace was used frequently.

The majority of gowns were pois de soie, but there was quite a bit of crepe and some chiffon.

TRUDY

"Let's see, we had the Ridgeways, the Farrises and the Taylors to dinner—I'll need six cards."

Fur Collection Youthful But Never Go-Go Style

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP) — An elegant collection of furs that were youthful but never go-go was shown to the press Monday.

Designed by couturier Michel Robichaud for Jack Watkins of Montreal, the "figure - conscious" coats came in a variety of unusual furs and finishes.

Among the more sophisticated coats was a fleecy white Kalgan lamb with leather trimming.

A hooded jacket in the same fur was trimmed with black leather.

An unusual patchwork of beige and light brown horizontally seamed squares, made an indoor-outdoor lamper coat that was worn with a wide brown leather belt, black leotards and jersey. An attractive car coat also came in this fur.

The coats generally looked collarless, although some had small contoured collars that grew out of the body of the garment.

The shoulders were fairly wide with set-in sleeves, fitted lines under the shoulders—back and front—quietly fitted waistlines and slightly flared skirts. Many were double-breasted.

A popular silhouette was the empire line. It was shown in three shades of silky beaver royale — oyster, black and brown.

USE MINK TRIMMING

The long skinny sleeves of the oyster and brown coats were trimmed with mink. The black coat used chinchilla for collar and cuff trim.

The empire style was also chosen for an evening coat of black" Swakara South African lamb and had the same underbodice bow. It was set off with black Russian sable collar and cuffs.

A Norwegian seal coat with a slight geometric influence was fastened with a two-button belt that drew the coat in just above the waist.

A black Alaska seal coat had a cape effect.

In mocha, Lakoda seal came with a lagh racoon-type collar of natural Canadian Fisher.

Moleskin made an impressive appearance and won applause from viewers.

It came first in a tailored geometric-styled coat of grey-toned horizontally seamed pelts, next in a brown two-piece bouteau gown and finally in a black dress-coat. The bouteau gown was worn with a pale blue blouse.

The dress-coat had three-quarter length sleeves, semi-fitted lines and optional belt.

New in mink was a majestic hope mink coat with diagonal seaming in front and horizontal seaming in back.

FALLS DANGEROUS

The Canadian Parsplegic Association says most falls around the home could be avoided by keeping equipment repaired and stairways well lit and free of obstructions.

U.C.W. Meetings

BRIDGE STREET U.C.W.

The United Church Women of Bridge Street United Church enjoyed a pot luck picnic at the summer home of Mrs. R. H. Wray at Pete's Point.

Because showers threatened, the luncheon was served in the spacious living room overlooking the Bay. Good food, good appetites and fine fellowship united to make it a happy occasion.

After extending a warm welcome to members and guests, the president, Mrs. D. G. Williams conducted a short business session.

A life membership certificate and pin were presented to Miss Clare Allison by Mrs. Williams, who stated that a ready wit and a willing and cheerful manner had shown Miss Allison to be an ideal United Church Woman.

Mrs. H. B. Fetterley, sister of Miss Allison, fastened in place the pin, symbol of life membership.

Mrs. A. J. Clare expressed the thanks and appreciation of all to Mrs. Wray for her hospitality and to Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Secord and others of the Afternoon Unit I for assistance in preparing tables and serving food; also to Mrs. R. B. Morden who was in charge of the devotional service.

A Litany of Praise enabled all to participate in a service of worship.

VICTORIA U.C.W.

Victoria Church Women convened at the home of Mrs. Edith Townsend on Tuesday evening for their June meeting. The president, Mrs. Herbert Townsend, opened the program with a missionary reading and Mrs. Montgomery read the Scripture lesson. Readings were given on some of the work carried on in mission fields through missionary givings.

Sixty dollars was voted to be paid on the allocation and $5. was voted to the centennial fund. Plans were made for catering at a tulip wedding.

The Rev. George Amberry showed a film strip entitled "Why Are We Here". This exhibition of the purpose of life by a grandfather to his young grandson was thought provoking.

LIKED BUNS

An 18th century poet dedicated an ode, beginning "O flour of wheat, a replica of paste! Fragrant as honey and sweeter in taste!," to the Chelsea bun.

SHOES MADE BY HOSE — Nancy-Ellen Fitch of Worcester, Mass., holds shoes she will wear at her wedding that have been in her family since 1620. They were given to one of her ancestors by William Brewster during the voyage of the Mayflower to America. The slippers still bear the label of the maker John H. Hose. With the widest part of the soles at the ball of the foot, their construction cupe the feet in such a way that they will fit nearly any size foot. (AP Wirephoto)

The Experts Say
Need Common Sense In Handling Boat

By JEAN SHARP
Canadian Press Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP)—Even paddling a canoe near the cottage or running the outboard over to get groceries can be dangerous. Common sense, knowledge and experience are all necessary to the safe handling of a boat of any size, under any conditions.

James G. Perrin, general manager of the Canadian Boating Federation, says he believes the solution for the problem of boating accidents is education, not legislation.

"I think the biggest problem is overloading a small boat. A lot of accidents happen in the early spring and late fall. Hunters and fishermen in heavy clothing put five people in a boat designed to take three. What legislation can you get against this?

"And common sense is not used. There was an accident last week because someone was standing up in a boat. The boat may not tip, but you can."

KNOW RULES

The federation has a list of safety don'ts:

—Don't take chances.

—Don't overpower your boat.

—Don't overload your boat.

—Don't forget refueling procedures.

—Don't sit on the thwarts in a canoe.

—Don't stand up in any small boat.

—Don't take a chance with unseaworthy boats.

—Don't cut across the mouth of a harbor.

—Don't exceed local speed limits.

—Don't jump into a boat.

—Don't travel fast near the shore.

—Don't be a hot - rodder, practise courtesy afloat.

WATCH AND LEARN

Mr. Perrin says there are a few more that people don't always observe.

"I would say the average person doesn't know which side of a boat to pass on. You should learn water traffic rules.

"Water skiing must be carried out well away from bathing areas.

"And always the life jacket. Everyone should wear a life jacket."

He says children should be taught the proper way to handle small boats, always wearing a life jacket, always under close parental supervision, and with some common sense applied to the question of how highly powered a motor a child is allowed to operate.

Mr. Perrin recommends three ways to learn about how to handle boats safely.

The federal department of transport has a booklet called Safety Afloat available from the department and from most marine dealers.

The Canadian Boating Federation has a home study course in elementary seamanship which anyone may take by mail for $15. It is available through the federation, 28 Colborne St., Toronto.

Susanna's Family Fare

YOU'RE OUT!

Hi Su: Liked your idea about putting sand in the car ash trays, especially the one used by the driver, so that he would not leave his cigarette smouldering or set the contents of the tray on fire.

Although, I think I'm using an even better type snuffer. Baking soda.

Cigarettes go out like a light in a jiffy. — Lulu

Dear Girls; I've been reminded twice this week to get busy and cut the dead blossoms from the lilac trees in the garden so that the seeds won't set, and new growth and bloom formations will be encouraged for next year.

Do you need a nudge too?

In the same breath there is the matter of hedge trimming. It may be simpler to cut it straight across and let it go at that, but for the sake of the hedge, the idea is to widen the base and taper the top.

This will let the rain and sunshine in underneath too, so that the whole thing will flourish and grow green.

. . . and good pruning to you, too. — SUSANNA

Youth Chorale Group Gives Cantata Here

This past Sunday two churches in Belleville and one in Bancroft were privileged to hear an 18-voice Youth Chorale from Hawkesville, Ontario, near Kitchener-Waterloo.

The group presented "The Greatest Story Ever Untold," a composition by Eugene Clarke, at Bethel Chapel, Belleville, at the Bancroft Chapel, and at the evening service of Holloway Street United Church.

A total of 450-500 people heard the challenging 40-minute cantata of music and word built around a missionary theme.

The chorale is accompanied and directed by Dianne and Barry Daniels, of Waterloo.

Contraceptive Advice Not What Is Needed

DEAR DORIS: Should one advise their children on the use of contraceptives in the event that they can't resist temptation or would this encourage it?

DORIS CLARK

I'd certainly hate for them to give in to their impulses but for them to bring children into the world when they are unmarried would be an even greater misfortune not only for them and their relatives but for the one person who would have no say in the matter — the baby. — UNCERTAIN MOM.

DEAR MOM: Not for my money. I do not believe the withholding of any information will accomplish anything but disaster. But to give advice for the express purpose you suggest would be to condone a sorry self-indulgence.

The knowledge young folk really need has to do, not with the physical facts of sex, but some grasp of our emotional make-up; and what it does to a person's psyche (as well as future) to just let everything go.

We are better than animals: "a little lower than the angels," says the Psalmist. Isn't this a challenge worth thinking about?

DEAR DORIS: I am a boy. I am interested in nursing but my pals say that is a woman's profession. What do you think? — HELPING HAND.

DEAR HELPING — That a person's career should depend more on interest and aptitude than on sex. Florence Nightingale popularized nursing with the girls, but male nurses have some very special posts to occupy, as well as the traditional ones.

Work in the north, on outposts, para rescue service; the handling of handicapped and weighty patients; jobs with isolated armed services; these might well be seen as special opportunities for male nurses. Not to mention the crying need for nurses of both sexes and all levels of experience for regular hospital and private nursing.

Don't let them tell you it is work for a sissy — of either sex.

DEAR DORIS: My hair is quite white at the front, and pepper and salt all over; was quite dark before. My eyes are hazel. I'm lucky my skin hasn't wrinkled yet but I would like to change my hair color.

I would have the color cut and be a platinum color, but I prefer a 'rinse' rinse. I have very high color. What do you advise? — FIFTY-ISH.

DEAR FIFTY-ISH: That you steer a middle course. A too-dark tint would tend to make your changing skin tones look hard; a platinum would be too pale for your high color complexion and would call for a strong bleach.

Ask your hairdresser for a bleach to a light gold; not pale yellow. Then have her apply the medium-brown toner. A toner is different from a tint but more permanent than a rinse. (This counsel came direct from an expert hairdresser.

DEAR DORIS: When a couple get engaged, which one is supposed to set the date? The man or the girl? — ARGUMENT.

DEAR ARGUMENT: Note what Mortimer Chesterfield declares, in "The Art of Making Love" (1916):

"Naming the Day: This pleasant duty is reserved for the bride-elect, and with the blushes mantling her cheeks, she whispers the earliest date upon which her meagre or extensive trousseau will be ready.

"Not infrequently the lover's ardor influences her to reconsider her first suggestion, so that in reality the choice of the day is his, but it is understood that she secretly acquiesces in his wishes."

This still holds true, approximately, although I have serious doubts about the blushes and the secrecy of today's acquiescence. We aren't nearly so coy as seemed to be necessary in 1916.

DEAR DORIS: I am an ugly, unwanted 12-year-old girl. I don't know why but all at once I have no friends. How I dread that day my best friend pinned me up by the wall and said "Get out of here, you bug me."

To top it off my mother claims I stink, my room also. No matter how much I scrub myself (including underarms) she still says I smell. Why?

I sometimes get the feeling that my mother hates me. She never answers my simple questions which are said loud enough. Why? Your help will be appreciated very much.—IN A WORLD OF MY OWN.

DEAR IN A WORLD: You and many another 12-year-old. Because right now the physical changes going on in your body are enough to unsettle anybody. The glandular activity which turns you from a child into an attractive teen-age girl may also make you extra sensitive to unkind remarks; may cause depression sometimes; as well as strong perspiration odor.

These are days when a gal needs her mother to talk to. If yours won't open up her arms and her heart, try for an understanding aunt or teacher. Has it occurred to you that your Mom may think she doesn't know all the answers?

I'm sending you the name of a recommended deodorant and the ten-cent leaflet "Are You Really Growing Up!"

Rescue Operation For After Swim Hair

By Rona and Bonnie Churchill

After a swim, does your hair resemble tangled seaweed? If so, here's a temporary rescue operation, designed to answer such a SOS (Save Our Sea.) To be date-ready in minutes, you'll need 12 mesh curlers, medium to large size, depending on length of tresses. If, like actress Dodie Marshall, locks are still damp from swimming, fold end papers around strands to help absorb excess moisture.

Begin by parting hair low on the side. Working on the fuller section, use four rollers across the front. To create a sweeping lift, twist the first curler away from the hairline, positioning it on a diagonal. The rest of the rollers are turned under. Since tresses may be limp, insure a spring curl by combing front and crown straight up from the scalp, then rolling them tautly into place.

Allow as much time as possible for hair to dry. Continue other beauty manoeuvres — shower, repair make-up, change clothes. Finally, unroll locks. If they bounce on the fingertip, they've had adequate curling time. Brush hair to the side, so it flips up in cup curls, then "backstroke" and tips for extra body. Dodie, seen in the MGM film, "Spinout," adds fringe bangs and colorful bandeau for a flatter finale.

P.S.: Want to send your beauty rating soaring? Try out a new hair style. For the prettiest summer has to offer, send for our 12-page, photo-illustrated book, which includes basic set, combouts, and styling secrets. Enclose 20c and a self-addressed, non - stamped envelope to Rona and Bonnie Churchill — Swinging Hair Styles, c/o The Intelligencer, P.O. Box 45-181, Hollywood 46, California.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Babies are human beings and react as human beings. For example: even the tiniest tots seem to sense, and are affected by tension, worry or angry exchanges between tired or overwrought parents. And, if this state of affairs is persistent, the baby may develop a corresponding tension. While most of us let off steam occasionally, it's the wise parent who keeps a raised voice out of baby's earshot.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

One of life's darkest trails where few will form a roadblock and there's plenty behind to push is the Primrose Path.

It has opened a rosette vista to many — and many have reached trail's end or disappeared somewhere along the road.

Not a few of the victims who yielded to the beckoning of the figurative sirens of the glittering trail were big names in the world of sport.

Boxing, due no doubt through its close association with gambling since it became professionalized, has yielded a number to the scarlet road.

Other sports have been represented too. The demon rum is no respector of persons or circumstances.

The pathetic story of Grant Warwick who was killed for five days because he could not pay for a $2.35 meal brought nostalgia to fans of the rosiereus era when Canada was tops in world amateur hockey.

Grant, in his younger days, was a 165-pound package of hockey hellfire dynamite He learned a lot of tricks during his stint with NHL and minor pro teams and when he joined brother Bill and Dick as a relentless amateur he ranked with the puck-chasing Clayn, Dempseys and Louis's.

That was back in the 1945-46 season when the Warwicks were the bulwarks and driving tanks of the Penticton, B's who rambled, punched and fought their way to the BC title, the Allan Cup and the world championship.

A western sports writer who travelled with the V's wrote "Grant was a terrier. He was small, but he would not accept defeat. He fired up the team — pushed them, cursed them — but he pushed himself harder, than any of them."

Erwin Swaggard then sports editor of the Vancouver Sun wrote:- "He was an inspiration. He took that bench of bushwackers to the top of the world. It was like being in a crusade. Warwick was filled with a missionary's zeal. He wanted to re-establish Canadian hockey prestige — win back the world championship from Russia."

While I was on that 1950 overseas world title junket a veteran British journalist told me a story of Grant Warwick. It seems the Canadian team was playing a pick-up squad from an armed services station. Suddenly Grant hurled himself into a foeman and knocked him sky-high.

"The bloke got up mahart but wondering. Say, he yelled, whatinell did you do that for, I did not do anything to you."

"Oh" grinned Warwick, "You didn't. But it may give you an idea of what to expect if you guys start something."

His downhill skid began almost immediately after the V's won the championship. A restaurant effort in Penticton — in which the three brothers were partners — failed. A similar effort in Edmonton also fell apart.

It was while the brothers operated the restaurant that a fantastic story hit the public prints. It seems the boys had placed all their hockey trinkets, baubles and trophies, including the World Championship Trophy, in a room of the restaurant.

The story intimated that the Warwicks had an exact replica of the world trophy made and had sent it back to Europe according to international rules. The original, the story said, remained in the restaurant."

Mayor H. J. McFarland has a world trophy won by the MacFarlands in 1958. But it is not the original bauble.

"That trophy", Lorne Cook, ex-president of the OHA informs me, "is at present resting in the Kingston Hockey Hall of Fame".

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baltimore, Orioles made Frank Robinson the catch of the year. Now Robinson has made the catch of the year for the Orioles.

The American League's top slugger turned spectacular outfielder Tuesday night, making a great ninth-inning catch in right-field that saved a 7-6 victory for Baltimore over New York Yankees in the first game of a doubleheader.

Robinson, who has sparked the Orioles to the top of the league since they acquired him from Cincinnati Reds this past winter, became the most unpopular person in Yankee Stadium and was the target of all sorts of debris during the second game which the Yankees won 8-3.

The controversial catch came with two Yankees on base and two out. Roy White lofted a fly to deep right field. Robinson raced back to the 314-foot fence, leaped high into the air, caught the ball and toppled backward into the box seats in the stands.

Umpire Henk Soar walked a few seconds, then signaled the out, which ended the game.

Yankee manager Ralph Houk argued in vain, then announced he was protesting the game.

"I don't know what chance I've got with the protest," said Houk, "but I just hope I can find somebody who has a picture of him (Robinson), lying there without the ball."

Said Robinson, who ended up with only part of his bags visible from the field:

"I caught it in the webbing of my glove. I fell into the seats, the fans tried to pull the ball out. They were on top of me, and I had to wrestle to get loose. But the ball never left my glove."

The second game was delayed three other times as rescue, firecrackers and other items directed at Robinson were cleared away.

In other AL games, Cleveland Indians edged Boston Red Sox 2-1, Detroit Tigers defeated Washington Senators 5-3, Kansas City Athletics nipped Chicago White Sox 9-8 and California Angels downed Minnesota Twins 10-7.

Before his controversial fly ball, Wehba made two errors that led to five Baltimore runs in the second inning and hit a two-run homer in the sixth. Eddie Watt pitched 3 2-3 innings of hitless relief until the Yankees had their short-lived rally in the ninth.

The second game was tied 3-3 until the seventh when the Yankees erupted for five runs. Ralph Terry ignited the rally with a single, scored the tie-breaking run and allowed only one hit in 3 2-3 innings at relief.

Denny McLain became the first in the AL to win 11 games, stopping Washington on five hits. Jim Northrup tripled home two runs for Detroit while Norm Cash singled across two.

Cleveland's Gary Bell pitched a six-hitter and received support from Rocky Colavito, who started both of the Indians' runscoring innings with singles. Boston scored its lone run in the ninth on Tony Conigliaro's single.

Bert Campaneris broke an 8-6 tie for Kansas City in the ninth when he got his fourth single, was sacrificed to second, stole third and continued home on catcher J. C. Martin's wild throw. Chicago had tied it in the ninth on John Romano's run-scoring double.

Ed Kirkpatrick helped California build an 8-0 lead, driving in four runs with a single and a homer. Minnesota rallied to within 8-7, but reliever Minnie Rojas stymied the Twins on two hits in the last four innings.

Lightfoot Rally Nips Belvedere

Lightfoot Construction pulled a game out of the fire in Commercial Softball League play last night. Scoring a total of six runs in the fifth and sixth innings, they managed to squeeze by Belvedere Hotel 8-7.

The win moved Lightfoot into a three-way tie for second with Point Anne and Belvedere.

John French and Don Smith shared the winners' pitching chore. They gave up nine hits while sniffing eight and walking a pair.

For the losers Jim Nichols pitched. He was tagged with eight hits and loosed five. His control was poor as he walked 10 batters.

Don Smith had the only extra base hit for Lightfoots, striking a double. With singles were Don Smith, Don Cook, Joe Clapp, Frank Murray, Doug Rose, John French, and Jack Gilby.

Doug Reid lashed a triple and double. Art Sleek slammed a home run, and Jim Nichols hit a double and single to lead the losers' attack. Jim Muir, John Casey, George Perry, and Gordon Vaughan had a single each.

Warwick Trouble Say Head Injury Cause

EDMONTON (CP) — A 1961 head injury was the start of the trouble that put Grant Warwick in a British Columbia jail cell last week, his brother Bill said Tuesday.

In an interview with Hal Pawson, sports editor of The Journal, the younger Warwick said Grant was never the same after suffering a fractured skull when he struck his head on the ice while playing for New York Rangers at Detroit Olympia.

"He was unconscious for hours. He got out of hospital in about 19 days but he was through with hockey for that season."

Grant, who had been the National Hockey League rookie of the year the previous season, changed rapidly after the injury, said Bill, an Edmonton resident who also played with the Rangers and later joined Grant and their brother Dick in winning the world hockey title with Penticton Vs in 1955.

Football Commissioner Secret Is Out; Davey Top Choice

By JOHN SHORT

WINNIPEG (CP)—Officials of the Canadian Football League interviewed Senator Keith Davey Tuesday night and promised to decide today whether he will be appointed commissioner to succeed G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg.

Davey made his first appearance before representatives of all CFL clubs at a dinner meeting and received at least cautious endorsement as Halter's successor.

Pat Mahoney of Calgary, past-president of the CFL and member of the four-man committee selected to find Halter's replacement, said a vote on Davey's appointment would be the first item on the agenda today.

Hugh McColl of Edmonton, president of the Western Conference, denied Senator Davey's appearance before the group had been in the nature of a pitch for the job.

"He was introduced to our people. He spoke to them. He answered questions."

HOLDS INSIDE TRACK

This was the first formal commitment that Davey holds the inside track in the race for the commissioner's post that will become vacant when Halter steps down Dec. 31.

"I have never said Senator Davey was the leading candidate for the commissioner's post," Mahoney said. "I will not say it now either. It appears to have been the worst-kept secret in the country."

Mahoney anticipated no complications in the vote today "but things could arise, I suppose. There is no way to tell what the vote will show."

Davey's application is not accepted, Mahoney said, the position probably will be thrown wide open again. He indicated there is no outstanding second candidate on the horizon at the moment.

Alone On Top Tradeaus Trim Juniors

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

A couple of "one-bank" shots in the first inning opened the gates for Trudeau Motors' 5-1 Belleville and District Softball League win over Ellis Motors, at Alemite Park, last night.

Trudeaus jumped ahead 3-0 in the first for a victory that moved them into sole possession of the top spot.

Wannamaker led off with a base hit and Richard laced a drive, off Woods' glove at short, putting men on second and third. Weston followed with a bullet shot back at Junior pitcher Bob Ethier.

The ball glanced off Ethier's leg for a double, plating one, and the other run scored as the Juniors tried to get Weston going to second.

Ethier limped back into action after some minutes and threw eight-bit ball over the route. He struck out eight, and walked four.

Pat Maracle hurled six-bit ball to chalk up the Trudeau victory. He retired the first two men he faced and had a three-hitter until the eighth, striking out five, walking one and getting solid support.

The winners picked up a third run in the fourth, on a walk, wild pitch and an error on Baker's infield single. A bit batter, Muirhead's single, a walk and Fiala's pop single made it 4-0 in the fifth.

Ellis' appeared to score in the seventh when Rosborough slammed a blast to right-centre and circled the bases. He stumbled near third and was called out for missing the bag.

They threatened in the eighth with none out when Ethier doubled, Gardiner singled him home and Woods bounced for a base hit but Maracle left two stranded and repeated the feat again in the ninth.

Two free passes and Muirhead in Circuit Court Tuesday.

A pair of games were played in the Belleville Minor Softball Association's peewee section last night.

Corp Drill Phillies clipped Hyde and Son Giants by a 20-9 count.

Western Tire Colts sidetracked the OASA Travellers 8-5 in a closer contest.

SUIT DISMISSED

CHICAGO (AP) — A suit to compel Chicago Cubs of the National League to install lights at Wrigley Field, only major league park where night baseball is not played, was dismissed in Circuit Court Tuesday.

The Handguns

Frank Allin's 260 was top score at the Quinte Marksmen's weekly shoot, held at the Redcastle outdoor range, last night.

Dog Wilson followed with 252, Dick Charlton was third with 233 while Cliff Smith and Don Parks each registered 230.

The annual Molson's outdoor shoot will be held at the Trenton range tonight, at seven o'clock.

Cementmen Defeat S. Warner

The Point Anne Cementmen took advantage of another error-riddled performance by league-leading Stewart Warner to chalk up a 5-3 win last night.

It was Stewart Warner's home game, played at the Point, was their third loss in their last four starts and left them only four points ahead of the Cementmen, Lightfoots and Belvedere Hotel in the Commercial loop standing.

Two-run bursts in the fourth and sixth won it for Bill Shaw's crew. And Point Anne has three games in hand on Stewart Warner.

Ron Maracle hurled five-bit ball for the winners. He fanned three and handed out seven free passes.

Doug Ellis was the victim of a nine-error performance by his mates while tossing a six hitter in defeat. He whiffed three and walked a pair.

Rick Rosebush and Vern Whalen collected two singles each to lead Point Anne at the plate. Mike Cook doubled for the clubs only extra-base hit and Ron Maracle rapped a single.

TRAINING FOR TRACK — Joan Fisher, a 16-year-old grade 12 student in Ottawa, uses weights as she trains as a medal-winning sprinter. The only girl in school who uses the weights room, she sometimes finds it embarrassing because she can lift more than some boys. (CP Photo)

Girl Sprinter Lifts Weights

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP) — Slim, pretty Joan Fisher looks like the teen-age models you see on television swinging those cartons of soft drinks.

That kind of workout would be a soft exercise for Joan—she's learned how to press weights up to 120 pounds as part of the training that makes her a medal-winning sprinter.

"I'm the only girl who uses the weights room at school" says the 16-year-old Grade 12 student. "Sometimes it's kind of embarrassing — I can lift more than some of the boys."

But it doesn't really bother her. She's been getting along in the man's world of track and field for about two years. She was originally encouraged to start running by her gym teacher in Grade 7, but began competing seriously only two years ago.

The way Joan looks is a result of the three-hour practice sessions and puts in six days a week. "It's hard work but it's wonderful. You can eat anything you want and never put on weight."

She admits that track training and competition are hard, dirty work. "Your fingernails are never clean and you sweat. Sometimes I take eight showers a day."

She likes track because "it's something I can do well." But she says that girls in the game are all a bit defensive about their femininity.

WEARS EARRINGS

"Some of them spend half an hour primping before a race. Actually, putting on eye makeup must be very good for calming your nerves — you need a steady hand."

A lot of makeup isn't her line yet, but she does wear a little gold stone in her pierced ears "to feel a little bit glamorous."

Her blonde hair is cut short in a pixie cap. "It has to be that way, so you can wash it often and not have to fuss with it."

After high school, she plans to train as an interpreter at schools here and in Geneva, with an eye to working at conferences around the world or at the United Nations.

Her best school subjects, naturally, are languages and last year she had an 80 average. This year it hasn't been as high and she's worried that one-of-those meets may be upsetting her schedule.

Last winter, Joan went to meets in Vancouver, Toronto and Boston. In July she'll compete in Winnipeg for a place on the British Empire Games team in the five pentathalon events—200 metres, long jump, high jump, hurdles and shot put.

She is used to travelling. She is a member of an air force family who lived in Cold Lake, Alta., Whitehorse, Yukon, and Toronto before coming here.

Training is going to be part of her life for a long while yet. Sprinters are supposed to hit their peak about age 25, she says.

"Anyway, I have to keep on doing it all my life—that's the thing about muscles, they all turn to fat if you don't use them."

She doesn't intend to give up her track career for marriage, either. "I'll just have to schedule my babies in the off-season," she says jokingly.

Eyes On Plate

Longden Turns Trainer

By JIM CREHAN

TORONTO (CP) — Johnny Longden, the world's most successful jockey with 6,032 victories, never had a Queen's Plate winner. Now he likes to make the grade as a trainer.

Longden, 50, from Taber, Alta., retired from the saddle in 1965 and this year began training thoroughbreds. He'll have Bright Monarch going for him Saturday in the 107th running of the Plate at Woodbine race track.

Bright Monarch, a grey gelding owned by Mrs. Frank McMahon of Vancouver, may be part of a field of no more than 10. An injury to Burning Luke Monday and an easy victory by favorite Tilled Hero in the Plate trials left track officials counting on a 10-horse race.

For a time it looked as if Longden would have two horses entered. Coolie How, another McMahon horse, last Thursday gave Longden his first victory as a trainer in Canada. But in Monday's Plate trials Coolie How finished last in a field of nine and Longden said Tuesday he won't start in Saturday's 1¼-mile classic for Canadian-born three-year-olds.

Reds Stop Bucs In 28-Hit Slugfest

Marichal Wins 13th

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's been 30 years or so since Pittsburgh was bothered by train smoke but was just like old times for a few minutes in Cincinnati Tuesday night.

Midway through the first inning of the Reds' 11-9 victory over the Pirates, trains and a breeze combined to float a cloud of black smoke into Crosley Field.

The Pirates grabbed a 3-0 first - inning lead before the smoke from neighboring Union Station began blowing into Crosley Field.

The cloud caused a delay of four minutes while it floated down the first base line, over to the mound and on out to the outfield. The players could hardly see each other.

When play resumed, the Reds hopped on Woody Fryman for four runs and a lead they never relinquished. Deron Johnson hammered a three-run homer in the second, eliminating a five-run Pirate rally that built a 6-3 lead. Johnson later added a double and scored two runs.

METS SHADE CARDS

Elsewhere, New York Mets shaded St. Louis Cardinals 2-1 on Bob Gibson's five-hitter. Atlanta Braves dropped Philadelphia 4-1, Houston Astros whipped Los Angeles Dodgers 7-4 and San Francisco Giants downed Chicago Cubs 9-7.

Don Perkins helped the Reds hold off the Pirates, driving in two runs with a single and a homer. In all, there were 28 hits in the slugfest, 15 by Cincinnati and 13 by Pittsburgh.

Willie Stargell drove in two runs with a double in the fourth and then homered in the eighth for the Pirates.

Shaw won his third straight game for the Mets, allowing only two hits after the second inning. The McCarver spoiled his bid for a shutout with a seventh inning homer. McCarver was the only Cardinal to get past first base against the veteran righthander.

Three singles and an infield out produced both Met runs in the fourth, as New York snapped a four - game losing streak and a four-game Cardinal win string.

HITS 13TH HOMER

Hank Aaron hit his 24th home run and Denny Lemaster pitched a five-hitter as the Braves downed the Phillies. Aaron's total matched the National League mark for homers through June. He has nine games left this month in which to break the NL record and try for the major league high of 30 held by Babe Ruth.

John Bateman drove in four runs—three of them on a bases-loaded double—as the Astros beat Los Angeles for the second straight night. Mike Cuellar saved the victory for Dick Farrell.

Juan Marichal became the major league's winningest pitcher with his 13th victory as the Giants outlasted the Cubs. Marichal was tagged for 10 hits but hung on to pitch the complete game.

WARMING UP FOR TITLE DEFENCE — Australia's Margaret Smith, the defending titleholder, makes a forehand return to her opponent, Elizabeth Starkie of Britain, during their first round women's singles match at Wimbledon, England. Miss Smith won, 8-6, 6-2, to move to second round of the Wimbledon Tennis Championships. (AP Wirephoto by cable from London)

Speedboat Tragedies

Probe Cause of Deaths

WASHINGTON (AP)—A propeller blade was sheered off the hydroplane that carried race driver Ron Musson to his death Sunday, and an investigation is under way to determine whether it caused the wreck.

The U.S. Coast Guard is investigating the cause of two separate accidents in the President's Cup Regatta, run Sunday on the Potomac River here.

Musson, 37, died in one of them when his Miss Bardahl nosedived and disintegrated.

In the other, Rex Manchester, 39, of Seattle and Don Wilson, 34, of Palm Beach, Fla., died when their boats, Notre Dame and Miss Supertest, collided.

Some question remains as to whether in Musson's accident the propeller blade was broken in the smashup, rather than being the cause of it.

Musson, three-time U.S. speed boating champion, was racing the Miss Bardahl for only the second time when it upended and disintegrated in front of the judges' stand. It was travelling more than 160 miles an hour.

Departmental Softball

Public Works edged Public Utilities 7-6 in a Departmental Softball League game, at Hillcrest School, last night, keeping the losers winless.

Moe Haddleton pitched the victory and E. MacCormack toiled in defeat.

Joe Semanek cracked three Works hits, Doug Murray and Rodney Green got two each and Dave Dafoe slammed a home run. Names of Utilities' hitters were not available.

The league announced that their postponed game against City Hall, will be played at the South Foster Ave. Cheese Producers' diamond Thursday night, at 6.30.

City Hall and the Intelligencer battle for first place at Hillcrest School tonight.

CALLED IT, SABOTAGE

"Sabotage" acquired its meaning from the fact that in the early days of industry in France, workmen who wanted to rest would often kick their sabots, or wooden shoes, into the machinery to stop it.

Batawa Rally Beats Parsons

Batawa overcame an early 2-0 deficit with a strong effort to down Belleville Parsons 5-3 in a Kingston District Soccer League match under the lights at the Fairgrounds here last night.

Belleville's next start is also at home against Kingston United, on June 26.

Tonight. Parsons' representatives go to Kingston for the inquiry into the near riot here in a game balled with the score tied 4-4, against the Flying Dutchmen

The scorers scored two goals on identical scoring sorties down the right wing for the early lead. Sotheby Madeiros fed through to Pete Evendon and his pass put Bob Rutherford in the clear, to score, on both occasions.

Batawa got one back before half time, Kamari scoring, as they hemmed Parsons in their own end for long periods.

Batawa took full control in the second half and Findlay fired goals two and three to shove the visitors ahead. They continued to pick holes in the Parsons' defence and Galwey made it 4-2. Kamari added another Batawa tally before Parsons regained their share of play.

The losers notched the final goal on a free kick, Bob Main putting in Pete Evendon's pass.

Leafs Lose To Jets, Bisons Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitching isn't supposed to be Buffalo's strong point, but try telling that to John Talluoris and Jim Duffalo.

The pair gave the Bisons a 2-0, 6-2 sweep Tuesday night over Toledo Mud Hens, tying Buffalo with Richmond Braves for fifth place in the International League.

Despite an 8-7 loss in 15 innings to Syracuse Chiefs, Jacksonville Suns moved into a second-place tie with Toledo. Columbus Jets increased their league lead to 6½ games with a 5-4 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Braves whipped Rochester Red Wings 6-2 in the second game of a doubleheader after Rochester won the opener 4-2.

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method
by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER
SOUND STRATEGY TO SAVE STROKES

Golf course architects seem to be relying more and more on sand bunkers around greens to test a golfer's skill. Often we find only a very narrow opening to the putting surface.

Still, golfers continue to try to shoot shots through these narrow avenues. This can be a costly practice, especially for players who are a bit shaky on sand shots.

I advise most golfers to play short of such greens (see illustration) unless they are reasonably certain that they can carry the bunkers.

If you play short, you will still be in good position to pitch onto the green and one-putt. You can still get a par or an par-4 holes and, possibly, a birdie on short par-3's.

You will be reasonably sure of having a good lie in the fairway from which to play your next shot. If you go for the green and hit the sand, you might come up with a bad lie and ruin your round by going several over par.

Palmer Is Bank Favorite

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, shocked by his collapse in the U.S. Open, could look at the list of golf's top money winners Tuesday and take consolation.

Palmer's $12,500 purse, plus a $1,500 bonus for his losing playoff with Billy Casper, boosted him to top position and dropped Doug Sanders to second.

Casper, who wasn't in the top 10 last week, moved into seventh position after collecting the $25,000 top prize and a $1,500 playoff bonus.

The U.S. Professional Golfers Association list showed Palmer with a total earnings of $81,756 to Sanders' $80,449. Phil Rodgers was third with $68,055 and Jack Nicklaus fourth with $63,-213.

Others in the top 10 were Gay Brewer, Frank Beard, Casper, Tony Lema, Bruce Devlin and Johnny Pott.

Youths Form Own Sports Organization

DESERONTO — Deseronto has seen its second organization formed within ten days, this time by the "teen-age boys."

Last Thursday evening about 30 youth of high school age held a meeting in the town hall and formed the Deseronto Sports Organization. It was a spontaneous thing, just a crowd of boys having some fun together, and somebody suddenly coming up with the idea of forming some sort of club. Thursday night's meeting was the result.

The boys have one main idea in mind: to run the organization themselves with no adults on their executive. The sole exception is Police Chief L. W. Thomlinson, who has consented to be their legal guardian.

Because they had no experience in forming an organization, they asked Councillor Marks to help the out Thursday. The name was tentatively agreed upon, and 11 youths were nominated to the executive. Of these, five were elected by secret ballot, and the five agreed among themselves that Dwight Hompkins, president of 'Teen-Towne,' should be chairman. Arnold Marks will be vice-chairman, Bill Barnhart, because he has training in bookkeeping, is secretary-treasurer, and Wilmer Brant, chosen to look after publicity. Bob Punchard is "minister without portfolio," as it were. His particular duties are not yet defined.

The boys are brimming with enthusiasm and are constantly coming up with new ideas. Plans have yet to be made, but they would like to take in all boys 13 or over, and this will necessitate a change in the constitution which stipulates that only boys 18 or over, and this will be allowed to vote. The fee will be small, so that no one will be debarred from joining. They want to make it as low as possible themselves, and have plans in mind already. Nothing is definite yet, but they hope the Lions Club will permit them to use the hall, and that the Public School Board will allow them to use the equipment from the high school, now closed. Members themselves are lending their equipment.

As for discipline, they want to make that themselves, setting up their own machinery — something like a court," one boy states.

At the close of the meeting Councillor Marks demonstrated his faith in the boys by handing the new secretary-treasurer his cheque for $25 to get them going.

The four complete one-half of the eight-horse field which will compete at 1¼ miles to determine the American representative in the $100,000 International Trot July 9.

Arnsbro Flight, probably the best of the four-year-olds campaigning in the U.S., is not eligible for the trotting championship since he is Canadian-owned, by the Armstrong Brothers of Lancaster.

High Property Damage in Rash Of Car Mishaps

NAPANEE — The Napanee area is getting its share of traffic accidents lately, but fortunately there have been no serious accidents. Property damage was high, however.

The Napanee Provincial Police reported two serious accidents Saturday. A 1965 sports car owned and driven by Thomas Adair of Oshawa was almost a total wreck when it went out of control on a curve near Dawson's Motel on the outskirts of Deseronto on Highway Number Two. The accident occurred at 11.35 p.m. Damage to the car was estimated at $1800. The driver escaped with facial injuries.

A car owned by Harold Tupah of Marlbank was parked near the hotel in Tamworth, 20 miles north of here, when it was struck Saturday night by a 1963 car driven by Leon Frank Guenard of Enterprise. Damage to the two cars was approximately $900. Guenard was taken to the Lennox and Addington Clinic General Hospital where he was treated for abrasions and was released.

STRIKES MAIL BOX

Early Monday morning a car driven by John Duncan McDonald of RR 1 suffered damage estimated at $470 when it struck a mail box on Highway 401 about two miles west of town. There were no injuries.

A hit-and-run driver was located by Napanee police Monday. A car owned by Mrs. Marion Bottle and parked in front of her residence on Dundas street west, was struck early Sunday morning and damaged to the extent of an estimated $400. The driver is reported to have stopped to look at the damage before driving away.

Napanee police found parts of the grill of the car near the scene, and Monday traced it to Deseronto, so badly damaged that they did not know how it had been driven from the accident scene. The driver was Donald Pringle.

Police Chief Harry Benn investigated an accident on Bridge street Tuesday. Alfred C. Collins, a newcomer to town, believed Robert street to be a stop street, somehow he stopped, was struck by a car driven by Mrs. James Larshy of William street. Both cars were badly damaged. Total damage is estimated to be $700. The accident is being investigated.

DESERONTO — Slowly but surely the dity is coming when Deseronto will see work actually begin on its sewage system. A letter from the engineers, Riley and Barrington read at the meeting of the Town Council Monday evening advised Council that plans were all but completed.

A second communication from the County of Hastings stated that the county had agreed to the formation of a County Health Unit as part of Hastings. Deseronto will be included.

Councillor James Sharpe, chairman of the streets committee told council that the recapping of sidewalks had been completed, and that the opening up of Pearl Street is proceeding nicely. This is a street of allleyway, and the work has been made use of, and is in a desirable building area. The work on Pearl Street will be a potential Park. Charles Reid has been engaged to cut grass and weeds along the streets.

Deseronto will have clean walks next winter. Snow-blowing equipment for cleaning the walks is to be purchased from the Massey Ferguson Co. Attachments for cutting weeds and grass along the walks will be bought, also. This will be welcome news to older people and widows who have found it a hardship to keep their walks clear.

The town is determined to see wrecked cars taken away from private property by a by-law passed Monday night made that clear. The police are empowered to have cars cutting weeds them moved to designated wrecking yards.

An extra employee is to be hired for the streets as the work is getting behind. Applications will be received for the position.

The police department was granted $100 for the purchase of softball equipment, and gave permission to the newly-formed Deseronto Sports Organization to use the town hall for its meetings for the present. Councillor Mills reported that the organization was formed the previous week.

Woman Found Dead in House; No Inquest

NAPANEE — May Wood, a lifelong resident of Napanee, was found dead by Napanee police about 8 p.m. Saturday evening. Dr. D. C. McVicker of Deseronto said that no inquest will be held. An autopsy performed in Belleville showed that she had died of natural causes. Miss Wood, who was about 64, is known to have had a heart condition which forced her to give up her employment as a waitress in a local restaurant.

The body was discovered by Constable Sidney Freita while he was searching for two girls reported missing. Other inhabitants of the house had notified a local undertakery but had not called police.

The incident has again drawn attention to a house which has long been condemned by authorities as unfit for human habitation. It has no hydro, and no toilet facilities, and yet three families live there, one with several small children. Miss Wood occupied one room.

The owner is a Napanee woman now living in Florida, and with a summer home at Beaver Lake. At the March meeting of the Napanee town council there was spirited discussion about this house and similar ramshackle so-called dwellings owned by the same woman, with everyone agreeing that something should be done about them and nobody knowing what to do. At the time the mayor said, "Some day something dreadful is going to happen there and then we'll all be sorry."

Napanee is planning a by-law to do away with substandard housing.

Generations of Entertainers Pay Tribute to Ed Wynn

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — On Sunday morning, the gentle genius of comedy, Ed Wynn, reached the end of his years, which were a few months short of four-score.

Two generations of entertainers will pay tribute to "the perfect fool" Thursday at Forest Lawn, and their homage is well-placed.

No American star sustained a longer career and succeeded in so many phases of show business. Once was more universally liked by his fellow performers.

Everyone has his own memories of Ed Wynn. I remember him first as radio's fire chief, his shrill voice spouting gems of comic near-hysterics. During the war I saw him in a vaudeville revue, Big Time, and the rareness of his comic talent was more apparent.

He plodded about the stage in huge shoes and outsized costumes, pausing now and then to posit an inane invention as if it had just been revealed to him. He weaved through all the routines and ended the show with a charming bit he often used.

PEDALLED BICYCLE

Wynn pedalled onstage with his own invention, a place mounted on a bicycle. The chanteuse—I believe it was Jane Pickens—sat atop the piano and sang Tea For Two while Wynn gilded the vehicle about the stage in rhythm to the song.

His early television shows brought all his comic talents into sharp focus. The gentleness of his humor was a welcome contrast to the hard-driving comics of early TV.

Wynn was worried when Sullivan Keenan talked him into taking a dramatic role in the film, The Great Man. In his previous 52-century bows before the public, he had always relied on wild costumes, clownish eyes brows and huge spectacles.

"When I saw myself in the rushes, I was amazed at how I behaved," he told me. "I never seen myself as I really was. But here was an old guy with a big nose and a lonely kisser. No wonder I had marriage troubles!"

"I've never told an off-color joke to an audience," he said. "I don't always put on the kind of show people would bring their children to. During my career 17 newspapers have written editorials about my career, and many of them remarked that I always put on a clean show. I'm proud of that."

He was proud, too, that he remained in demand during his 70s. George Stevens gave him his most dramatic roles, in The Diary of Anne Frank and The Greatest Story Ever Told.

Walt Disney considered Ed a good-luck piece and cast him in many of the Disney comedies. Wynn was delighted, although he did grumble a bit about his billing.

CBC Making More Films Than Board

OTTAWA (CP) — A private survey says the CBC has outstripped the National Film Board as Canada's most important film-maker and the publicly-owned bodies must adjust to the fact for the centennial.

In a report made public Tuesday, the survey says the NFB distribution system is inadequate and the CBC is spending millions of dollars a year on films that are used once on television, then shelved or thrown away.

It concludes that the government should consider setting up a body, "superior and unrelated to existing agencies," to look into the whole situation.

The $10,500 survey, made for the federal Centennial Commission by Robert Anderson and Associates Ltd., of Aylmer, Que., a film production and consulting firm, was tabled before the Commons committee on broadcasting, films and the arts.

John Fisher, centennial commissioner, told the committee the report now is under study.

The report urged that:

—Establishment of a national film archives. CBC films were often destroyed because of lack of storage space and the Canadian Film Institute's private collection was "rapidly deteriorating" because of lack of funds for proper storage.

—Rapid passage through the Commons of a bill to set up a Canadian Film Development Corporation with $10,000,000 to help finance and distribute feature films.

The report said the CBC made 486 films in 1964-65 against 153 for the NFB.

"The film board's production importance diminishes as CBC's increases and as the provinces expand their own film boards," it added.

TV Networks Promising Brighter Shows Next Year

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Network executives, addressing themselves to television for several seasons brushed off criticism of the generally shabby quality of many light "entertainment" shows and the almost total lack of serious drama beyond occasional feature films.

The networks now are admitting—believing, of course—that perhaps the complaints were based in truth. They want to do something about it, next season.

This sudden passion for drama with "meaning" or "significance"—two words being used a lot these days—could be swelling indeed for viewers. But it bears earmarks of a fad and seems to be part of the three networks' continuing game of one-upmanship.

The game goes in a peak during the television summer season, when the big buildup starts for next season's programs. This is when we are promised fun, action and excitement in the movies, westerns and spy series. And this is when we are told about the special shows being made for summer, such as serious, quality dramas.

IT'S FASHIONABLE

The word "quality" has become as fashionable as the word "ratings" with network executives. ABC made the opening move in quality oneupmanship with announcement of its forthcoming Stage, 67 anthology series.

Then CBS came along with its scheduled production of Death of a Salesman and made another move by promising a six-hour version of Dickens' Nicholas Nickleby. Not to be outdone, NBC said it had signed Sidney Poitier to play Othello.

CBS made a master move to top the Tuesday night announcing it has set aside $500,000 "to encourage the writing of original dramas expressly for television." Writers who turn out "meaningful" and "significant" material will be rewarded by payments up to $25,000 a script. This is considerably more than is routinely paid for a TV script.

MINING UNDER COVER

PORT MORIEN, N.S.(CP)—Cape Breton's mining industry, the island's life - blood, was started here in 1720 by French settlers. Although no big mines were dug, local caves have been the sites of "bootleg" mines for more than 200 years.

Four-Horse Spill At Woodbine

TORONTO (CP)—A crowd of 8,522, roaring as the field of 14 horses pounded into the final turn of the second race at Woodbine race track Tuesday, was shocked into silence when four horses went down in a spill. None of the jockeys was seriously injured.

As the field came into the final turn of the 6½ furlong dash, Zeeaitis, the leader under apprentice Larry Goldberg, appeared to drop over on Now I Wonder sqeezing that horse towards the rail. At this point Zequote, being urged by Leblanc, had no room and tripped on the hind heels of Now I Wonder.

Zequote, owned by Ed Seedhouse of Toronto, somersaulted violently, pitching Leblanc to the track, then Clever Pilot, owned by Percy Gilligan of St. Catharines, A. C. Kastor's Aged Dust and Frank Strosnach's Silas Scooter, fell over the horses lying on the track.

Now I Wonder, owned by Frank Sherman of Hamilton, won and returned a $42.40, $18 and $13.30 and combined with Hapala, first race winner, for a $226.60 daily-double.

Rolling Stones File Damage Suit in N.Y.

NEW YORK (Reuters)—The Rolling Stones filed a $5,000,000 damage suit against 14 leading New York hotels Tuesday, charging injury to their reputation and discrimination in violation of the city's civil rights laws.

The English singing group said in court papers filed at the Manhattan Supreme Court that the hotels refused them accommodation June 16 and 17 "on account of their national origin."

As a result they "suffered great humiliation, ridicule and shame and their reputation had been greatly injured."

Each of the group's five members claimed $1,000,000 for alleged damage to his reputation and $50c for the alleged violation of civil rights laws.

WORM PICKERS WIN

TORONTO (CP)—A strike by 20 worm-pickers was settled Monday night when their employer agreed to their pay demand of $5.50 for 1,000 worms. The owner of the company said the pickers made up to $184 each last week.

Union Nationale Winter Meet Probably Paved Victory Path

Seldom in Canadian political annals has an election result caused as much surprise as the June 5 vote in Quebec. The confidence that led to the Union Nationale victory are analyzed in this story by William Stevens, veteran Bilaguial reporter who has been in charge of Quebec news coverage of The Canadian Press for 14 years.

By WILLIAM STEWART
MONTREAL (CP)—The surprise result of the June 5 provincial election has raised as many questions in Quebec as anywhere else.

Almost as many reasons are cited for the 55-to-51-seat victory of Daniel Johnson's Union Nationale over the Liberals led by Jean Lesage as there are members in the 108-seat legislative assembly.

Some say that the Quebecois vote, in its most simple terms, warned provincial authorities that the Liberal policy of the Quiet Revolution will be swallowed only in digestible quantities and that it has gone see the brevity.

Until June 5, the Liberals seemed to be riding high as one of the most progressive governments in Canada. But the burning point in the situation probably occurred in 1963.

Late in the winter, the Union Nationale—considered to be in political hibernation—held a big party conference in Montreal.

Regarded then as anti-intellectual, anti-labor and anti-progress, the party called on intellectuals, labor and progressives to help provide ideas for a new program and changed its representation so that women and young people would have a permanent place in the party structures and a voice in party affairs.

TEST FOR JOHNSON
The meeting attracted a lot of interest and newspapers, especially those of the intellectual-machine methods, applauded the effort.

The same constitution was amended to provide for the deposition of any unsatisfactory leader at any of the quarters it was thought Daniel Johnson who had come up organizational talents and prestige would be out unless the UN could very well June 5.

Now Mr. Johnson, a president, 20-year veteran of provincial politics at the age of 51, is Quebec's new premier.

While the Union Nationale reorganized, Quebec and those who had set up a government with comfortable legislature support of 63 of the house in many name seats, felt and acted as though they would be in office for a long time. They split their provincial organization away from its federal counterpart in the province.

Everyone conceded that its key ministers were as hard-working and as concerned a political team as had ever burned the midnight oil in the government buildings on Parliament hill at Quebec. About half the way they kept the legislature in session to put through legislation designed, as was said, to make Quebec catch up on 25 years' lost time.

The Liberals were surrounded by keen brain-trusters whom Mr. Johnson now is trying to keep on the job.

TOO CONFIDENT?
But it appears that the cabinet ministers neglected the political scene to such an extent that they were not close enough to the fact that eventually the strident cries for change to ease the scrutiny of voters paying the heavy cost of drastic reform.

With a confident air, Jean Lesage's Liberals are said to have been more interested in the date of this year's election, six months ahead of the end of the assembly's four-year term, on a privately-hired public opinion inquiry. This showed them to be easily favored six years after the new regime first came to office in 1960 and seemed to upset the old UN machine built up by Maurice Duplessis over a 23-year span.

Some observers say Liberal candidates, lulled by an atmosphere of ease and affluence, didn't work as hard during the campaign as they should have.

Reporters also observed in various parts of the province that experienced Union Nationale party hands, on the sidelines since the 1960 defeat, came out in strength to fight the Liberals on a riding-to-riding basis.

The campaign was complicated by the appearance of third- and fourth-party candidates as well as independents, some of them neglected and unhappy Liberals.

Separatists, under the banner of le Ressemblement pour l'Independance nationale (RIN), entered 75 candidates who picked up 8.5 per cent of total vote in about 2,313,000. Separatist Social Creditors calling themselves le Ralliement creditiste (RN) entered 90 candidates who got 3.1 per cent.

The Liberals' vote fell from 56.4 per cent in the 1962 election to 47.4—the approximate proportion that went to separatists—while the Union Nationale's vote, even though the party won, declined from 42.2 to 40.8.

At the start of the campaign, little chance was given in the Union Nationale or its leader. But in the closing weeks of the eight-week contest, reporters said that the result of the first provincial election in recent times on a Sunday might be closer than anticipated.

Mr. Lesage, a stylish crowd politician of 54, reacted brusquely to the Sunday-night defeat. His first statements were that he would not turn over the government to the Union Nationale "on a platter" on more votes. After second thoughts, he bowed out graceful and announced he would prepare memoranda for Mr. Johnson to bring the UN leader up to date on administrative matters.

ACHIEVED MUCH
The Lesage government's record is impressive. Private electricity companies have been taken over and integrated into the government-operated Hydro — Quebec; education reforms, although they may have gone too fast for acceptance, were broadcast in the province's history; a tough and federal-provincial relations established what will happen to education; prosperity for rural areas whose lure is the federation of Liberals is the traditional pattern of the Union Nationale heyday; medicare; the late of the Quiet Revolution in the face of high cost; the reaction to UN policies of business, some of which was put on edge by the nationalist aspects of the general efforts to modernize Quebec.

The Quebec press is much sharper-eyed now than during Duplessis days and the Union Nationale will be watched carefully by those who feel it may slip back into political methods that led to its 1960 overthrow. Even reformminded Jean Lesage complained after the election that the press had been overcritical of the Liberals.

The press will watch just as closely the activities of the Lesage opposition since the Liberal leader will be playing cards that will determine his future in Quebec, and possibly Canadian, politics.

It will wait to see whether the Johnson government will set out a Schedule of priorities so that judgments can be made what measures are planned, the means of financing them and whether the timetable is satisfactory.

One of the reproaches made by the Lesage government was that it either overlooked this angle or failed to give time to explaining to the passengers what its course of navigation was.

Without anyone in the legislature, the RIN and RN will have a harder time getting continuing attention. The RIN contend their proportion of the vote was an encouragement to continue to work toward the independence of Quebec by political methods. Their flavoring is that their proportion of the vote would have been 7.5 per cent had they run candidates in all 108 ridings.

The creditiste RN likewise claim their presence in the 1966 campaign was only a prelude to a continuing effort.

One result of the election is that the Liberal team, relieved of the responsibilities of office, has the opportunity to study out the next phase of its reform program, hoping the work will be useful should it be able to regain office.

The Union Nationale will look for the opportunity to convince Quebec that it deserved better than two-fifths of the total vote and work to interest more urban voters while the Liberals pay attention to country areas whose cold shoulder caused their defeat.

Accelerated Bombings Likely as Canada Fails To Get Hanoi to Talk

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The possibility of accelerated American bombing of North Viet Nam is believed stronger because of events of the last week.

"We must continue to raise the cost of aggression at its source and that is the sole purpose of our use of air strength

Russian Aid, Influence Said Growing in Hanoi

SAIGON (AP)—Recent visits to Hanoi say Soviet military aid and influence in North Viet Nam appear to be growing.

They report increasing amounts of supplies arriving from the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe. This is especially true of trucks and military equipment. The rate of replacement of trucks is said to be much greater than the rate they are being destroyed by American air attacks.

The Russians, these travellers say, seem to be gaining influence over the Chinese with the North Vietnamese government.

At the same time, they add, the Hanoi regime still shows no disposition to negotiate a Vietnamese settlement with the Deposed Diem.

"They don't see why they should negotiate at this stage," said one recently returned visitor to Hanoi. "They feel that because of the Buddhist disturbances in South Viet Nam, the will of the Americans to stay on will be sapped.

"They also feel they are getting a good grip on southern Laos and having gotten this grip they can sit down and wait two years or more. Then, they will have the right opportunity to spring in (to South Viet Nam.)"

Morale in Hanoi, the visitors say, "seems to be very high" although there is anxiety over possible American air attacks on the capital, so far spared.

There has been considerable evacuation of people from Hanoi to the country, especially children.

Says Control On Ground Way To Halt Reds

WASHINGTON (AP)—A U.S. Army intelligence general says the only way to halt the movement of Communist troops, arms and ammunition into South Viet Nam is to seize the ground over which they move.

"Not until a complete block is made with control of the ground will we really stop it," said Maj-Gen. Roy Lasseter Jr., deputy assistant chief of staff for intelligence, in testimony given the House appropriations committee April 6 and made public today.

Lasseter said this makes close questioning by committee members who sought his personal opinion on the effectiveness of air bombing of the infiltration routes from North Viet Nam through Laos into South Viet Nam.

against selected military targets," President Johnson said Saturday.

Some observers learned it his toughest utterance yet on the undeclared war—perhaps aimed at domestic critics wanting a bigger effort or perhaps because straight at Hanoi.

Spokesman Robert McCloskey of the state department promptly indicated Wednesday that the Canadian proposal envisaged in Hanoi revealed no evidence of they now willingness to talk rather than fight.

The question then is how and where President Johnson will authorize U.S. air operations much closer he will move toward the suburbs of Hanoi, the port of Haiphong, already bombed and jet fighter fields so far untouched.

WHAT WILL RUSSIA DO?

The second question is whether hitting such targets will be regarded by the Soviet Union China as a significant escalation in the rules tacitly followed so far.

For example, if the airfields guarding the oil depots are attacked, might the North Vietnamese fighters rise to China and fight on? The U.S. has warned that, unlike Korea, there is no sanctuary in Viet Nam.

American plane losses in Viet Nam are nudging 400 and the losses are increasing at a more rapid pace in recent weeks.

Air power continues to be the only area, short of outright invasion of the north by land or

Russia Seeks More Influence With U Thant, Urging 'Cabinet'

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Russians are reported seeking more influence in U Thant's inner circle as he considers whether to seek a second term as UN secretary-general.

Diplomatic sources say the Soviet Union has suggested to Thant that he decide things by the consensus of a small cabinet of principal advisers including a UN undersecretary of Soviet nationality.

Thant will have a chance to discuss that suggestion with Soviet officials when he visits Moscow this summer. He is expected to arrive there within a month.

Some sources say the Russians are not pressing their consensus suggestion on Thant, letting it remain only a condition for his continuance in office. Others say they have withheld public mention of the suggestion while they get his reaction to their suggestion.

Thant is committed to announce by early September whether he is willing to continue beyond his present five - year term which ends Nov. 3.

The Soviet Union can block his re-election because the secretary-general is chosen by the General Assembly on the recommendation of the Security Council. Russia and the other big powers have a veto in the council.

When Thant was elected in 1961, his candidacy was put forward by Soviet premier Nikita Khrushchev as a condition for close collaboration and consultation with eight undersecretaries acting as his "principal advisers on important questions." The eight at the time were from the Soviet Union, the United States, Czechoslovakia, France, Brazil, India, Nigeria and the United Arab Republic.

The Soviet Union got agreement to that arrangement after rejection of its proposal for a three-man troika—one Communist, one westerner and one neutralist—to replace the secretary-general.

Sources in a position to know say that within a few months of taking office, Thant stopped holding meetings of the principal advisers and took to consulting undersecretaries individually on questions relating to their particular fields.

De Gaulle on Tour of Russia May See Space Launching Pad

MOSCOW (CP) — President Charles de Gaulle of France, after three days of talks here, flew off today on a 6,000-mile tour of the Soviet Union and possibly a visit to a Russian space launching site.

De Gaulle, his wife and their party were accompanied by a Russian group headed by Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny. First stop was Novosibirsk, a mushrooming industrial city in southern Siberia.

De Gaulle flies to Leningrad Saturday. Next week his visits Kiev and Volgograd, the former Stalingrad, before coming back to Moscow for two final days of his 13-day Soviet visit.

Though French and Russian officials have stayed tightlipped about the plan, it was generally expected de Gaulle would be whisked away to a Soviet space launching site.

The "cosmodrome," where spacemen are launched, is 900 miles away from Novosibirsk.

A France-Soviet space agreement will be signed in Moscow next Thursday, and eventually a Russian rocket may be used to carry a French satellite into space.

The Soviet press continued today to praise prospects for Soviet-French co - operation that could in turn increase security in Europe.

"Co-operation between France and the Soviet Union would make impossible a new war in Europe," says the Soviet military newspaper Krasnaya Zvezda (Red Star).

"Our countries have different social systems and there is a good deal of difference in their foreign policy. Yet as was repeatedly stated by French and Soviet leaders, this cannot be an obstacle to their co-operation.

"What prospects are opening up before them in this field. These are all the more realistic since French foreign policy over the last few years brings unmistakable evidence of a strong desire for genuine independence and peace."

The newspaper mentions in this context French opposition to U.S. policy in Viet Nam and the French withdrawal from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization military commands.

French sources said Wednesday de Gaulle had made it clear to the Russians that France needs the protection of both the United States and Russia to help it ward off pressures from either power.

He also reacted negatively to a Russian plan for a pan-European conference—exclusive of the U.S.—to consider European security.

Protest Tractor Parades Will Be Better Organized

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

An Ontario Farmers' Union official said Wednesday that tractor demonstrations protesting what farmers say are low milk prices will be better organized by the end of the week. But he promised no highway blocks during peak weekend traffic periods.

John Dolmer, of Corbeton, Ont., OFU president, said he will explain the union's policy to Orillia district officials who threatened earlier to demonstrate on Highway 400 Friday and Saturday. Mr. Dolmer said, the union needed public goodwill.

Farmers across southern Ontario kept demonstrations to a minimum Wednesday as they reaped hay crops already delayed by a cold and rainy spring.

Police halted a planned convergence of 73 tractors on London on the grounds it might affect safety at highway intersections.

The farmers are asking for a 30 cents price for a hundredweight of milk with eventual increases to $5. The price now is set at $3.29 with a federal subsidy of 75 cents, part of which goes for transportation costs.

In a meeting Tuesday with William Stewart, provincial agricultural minister, a farmers' request for an immediate $5 cent subsidy was turned down on the basis it would interfere with federal programs.

Other demonstrations Wednesday took place at Owen Sound, Marysville, 25 miles east of Belleville, St. Marys, 25 miles north of London, and Mitchell, near Stratford.

About 40 tractors demonstrated near Peterborough and OFU officials hoped about 1,000 farmers would attend a mass meeting there tonight.

Mr. Dolmer said the farmers do not expect trouble with police provided tractors obey traffic rules. Police escorting farmers near London stopped motorists who passed tractors on the left side and gave them warnings.

Here to Talk About Water

OTTAWA (CP) — U.S. Interior Secretary Stewart Udall arrived in the Canadian capital today to discuss water resources and Great Lakes pollution with Prime Minister Jean-Luc Pepin.

Manitoba Folk Voting

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba's Progressive Conservative government, song since 1962 with a winter-over majority, is being tested today in a shirt-sleeves provincial election.

Weather sunny and warm, with a risk of showers in some areas, was the general forecast as voting began in Premier Duff Roblin's bid for a fourth consecutive consecutive term of office. Polling hours are 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. CDT.

Pope Meets Birth Control Board

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul conferred today with three members of his birth control commission amid reports that most experts on the commission have gone on record favoring changes in the church's ban on artificial methods of contraception.

The Pope met separately with Leo Cardinal Suenens of Belgium, Lawrence Cardinal Shehan of Baltimore, Md., and Archbishop Leo Binz of St. Paul, Minn. They are members of the commission's directing board of 16 prelates who expect to submit the commission's final report to the Pope after June 25.

Negroes Ask Protection From Klan

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

BENTON, Miss. (AP) — The Mississippi march to promote Negro voter registration was stepped on several fronts today.

Plans for a rally Friday in Philadelphia, Miss., where three civil rights workers were slain three years ago, occupied the time and energies of most march leaders.

For many others Canton—site of several civil rights struggles

Keep Peace In Florida

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A precarious peace enforced by steel-helmeted riot police settled on Pompano Beach's Negro district early today after a day of violence.

Despite a truce that was supposed to keep Negroes off the streets, more than 200 gathered in the predawn Sunday night, pitching bottles and jeering police.

The hands, who the night before had showered police with rocks and bottles, dispersed as riot police advanced. No arrests were made.

Heavy-handed Negro leaders arranged a truce after police agreed to cut down the number of patrols.

In the past—loomed just ahead.

Lawyers sought a federal injunction to forbid interference with the rally in Philadelphia, a Ku Klux Klan stronghold.

The march will employ about 75 persons for the rally at Philadelphia, about 70 miles east of Benton.

SEEK PROTECTION

Hosea Williams, a march leader, said the federal court also was asked to order police protection for the rally, to be led by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and Floyd B. McKissick.

King heads the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, McKissick directs the Congress of Racial Equality.

Roy Wilkins, head of the NAACP, who started the march, was expected to join the column at Canton, next major stop on the route.

Meredith, recovered from buckshot pellet wounds inflicted by two shotgun blasts the day after he left Memphis, Tenn., on the 220-mile journey, declined to say whether he would be armed when he returned.

Requests Change In Law

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—A New Democratic Party MP said Thursday employers are using the courts to force striking employees back to work, thus interfering with the rights of Canadian workers.

David Lewis (NDP — York South) told the Commons he believes the courts are acting with the best of motives. They believed they were carrying out the law.

"Well, let us change the law so that they (the employers) will not be able to use an injunction in order to break strikes, in effect, to force people back to work, to interfere with the bargaining process and the rights of Canadian workers," said the labor lawyer.

The Commons was debating the 1966-67 operational estimates of the labor department but made little headway. Today the MP's are to start on second reading of a bill to amend the Dominion Loans Act.

Much of Wednesday's debate centred on the recently-settled Quebec longshoremen's strike. Opposition spokesmen criticized the government for not stepping into the dispute sooner.

But Mr. Lewis appeared to be setting legal limits on the time for se-

Syndicated Crime in Ontario Admitted by Atty.-General

TORONTO (CP — Organized crime in Ontario is not necessarily on the increase but a "sophisticated system" is uncovering more than was formerly possible, says Attorney-General Arthur Wishart.

Mr. Wishart said in an interview Wednesday his department is aware there is syndicated crime in the province but there has been substantially "nothing new" in its development.

"We have evidence that criminal persons have been found from time to time in Ontario by the attorney-general said, but there isn't any indication that organized crime is on the rise.

"It's just that we are able to uncover more and that we were able to a few years ago.

The Ontario Police Commission report tabled earlier in the legislature says there is organized crime in Ontario with "tentacles" reaching deep into the United States as well as to other parts of Canada.

The report says that police authorities in the province are closely watching the infiltration of legitimate businesses by known criminals, a trend it says, that has become more prevalent.

"There have been several criminal occurrences during the year which have clearly indicated the existence of syndicated crime control," the commission's report for 1965 says.

The commission says it has been established there is connection among major criminals in Ontario, Quebec and U.S. borderlands in narcotics distribution, bankruptcy, arson and insurance frauds as well as in "big" U.S. developments, the planning of major robberies and the large-scale disposition of stolen bonds, securities, etc.

"There are indications that other areas of crime are also within the orbit of organized groups," the commission says.

Mentioned in the report, labelled R. F. Milligan, chairman of the commission and author of the report, refused to say whether organized criminals have succeeded in taking over any areas of crime in Ontario.

"We've discovered that syndicated criminals are making a determined effort to get control but I don't say that they have succeeded in getting control," he said.

Asked if the crime situation is worse now than in previous years, Mr. Milligan replied:

"It is worse in this degree. Judge Macdonald (former commissioner of the commission) reported there was evidence of organized crime but there was no syndicated crime. We go further and say that the syndicates are making an effort to get control but we don't say they have control."

The report stressed three essential elements to combat infiltration by the syndicate—police intelligence, intercommunication and co-ordinative forces.

The commission says weak links must be strengthened or eliminated. This will most certainly be policed by a system of strong municipal police forces working with the OPP and co - operating with the RCMP, Quebec provincial and municipal police and U.S. and other foreign police.

Steps suggested for an attack on crime were: Amalgamation of small police forces into area forces; better training of officers at the Ontario police college; equipment to enable all forces "to do the job expected of them;" and development of a repository of criminal records and statistics gathered from all available sources.

Salvationist R. Homewood To Head College in India

After three years at Belleville as Youth Secretary for the Salvation Army's Mid-Ontario Division, Major R. M. (Ray) Homewood soon will be taking on what he terms "a tremendous challenge". Advised of a change of appointment by Salvation Army General Frederick Coutts of London, England, he will become principal of the Salvation Army Training College at Nekore in the Madras and Andhra Territory, India.

Major Homewood and Mrs. Homewood and children John 12, Gillian, 10 and Raymond, 8, expect to leave Belleville about the middle of next week. Plans call for the Homewoods to sail for India from New York City on July 15. It's a return to India for the popular Salvationists. They served there from 1956-1962 and after a one-year term as Youth Secretary for Metro Toronto, the appointment to Belleville was received.

While their work has centred around Salvation Army youth activities including scouting, Sunday School and young peoples' bands, in the Mid-Ontario Division, the Homewoods are well known in the city, having addressed gatherings at many churches here, speaking on India, a subject they are well qualified to discuss.

MRS. R. M. HOMEWOOD

ENJOYED STAY

Commenting on the three-year stay in Belleville and its effect on the three children, Major Homewood observed: "The last three years have been very important in the lives of our children. They'll never forget Belleville. Mrs. Homewood and myself have enjoyed our time here, too."

Naturally enough, John and Gillian are very interested in youth activities. John came up through the 11th Belleville Cub Pack and earned his "leaping wolf" into the Scout Troop.

Young Raymond has taken to hockey too and participated in the Tyke series during the 1965-66 season.

John attends Harry J. Clarke Public School. Gillian and Raymond are pupils at Queen Elizabeth. In fact, they'll be attending boarding schools and will be away from home during the six-month school term.

IS NURSE

A graduate of University of Western Ontario, Mrs. Major Homewood is a public health nurse and this fills in very well in her service with the Salvation Army. As it has in the past, her nursing skill will prove of value in India.

Tuesday at the Roblin Lake Camp, a farewell for the Homewoods was observed. Speaking on behalf of the Belleville clergy was Rev. G. Woodcock of the Victoria Ave. Baptist Church. Mr. Woodcock is president of the Belleville Ministerial Association. Captain Len Pearo of Picton spoke for Salvation Army Officers and members in the Mid-Ontario Division. Captain and Mrs. James Reid of Willowdale will take over the Homewoods at Belleville

3 Generations Of One Family Will Attend

Sixty-two years is a long time to spend at one job or profession. Yet Harry Farnsworth of Consecon has spent almost many years in pursuing the ministry as one of Jehovah's Witnesses. He has been associated with the Belleville congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, 141 Dundas East.

According to Thor Jensen, presiding minister of the East Hill Congregation, Harry Farnsworth is the oldest member of the congregation which has been invited to attend the "God's Sons of Liberty" District Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses in Toronto, June 22 through 26.

"Jehovah's Witnesses place a heavy responsibility upon full family participation in matters of worship," Jensen said, "so the local family members attending will not be a rare occurence at the Toronto convention There is more to religion than just sitting and listening," he added, "although most church attenders fall short of following the divine instruction of their responsibuty."

"The door-to-door ministry of Jehovah's Witnesses is not limited just to the adults." Jensen noted, "Our young people, too, must learn how to do this work and do excellently at it. Our Toronto assembly will have many portrayals of Bible accounts that are filled with meaning for all of us in this day. All families that, by attending to-it ones attending, will profit immensely from this training."

Jensen noted that three generations of the Johnston family will be part of the Bell delegation attending the Toronto gathering. Dorothy Johnston, her son Ralph of 38 Murray Street and his wife Joy, with their five children: Judy, Thomas, Steven, Peter and Robert will be at the gathering.

"We've just been informed that Springfield will be attending from eight provinces of Canada, 46 of the United States and 12 other countries," Jensen said, "so we are eagerly looking forward to the opportunity to make new friends and to renew acquaintances of past years."

In addition is the varied presentations of Bible-based discourses and dramatizations, the convention will also conduct a mass baptism of new ministers on Friday, June 24. It is expected that about 700 persons will publicly symbolize their dedication to So God's will by water immersion. Baptism and water ordination for Jehovah's Witnesses.

LINE OF TRACTORS moves down roadway from 401 overpass north of Marysville Wednesday afternoon, as district farmers prepare for highway patrol protesting against low farm prices. More than 30 tractors hauling farm machinery took part in parade along No. 2 Highway, east and west of Marysville.

Police to Move Tractors Blocking Roads

TORONTO (CP)—Farmers' tractors that block the normal course of highway traffic will be moved off the road, OPP Deputy Commissioner T. H. Trimble said today.

No special directives concerning the tractor parades have come from the attorney - general's office, Mr. Trimble said in an interview.

But the police have been told to maintain order on the highways, and "we'll do what we are paid to do."

Mr. Trimble said tractors blocking traffic will be subject to ordinary traffic laws. In addition, failure to obey OPP traffic signals while on the highways could result in a further charge.

No charges have yet been laid in the various tractor parades throughout the province.

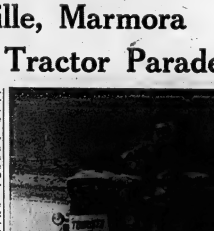
Marysville, Marmora Renew Tractor Parades



Bay of Quinte district farmers Wednesday stepped up their highway tractor patrols in protest against low farm produce prices.

Starting on a comparatively small scale on Monday, farmers in the Marysville and Marmora areas were out in greater force yesterday with more than a 30 farm tractors joining the parade.

Most of the tractors were hauling farm equipment ranging all the way from manure spreaders to farm wagons and mowers and practically all were carrying signs denouncing as unfair the deal farmers are getting with low prices for milk and other farm produce.

At Marysville the tractor parade lined up on the Marysville county road north of 401 highway, then moved down to No. 2 highway to patrol between Wyman's Road and the Lennox and Addington county boundary east of Marysville.

The tractor parade got underway shortly before three o'clock and was scheduled to continue through the heavy traffic period at five o'clock.

SUGGESTION of even more extensive tractor parades is implied in wording of this tractor sign which says tourists won't like traffic tie-ups.

Govt. Takes Closer Look At Drift in Employment

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is taking a closer look at the drift in employment rolls between one industry and another.

One of the early facts turned up in the most recent labor force survey is that the movement of workers out of agriculture and into other work is apparently accelerating.

It also found that employment in the manufacturing industries has remained at a point below one-quarter of the total labor force, despite the movement off the farms and the general growth of the country's pool of manpower.

Where are the farm lads going?

Into finance, insurance, real estate, and public administration, according to a quick glance at the figures. Also into what has always been regarded as the most attractive fields for ambitious youngsters—primary industries other than agriculture.

The special surveys branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics conducts its poll of the labor force by checking on some 35,000 households once a month, mainly to report on unemployment.

MADE DETAILED STUDY

Until this year, it made a detailed analysis of about one-third of the poll results to find that numbers of workers are employed in nine main industrial groupings.

Now, however, it is making the detailed analysis of all the poll reports, thus giving a more exact estimate of the overall picture.

It has found, for instance, that during the three months of March, April and May this year, 329,000 workers were employed in agriculture out of the total labor force of 6,989,600. This is 9.5 per cent, down from 8.7 per cent of the labor force employed in agriculture one year earlier, and down from 9.5 per cent in the spring months of 1964.

Manufacturing employment has also steadied at a figure not more than 24 per cent during the spring months of the last three years.

Employment in the fast-growing service industries has advanced from 1,260,000 in the spring of 1964 to 1,600,000 in the past three months' average, but has done little more than keep up with the overall growth of the labor force.

Moira Area Syrup Makers To Organize

Maple syrup producers in the Moira area have decided in favor of setting up an association under the A.R.D.A. program.

An organization meeting of area producers arranged by Roy Cadwell, founder of the Madoc Art Centre, was held at his home on June 15th resulting in the formation of a committee to set up the association.

Directors were selected to act on the committee Howard Hisaler chairman, Lee Blackwell, Flinton, Edgar Bosley, Northbrook and Cyril Shaw, Eldorado with Roy Cadwell, Actinville as secretary.

The secretary was instructed to write Herb Crown, the top executive of Ontario's ARDA Administration, regarding the procedure for setting up the association and obtaining a grant from the Federal and Provincial governments under the ARDA plan.

All aspects of maple syrup production were discussed, Mr. Cadwell explained that the ARDA Program was a handout, but was a method of helping farmers to help themselves. Anyone in the Moira Area and even beyond this area is invited to join the association. Persons visiting the secretary will receive notification of the next meeting.

This is the first time that an association under the ARDA Program has been organized in this area, Mr. Hisaler indicated during the meeting, "If we aren't willing to do something for ourselves, who will and if we want something from the government, we have to ask for it."

Soldier Loses Pension Says Liberal Member

TORONTO (CP) — James Trotter (L—Parkdale) told the legislature Wednesday how a soldier who was disabled while on leave to visit his brothers' graves lost his pension because he married a girl who earned $38 a week.

Robert Hannah, 36, was crippled for life in a car accident in June, 1962, while driving to Bancroft, Ont., from Toronto to see the graves of his brothers Bud and Bradley who had been killed in an accident a month before.

The army had refused to give him leave from West Germany to attend the funerals but had allowed him to go home in June. He had served three years in Germany and signed up for another three.

The accident left him paralyzed on one side, incoherent in his speech and unable to work. The army refused him a pension on the grounds that the accident had taken place on his own time.

He left hospital in January, 1965, with a $75 monthly pension from the provincial public welfare department.

WEDS SWEETHEART

Last November Hannah married Gail Mayers, his long-time sweetheart who had corresponded with him during his years overseas. They went to live with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hannah.

Gail continued to work at her $38-a-week job and bought bedroom furniture on credit.

After Christmas the welfare department said it was discontinuing the pension cheques because Mrs. Hannah's salary put her husband over the allowable ceiling of earnings for a disabled pensioner.

Free medical and hospital care that went with the pension also were cut off.

South Viet Nam Soldiers Return to Fighting Reds

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

SAIGON (AP) — South Viet Nam's 1st Army Division, back in the war after four months of political involvement, battled Viet Cong guerrillas today in the first major government operation since the Buddhist revolt erupted.

A government spokesman said the fierce fighting in the shadow of the northern frontier had cost the guerrillas about 300 killed since the 5,000 to 6,000 South Vietnamese soldiers took the field Tuesday.

Units of the 1st Division provided the military backbone for the Buddhist uprising against the Saigon regime in the northern provinces.

Premier Nguyen Cao Cy meanwhile cracked down on lingering Buddhist resistance in Saigon. A battalion of rangers and 100 police occupied the Buddhist Institute, the last anti-government stronghold, without firing a shot.

The rangers hustled off scores of draft-age youths for military service, took the 100 unprotesting monks one by one to police headquarters for identity checks, and seized a 26-year-old woman in killing a policeman last weekend.

In a Saigon clinic under government guard, the militant Buddhist leader Thich Tri Quang abstained from solid food for the fifth day in a fast he has vowed to continue until the government falls.

The Vietnamese forces were locked in battle with an estimated two Viet Cong battalions about 1,000 men—air miles north of Quang Tri, capital of the northernmost province. Only Wednesday Ky sent about 300 troops into Quang Tri to quell pockets of the rebellion that had spread out from nearby Hue.

The battleground lies less than 30 miles from the 17th parallel frontier with North Viet Nam.

Farmer's Claims

Virtually every other group of industrial workers in Canada is seeking higher returns for their services in face of increasing costs. Thus, it is not surprising that the Ontario Farmers' Union is making a similar bid.

The tractor demonstrations throughout the province demonstrate their bid for a higher milk subsidy. Mainly, the OFU wants increased prices for the two traditional groups involved in dairy farming — the producers of fresh milk for bottling and the producers of milk used to manufacture by-products such as butter and cheese.

Ontario Agriculture Minister William Stewart has turned down the OFU requests. Hence the tractor demonstration. Mr. Stewart is quoted as saying the payment of subsidies to Ontario farmers would interfere with federal policy.

"We are holding the line," he said. "If I give them 25 cents today they will be after me for another $1 tomorrow."

Here in a nutshell is the background to this latest spin of the inflationary wheel in Canada. And it may be that Mr. Stewart will find himself in the position of the Dutch boy who tried to plug the leak in the dam with a finger. Time alone will reveal whether he can succeed in holding the line.

Teenage Finance

How much do teenagers earn today, and how do they spend their money?

Associated Press writer Sally Ryan reveals that the United States' 24 million teenagers have an estimated $15 billion a year to spend. It works out to $625 a year, or $30 more than the per-capita national income in 1940.

The young people earn their greenbacks in a multitude of ways, from the usual grass-cutting, snow-shovelling and baby-sitting chores to part-time work in stores and — for the girls — modelling. A country-wide survey also shows the kids receive allowances from their parents ranging from $1 to $20 a week.

How do they spend it? Typical of the boys is Don Rose, 17, of Encino, California, who saves about $300 a year working as a part-time salesman. He says he wants to put the money into stocks, or perhaps a car. And Pamela Tipton, 17, a senior at Coral Gables high school in Florida, is a model. With her earnings of $1.25 an hour modelling at a department store, and her $3 weekly allowance she buys clothes, cosmetics and school supplies.

Of the 15 or so youngsters (of many interviewed) whose views were set down, several reflected the promise that in an affluent society some have it too easy. Like the 15-year-old Atlanta, Georgia, girl who has an allowance of $5.50 per week, but says she "usually needs more and daddy gives me money when I need it." But who can blame her, or her dad, if this is well within their means as it almost certainly is. On the other hand even amid the undoubted wealth or North American society some degree of respect for thrift is a good thing to inculcate in the minds of people.

What about travel? Not one expressed interest in this greatest of all educational pastimes. Both Americans and Canadians as they grow older become more interested in going overseas, but by and large young people today are homebodies, their thoughts as often as not on furthering their formal education, on a job and of course marriage.

All very estimable, except for the fact that early marriages can spell the end for any notions of travel. But that is another story.

Great Deeds

In a recent column in this newspaper Belleville writer Viva Richmond Graham quoted the following observation by French philosopher Andre Gide: "Find that thing which exists nowhere but in yourself — and then make yourself indispensable."

Shakespeare said much the same thing with his "To thine own self be true, and it must follow as the night the day, thou canst not then be false to any man."

Such observations require no explanation. They are a plea for the exercise of individuality, the divine spark in each person. It can also be interpreted as a call to adventure and deeds great or small.

Former English actress Sheila Scott, 38, is typical of this breed. Like Mrs. Jerry Mock, of Columbus, Ohio, before her, she has just completed a solo flight around the world. However, Miss Scott travelled farther and faster than Mrs. Mock. Her 28,800-mile journey (some 3,600 miles farther than the circumference of the globe) in 33 days was the longest solo flight ever made around the world.

So all hail to Miss Scott, who sold her jewels to finance the trip and now may have to sell her aircraft to meet outstanding commitments. As in most spheres in life, there is a price to pay for fame and achievement.

Folksy Joe-Joe Greene Popular With the Ladies

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Traditionally, Cabinet Ministers are supposed to be under such fierce-some pressure of awesome national responsibilities that they become remote.

Walled off by small armies of secretaries, special assistants, executive aides, senior Civil Service advisers and others of this ministerial Praetorian Guard, the Cabinet becomes isolated individually and collectively from the plain people, the voters.

With their heads in the administrative clouds of this rare-fied atmosphere of decision, they become out of touch with the grassroots.

It's happened in the past federally as well as provincially, just as it did with Quebec Premier Jean Lesage on June 5.

And political vanity being what it is, it'll keep right on happening as one Cabinet Minister after another gets so involved in the Grand Strategy of the offensive on the broad national front as to forget the local tactics of defence on the home constituency sector.

Not the new Agriculture Minister, John James "Joe-Joe" Greene. Not yet, anyway.

"JOE'S OUR BOY"

Maybe not ever — certainly not if he keeps the folksy touch he used the other day on what his unabashedly announced in the House were "those 14 lovely ladies from McNabb Township up there in the Gallery."

And as necks swivelled and heads craned, there they were, 14 lovely ladies in 14 new white spring hats and 14 stylish print afternoon dresses.

The 14 members of the Pine Grove Women's Institute from McNabb up Arnprior — for a smack-dab in Joe-Joe's South Renfrew constituency — down to the Capital for the day to see the sights, and looking mighty pretty, too.

"Joe's our boy," beamed Mrs. G. Ross Campbell as Joe-Joe bowed to them in the Gallery from the floor of the House, "and we're down here watching how he does it helping to run the country."

Farm wives, almost all of them, as their MP, he had invited them to visit him.

So after his gallant salute to them from his Commons throne-bench desk, they trooped off to his office for a chat before doing the National Gallery, the Museum, Mint, Rideau Hall and the rest of the National Capital tourist kit.

His wall-to-wall rug and ceiling-to-floor drapes didn't escape their housewife's eye.

A little much luxurye-like, maybe, a bit extravagant?

Well, allowed Mrs. Campbell, who is vice-chairwoman of the Pine Grove W.I.'s Historical Committee, back home in Arnprior up the Ottawa Valley, Joe-Joe really had been too generous — a small law office with a lone secretary.

"Needs a new look at him," but then "any man likes to be comfortable" — and that was all right, too, as long as he didn't see so in that the farmer was getting his share of comfort.

BETTER BY FAR

Well, was Joe-Joe doing the job they had sent him in Ottawa to do — "look after the good folks in Renfrew South, not be too busy for these small details now and then, and had to worry about the farmers all across the country?

"He'd better be doing the job," smiles Mrs. Campbell in the way that clearly indicated that Joe-Joe certainly better had be.

So he was up on the Hill with Prairie problems, Quebec complaints and Maritime troubles but he was forgetting Renfrew and The Valley

"Better not be," smiled Mrs. Campbell.

And again there was the clear signal that indeed he'd better not be — not if he knew what was good for him.

The Deputy Minister of Agriculture and the Deputy's Deputy were waiting outside Joe-Joe's door, and down the street in the Department itself was a conference to be attended.

Two secretaries patrolled his outer office with two fat files of letters to sign. His Executive Assistant was preparing a broadcloom outside impatiently waiting for an okay on the speech he'd written for Joe-Joe to deliver that very night.

But was the Honorable, the Minister of Agriculture, John James Greene, pressed as he was from all sides, in a panic-rush?

Not when he was holding political court as Parliament's boat-to these "14 lovely ladies" in from The Valley for a social visit.

Did he show any sign of wanting to get down to business with the Departmental Deputies impatiently waiting outside?

Not so as those "14 lovely ladies" — who controlling who knows-how-many votes up home — would notice!

"With subtlety and imagination, musicians—to bring out the true flavour"

City Industries— Any Suggestions?

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

It is encouraging to see that the Intelligencer in its editorial of June 20 shares the concern of many of us for the lack of industrial development here and further has made a suggestion which may help to cure the situation — the building of "advance factories."

Whether this suggestion can be followed in Belleville is not known, but the idea and others offering a possible solution to the problem should be studied. I am sure many of your readers have additional suggestions to correct the imbalance of industrial assessment and their letters published in The Intelligencer would direct some attention to the condition resulting in some improvement.

In his letter of June 16, "Believist-ar" suggested that the present Industrial Commission is spectacularly unsuccessful in spite of a big budget, be scrapped." It is my understanding that this Commission as presently constituted is not a commission set up by the city but that it is a separate body not subject to the control of our elected representatives and not subject to public audit as most such commissions are in other cities. If such is the case, I agree with "Believitlis" that it should be scrapped and replaced by a new organization of a different type. My finances, efforts, plans and results would then be open to public scrutiny.

Remembrance Day School Holiday

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Listening to the CJBQ news broadcasts last Friday, I was dismayed and disconcerted to hear that the Ontario Minister of Education, William Davis, had proclaimed that the Remembrance Day holiday for the schools be cut to half a day.

Where are the end-of-year high falutin phrases and the "we'll never forget and always remember" and discussing sacrifices and outstanding feats of arms while fighting for Canada, and to what end? Empty praises they gave to Canada's fair name and the speeches now?

We were told time and time again trying to have this one day in the year declared a statutory holiday with little success. Now they want is this. The little we have, and probably try and disregard it entirely in the future.

Why should this be? Can this country afford to have one day of the year to honor all the comrades who died or were badly wounded and mutilated and all those gallant boys who fought for the four freedoms, without cheap speeches from politicians trying to take this little away from all veterans.

The public should rise up in their wrath at what appears to me to be a slur to the memory of the boys who have made small plots of ground scattered around the globe that will be forever Canada. It does not speak too highly for Canada's reputation for the finer comes when the veteran becomes the forgotten man and Remembrance Day becomes a thing of the past. Look what happened to Vimy Day, once a very special day for the old timers.

A sadly disillusioned veteran.

Why Age Slows Us As We Climb Stairs

By JOSEPH C. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: A comedian recently joked about people of 40 having difficulty in climbing stairs. I have to stop halfway up. What might cause this? Slowing down of the circulatory system, or are there other reasons? — B. D. R.

Well, the comedian must be a smart man, for he knows that life better is joke about the difficulty that to cry about it.

But when you get the age at 40, that's usually too soon. Yes, by then almost all of us were at 20 or 30 — or at 10, when we never kept still unless we were asleep. But at 40, unless there's some rather severe problem, we don't have much trouble walking upstairs. We may be content to walk instead of run, but that's it.

When the years catch up to us and we have to stop halfway up, the circulatory system usually has a lot to do with it, but that's not the whole story.

If heart action is inefficient, it doesn't carry fresh oxygen and blood sugar to the muscles in quite such generous quantities, so they don't respond to wait for new supplies of energy.

Or the heart may be in fine condition but the big arteries serving the legs may be narrowed at some point. Again the supply of circulation is reduced. I'm sure this happens to all of us to some extent, but occasionally a very severe case comes along. I recall one man in his later 50's who couldn't walk across a room. studies showed a very extreme narrowing of the principal artery carrying blood to his legs, and surgeons succeeded in repairing that spot. A couple of months later, the man was able to go phear hunting.

However, in his case, one particular places was involved. For most of us, there's a little narrowing here, a little there, and while total circulation is only impaired, it isn't practical to try to correct all of the places.

Another reason for having to stop halfway up the stairs can be re-circulatory. Finally, rheumatism, emphysema or what-ever. Circulation of blood may be adequate, but if the blood doesn't carry as much oxygen as formerly, your legs feel tired and heavy.

A third important item is weight. Maybe at 170 pounds you are upstairs nimbly. At 175 pounds, you have to lift a lot more weight, as on a stairway climb. Or if you have arthritis, it can add to the effort of walking.

Naturally when the stairs become that much effort, you can't get enough exercise to keep the muscles well toned, either. Then there are various reasons that make the stairs seem steeper and longer as we grow older, but slowing circulation is an important as any.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 23 and got off starting my family because of my career. Now I want a child very much, but some of my friends tell me that having a first baby at my age will be much more difficult than if I were in my 20's. Is this true? — Mrs. L. H.

No. It may be a little bit more difficult, in some cases, but not enough to matter, assuming that you are in good health.

Dear Dr. Molner: Our daughter is 3 and has her 20 primary teeth. Now her first permanent (lower) molars are erupting. Is this too uncommon for a child her age? Could it cause any malformation or misplacement of later teeth? — Mrs. H. G. C.

First and second molars start to appear between the ages of 2 and 3, so I would judge your child to be on schedule. If for any other reason you suspect any abnormality that would be a question for your dentist.

Canadian government leaders can learn a valuable lesson from the anti-poverty program in the United States.

U.S. authorities, in charge of the program, have discovered their greatest success has been recorded in areas where the residents receiving assistance were asked to participate in organizational work.

Road Perils In Expo Year

Ottawa Journal

The general manager of the Canadian Highway Safety Council has told a Montreal audience that Expo 67 will be accompanied by the worst traffic carnage in Canada's history — unless driving habits change radically before then.

It is a prediction hard to argue with in view of the millions of people expected to visit Montreal by automobile for Expo. Add to this the increased traffic across the country because of the Centennial celebrations and it is clear why traffic safety officials are concerned.

Many Ottawa people have already decided that the best way for them to visit Expo is by train. Apparently here at night it necessary to avoid the expected accompanied-car crush in Montreal. The prospect of a relaxed train trip and quick express ride in the Expo pits is certainly pleasant, although a family with four children would possibly regret the accompanying loss of economical form of transport to EXpo.

Even with Montreal's traffic accident and death rate already reported twice the national average, the extra cost of alternative means of transportation may still seem worth the saving in wear and tear on motorists' nerves. In any case, 1967 looms as a year to keep one's eyes open in more ways than one.

Strictly Personal

On Legislating Loyalty

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

Wisdom has never been combined with power for more than a short time in any period of human history, and then wise wisdom soon became subservient to power; and the contemporary version of wisdom, which we call "science," seems to be faring no better than its ancient counterpart.

That popular phrase, "the naked truth," is a misnomer, for very truth comes to us clothed in some kind of emotional preconception — even the mathematical equation 2+2=4 equals 20 reveals a hidden bias in favor of the decimal system.

It's odd that a man of the same people who believe that "you can't legislate morality" by passing laws forcing people to respect others' civil rights, think they can by even a bare majority legislate loyalty.

To be "normal" in a highly abnormal age is a shocking sign of abnormality; our goal cannot be to be "normal" but to recognize when our personal abnormality is out of proportion to the stimulus of the age.

It is cheap cynicism to think that mostly dishonest men are attracted to political office, for just as many honest men covet it; the tragedy lies in what happens to the honest men after they get in, and the ways in which they compromise their principles to stay in.

Nations are never killed by conquest from the-outside; from within they commit suicide, even in the extent of overcoming their conquerors; when a nation is permanently killed, it is nearly always by suicide.

The worst myth that orthodox religion ever perpetrated upon its communicants was to purge Heaven as a white-robed, harp - playing version of a lazy-days' afternoon tea party — which, of course, required more minds then it attracts.

Why so many people are engaged in attacking pornography when the world is crammed with so many greater evils was succinctly described by the great Jones nearly 50 years ago: "It is the people with secret impurities in their minds that are the most interested in other people's sex-lives."

Pepper Martin With Questions On Peace Move

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs peppered External Affairs Minister Martin with questions about Viet Nam peace feelers in the Commons Wednesday, but obtained little information.

Mr. Martin said it is too early to assess the results of Chester Ronning's talks last week with senior personalities in North Viet Nam. But the retired Canadian diplomat had been well received there.

He said both sides agreed to keep the talks confidential.

Mr. Ronning had had two objectives—seeking a basis for "direct informal discussions" between countries involved in the fighting, and exploring attitudes to elements of an eventual peace settlement.

Mr. Martin did not reply when Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) asked whether there was a connection between recent visits to Ottawa by Averell Harriman, U.S. roving ambassador, Wilson Bundy, U.S. assistant state secretary and Lord Chalfont, British disarmament minister.

At another point Mr. Martin said "comings and goings are natural to any diplomatic effort."

MISSION A PHASE

Mr. Martin said the Ronning mission was only one phase in a continuing effort to start peace negotiations. He declined to say what the other phases are, saying Opposition Leader Diefenbaker also would decline to publicize his diplomatic efforts if he were still prime minister.

"No," shot back Mr. Diefenbaker. "We would at least have a reply, not a display of verbosity."

The Speaker ruled out a question by David Lewis (NDP—York South) whether Mr. Ronning had carried U.S. instructions on his mission to Hanoi.

Gordon Aiken (PC — Parry Sound-Muskoka) was the last of a number of MPs to voice a complaint about the length of Mr. Martin's replies which ate up time for other subjects during the 30-minute question period.

But Speaker Lucien Lamoureux left the chamber and the Commons went into committee under Deputy Speaker Herman M. Batten.

Mr. Aiken then moved a motion that the committee adjourn in order to bring Mr. Lamoureux back to the chair to hear his point of order. The motion was rejected 163-40.

Show Producers Not Offered New Contract

TORONTO (CP) — Douglas Letterman, executive producer of the CBC's television program This Hour Has Seven Days, said Wednesday the program's staff has not been offered normal yearly contracts.

Mr. Letterman said his own contract expires July 31 and he does not know if the program will be back on the air in the fall. But his staff is working on a week-by-week basis as though the show would go on again.

He said members of the staff, mainly producers, writers and researchers, have refused to sign short-term contracts to see them through the summer and that some had accepted other jobs.

Susanna's Family Fare

I'm Going To Wash That Soap Right Out Of My Wash!

Dear Susanna: I'm tired of those ads that keep telling me I won't have pa-zume in my wash unless I use this additive or that one.

I'm one of those women who likes to wash with soap. In spite of the fact that I live in a hard water area, I've been using the same inexpensive laundry method for years and, corny as it may seem, have often had compliments on the brightness of my wash.

I take it very easy on the soap in the first place, and then, every other washing I don't use any. Just half a cup of washing soda instead — and I still get plenty of suds.

To me, it's the soap that stays in that makes clothes hard and grey-looking.

I have excellent results washing sweaters, too. A bit of washing soda in the water first, then only a few mild flakes and I never leave the article soaking. — Mrs. H. C. I.

Just another case of overdoing a good thing. Soap. But just be sure you rinse well.

HE SEES THE LIGHT

Dear Susanna: My little grandson returns my love a hundred fold, because I believe I understand him.

During the day, he is as rough and tough as they come, but at night he often dreams, and imagines strange things in the darkness.

A simple little thing has made a world of difference. I bought him a flashlight of his very own to keep right under his pillow.

Not a word was said, but my what a warmth of understanding there is between us. — Grandmother Watson.

U.C.W. Meetings

MARMORA U.C.W.

MARMORA — A potluck supper marked the last U.C.W. meeting of the season held in the supper room of St. Andrew's United Church. Members from Cordova and Zion charges were present.

Following the supper a sing song was enjoyed and the devotional period followed with Mrs. John Davidson in charge. Business session was in charge of Mrs. Allan Wells. Two quilts and an afghan are in the process of being completed before the summer holidays.

Mrs. V. Glover offered their cottage to entertain Senior Circle.

Mrs. McLeod was presented with a gift. After a stay of eight years she will be greatly missed, both personally and in her capacity as organist.

Mrs. C. Mahlejohn explained the plans in progress for centennial year.

Guest speaker Mrs. E. Weaver, president of Belleville Presbytery, was introduced by Mrs. Wells. She spoke on women's work in the church of today and pointed out the work left undone.

"It was the most heavenly dream! All night I was walking with Lawrence Welk!"

Library Corner

(By O.D.)

LIBRARIAN'S REPORT

In the recent library report submitted by the secretary of Corby's Public Library it stated that 2,527 more books were circulated in the month of May 1966 than in May of last year. Adults read 1,480 more book and boys and girls read an increase of 1,507 books.

Adult membership increased with 81 new memberships, while new memberships for girls and boys increased by 66.

Sixty-two films were loaned to film members in May and the projectors were booked for 46 showings. There were 36 long playing records borrowed.

The Library auditorium served as a meeting place for many activities this month. A meeting of the Resource Librarians' (Lake Ontario Regional Co-operative) was held to discuss problems that have arisen in procedures since the beginning of the co-operative and to discuss methods for improvement in services to other libraries. Miss Verna Wilson, Kingston, Mr. Robert Porter, Peterborough, Mrs. June Tbeston, director of the regional, and Miss Olive Delaney of Belleville attended this meeting.

An Israeli art and handicraft exhibit sponsored by the Hadassah Wizo and the Public Library was officially opened on June 8th; an outstanding audience attended the event. Mr. Anderson welcomed the guests on behalf of the library board.

Other activities included a special meeting of the Historical Society; a Mental Health program during Mental Health Week; a B.C.I.V.S. art exhibition, and a meeting of the Lake Ontario Regional Library Co-operative Board.

Hospital Auxiliary Holds Final Meet of Season

The Women's Hospital Auxiliary held its June meeting in Ernestine Hall on Tuesday afternoon. A dessert luncheon was enjoyed before the business session. It was well attended with arrangements being made by Mrs. W. M. Fox and Mrs. A. E. Miles, social convenors.

Mr. S. J. Johnson, hospital administrator, addressed the meeting and made some suggestions to the Auxiliary for future projects.

The highlight of the meeting was the presentation of a cheque for $2,000 to the Auxiliary from the Opportunity Shop. Thus represented the profit for the shop from January to June. The presentation was made to the president, Mrs. W. Dallas, by Mrs. Shand.

Mrs. W. G. Harvey reported that the membership is steadily increasing with 228 members to date.

Miss Lorraine Brown will be in charge of the cradle pictures for July and August. This service for new mothers and babies is becoming popular and a substantial sum of money has been realized for the Auxiliary.

Mrs. J. Casey stated that two new layettes had been added to the Samaritan cupboard and that eight dozen diapers and 107 articles of baby clothing had been donated to this project since January.

The Bulletin editor, Mrs. B. Burley, reported that 225 bulletins had been sent out in June. She had also compiled a scrap book of events pertaining to the Hospital Auxiliary which was on display.

Mrs. Dallas reported that the members of the executive were hostesses for a Mother and Daughter tea held in Education Hall for the graduating nurses and their mothers.

The Hospital Auxiliary will not be meeting during July and August. The next regular meeting will be held on September 20 in Education Hall.

it uncomplicates sewing

WHEN you buy a new Touch & Sew® Deluxe Zig-Zag sewing machine from Singer, be ready for a pleasant surprise.

Suddenly you'll find yourself sewing a lot more than your neighbours who own other machines. And you enjoy every moment.

Not because you loved to sew any more than they did in the first place . . .

Not because you knew how to sew that much better than they did . . .

It's simply because your new Singer® sewing machine makes sewing so easy, you discover you do here both the time and the interest to sew all you want.

There are 180 parts in an ordinary sewing machine. There are 360 parts in the Deluxe Zig-Zag Touch & Sew sewing machine.

Those extra parts have just one purpose in life . . . that of giving your sewing machine skills it would take you months to master . . . and tedious hours to do by hand.

Sewing was never this easy, even for the beginner.

Now, you just set a dial, push a button, and your Touch & Sew machine does it all for you . . . basted, blindstitches, overcasts, buttonholes, zig-zags, chainstitches . . . and then rewinds its own bobbin!

Touch & Sew Deluxe, Zig-Zag machine from Singer. Does all 3 kinds of sewing—straight, zig-zag and chainstitch.

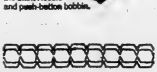
The nice thing about this sewing machine is not that it makes seldom used fancy stitches. Its value is its genius for eliminating drudgery and adding priceless new sewing skills to your own repertoire.

Any woman who sews will save at least $100 a year. But Singer knows that the woman who sews on a Touch & Sew Deluxe Zig-Zag machine saves at least twice that amount.



You see, this is the machine that makes you want to sew.

See that button? Touch it and the bobbin winds itself up right in the machine. Add notice the slanted needle—does so you less better; sew better. Only Singer has the Slant Needle and push-button bobbin.

Remember how turning hems used to be so tedious? Now you just attach the seam guide, dial and your Touch & Sew sewing machine blindstitches the hems in minutes! This buttonhole was actually completed in seconds! Your Touch & Sew sewing machine also sews on buttons in a twinkling.

The chain stitch (left). You'll use it regularly to replace tedious hand basting. Pull the thread end; out comes the seam. You'll also need it to sew the increasingly popular stretch fabrics. This is the stitch that stretches as the fabric stretches . . . Only Singer builds the indispensable chainstitch talent right into a sewing machine.

For that special effect: Decorative twin-needle sewing.

Yes, it can do a few fancy fashion stitches.

Overcasting. A "must" to prevent many of our newer fabrics from fraying. Child's play on the Touch & Sew sewing machine.

2500 or so. Here's two you get just by setting a dial. . . just set the dial.

Men's Fashions Busting Out in Color and Style

VANCOUVER (CP)—A woman's fashion editor dropped into a man's world and found much to be excited about.

"There's nothing staid about men's fashions anymore," wrote Betty Roncie in The Province after a visit to a fashionable men's wear store.

"They are not going kooky in the ways of the kids but they are breaking out all over in color and style.

"A well-dressed man now adays presents quite a challenge to us in the way of neatness and fashion know-how."

This is what she saw:

—Pure wool or mohair jackets in stunning checked patterns in blue - green, gold - brown and other "mouth-watering" color combinations, plus a choice of color-matched slacks.

—Pure silk jackets for cruise and summer wear in delightful shades.

—Evening jackets made of hand-painted tie silk and designed by d'ayenza of Rome—"absolutely beautiful."

—James Bond trenchcoats with "absolutely everything"—brass rings, spankets, wide belt, generous turn-up collar and ample swap.

—Tuxedos with a neat, narrow banding of satin rather than the wide one of old. With a slightly suppressed waistline, they look more like a good, dark suit than a uniform.

—A still soldierly hand-made with tiny, tiny stitches.

"It was explained to me that one of the marks of a very fine suit is the single-centre-back piece of canvas used to give just the right amount of body to the jacket.

"Another sign is an inside fashions pocket—one that sticks out instead of in when you stuff it with various bits and pieces."

In accessories, Miss Roncie saw beautiful nylon crepe executive-length socks ("very slimming to the ankles"), hand-painted silk handkerchiefs in every color of the rainbow, striped shirts in all colors.

And she found the big item in men's apparel this year—a sporty jacket, dressing enough for travelling or Sunday afternoon wear, made of beige, forest green or navy cavalry twill with smart welt-seam detailing and inset belt on the back.

"Definitely a status symbol in men's fashion circles."

FROZEN FRUIT CREAM

Varda used her imagination to good effect. When she was served a creamy fruity "salad" she thought it was more of a dessert. So when she invited in for dinner she served it to us converted into a lovely frozen dessert. It calls for crushed pineapple and nuts which are indispensable, but had cherries in it too. She wondered if preserved ginger would be a good addition. This visiting Slovenian copied out the recipe and bought some preserved ginger and made up that variation. I like ginger and I liked this dessert and hope you will too.

THURSDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Grilled Baby Beef Liver and Bacon; Tomato Butter; Creamed Onions; Buttered Noodles; Shredded Leaf Lettuce and Endive Salad with Watercress Dressing; Canned Australian Apricots with Dairy Sour Cream; Coffee.

VERDA'S FROZEN FRUIT CREAM (Serves 10 — fills two ice cube trays to the brim)

2 cups miniature white marshmallows
½ cup hot water
8 oz. (½ of an 8-oz. package) white cream cheese (room temperature)
1 cup miracle whip
1 cup 25% cream
½ cup red maraschino cherries, drained and sliced
1/3 cup finely chopped preserved ginger, drained (see below)
¾ cup chopped blanched almonds (or pecans or walnuts)
one 20-oz. can crushed pineapple, drained

Soak the white miniature marshmallows in the hot water until cooled to room temperature.

Drain pineapple. In large beater bowl beat the cheese until creamy then add miracle whip and beat until blended and there are no lumps of cheese.

Whip cream until stiff and fold in. Now add sliced cherries, chopped ginger and chopped nuts, drained pineapple and cooled marshmallows. Blend thoroughly. Turn into two refrigerator ice cube trays. Cover each with saran or foil or wax paper and freeze hard.

One-quarter hour before serving time remove from freezer to allow to soften slightly. Spoon into stemmed glasses to serve for dessert.

NOTE: If you do not like preserved ginger substitute sliced drained green maraschino cherries for it.

Ann Landers

Popularity Not Same As Boot Licking

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I sent for your booklet, "The Key To Popularity," and I wish you would stop telling your readers that the way to be popular is to knock yourself out to please people.

A young man I know rather well is perfect proof that your theory is for the bobcbline. This fellow is forever bringing gifts to the office. He sends get-well cards, flowers, box lunches, presents, welcome-home presents, and congratulatory telegrams for promotions.

He gives up his lunch hour running errands and doing favors. He complements the women on their clothes, their hair-dos, their makeup. He laughs at the man's jokes and hands over a full pack of cigarettes when all that was asked for was one. Yesterday he almost set fire to my nose in an attempt to light my cigarette before someone else did. I felt like saying, "Relax, Son. I like you. I like you."

No one in the office could (or would) say a bad word about "Mr. Ass 'To Please" but no one really likes him either. Have I made myself clear? — TOOOOOOOOO MUCH.

DEAR TOOOOO-OOOOO: You've made yourself clear. But apparently I didn't make myself clear.

There's a world of difference between being thoughtful and considerate and behaving like an obsequious, bootlicking, ham-blasing sycophant.

The pathetic young man you describe is woefully insecure and he feels terribly inadequate. He is not interested in others. He is interested only in getting the approval of others — and it shows.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm in desperate need of advice and I'm not sure you can print my letter. I hope you can get it in the paper somehow because I know you'll receive an avalanche of mail on this subject.

I am a 17-year-old girl who would rather spend time with girls and older women than with boys. I especially like the company of my teachers. I have seen three teachers socially in the past year. We have gone to concerts together, horseback riding and to the movies.

Do you think I am a homosexual? I am scared to death that I am. Nothing out of the way has ever occurred but it doesn't seem normal for a girl to be so disinterested in boys and to be so fond of women.

I could never discuss this with my parents so please don't suggest it. If you feel I need psychiatric help I will consider it, although I don't know how I would explain it to my folks. They think I am wonderfully balanced and well-adjusted.

Please help me. — SOUL IN TURMOIL.

DEAR SOUL: Just because a 17-year-old girl prefers the company of women does not mean that she is a homosexual. Some people, both male and female, don't become interested in the opposite sex until they are out of high school.

If you are deeply concerned about yourself I suggest that you do talk to a psychiatrist. Tell your parents you are in need of specialized information, not therapy. A couple of visits could set your mind at ease.

Confidential to ALSO IN FAVOR OF PLOYGAMY FOR THOSE OVER 60: Yes, I read what the doctor in Salt Lake City said and I can understand why widows and married men would applaud the idea but I can also understand why married women aren't wildly enthusiastic about it. I have serious doubts that the practice will be legalized in your lifetime, Dad, so simmer down and stop dreaming.

Silver Ribbon
Cherry Supreme
DESSERT and PIE FILLING

Silver Ribbon Cherry Supreme is the newest idea in desserts. It's both a wonderful ready-to-serve, right-out-of-the-tin dessert of rich, plump Montmorency cherries or just about the best-tasting pie filling you'll ever eat.

Silver Ribbon cherries are separate and full round in a fine rich sauce that doesn't kill the cherry flavour. There's none of that gooey flavoured thickening or mashed up fruit.

Cherry Supreme is prepared to perfection by the Baxter people of Bloomfield, who know how to keep that fruit-fresh look and flavour that's sure to please the whole family. It's extra good because it's "Baxter-Good" and it's so easy!

Miss Margaret Ray, sister of the bride as maid of honor wore a floor-length Empire styled gown of yellow and orange flowered crepe featuring short sleeves and scalloped neckline. The waistline was enhanced with narrow moss green velvet ribbon. She wore a wedding ring headband of matching fabric with matching velvet ribbon. All the other attendants Mrs. Lois Stark, sister of the bride, Mrs. Gloria Daunter and Miss Nancy Jane Plumpton as bridesmaids and the little flower girl Miss Debbie Ray, youngest sister of the bride were dressed identically to the maid of honor. Each carried a sheath of large white cosmercial blooms.

Mr. Ernie Summers was groomsman, while Mr. Dale Webb, Mr. Kevin McLaughlin, brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. Douglas Ray, brother of the bride ushered the guests.

At the reception held in the Salem Church parlors, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a rose colored eyelet dress with matching jacket, beige accessories and a corsage of white carnations. # Widow of Sixty Asks Suggestions on Jobs

DEAR DORIS: I notice you advised Bored Stiff about doing more of the right kind of things.

I am wondering if you have some suggestions for me. I'm also a widow 63 years of age, and still have a high school student at home with me. I do not get bored, as I read a lot, and love writing letters, if and when my head and eyes permit.

I only have grade five schooling. In those years parents kept their children home from school when help was needed. I am the oldest of a family of ten children, with seven living. Three died in infancy. My health is quite poor (arthritis.)

With this in mind I'm hoping you will suggest something I might be able to do at home to supplement my income. I have done practical nursing in my own home, but find it's much too hard a work for me now.—HOPING HOPING.

DORIS CLARE

DEAR HOPING: That overworked mother of yours gave you a great love of life!

Is there a green thumb on those arthritic hands? People who learn to raise bulbs or little seedling plants, have made more than pin money by selling them.

Some have more of a golden touch — and raise goldfish or canaries for sale.

One woman made a paying proposition of ironing. A jar of pickles started a catering business which prospered for years.

I'm sending you my ten-cent leaflet "Part Time Work at Home or in the Community." Would any readers like to report on other successful money makers?

DEAR DORIS: I was interested to read of the experience of "Not Over It" — for the same thing happened to me! It was ten years ago, and when my mother went back to England with my sister she never wrote me again. I managed to go over myself in 1962 but there was coolness and hostility amongst my family was so cruel I was glad to get home — the damage was done.

And I'm not over it yet! I just have to accept what I do not understand and this is very hard to do, for my utmost ambition is to help my family. I thought if they once "came and saw" they would be "conquered," as I am — by the greatness, beauty, and potential of Canada.

I know what your correspondent is going through — but Canada was built on faith, not bitterness, and we can, as you say, get daily satisfactions out of our new adopted country. — SEASONED TIMBER.

DEAR SEASONED: From where we sit it looks different, and that's for sure. Sorry about your personal rift in the lute.

These things seem to come of a combination of misinformation, differences in age, health and outlook. I am delighted with your own descriptive words for Canada.

(Longer, fuller replies went privately to those correspondents who enclosed a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Imposing Church to Be Setting for Marriage

WASHINGTON (AP)—A spectacular church that rivals the imposing cathedrals of Europe will be the setting when President Johnson escort his daughter Luci to the altar Aug. 6.

Luci picked the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception for her wedding to Patrick J. Nugent of Washington, 23.

It is the $21,000,000 national church of her adopted faith—the largest Roman Catholic church in the U.S. and the seventh largest in the world. At one mass it held 6,000 persons.

On the arm of her father, Luci will make a sweeping entrance in her long bridal gown up three outdoor tiers of stairs (37 steps), across four broad terraces and under the 86-foot high Roman arch.

When they go down the aisle, they'll walk 400 feet, longer than a football field. The nuptial mass and the wedding ceremony are expected to take one hour and 10 minutes.

Luci, 19 July 2, will be the first bride ever married in the church. She and Nugent, 23, will take their vows before a rectangular marble altar with a 46 - foot high carved marble canopy, supported by 30-foot rose-colored marble columns.

Only invited relatives and friends, expected to number between 750 and 900, and a limited pool of reporters, will be admitted for the high-noon nuptial mass by Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle, and the wedding ceremony, to be performed by Rev. John Kenladen of Chicago, a lifelong friend of the Nugent family.

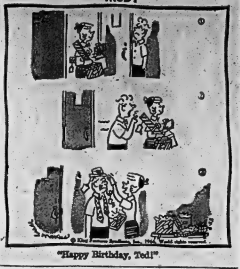
sea, where American military pressure can be increased.

On the ground, a steady increase in the number of soldiers in Viet Nam is expected to bring the total to 370,000 or more by the end of the year.

WORDS BADLY TIMED

In speaking out last Saturday, the president caused some unhappiness among Canadian diplomats here who felt his words were badly timed.



Canadian envoy Chester Ronning was still in Hanoi when another quit-or-else message arrived from the president. It smacked of military blackmail.

There is some unhappiness, too, that the Ronning expedition and the aftermath could put Canada in danger of being labelled as American errand boy. This was enhanced by the somewhat cloak - and - dagger manner in which the assistant under - secretary, William Bundy, U.S. Far East expert, flew to Ottawa for consultations Tuesday.

The U.S. has interpreted the Canadian initiative as negative in result although External Affairs Minister Martin told the Commons Wednesday that Ronning was well received.

His presence in Hanoi might have gone unnoticed, it is understood, except that a French correspondent spotted the tall, white-haired former Canadian high commissioner to India and reported the fact.

these impressions of North Viet Nam:

There is no visible effect of U.S. air attacks on communications and transportation routes. The main rail route to China is open and trains leave and arrive daily.

The highway routes between Hanoi and Haiphong continue open. Bridges knocked out around Hanoi have been replaced by floating bamboo bridges which will handle trucks but not trains. Hundreds of trucks arrive in Hanoi and depart again at night.

Virtually all industry is devoted to total war but there is a critical labor shortage.

Economically, the Hanoi regime is thinking in terms of a two-year plan for decentralizing industries from cities to villages and rural areas.

In Hanoi, food and supplies just about reach the ration quotas but outside the capital commodities are short, especially textiles and fats. The cloth ration, for example, is only five yards a year per person and many people do not get that.

Rice, the major food staple, is in fair supply and the Chinese are sending in more. The last rice harvest in North Viet Nam was good in the southern panhandle area but over-all was "nothing wonderful."

There has been a definite rise in commodity prices.

Life in Hanoi goes on normally and the people appear listless rather than unhappy.

gotiation before conciliation. More importance also should be set on conciliation.

Roger Regimbal (PC—Argenteuil - Deux - Montagnes) said strikes such as the longshoremen's should have been prevented.

The cabinet should have stepped in much sooner. And Privy Council President Guy Favreau and Health Minister MacEachen shouldn't have been on the cabinet team that handled the mediation. He couldn't understand why Immigration Minister Marchand, a labor expert, had been overlooked.

J. Patrick Nowlan (PC—Digby-Annapolis-Kings) said the federal government in helping to settle the ILA and Seaway strikes had set a precedent by approving 30-per-cent wage increases.

"I suggest this precedent is going to be, in effect, an economic albatross that will be hung around the neck of not only the minister of labor but the government as well," he said.

As in the Ancient Mariner, the albatross would choke the government when it attempted to settle other labor disputes.

Drugs Kill Five Patients In Lambarence

LIBREVILLE, Gabon (Reuters) — Swiss pharmacist Lotti Schindler today was given a five-month suspended sentence for negligently causing the death of five patients at the Schweitzer Hospital at Lambarene.

Miss Schindler was accused of manslaughter by negligence through mistakes in the dosage of dangerous drugs administered to the patients April 26.

Lambarene is the remote hospital made famous by Dr. Albert Schweitzer who worked there for more than half a century until his death last September.

Town Ordering Replacement of Buckled Tank

PICTON (Staff) — The town is sending an order out to Smith and Lovelace, the engineers who installed the new sewage treatment plant, to proceed with installation of a new tank to replace the buckled one.

The order will be accompanied by specifications from the Crysler, Davis and Jorgenson, who want the new tank reinforced to guard against the possibility of buckling again.

The former tank buckled one night last November. Engineers have been investigating ever since to pin-point the structural weakness which caused the breakdown.

The cost of the new reinforced tank will be $16,000. At a meeting earlier this year, Mayor H. McFarland said he will not agree to the town paying the cost of replacing the buckled tank.

SLEPT IN TENTS

The Negroes and whites in the column, who number about 250 persons, spent the night in the two big tents, one for women, the other for men, short distance southeast of Benton.

The decision to rally in Philadelphia again was made after a group from the march came under sporadic attack by white youths upon its arrival in the Mills town Tuesday.

The group attacked was led by King and had planned to hold memorial services for the three slain civil workers: James Chaney, a Meridian Negro, and two New York whites, Andrew Goodman and Michael Schwerner.

The afternoon fistfights were followed by gunfire in Philadelphia's Negro sector Tuesday night, with one white man wounded by buckshot.

The violence left Philadelphia seething. For the second straight night, police roadblocks were across streets leading into the Negro section.

cials in London May 9 and resumed them in Salisbury June 2.

TALKS CONTINUING

The talks, designed to assess whether there are grounds for ministerial negotiations, are continuing, though the informant said the Smith men have given no grounds for hope of an acceptable compromise.

Some African leaders, particularly President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia, have described the exploratory discussions as a British "sell-out" and have charged Prime Minister Wilson with attempting to reach a secret deal with the Smith administration to get the Rhodesian problem off his back.

However, Bottomley is reported to have maintained before the sanctions committee that the existing economic sanctions against Rhodesia are taking their toll in Rhodesian prosperity, and that more and more Rhodesian businessmen are beginning to feel the pain.

Smith's attempts to section off the Rhodesian tobacco crop had failed. Though Smith has publicly stated he will not throw in the sponge, the view among Commonwealth officials is that Zambia's plans to cut off more of its vital trade with its neighbor will gravely imperil the white regime's survival.

NICE IN THE ARCTIC—The only part of Canada expected to have warmer-than-average weather in the next four weeks is the far, far north. The 30-day outlook by the United States weather bureau calls for below-normal temperatures throughout the eastern half of the continent together with normal to above-normal rainfall.

Ontario's weather is expected to be much cooler than usual with plenty of rain for crops as the result of domination of the climate by Arctic air from Hudson's Bay. Farther west, near-normal temperatures are predicted with average to below-average rainfall.

The outlook is not a specific forecast and major changes may occur. Other normal temperatures for the period (and precipitations): New York 74 (3.5), New Orleans 80 (5.6), San Francisco 62 (0.1.)

Federal Program to Help Aged Beyond Plan Said Months Away

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Barring a political crisis on higher old-age pensions, informants say that federal action in this field beyond the Canada Assistance Plan now before Parliament is many months away.

At the moment, an across-the-board increase in the $75-a-month old-age security pension to all is the last of the politically reliable sources say.

Current federal efforts are aimed at finding some other way to supplement incomes for the elderly. The search may be long and may in the end involve talks with the provincial governments.

The latter course won't be followed until the current crop of provincial elections are concluded and new or old administrations settled down from the upsets of campaigning.

Health Minister MacEachen virtually ruled out action soon on the proposal for a guaranteed annual income made last February by the Senate committee on aging.

It was the hope that the government might implement this proposal at this parliamentary session which helped save the minority administration's bacon in early votes of confidence in the Commons.

QUESTIONED IN HOUSE

When questioned in the Commons Tuesday, Mr. MacEachen said he wouldn't rule out the possibility of some other legislation to help the old-age pensioners "although I am not confirming it."

Informants say that at the earliest this means next fall and even then depends on federal authorities being able to find something less costly than either the guaranteed income or an across-the-board pension boost.

The Senate committee estimated that the guaranteed income plan, taking into account savings on other forms of assistance, would cost some $100,000,000 a year.

An increase of $25 a month in the $75-a-month pension, the amount most inflated about by both opposition members and government supporters, would cost $300,000,000 a year. The current old - age security bill now is almost $1,000,000,000 a year. It will go up another $90,000,000 next year with the progressive reduction of the qualifying age to 69.

EXPECT LESS PRESSURE

Federal authorities expect some of the pressure will be taken off with passage by Parliament of the Canada Assistance Plan.

Under it, those in the 65-69 age group could qualify for more than the $75-a-month old-age assistance and those in the 69-and-over age group could get supplements to the $75-a-month old-age pension on the basis of need.

That means that if an assistance or pension recipient needs special help, for example, to pay his rent he may do so by establishing need, with the province and federal government sharing the extra cost.

In addition, the maximums for other income in the 65-69 age group have been dropped.

Maple Leaf Hockey Captain Visits Reserve

TYENDINAGA RESERVE — "The Big Chief," George Armstrong, captain of the Maple Leafs, visited the Tyendinaga Mohawk Reserve early this week on business connected with the Department of Lands and Forests. Indian Day in Algonquin Park is one Centennial project of the Department and Mr. Armstrong is visiting the Reserves of the Province to organize lacrosse games. There is no team on this Reserve. He plans to visit the St. Regis Reserve soon.

He was the guest of Melville Hill while here, and Mr. Hill took him to places of interest. They visited the Quinte-Mohawk School, hoping to meet the pupils, but school had been dismissed early in order to hold a meeting of the teachers, the school committee, and Mr. M. W. McCracken, the superintendent.

The visitor was busy signing autographs during the day. With their teacher, Ralph Rumbell, a busload of 40 children visited the Reserve and Mr. Hill's home and museum and had an extra bonus in meeting Mr. Armstrong and getting his autograph.

Mr. Armstrong is a member of the Indian advisory committee of which Mr. Hill is the chairman. He is employed by the Department for the summer to organize sports on the Reserves.

One Man Faces Serious Charge

NAPANEE — Three men appeared before Magistrate R. C. Jackson in Napanee Tuesday, charged with attempted rape. The one against Gerald Dafoe was dismissed, the charge against Irvine Lyall Young was withdrawn. Both are from the Marlbank area.

Gary Young of south Napanee will be tried by a higher court.

Mrs. Elsie Sandford, Mrs. Dolores Woodcock, Corporal Wallace Martin of the O.P.P., Constable Sidney Portis of the Napanee detachment, Dr. N. F. Burke, and Roy Lawrence appeared as witnesses.

L. S. Willoughby of Kingston appeared as counsel for Gerald Dafoe and Irvine Young, and Ronald Cass of Belleville for Gary Young.

Kenneth Earl Griffith of RR3, Napanee, was fined $50 and court costs for operating a motor vehicle without proof of insurance. For consuming liquor while under age, he was fined $20 plus costs of the court.

Eanas James Sinfield of Toronto was fined $125 and costs for impaired driving, and his licence was suspended for six months.

Presbyterian Church Children Sponsor Tea

DESERONTO — Each year the children of the Presbyterian Church of the Redeemer hold a tea and sale as the last event of the year before the summer vacation. The annual event is always a source of interest to everyone interested in little folk.

Last Saturday was no exception. The only adults assisting were the two leaders, Mrs. Kay Young of the Scouts, the Explorers, and Mrs. Charles Griffith who leads the C.Y.C (Children of the Church).

Margo Morey and Cathy Pringle were in charge of the bake table, and Alan Mercer took charge of the fish pond.

Cathy Bean and Frances Klaver supervised at the crafts table, where articles were on sale made by the little folk over the year. Terry Griffith and Debby Knapp sold the donations to the White Elephant table.

Mrs. Griffith, among other duties, assisted five-year-old Robbie McFarland at the toy table, to which each child had contributed at least one of his favorite toys for sale.

As a complete surprise both for their leaders and their parents, each of the children presented a puppet show with paper bags fashioned into puppets. It was based on one of their action nursery songs, "Peter, James, and John in the Sailboat". It was indeed the genius of many that they were asked to present it again for late comers. The small artists were Gale Reid, Angela Griffith, Robert McFarland, Shirley Clever, Penny Griffith, and Jeffrey Mercer. They were from four to six years old.

Will Investigate Need for P.S. Addition

DESERONTO — At a special meeting this week, the Deseronto Public School Board decided to instruct architects Sovereon, Thompson, Lafrenière and Mallette of Kingston, to call for tenders for a two-room addition to the school.

There is a condition, however. A survey is to be made to show whether such an addition is warranted, and if it is not felt to be absolutely necessary, the lowest or any other tender will not be accepted. James McVicker newly appointed trustee, was delegated to carry out an investigation.

There was disagreement among the members as to the need for the addition. the question was brought up by Trustee John Neal, who thought the matter warranted investigation before the town was put to the expense of building. Chairman Jack Spence pointed out that the Department of Education has come up with 32 as the maximum number of pupils possible in a classroom for ideal work. At least 335 pupils are now attending the Deseronto Public School, with only ten classrooms. Principal Peter Roach has stressed the necessity of an opportunity class, also, and this would require an additional room.

Mr. McVicker also questioned the necessity of the additional space. "There were more than 330 registered in our public school at one time, and we did not think it was overcrowded."

When the matter of financing the project was brought up, it was pointed out that the municipal council now has approximately $18,000 on hand earmarked for education, but Mr. McVicker stated that he thought it might better be used for the new secondary system. This sum was handed over to the town by the former Board of Education which disbanded early this year. The town no longer has a high school, and this amount was left after the tuition of the Deseronto high school pupils had been paid to the school boards in Napanee and Belleville, attended by Deseronto pupils.

With the cooperation of the municipal council and the province, the addition, if it is built, will be financed at the lowest possible cost to the town.

Report Property Values Soaring

NAPANEE — Property values in the greater Napanee area are soaring and the increase is reflected in higher assessment in the Town of Napanee, and in Richmond and North Fredericksburgh Townships.

In a report tabled before Lennox and Addington county Council at its June session here, County Assessor James L. Mahoney said that building lots in and around Napanee have been rising in value steadily since 1946 and in some cases are now doubled.

Lots located on Palace Road, River Road, and especially west on No. 2 Highway, are experiencing tremendous value increases.

Ameliasburg Public Schools Hold Combined Track Meet

AMELIASBURG — The competition was keen in all events as athletes from 13 public schools vied for track and field honors here yesterday. The meet, climaxing sports endeavors in the Ameliasburg schools for the year, was attended by the complete township enrollment of nearly 600 pupils and many of their parents. The enthusiasm of the contestants and those who watched them perform was encouraged by perfect summer weather.

Among the interested onlookers was school inspector R. A. Drummond, who appeared thoroughly delighted by the competitions remaining until the end of the afternoon-long program. In the final event, a highlight of the annual meet, Rednersville was hard pressed to win 11-10 and take the senior softball championship for the term, from Albury.

Most first place ribbons for senior boys efforts were shared by Randy Lambert and John Conners of the Rednersville school. They collected three firsts apiece. David Frost, a Rednersville Intermediate entry, picked up two firsts and a second. Outstanding among the Junior boys was Scott Dawson representing the Albury school.

In competition for the girls Jane Colton a senior at the Salem school emerged with nine points as a reward for the fine effort. Right behind her was Jean Parks of Massassaga. Angela Voaden and Joy Redner of the Rednersville school in a see-saw duel for intermediate honors finished up with a point separating them. The former finally won out, however.

Assisting the teaching staff of the schools in presenting the program was the Township Home and School Association 25 strong. They also supplied refreshments and prizes.

Milk Subsidy Being Paid by Federal Govt.

OTTAWA (CP) — Cheques worth $3,865,000 are in the mail to farmers who delivered milk to processing plants under the new dairy policy, the federal agriculture department announced Wednesday.

The government pays 75 cents a hundredweight to farmers as part of the subsidy program to guarantee them a national average price of $4 a hundredweight for manufacturing milk.

These first cheques largely cover April deliveries. Some May production is also covered.

Keen Competition Seen As Dairy Princesses Chosen for 2 Counties

There was no crying over spilled milk on the Market Square last night. Modern dairy methods demonstrated at the annual Hastings and Prince Edward counties Dairy Princess Competition made sure of that.

Miss Patricia Shorey, Frankford, won the Dairy Princess title for Hastings County, while Miss Barbara Doxsee, R R 8, Picton, took home the Prince Edward County crown.

The evening began for the competitors with a reception at the Hotel Quinte attended by representatives of the MIR Committees of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties and Radio Station CJBQ, sponsors of the event. Present in addition were Miss Ann Springings, Bloomfield, and Mrs. Ron Hamilton, R R 5, Trenton, who also competed for the title.

The first hurdle for the contestants was an interview before a panel of judges at the reception during which the girls were questioned on their knowledge of the dairy industry and their 4H Club activities. After arriving at the Market Square scene of the competition, each competitor was required to deliver a four-minute address on some aspect of the dairy industry.

Then the moment of truth arrived when each girl actually milked a cow under the eagle eyes of judges and timekeepers. 1966 Ontario Dairy Princess, Miss Ruth McKinney, described the milking procedure for the several hundred spectators at the event.

SANITATION KEYNOTE

Sanitation was the keynote of the operation with points being awarded or lost for the technique displayed at each step.

At this point judges and competitors retired to the Giant Dairy Days Jamboree at the Arena. At intermission Tommy Hunter introduced Miss McKinney, the Ontario Dairy Princess, who asked the chairman of the judging competition for his decision. Jack Bain of the Department of Agriculture called the winners to the stage, where Warden Harold Baxter of Prince Edward County presented Miss Doxsee with her tiara and sash while Warden Clayton Hall of Hastings County did the honors for Miss Shorey.

The Princesses also were given watches by the Bank of Montreal and electric hair dryers by the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission. CJBQ presented the girls with gift certificates.

Miss Shorey and Miss Doxsee will now represent their counties at the competition for the Ontario Dairy Princess title held at the Canadian National Exhibition later this summer. Winning there would give them the opportunity to compete for the Canadian title.

HASTINGS DAIRY PRINCESS Patricia Shorey shows the technique that won her tiara in the milking competition last night. She also was interviewed by the judges and addressed the spectators on the dairy industry to win the title.

Police Find Radio Pirates Are 'Friendly'

LONDON (AP)—Police said today they had boarded the pirate Radio City but planned no action against the raiders who seized and silenced the offshore station.

Six detectives spent 3½ hours aboard the station as part of their investigation of the shotgun slaying of the station's owner, Reg Calvert, 37, whose body was found early Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Oliver Smedley, 54. Smedley, a prominent businessman and Liberal politician, was charged with murder.

"Our visit was solely in connection with the death of Mr. Calvert," a police spokesman said.

"We took statements from the six staff of Radio City and the 10 members of the boarding party which landed at the station on Monday.

"There was a friendly atmosphere. Members of the boarding party—all big fellows—were even watching television in the quarters occupied by the Radio City staff.

WON'T MAKE ARRESTS

"We will certainly not be making any arrests. I don't know the legal position of the raiders but we're not interested in it."

Saudi Arabian King's Remarks Stir Up Storm

NEW YORK (AP) — What King Faisal said in Washington about the Jews has stirred a political storm in New York, where the Saudi Arabian monarch is scheduled to be the city's guest for dinner tonight.

Mayor John V. Lindsay said he was "deeply disturbed" by reports that Faisal had termed Jews his country's enemies.

Aides said the mayor waited more details of what Faisal said before deciding what to do about the dinner.

Two congressmen and a city councilman, all Jewish, angrily protested the city's plans to hold the reception for Faisal at the Rumsenthal patio of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The patio once was part of the home of the late George Blumenthal, a Jewish banker and former president of the museum.

Crowd Jams Arena Full To View Dairy Jamboree And Enjoy Tommy Hunter

Almost 4,000 persons jammed into the Belleville Arena last night for the giant Dairy Days Jamboree, starring Tommy Hunter, Gordie Tapp, the Rhythm Pals, Pat Hervery, Al Cherney and Rudy Spratt.

It was a good show and a good crowd.

As the stars sang, the crowd clapped in rhythm. Even the odd "yahoo" and "whipee" was heard.

At one point in the show, Tommy Hunter said he should stay until 4 a.m. to sing. The crowd roared its approval. They would have stayed to watch.

It was the 10th annual Dairy Days Jamboree, and enjoyed by far the biggest crowd ever. Sponsored by CJBQ, in close co-operation with the Hastings and Prince Edward junior farmers and Dairy Producers' Associations, all net proceeds go to the junior farmers of Hastings and Prince Edward counties to be used for bursary purposes.

Gordie Tapp, Canada's top country and western MC, kept the show on the move with his down-to-the style and zany antics.

The Rhythm Pals, Mike, Marc and Jack, started things off with a selection of C and W standards plus some of their newer releases. Their rendition of Johnny Cash's "I Walk The Line" brought down the house.

Rag-time piano man Alex Reid couldn't be there yesterday because of illness and banjo strumming Rudy Spratt filled in for him. His banjo sing-a-long warmed the crowd up for the rest of the night. Rudy, as were all acts, was accompanied by the jovial Rhythm Pals.

STIRS THINGS UP

Gordie Tapp introduced Al Cherney as Canada's old-time fiddlin' champion. (He has won that title two years running, the first time it has ever been done.)

Highlights of Al Cherney's section of the show were his trick fiddling and his version of "The Orange Blossom Special." He had the Orange Blossom Special coming into Belleville, via Shannonville and, of course, Corbyville.

Then came the man they all came to see: Tommy Hunter. Tommy sang and strummed and sang some more. The audience clapped and cheered and clapped some more.

And before it was over cousins Gordie Tapp as "Cousin Clem," singing "That Little Whitewashed Building by the Barn."

During intermission 1966 Ontario Dairy Princess, Ruth McKinney, emceed as two girls were crowned as 1966-67 Dairy Princesses for Hastings and Prince Edward counties. Winning top honors for Hastings was Patricia Shorey, and for Prince Edward, Barbara Doxsee.

Work Stoppage Cost Chrysler 500 Cars

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A union spokesman Wednesday night described "as just one of those things" three costly work stoppages at the Chrysler Canada Ltd. main passenger car assembly plant.

"Everything is quite amicable now," the spokesman said. The work stoppages Tuesday and Wednesday reduced the company's output for the two days by more than half.

Wednesday night, the 2,400 men employed in the assembly plant worked through their shift without incident and company officials expected no trouble today.

Stoppages followed the suspension of a man for not wearing safety glasses. The union, Local 444, United Auto Workers (CLC), complained the job previously had not required safety glasses and it had not been informed of the change in requirements.

A Chrysler spokesman said the suspended man had in fact been fired for not wearing his safety glasses. Only after the two walkouts had taken place was it realized the man was a new employee on probation, not a union member.

He said the stoppages cost the company "thousands of dollars" and the loss of more than 500 cars.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

It seems that Local $17645/4258 New York Glider-Twangers and Mandolin Masters has erred when its members harried an Argentinian boxer from plucking a Habanera on his multi-stringed chest plane tonight in Madison Square Garden.

They may have set back the effort to introduce culture into sports two or three years. They should have their bull-fiddles spanked.

Here is Ernie Terrell, Chicago's Black Giant and his Heavyweight, a sock-and-roll combo that is making more hits than the masters in the ring.

There's Manny Wilis, the Raffles of the baseball diamond, who warbles and flagerlicks a banjo better than the best old-fashioned southern cotton-picker, and his band title.

There's Modcat Grant and his Kittens who toss more curves and plunk more music than the Superbs in a Harlem setting.

Now along comes a leather-gloved gaucho from the pampas and South America who has set his eye on a gold record and the other on the world heavyweight boxing championship.

Tonight Oscar Bonavena, who has coffee-housed everything of his late in his native Argentina, swaps flisticuffs with Canada's heavyweight champion George Chuvala in Madison Square Garden. "

But this sock-and-roll operetta won't be played to the sounds of music. Oscar Bonavena, who is a mandolin maestro and guitarist of note, was denied the privilege of rendering an overture on his instruments prior to the ring flicks.

The senor is sad. He had heard while riding herd on the wild bulls of the Argentina that "music hath charm to soothe the savage breast." Perhaps a ballad or two with the thrilling accompaniment of soft mandolin music might have some effect on the wild bull of the Canadian plains.

A chorus or two of "Oh, How I Miss You Tonight" and a little "Twilight In Dreamland" with a background of throbbing mandolin music, might, the senor felt, reduce some of the savagery reported to be in the Chuvala breast.

But Gotham's unionized gitter fraternity had other ideas. It would, reports stated, suffer along with the Garden's beak-busting aficionados while the senor's voice uttered the letters — but the sting accompaniment was definitely out.

But don't be fooled by the senor's outward show of soft music and sobbing instruments. Inside the ring he is said to revert to a "wild bull" style. Like El Toro he uses his "head" and with Chuvala a "butt-er" of more less repute their noggins might be resulting together like a pair of castanets.

The Chuvala bugles blared loud and long about the senor's "dirty" tactics. "This guy" they looied "is dirtier than the dirtiest. He bites."

"We're not concerned with what he does with his fists" came the chorus. "It's what he does with his teeth, his head and his feet."

The senor, they say, loves to masticate an ear or nibble a nose. A one-time champion claims a shoulder scar the result of a similar assault. Other fighters bear bad nicks taken out of their ears by the toothy carcenses of the senor.

His seconds brush his teeth after every round and his activity record is said to be the best of the current crop of boxer-chewers.

He wears a beatle hairdo. Inside the ring he is alleged to butt, gouge, bite, elbow and stomp the opposition. Outside the circle he loves to bask in the Argentinian sun listening to the records that are living his bank account.

But Chuvala is no shrinking violet ring-wise and in spot remarks he bids fair to be a battering ram.

In his fight with Clay the only parts of Ali Muhammad's body not touched by the Chuvala gloves were the soles of his feet.

This Battle of the Bull and the Ram could be productive of almost anything.

ANOTHER "GOLDEN BOY"

Bobby Hull may add another "Golden Boy" to his collection but this one would be on canvas. Bobby's attractive wife Joy Anne is studying art in the Philipps Faulkner School and is reported as doing extremely well. Some of her work is now on display at the Corby Library. So some day Maree Robert may find himself looking at himself "done in oils."

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Hugo Dillfath pushed Miss Snow Goose home a nose ahead of Ali Wehaves, ridden by Avelino Gomez, in the $15,250 My Dear Baker at Woodbine race track Wednesday.

Miss Snow Goose, owned by Jim Boylan's Lanson Farms, ran the five - furlong seventh race in 59 3-5 seconds and returned $2.70, $2.70 and $2.30 as favorite. Hasty Thought was third.

The daily double of Drag Pit and Sultan's Treat returned $31.80 and the exactor of Speedy Lament and Teardrop Lane paid $35.80.

Lightfoots Grease The Skids

George Young's two-hit hurling sparked Lightfoots to their third Commercial Softball League win in as many nights last evening, a convincing 7-0 decision over the slipping Stewart Warner squad.

Lightfoots hoist undisputed possession of second place, just two points back of Stewart Warner. The leaders have a 7-0 record while Lightfoots are 6-4. It was Stewart Warner's third loss in the last four starts.

Young gave up a Texas-league single to Claude Cary and a clean base hit to Fay Glancey while slamming the door on the Warner squad. He struck out two, walked three and got solid support.

Junior Day gave up 11 hits in defeat, whiffing two and walking the same number.

Lightfoot jumped into a 2-0 in the third, added one in the sixth and three more in the seventh.

A walk, sacrifice, Clapp's single, a fly ball and Hall's triple netted the first trio. Hall and Dolan singled to plate the fourth. Cook's double, Clapp's single and other base hits by Rose and Garvin served it up.

Joe Clapp collected three Lightfoot singles, Rusty Garvin a pair, Lee Hall a triple and single and Tim Cook a double and single in the timely attack. Doug Rose and Don Dolan added one safety each.

Detroit's Mickey Lolich came down to earth just in time Wednesday night to tame Washington's Senators.

Lolich, who landed in Washington after two weeks in the Air National Guard, scattered seven hits and struck out 10 as the Tigers clubbed the Senators 12-2 Wednesday night.

Fulfilling his military obligation since the beginning of the month, Lolich tried to pitch on his day off two games ago last Sunday but was belted out in the second inning by New York Yankees.

Dick McAuliffe and Willie Horton gave Lolich 7-4 more than enough support.

McAuliffe led off the game with a homer, triggering a five-run outburst capped by Horton's grand slam homer. Then the Detroit shortstop got the Tigers started again with a leadoff double in a three-run second inning uprising.

HORTON'S AVERAGE

McAuliffe has hit .375 over the last 12 games, raising his over-all average to .301.

The victory keeps the Tigers two games behind the American League-leading Baltimore Orioles who blanked Boston 2-0 on Steve Barber's four-hit pitching and a home run by Curt Blefary.

Elsewhere, third-place Cleveland Indians got Sonny Siebert's five-hitter before losing 6-5 before the Athletics took the nightcap. Kansas City defeated Minnesota Twins 4-1.

Barber, who retired 14 Yankees in one stretch as he lifted his record to 7-6, was locked in a scoreless tie with Fred Talbot, 5-5, before Detroit broke through in the seventh inning.

Brooks Robinson singled, Boog Powell walked and Frank Robinson hit his 12th homer and Talbot's record was 5-6.

PROVIDE THE POWER

The two homers by Colavito and a run-scoring single by Vic Davalo proved enough for the Indians in the opener.

The Red Sox came back in the nightcap, winning it with a two out in the ninth on a walk to Carl Yastrzmski and Dalo Demeter's double off Tom Kelley. Colavito again homered in the nightcap while Tony Conigliaro, hit one in each game for Boston.

The White Sox broke a 4-4 tie in the opener, scoring three runs in the ninth on a single by Ken Berry, a walk to pitcher Joe Horlen, Don Buford's triple and Bill Skowron's grounder.

Relief Chuck Dobson pitched a five-hitter for the Athletics in the nightcap and drove in the winning run with a single when his bent single scored Ozzie Chavarria ad the way from second base.

Bobby Knoop homered for the Angels in the second inning and Lee Curtwright added a three-run third inning rally with another homer. Dean Chance took 11-5 from there, bringing his record to 8-6 by limiting the Twins to six hits.

Minor Softball Results

City Hotel popped out of the cellar in the Commercial softball League by whipping Black Diamond 6-4 last night at the Alemite.

City struck for four quick runs in the first and second frames and then broke a tie in the final inning with two more markers to notch the win.

Dave Feeney gave up eight hits, one more than his Diamond counterpart, in throwing the win. Feeney walked three and fanned two.

Don Holoway hurled on the losers' mound, giving up seven hits while walking one and whiffing three.

Moe Hawkins slammed a two-run round-tripper and Doug Murray clouted a double and triple, to lead the winner's attack. Larry Peter slashed a double and single, while Doug Hull and Bob Brooks both doubled.

For Black Diamond, Ross Empey banged a homer, J. Franks hit a triple and single and Bob Benn and Doug Archer stroked two singles each. Don Holoway doubled.

The Umpire's Leg Got In The Way

Cannilton Plane's settled for a 3-3 South Hastings Ba s e b a l l League deadlock with Read last night, scoring two runs in the seventh and final frame to set the tie.

Plane's could have won it had an umpire's leg been in a different spot.

Read held a 5-3 margin when Cannilton loaded the bases with two out in the bottom of the seventh. Jamie Brown batted. Brown was situated behind the pitching mound when John Bateman lined a base hit back through the box. One run scored but the ball struck Brown's leg, declared automatically dead, and no further advancement was allowed. Plane's did push home the equalizer a later play however.

Ted Abrams pitched eight-hit ball while fanning seven and walking six for Read.

Butch Clapp and Pat O'Connor in the sixth were tagged for 13 hits on the Cannilton mound. They struck out five and passed a pair.

Carm Milligan slammed two doubles and two singles while Ron Read, Ted Abrams blew bats a double, Gerry Brennan two singles and Pat Enright one.

For Plane's, John Treverpapped three one-baggers and Don Forsythe doubled. Other batsmen went to Eric Emerson, Hugh Petrie, Butch Clapp and Lorne Adams.

Sandy Koufax has captured the city of Houston again. He's gaining ground on the Astros, too.

SANDY KOUFAX

Koufax weathered a 10 - hit Houston attack Wednesday night for his 13th victory, lying Jean Marichal for the major league lead, as Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Astros 5-2 before a crowd of 45,306—largest ever for a baseball game in the Astrodome.

The previous attendance highs at the domed stadium were 50,126 and 49,442 last season—with Koufax and the Dodgers the attractions each time.

Last spring, when Koufax and team-mate Don Drysdale were locked in a contract dispute with the Dodgers, Astro officials estimated they would draw $200,000 in revenue should the pair decide not to play this year.

While Koufax' drawing power is as strong as ever in Houston, his 1966 pitching record against the Astros has been mediocre. Wednesday night's victory was his first in three tries this season against a club he had beaten 11 times in 12 previous decisions.

FAGGED HIM FREELY

The Astros tagged him freely Wednesday night, Jim Wynn zapping four hits and John Bateman three, but the southpaw ace struggled through to the finish for his 10th complete game in 17 starts. His record now is 13-2.

Elsewhere first - place San Francisco Giants swept a doubleheader from Chicago Cubs 5-2 and 8-3; Cincinnati Reds nipped Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3; Philadelphia Phillies thumped Atlanta Braves 7-2 and New York Mets topped St. Louis Cardinals 2-0 in 10 innings.

San Francisco stretched its league lead to four games over the Dodgers and Pirates by kicking off the Cubs in the first game and outslugging them in the nightcap.

The Giants scored all their runs in the fifth inning of the opener, Cap Peterson and Dick Lanier clouting in one apiece with singles, and Gaylord Perry protected the margin for his ninth victory in 10 decisions.

Tom Haller's two-run homer capped a three-run first-inning burst in the nightcap and the Giants added four more in the second—two on Peterson's single and two on Lanier's double —for an early cushion. The Cubs bailed back on homers by Ernie Banks, Billy Williams and John Boccabella but Ron Herbel came in relief help in the eighth, slopped them short.

Bobcats Dump Picton

By ROBERT SNEFJELLA

PICTON — Temple Bobcats exploded a three-run bomb in the seventh inning of a scoreless ball game and then held on to edge Picton 4-3 in a Belleville and District Softball tilt here yesterday evening. Picton is the former Bloomfield entry.

The winners stayed off a non-out, bases loaded, ninth inning threat to gain the victory. Bobcats are now tied for the league lead with Trudeau Motors.

Bobcats' Clare Leahy and Picton ace Ken DeMille were locked in a pitcher's duel for the better part of the contest. But in the seventh frame DeMille got into trouble as Terry Lodge, Cats' infield specialist, slammed a solid single. Two more singles and two errors later, the Bobcats stood on top 3-0.

In the eighth Picton cut the margin down to a single run as they notched a pair. With two men on base, Leo St. Denis lofted a long fly ball that was fumbled by Bobcat leftfielder. Both runners scored.

Belleville added another marker in the final inning when Whyte scored.

But the game was far from over. In the last of the ninth, Picton got one man on, loaded the bases on a walk, single, and error. Leahy retired the next two batters, however, to preserve the win. Picton's threat was finally choked off when Leahy struck out Bill Whyte, and Ron Herbert and Arnold Pettit safefied.

Davey "In"; Ottawa Gets Grey Cup

Centennial Gesture

By JOHN SHORT

WINNIPEG (CP) — Senator Keith Davey came away with the commissioner's job and Ottawa walked off with the site of the 1967 Grey Cup game Wednesday as the semi-annual meeting of the Canadian Football League neared a conclusion.

Delegates kicked off an eventful Wednesday by handing Senator Davey a three-year contract as successor to G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg.

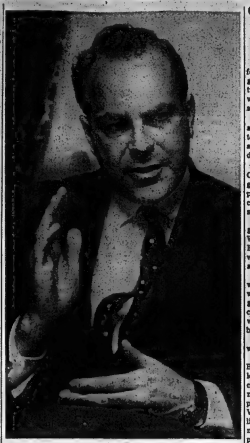
The day ended when delegates conceded they were a long way from agreement on a 1967 schedule. They were to try again today.

Representatives of the nine CFL clubs voted to stage the Grey Cup in Ottawa Dec. 2, 1967, as a contribution to centennial festivities.

Ottawa Mayor Don Reid predicted renovations would enable Lansdowne Park to accommodate about 32,000 fans. Plans call for the addition of 17,000 seats.

The last time the Grey Cup final was played outside Toronto or Vancouver was in 1939, when Ottawa's bid was successful. Montreal was host in 1925. Toronto placed the only bid opposing the Ottawa submission, which passed by a vote of seven to one with one abstention.

Halter's resignation comes into effect Dec. 31. Senator Davey, at 40 the youngest member of the Senate, was elected unanimously after almost no discussion Wednesday morning. Evidently he impressed delegates favorably Tuesday night during an hour-long appearance at dinner.



The senator assured delegates there need be no conflict between his senatorial duties and his obligations to the CFL.

Senator Davey, former national organizer of the Liberal party, said he hopes to use his extensive experience in public relations and promotion to improve the image of the CFL.

He promised to travel extensively in the interval before his appointment becomes effective and pick the brains of the experienced football men in the country.

Pat Mahoney of Calgary, CFL past-president and chairman of the four - man committee instructed to seek a commissioner, said about 80 applications were considered and the field was narrowed to five before the committee agreed unanimously to recommend Davey to the CFL.

A combined schedule of CBC and CTV telecasts for 1966, released late Wednesday, showed that Canadian fans will be able to watch 44 televised games between Aug. 3 and the end of the season Oct. 30. The total did not include playoffs, which begin either Nov. 5 or 6.

SENATOR BECOMES COMMISSIONER — Senator Keith Davey Wednesday accepted a three-year term as commissioner of the Canadian Football League and told a press conference in Winnipeg he already has some ideas for the job he assumes Jan. 1 from G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg.

Canadian Networks Will Televise 44 Games

WINNIPEG (CP) — Forty-four Canadian Football League games will be televised by the two Canadian television networks—CTV and CBC—this season, exclusive of playoffs.

Officials of the two networks announced Wednesday that the television season begins Aug. 3 and concludes Oct. 30, the final day of the regular schedule.

Eastern and Western Football Conference semi-finals will begin Nov. 5 or Nov. 6, but formal playoff arrangements are not complete, a CFL spokesman said.

Western viewers will see 31 games—24 originating in the West and seven in the East. Eastern fans will see 20 televised games—13 from the East and seven from the West.

In all CTV games, centres at which games are being played will be blacked out. When games are being played in other centres on the same day as televised games, telecasts will not be allowed to conflict.

Details of CBC programming were not determined.

Johnny Esaw of Toronto and Brad Keens of Vancouver will lead eastern and western broadcast crews for CTV, a spokesman said. Esaw will be assisted primarily by Annis Stukus, with Vick Chapman of Edmonton listed as Keens's regular partner. Esaw and Keens will do play-by-play.

TRIMBLE JOINS CREWS

Both crews will be joined on occasion by Jim Trimble, former coach of Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Montreal Alouettes. The contract, announced Wednesday during a semi-annual meeting of the CFL, will mark Trimble's first regular appearance on regularly - scheduled television program.

Gene Filipski of Calgary, Al McCann of Edmonton, Ken Noyens of Regina and Jack Wells of Winnipeg also will work some broadcasts.

CBC crews were not announced.

Emerson Nears Title

LONDON (CP) — Defending champion Roy Emerson marched toward his third straight Wimbledon tennis title Wednesday but two seeded players were defeated in the men's singles.

Emerson got his revenge on Wilhelm Bungert of West Germany for a defeat during the 1963 quarter - finals. Bungert, last man to defeat Emerson at Wimbledon, lost Wednesday, 6-2, 6-3, 6-1.

Ousted from competition were third-seeded Fred Stolle of Australia, runner-up for the title the last three years, and American Clark Graebner, eighth seed.

The Trots

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Armbro Gazelle, brightest star on Ontario's roster of sopho-more trotters, made a shambles of his four rivals while strutting to a four-length victory in 2:09 in the fourth renewal of the $3,716 Woodbine Futurity at Garden City Raceway Wednesday.

The victory was the fourth in a row for the talented Jamieson - bred speedster, owned by Max J. Webster of Brantford.

Driver - Bob Silliphant's victory with Armbro Gazelle was his second of the evening. He reined Armbro Highland, a 2-year-old lass, to pay $3.80 to win and created a $323.06 minus show pool.

TORONTO (CP)—The scene on the infield at Woodbine race track, site of Saturday's 107th running of the Queen's Plate, is beautiful.

But it's no match for the scenery around the backstretch each morning when Sherrie Tuckey, a brown-eyed, brunette from Hamilton shows up to exercise horses.

Sherrie, 20, an exercise girl for trainer Ted Mann of Toronto, has been working with horses around Ontario tracks since she was 17.

The best horse Sherrie has exercised is Langcrest, owned by N. James Langill of Montreal. Langcrest was second to Northern Dancer in the 1964 plate and won $100,600 by the time he was retired at the end of 1965.

Sherrie almost got a horse into Saturday's Plate race, a 1¼-mile classic for Canadian three-year-olds starting at 5:12 p.m. Place Victoria, owned by Langill and a half-brother of Langcrest, was a candidate until his handlers decided to remove him from contention early this week. Sherrie exercised Place Victoria all spring.

Titled Hero, owned by Peter Marshall of Toronto, remained the heavy favorite in the field which drew an added starter Wednesday, Tom Hays of Oakville and T. B. Watson of London, Ont., announced their intention of entering Solar Park, a filly that has yet to win this year. Trained by Duke Campbell, she'll be ridden by Wayne Harris of Vancouver.

Solar Park was purchased for $12,500 at the yearling sales of E. P. Taylor, Toronto industrialist. Winner of $23,050 in 1963, she finished no worse than fourth in 11 starts.

Fight? No Hear No See!

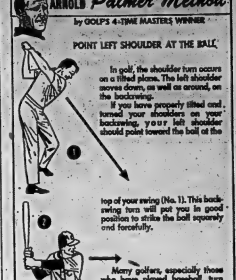
NEW YORK (CP) — George Chuvalo, the Toronto Canadian champion who went 15 rounds with Cassius Clay, is an 8-to-5 favorite over Argentina's Oscar Bonavena in a heavyweight fight tonight at Madison Square Garden.

The 10 - round main event starts at 10 p.m. with no radio or television coverage.

Chuvalo walked into Clay's best punches and kept on going to maintain his reputation as one of the toughest heavyweights in the business in the March 29 scrap in Toronto, his hometown. He has a 35-12-2 record with 28 knockouts and never has been floored.



Bonavena, South American champion, has a 20-2 record with 17 knockouts. He flunked his big test Feb. 28, 1963, when he was beaten by Zora Folley on a decision. The other defeat was a disqualification to Jose Gingetti early this year because of rough tactics.

The fighters and promoters have tried everything to steam up interest in tonight's bout. They asked for a fight to the finish but the New York State Athletic Commission turned down the request. They also asked a request to let the fight go an extra five rounds if it was over before 10. The musicians' union rejected Bonavena's proposed ring debut as a pop singer with a mandolin.

PETERS TO MEMPHIS

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit Red Wings Wednesday named Jimmy Peters, a former Red Wing, general manager and coach of Detroit's farm team, Memphis Wings of the Central Professional Hockey League. A native of Verdun, Que., Peters played with Montreal Canadiens, Boston Bruins, Detroit and Chicago during his NHL career.

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method
by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

In golf, the shoulder turn occurs on a tilted plane. The left shoulder moves down, as well as around, on the backswing.
If you have properly tilted and turned your shoulders on your backswing, your left shoulder should point toward the ball of the top of your swing (No. 1). This backswing turn will put you in good position to strike the ball squarely and forcefully.

Many golfers, especially those who have played baseball, turn their shoulders on too much of a level plane (No. 2). This sort of turn makes the swing too flat and reduces your chances of striking the ball with a square clubface.

Outdoor Tips And Tricks

BY BOB BLAIND

Bass season opens this Saturday June 25th and if old man weather keeps his promise, and conditions are right, this could be one of the best opening days for years.

The best way to catch small mouth bass is with live bait such as minnows, frogs, crawfish, grasshoppers or Heigramnites. With these you still fish or drift around rocky shoals, old piers or wrecks, or old rock piles.

I like a live minnow on a spinning outfit, with a small split shot above the bait, anchor your boat just off one of your favorite rock bars and cast your minnow in toward the bar. Let the minnow swim freely at the end of your line. When you feel a strike, let your bass run with your bait until he stops, then set the hook and get set for action. The bass is a terrific fighter and performs acrobatics on top of the water that is fantastic. He puts up a good fight all the way to the boat.

Artificial lures also pay off for bass fishing in a lot of spots—one in particular—Point Traverse in Lake Ontario, a real hot spot if the wind is right.

The hero and mirror lure seem to be the best to use in this area.

Fishing the largemouth bass is also plenty of fun, for this I like fishing in early morning or evening with a surface lure.

From a boat cast towards a weed bed or weedy shoreline and rest slowly back, if you get a strike it will be an explosive one and even if the fish misses the lure, you can be assured of a thrill!

Best surface lures are Jitterbug, Hula Popper, Crazy Crawler, Heddon Basser, Lucky 13, and injured minnow. There are several more good ones but in my estimation these are the top ones.

If you want to have some fun, try fishing in the Moira River from Lacies Dam to Camilton Dam. Use a plastic worm rig. Bill Clapp and I fished from Canniton Dam to 401 Highway one afternoon last year and both of us caught over 100 small river bass. The water being shallow, all these fish put on a good display in the air—a lot of fun for an hour or so fishing.

Some good spots to try this weekend, for small mouth — Cow Island in Bay of Quinte, Gull Island in Bay of Quinte, Rosh Bar in Bay of Quinte, Coles Bar in Big Bay, Timber Island, Lake Ontario; False and Main Duck Islands, Lake Ontario. Moira River Belleville to Thomasburg. Large Mouth Bass — Big Island Creek, Sagwin Creek, Peche Point, Mouth of the Salmon River.

Skaters Return Medals

TORONTO (CP)—Two Canadian figure-skaters have been ordered to return the third-place bronze medal they won at the 1964 Winter Olympics—they are getting a silver medal for second place instead.

Two years ago Guy Revell and Debbie Wilkes were awarded third place in the pairs skating competition at Innsbruck, Austria Wednesday Debbie received a letter from the Canadian Figure-Skating Association notifying her that she and Revell have been awarded second place.

Marika-Hilijus and Hans-Jurgen Baumier of Germany, who originally finished ahead of the Canadian pair, have been ordered by the Olympic committee to return their silver medal. It was ruled recently that they had signed a professional contract before the Olympic competition.

Debbie, 19, is a second-year arts student at York University. Revell turned professional with the Ice Capades last year.

AT THE BELLE — Rosalind Russell as the Mother Superior in a convent school catches Hayley Mills and screen newcomer Jean Harding (left) at one of their pranks, in this scene from "The Trouble With Angels". The heart-warming comedy, in Color, also stars Binnie Barnes and Gypsy Rose Lee, and is now playing an extensive engagement, at regular prices at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

AT THE PARK — Nancy Kovak, David Ogalsahn and Don Megowan plot to do away with Tarzan and steal the treasure of a lost city in the new American International adventure drama "Tarzan and the Valley of Gold" opening tonight at the Park Theatre. Tarzan is played by Mike Henry, a former Los Angeles Rams football star. On the same program is a colos Nick Adams in "Frankenstein Conquers The World". Both hits are first showings. Complete shows are at 7:00 and 8.50 p.m.

Danny Kaye Needed to Get Replacement Show on Road

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Danny Kaye has been signed for one day night to instruct his faithful fans to watch his good friend, singer John Gary, who will keep the Kays show spot on CBS occupied during the summer.

John Gary is an attractive young man with a fine voice who can handle well almost any type of song. Wednesday night Kaye stayed around to do a couple of comedy turns in the show, and he was needed, too.

The musical numbers and settings were fine. But the new John Gary Show may fall down in its concentration of music—there was nothing else for at least the first half.

Even Danny's two numbers were rooted in song.

Following a custom established several years back, CBS' Lucy Show will be replaced from July 4 through Labor Day with a collection of pilot films for comedy series that never found network niches. At least half will be shown this month or by Lucille Ball's production company.

The summer series will be called, as usual, Vacation Playhouse. Wife around the CBS office call it Vacation Flophouse.

The series will include at least two comedy rejects already shown in similar summer collections. One is a comedy starring Ethel Merman made more than three years ago. Another stars Dwayne Hickman and Jim Walters Four. Also included is an unsold pilot film starring Soupy Sales.

Motion Picture Assoc. Head Looks Like Take Charge Guy

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Having sent actor-banger George Murphy to Washington, Hollywood now gets Jack Valenti in return. This week the movie town got its first look at the new man.

Valenti is the former presidential assistant who was pinching from the White House to fill the long-vacant post of president of the Motion Picture Association, at a reported $125,000 yearly. He arrived at his press conference accompanied by the association's new general counsel, Louis Nizer, star of courtrooms and best-seller biographies (My Life in Court).

Tanned, square - jawed and athletic - looking, Valenti gave the impression of a take-charge guy from the start.

He quoted himself, citing the speech he was to give to an industry luncheon in which he outlined his plans: developing new talent, revising the censorship code, etc. His speech gives some hint of his Texas upbringing when he refers to a "cat's" comes out as "cain't."

PROMISES TO VISIT

His predecessors, Will Hays and Eric Johnston, seldom set foot in Hollywood, but Valenti vowed he would be a frequent visitor. "I intend to spend time in the creative end of the business," he said.

Jack Valenti called for a final press - conference question, he was asked how many movies he had seen in his seven months at once.

Now there is a profound question that has a great bearing on this press conference," he responded archly. The number was five, which may or may not include the times (three) he has seen Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? The see-charged drama was denied a seal by the industry censor, who was overruled by Valenti's board of directors.

In another room of the hotel, the powers of the film industry gathered to hear the new leader.

Nizer outlined Valenti's career, including the fact that he was "at 16 the youngest boy ever to graduate from a Houston high school."

Valenti cited Senator George Murphy's advent to Washington and his ove to Hollywood, terming it "an east-west cultural exchange."

Cooke Runs Into First Snag

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Coliseum Commission Wednesday rejected a request for interim use of the arena by Jack Kent Cooke's Los Angeles Kings, granted a National Hockey League franchise in the recent league expansion.

At the same time the commission approved a request to extend for three years the lease of the arena by Los Angeles Blades of the Western Hockey League.

Cooke, a native of Hamilton, Ont., who was brought up in Toronto and now is a United States citizen, had said the use of the arena by his NHL team would be only temporary while he constructs his own facilities.

New Defence Chief Wants To See Forces Made Happy

By RUSS PEDEN

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada's first French-speaking defence chief, Lt.-Gen. Jean Victor Allard, 53, sees his new job, as essentially a challenge "to make the armed forces happy and to make them understand the necessity for transformation."

"That's it—I have no other goal," he told a press conference Wednesday following announcement of his appointment as chief of the defence staff, succeeding Air Chief Marshal Frank R. Miller.

He said the job of informing the armed forces about the need for integration is an important one, because "the morale of the armed forces is a delicate thing."

"We're not only integrating, we're modernizing. This creates a certain amount of difficulty. Until you can go to the troops and tell them what is going to happen, this creates a certain amount of uncertainty. "Generally speaking, before we had a chance to go and talk to the troops and tell them what the new form was, morale was a bit low."

But this was not the reason for the recent decrease in strength of the armed forces.

"You see, the economy of the country is good. We have these ups and downs. It's the penalty we have to pay for volunteer forces.

"Mind you, there are people who say they left because of integration, but I think they would have left anyway.

"I think stabilization will occur after a time."

Asked about the use of French and English in the armed forces, Gen. Allard said "bilingualism is coming naturally."

"Of course, bilingualism now is limited mostly to French-speaking Canadians speaking English. The opposite did not occur because the necessity did not exist."

The founding of Quebec's Royal 22nd Regiment in 1874 marked the beginning of bilingualism in the Canadian Army, but it took a long time to establish a tradition.

"MUST TAKE PLACE"

"I think French Canada must take its place—must take its responsibilities—because they are responsible for the defence of this country as much as their English-speaking brothers.

"A French-Canadian can go in and never have to speak English in his whole career. But reality is something else, if you want to command.

"As for the ideal situation where everybody is bilingual—well, I don't know how many hundred years they've been trying in Belgium and haven't achieved it yet."

There was no doubt that bilingual soldiers were more useful in many situations—in the United Nations peace - keeping operation in The Congo, for instance, where the main language was French.

"But there is no point imposing a language on somebody who can't practice it and can't use it."

Asked about the possibility of a financial incentive to promote bilingualism, Gen. Allard said the idea is good and "could certainly help."

Would be press for such an incentive for the armed forces if it took effect for federal civil servants?

"I certainly will. I have already."

4 DIE IN YUKON MINE FIRE

Rescue Eight Miners

ELSA, Y.T. (CP) — Four miners were killed and eight were rescued after fire swept through support timbers in a hillside silver mine here Thursday, a mining company spokesman reported early today.

No further details were given but a fire at the 200-foot level of the No Cash mine was reported to have been extinguished and rescue crews withdrew from the mine at 2:30 a.m. YDT.

The spokesman said a total of 32 men had been trapped by the fire and all had been accounted for.

During the 36-hour battle reports conflicted as to the number involved.

Don DeLaporte of Yellowknife, N.W.T., general manager of United Keno Hill Mines, the owners, said less than 20 were at work in the area when the fire broke out. The others escaped. One of the rescued was taken to hospital.

Names of the men were not released but the company promised a statement later.

RESCUE STARTS

The fire broke out at 10:45 a.m. YDT Thursday and local rescue crews swung into action.

Working in groups of five, they wore oxygen masks to enter the mine. By early evening they had found two men. One was dead. The other was taken to hospital.

By late evening the fire had been brought under control but was still burning.

Mr. Delaporte said that as the smoke cleared, four men who had retreated into a drift where they had reasonable ventilation walked out to meet rescue crews and were brought to the surface. They were reported in good condition.

Elsa is 1,000 miles northwest of Edmonton and 200 miles north of Whitehorse, Y.T.

Twenty rescue men, flown from Yellowknife, N.W.T., 600 miles east of Elsa, reached the scene about midnight to relieve local crews who had been on the job for more than 12 hours.

TUG RIPS OUT BRIDGE — Six youths on bicycles and a truck driver were rescued after being dumped into the Fraser River Thursday when a barge being towed by a tug tore out the main south span of the Fraser River bridge in Vancouver. (CP Wirephoto)

Still Hunt Possible Victims After Barge Shatters Bridge

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police were still searching the Fraser River for possible victims today following the shattering of a bridge struck by an empty sawdust barge here Thursday.

Seven persons were known to be on the bridge at the time of the mishap—but authorities say there may have been more.

All seven were in good condition in hospital, suffering only minor injuries.

Truck driver George Symonds, 27, who escaped from the cab of his truck by punching out a window after the truck plunged into the river, told police there may have been a car and two bridge behind him when the span collapsed.

Also on the bridge were six men-agers, on their way home from a strawberry-picking expedition.

"We weren't scared. It happened too fast," said Helma Grimm, 16.

"We saw the barge coming and thought it was riding pretty high. We felt it scrape along beneath us, and then the bridge started to move. There was a loud bang and then the whole thing went over."

Most severely injured in the accident was Allan Jensen, 14, who was hit by a falling timber. He suffered broken ribs.

Grimm, his cousin Michael Grimm, 15, James Connor, 14, Duane Wozney, 15, and Bernard Fruhauf, 15, escaped with bruises.

They said they held onto the railing of the wooden bridge as the section crumbled. "I can swim, but there was too much junk floating around," said Fruhauf. "We just hung onto anything that would float."

The seven were pushed from the muddy, churning river by a tugboat crew.

Officials of the tugboat towing the barge that struck the bridge were unavailable for comment.

British Columbia Highways Minister Phil Gaglardi said the bridge will be replaced by temporary bailey bridging in about a week. The broken bridge was a secondary route to Richmond.

Police Use Gas, Rifle Butts To Break Up Marchers' Camp

CANTON, Miss. (AP) — Frazed by a hectic night of tear gas and tension, the Mississippi march regroups today for new confrontations.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. said a detachment would drive 60 miles east to Philadelphia, Miss., a Ku Klux Klan stronghold, for a rally.

"We will maintain the peace come hell or high water," said Governor Paul Johnson, jr. urging Philadelphia residents to stay away from the rally—part of the march's effort to spur Negro voter registration.

The busy schedule also called for organization of a Negro boycott of downtown white merchants and a general work stoppage by Negroes in Canton, while a few continue the march toward Jackson.

From Canton, the march swings south along U.S. 51, the same highway where it all was started by James H. Meredith in Memphis, Tenn., 30 days and 220 miles ago. Jackson is 20 miles from Canton.

King, who got a strong dose of tear gas in Thursday night's uproar in Canton, called the highway patrol move to drive the crowd off a Negro school ground "brutal inhumanity."

The barrage of about 40 tear gas canisters came after marchers set up their big tents on the school ground in defiance of the city's refusal to allow them to camp there.

About 100 police in riot dress moved in on the crowd, drove them back with clubs and the choking gas, then pulled down the tents, packed them on the truck and had the truck hauled off.

The action came after about 2,500 Negroes, with a sprinkling of whites, held a rally on the lawn at the courthouse in downtown Canton. The crowd then moved on to the school ground, about eight blocks away.

Many were kicked and slugged with gun butts by the gas-masked highway patrolmen as demonstrators groped blindly in the acrid clouds of tear gas rolling over the area.

One white Roman Catholic priest, Rev. John Prater of Chicago, who has been on the march for several days, was pushed in the stomach with a rifle butt. When a marcher protested that the priest was a "man of God," the officer snapped, "I'll put him with his God."

Liberals Official Opposition But NDP Gains Four

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Duff Roblin's Progressive Conservative government began a fourth term today in Manitoba with a bone-bare majority.

It was support for the New Democratic Party that alloed into the government's strength, though the Liberals remained the official opposition when the count was in from a record turnout in Thursday's provincial election.

The standing compared to the last election Dec. 14, 1962, with voting deferred to July 7 in Churchill constituency in the north:

| | 1966 | 1962 |
|---|---|---|
| PC | 30 | 36 |
| Lib | 14 | 13 |
| NDP | 14 | 7 |
| Ind | 1 | — |
| Total | 57 | 57 |

At dissolution of the legislature in May, the standing was PC 36, Liberal 13, NDP five, Social Credit one and two seats were vacant.

Jacking up its share of the popular vote to 22.1 per cent from 14 per cent in 1962, the NDP under the veteran Russ Paulley captured two seats from the government and the same number from the Liberals.

The Liberals under leader Gil Molgat made three gains from the Conservatives but saw their share of the popular vote dip to 23.5 per cent from 27.

The Conservatives, whose magic number for seats won had been 28 in both 1962 and the election before that in 1959, dropped to 30.6 per cent from 45.

DEFEAT MINISTER

The Conservatives had one casualty of cabinet rank with Municipal Affairs Minister Robert Smellie falling to Birtle-Russell's Liberal Rod Clement, 46, a farm equipment dealer.

Three other cabinet members had not sought re-election and Premier Roblin said the first order of business after he goes to Ottawa will be cabinet reorganization.

"The only thing I know is that we're ahead," said the bespectacled 49-year-old leader who got the Conservatives their foothold on power when he formed a

DeGaulle Visits Siberia

NOVOSIBIRSK, USSR. (Reuters) — President Charles de Gaulle called for closer co-operation between French and Soviet industry when he visited a giant turbo-generator factory here today.

The French president arrived in this Siberian city Thursday to start a 6,200-mile tour of the Soviet Union.

De Gaulle will leave by air Friday for Leningrad. But he will make a detour on the way to become the first Western visitor to Russia's space launching site at Baikonur, Kazakhstan.

De Gaulle spent an hour visiting the turbine factory, accompanied by Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny.

He shook hands with many of the 8,000 workers who cheered him as he toured the vast plant, which exports equipment to 27 countries and made the generators for Egypt's Aswan dam.

Measures Get Easy Passage

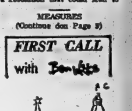
By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP)—Government measures had a generally easy ride Thursday through the Commons.

A bill to establish a commission that will oversee the dairy industry was given third and final reading. It now goes to the Senate.



The House gave first approval to a bill to establish the Western Bank of British Columbia.

That one has failed in the two previous parliaments. Even Thursday's step does not take it out of the woods. It will go to a committee for detailed study.

Privately-owned power companies moved closer to a financial windfall with the passage of a resolution that could lead to

Order Police to Use Discretion Dealing With Tractor Parades

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial police were ordered Thursday to be firm but use discretion in dealing with farmers staging tractor parades to protest what they say are low milk prices and the Ontario Farmers' Union responded with orders to members to obey police.

Attorney - General Arthur Wishart of Ontario said in an interview officers have been advised not to lay charges unless the number and spacing of tractors appears to be a deliberate and continuing attempt to disrupt traffic.

John Dohmer of Corbeton, Ont., OFU president, said the demonstrations will continue with the farmers obeying police requests.

"If we are told to take to the shoulder of the road, we'll take to the shoulder," Mr. Dohmer said in an interview.

Meanwhile, Ellard Powers of Pembroke, OFU first vice-president, said representatives from union locals in Lanark, Leeds, Renfrew, Frontenac and Carleton counties will meet in Richmond, Ont., 15 miles south of Ottawa, to discuss the advisability of farmers cutting off producer shipments to markets to supplement their milk price demands.

Mr. Powers said it would take at least six months to prepare such action.

The farmers are seeking a basic price of $4 a hundredweight of milk. The price now is set at $3.25 with federal subsidy of 75 cents.

William Langdon of Medina, president of OFU Local 361, said Mr. Wishart's announcement will probably bring more demonstrators on the highways.

He said members of the government had made misleading statements and that threats would only bring out the farmers in stronger numbers.

Despite possible police action, at least one local plans to go ahead with its scheduled demonstration.

"We are definitely prepared to face charges," Bert Dobson, past president of OFU Local 107 in Coldwater, 12 miles west of Orillia, said Thursday. "But we don't expect charges will be laid.

"The parade will go on unless we get specific orders from the police not to."

He said tractors will be spaced out, and a parade captain appointed to regulate traffic. They have also asked police for an escort.

The demonstration will take place Saturday on Highway 400 extension, between Highways 11 and 93, along 12 to 101 at Washbenhe, about six miles west of Coldwater, and along the four-lane Highway 12 at Cathrie, half-way between Orillia and Barrie.

The farmers decided not to demonstrate tonight to avoid interfering with the heavier part of weekend traffic, and also because many of them work in local industries during the week.

Mr. Dohmar said he has instructed farmers to stay home from today to Monday.

His directive followed threats from union locals that members intended to tie up weekend traffic.

About 30 farmers said they still intend to parade their tractors Sunday on Highway 2 between Thamesford and London.

Seamen and Shipowners Resume Talks

LONDON (AP)—Talks between striking seamen and Britain's shipowners resumed today in an atmosphere which was believed better than any since the strike began 40 days ago.

Thursday night's first session at the ministry of labor lasted more than three hours. William Hogarth, secretary-general of the National Union of Seamen, told reporters afterwards: "While there is talk there is hope."

Chairman of the talks is Lord Pearson, the judge who headed the government's inquiry into the dispute. The inquiry recommended that the seamen's goal of a 40-hour week be fulfilled next year instead of knocked out stely as they demand.

Leaders of the 65,000-member union are reported to have recognized that they will have to compromise on the 40 - hour week since the lines suggested by the Pearson committee.

The bone of contention now is believed to be the number of days of their paid shore leave. The seamen are believed to be offering to cut overtime work in exchange for more shore leave.

Stirling Club To Put on Flying Show

Stirling Airport will be the scene Sunday afternoon of an air show participated in by the Ottawa flying club, the Prince Edward Flying Club and the Prince Edward Sky Diving Club.

Royal Canadian Air Force Search and Rescue personnel will provide a display and a Search and Rescue Helicopter will demonstrate its operations.

Acrobatics will be provided by the Ottawa club using Harvard and Chipmonk aircraft.

The Prince Edward Flying Club will provide a streamer coasting show. The technique involved in this manoeuver is spectacular — a roll of toilet paper is thrown from the aircraft which loops to end the streamer before it falls to the ground.

Skydiving by the Prince Edward Skydiving Club will start from about 7,000 feet if the weather holds fair.

Comic relief is promised by the Oak Hills Flying Club in a spot landing competition at some point in the afternoon.

The aim of the show is to provide aviation interest in the community. Stirling Airport is 13 miles north of this city and admission and other activities will be $1.00 a carload.

MAJOR COMBAT CLOTS

WASHINGTON (CP)—A substance derived from human urine is being tested with some optimism as a means of dissolving blood clots already formed within the heart, says the National Heart Institute. If true, the procedure would be a major weapon against often-fatal heart attacks. The substance is expensive, hard to produce and is called urokinase.

Three weeks ago Eddie Scriven saved a young boy from drowning and this morning was honored for the heroic feat.

Eddie, 15, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Scriven of 161 Church Street, was near Lacey's Dam Saturday afternoon, June 4, when he saw Ricky Johnson fall over the dam and be swept down into the rapids. Running alongside the rapids, Eddie jumped into the water and pulled the boy out.

Lee Grills Pokes Barbs At Agriculture Minister

OTTAWA (CP) — The commons was discussing the government plan for a national dairy commission Thursday night, but Lee Grills (PC—Hastings South) wanted to talk about Joe Greene.

He leaned across the aisle at the agriculture minister and said Mr. Greene was trying very hard in the position.

Mr. Grills thought the Ottawa Valley lawyer "was a nice fellow to talk to . . . somebody told me he resembled Abraham Lincoln"

Mr. Greene, lean and rangy with a shock of grey-white hair, remained silent inish seat.

Mr. Grills, a portly dairy operator, pressed on.

The Agriculture Minister was widely reported on television and radio. "Propaganda-wise he almost appears to be the assistant minister of agriculture." The latter also had a charming wife.

However, it would take more than radio and television remarks, good looks and a charming wife to satisfy the Canadian farmer.

"The farmers are already starting to ask questions," Mr. Grills said.

He wondered "just how seriously" Mr. Greene takes the problems of agriculture. Perhaps the minister should look into importing potential farmers from overseas.

Mr. Grills hoped the minister "will use all the vision he appears to have" to solve the problems of the hard-pressed family farmer. Then he sat down.

Rinks were on hand from Brighton, Stirling, Trenton and Belleville and the lawn bowlers enjoyed a pot luck supper between the second and third games.

On Thursday afternoon a trebles tournament was staged by the Cobourg Lawn Bowling Club and a Belleville rink of Mrs. Irene Trudeau, Mrs. Thelma Fligginbon with Mrs. Grace Clapp as skip won the three-game high and the accompanying trophy. Mrs. Wicks and her rink of Cobourg was in second place. Mrs. Carr of Cobourg and her rink won the two-game high, while Mrs. Rhea Hall and rink of Kingston won the one-game high count. Another Belleville rink of Mrs. Vera McIntosh, Mrs. Rita Lloyd and Mrs. Elsie Humphreys as skip were beaten out of the one-game high by one point. Rinks were present from Cobourg, Trenton, Kingston, Campbellford and Belleville. The greens were excellent but were tricky.

Also on Thursday afternoon the weekly games were played on the local club and Mrs. Nora Kyle, Mrs. Lil Masears with Mrs. Carm Moll won the high score with Mrs. Flossie Coleman, Mrs. Jessie Hunter with Mrs. Betty Vince in second place. One special bridge prize was won by Mrs. Laura Hyde. The tea hostesses were Mrs. Flossie Coleman and Miss Winnie Smith.

Paratroops Seize Two Hue Pagodas

SAIGON (AP) — Paratroops and riot police seized off Hue's two main Buddhist pagodas today and hauled away the coffins of two women who burned themselves to death last month in the Buddhist struggle against Premier Ngoyen Cao Ky's government.

Ky's men threw up barbed-wire barriers in front of the Dieu De and Ba Dam pagodas to prevent the Buddhists from holding a public funeral—and probably no soil - government demonstrations in defiance of a government ban.

Belleville Family YMCA will continue its mother and child swimming classes in July every Tuesday and Thursday morning for 10 lessons at 9.30 a.m. for one-half hour. Boys and girls who register must be four to five years of age. Women and girls must wear bathing caps.

Mrs. Patti Clapp will instruct this class as well as other aquatic classes for the month of July.

DAY CAMP

Registrations for Day Camp at the Belleville Family Y.M.C.A. are almost filled. As a matter of fact only five more boys are needed to fill the first camp — July 4th to July 15th. Registrations for girls are filled in both camps, the 2nd camp being July 18th to July 29th. More boys may register in the second camp.

Program arrangements with regards to the bus trips are progressing favorably with many surprises in store for the children. With the counsellors thinking with their youthful, active minds on projects for days spent at the "Y" building and a special Day Camp committee meeting each week of parents, a Board of Directors member, a Y's man who is chairman of his club's youth committee, a counsellor and the Day Camp director, Miss Mildred Gray discussing such related topics as overnights, junior counsellors - in - training, Day Camp 1960 should be a unique experience from the director down to the youngest camper.

Found Guilty On 3 Charges Of Theft

A Belleville man was remanded on bail for sentencing July 8 on three charges of theft and one of possession by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in city court today.

Walter Herbert Gill, 58, of 219 Dundas St. E., pleaded guilty on the theft charges and was found guilty on the evidence on the possession charge. Two additional charges of possession were withdrawn by the Crown with the condition that Mr. Gill sign a promise to return the articles to their owners.

Mr. Gill pleaded guilty to theft of a transistor radio, valued at less than $50, from the Singer Company of Canada on March 26, 1966. He also pleaded guilty to theft of an electric can opener, valued at less than $50, from Zellers Limited, on March 24, and a cuipper set, valued at over $50, from Walker Hardware on March 28.

Gill, a mechanic by trade, was found guilty of possession of an electric drill, valued at under $50, the property of Martin Doyle, 176 George St.

Mr. Doyle testified he owned the hand drill and kept it in his garage. He said it was found to be missing August 19, 1965, after he had returned from his holidays.

He identified the drill in court as his by switch assembly peculiar to that drill and some welding on the casing.

A city detective testified the drill was found by police March 31 in a desk in the basement of the Gill home.

Mr. Gill testified that he bought the drill from Earl Harrow of Deseronto.

He was examination adbtn one month before Mr. Harrow died.

Under cross examination acting crown attorney Ralph E. Graham said, "Is it right you sold your business his shop before he closed it?"

"Yes."

"And is it right he closed his shop about one month before he died?"

"About that."

"Would it interest you to know that Mr. Harrow died August 8, 1965, which means you must have bought the drill before July 31?"

"I can't say for sure when I bought it."

"And would it surprise you witness that the property hadn't even been stolen on July 8 when you were supposed to have purchased it. What explanation do you have for that?"

"I have no explanation."

Magistrate Wills said, "I absolutely do not believe the evidence given by the accused." He found Gill guilty on the evidence.

ADDED FOUR

Trousers widely worn by golfers were called "plus fours" because they were made by adding four inches to each leg of knickerbockers.

Complement of 198 Teachers Hired by High School Board

The Bay of Quinte District High School Board now has its full complement of 198 teachers for the four high schools which will be in operation next September.

The June meeting of the Board held this week the engagements of Miss Diane Burley of Corchester, and W. E. Refause of Glen Miller were approved to complete the teaching staff required for the opening of the fall school term. Altogether 55 new teachers have been hired for next year, the 198 total being an increase of ten over that of the 1965-66 year.

The board heard an encouraging progress report for the new Centennial Secondary School. With the complete cooperation of the contractor, M. Sullivan and Son, Ltd., the board is confident that a sufficient number of classrooms will be ready to accommodate approximately 600 students at the opening of the fall term on September 5th.

William J. B. Keith was welcomed to the school's staff as supervisor of buildings and grounds. Mr. Keith, who assumed his new duties on June 1st, formerly held a similar position with the Lakeshore Board of Education in the Toronto area.

TRANSFER WORKERS

In preparation for the opening of the Centennial Secondary School, the board approved several transfers of its caretaking, cafeteria and office staffs and authorized placements of advertisements for additional caretakers. The need for additional caretakers is partly as result of the board deciding to discontinue its contract with Hunt Brothers for the caretaking and maintenance at Quinte Secondary School.

The board heard an encouraging report on the home instruction unit established last January with Mrs. Ted Clark as instructor.

Five students physically unable to attend regular classes have been receiving home instruction in secondary school subjects. The home instruction teacher is resigning her position and will leave Belleville. Mrs. Keith Plett has been appointed to succeed Mrs. Clark.

Reports from department heads on health and physical education programs being carried on in the schools were heard. Jack Sisson, D. Bell and W. Brewer outlined their objectives and activities of the programs and discussed with the board the responsibilities of the physical education teacher.

The Board's planning and building committee will make arrangements for the official opening of Centennial Secondary School and a special committee with John O'Flynn as chairman was appointed to work with the teaching staff and the local Centennial Committee on plans for the Centennial observance in schools. The board was informed that the Confederation Caravan will be in Belleville from July 8 through July 13, 1967.

Approval was given to the plan for assignment of personnel to Area Emergency Government Headquarters, as outlined by the local E.M.O. Coordinator, Col. Angus Duffy.

Extension of an agreement with the Belleville General Hospital to provide clinical experience at the hospital for students in the registered nursing assistants' course at Quinte Secondary School has been ratified.

In the future supply teachers will be paid at the rate of $20 per day with the provision that in cases of employment for ten or more consecutive teaching days as substitute for the same teacher they will be paid at the minimum rate for regular teachers in category 1.

A sum of $300 was allocated to continue the sodding of the Moira Secondary School campus, a project begun by the Student Parliament. Because of this sodding program the Board has turned down a request for the use of the campus during the summer by the Belleville Recreation Track and Field Club.

The auditorium of Centennial Secondary School will be furnished with seats having padded seats and plywood backs. After considerable discussion the Board decided against the use of carpeting in the library of the new school. The floor will be tiled.

During the summer rooms rewiring of Belleville Collegiate Institute, begun several years ago on the instruction of Hydro Inspectors, will be continued, the work being done by DeCarrol Electric Co. Major alterations to the stairways and fire alarm system at B.C.I. are being carried out on instructions from the Ontario Fire Marshal. The contract was awarded to Miron Wiggers Construction Limited.

In future chains owned by the Board will be made available for use outside of the schools for community purposes only and on a nominal rental basis.

Chaste R. Richmond was awarded the contract for the transportation of approximately 920 students to the summer course to be held in Kingston July 4 to August 12.

Local schools will be represented at the Ontario Athletic Leadership Training Camp at Lake Couchiching by Heather Monkman of B.C.I. Penny Wismark and David Bell of M.S.S. and Glenn Easton of Q.S.S.

Linda Howe, Doug Grant and Rick Lojcrs of B.C.I. and Victor Strust and Susan Chase of Q.S.S. will attend the model United Nations Assembly at Queen's University June 26-30. Cis Fultz, B.C.I., Robert Beecher, M.S.S., and Beth Putman, Q.S.S. will enjoy an all-expense-paid two weeks' trip to Nova Scotia as part of the youth centennial travel program.

The Moira Secondary School Cadet Corps will be continued next year if at least 60 to 75 boys indicate interest in joining the Corps.

Local schools will be used again next year as training schools for teachers of technical subjects, with vocational teachers acting as training teachers.

The Board's planning and building committee will continue to meet during the summer months. Other committees will meet as required. Regular meetings of the Board are suspended until September.

NEW TYPE POLE?

No, just a special bracket used on one Pinnacle Street hydro pole where digging a conventional hole would have disrupted buried telephone cable.

Agencies Will Study Decline Of Fish

KINGSTON (CP) — Intensive studies are under way in eastern Ontario to determine why commercial and sports fishing in the area has diminished so seriously.

The Ontario Water Resources Commission and staff of the Great Lakes Institute are two of the agencies which will be involved in the study expected to pinpoint the connection between water pollution and shrinking fish populations.

Fishing in the Bay of Quinte, was so greatly reduced that an investigation was called for Friday.

Ross Whitfield, fisheries department supervisor for the Tweed forest district, covering 9,000 square miles in the Gananoque - Brockville area, said fishing in the area's 2,000 inland lakes was still good because the lands and forests department periodically restocks the lakes.

Paving Operations Commence At North End of Pinnacle St.

Paving operations at the north end of Pinnacle street have commenced and it goes without saying that business establishment owners in the area are glad.

They feel that as far as they are concerned the reconstruction of Pinnacle street has lasted just about long enough.

Actually for them the reconstruction work started last summer, with the installation of new sewer and watermain facilities.

Work continued off and on throughout the winter as the new retaining wall west of the Catholic Church property was built in preparation for street widening in this area.

Then, with the coming of spring, the contractor went to work in earnest -- the old pavement was ripped out, new gravel base laid, and curbs and sidewalks were built.

This week the base asphalt coat on the roadway proper is going in.

But despite the long period of disruptions, traffic delays and what have you, businessmen in the area admit the work reconstruction work has progressed as rapidly as could be reasonably expected.

LIKE NEW LOOK

And when the new pavement is all down and the new street lights installed, they are going to be proud of the appearance of the old Pinnacle street artery. In fact they are already claiming it will be one of the best looking streets in the city. They feel the new and wider street will be more convenient for parking and will be a boost to business. There will even be a sidewalk where before a sidewalk did not exist.

But they are viewing with misgivings the plan of local city fathers to eventually make Church street a through artery which it is felt would take something away from Pinnacle Street.

"Why would they want to divert through traffic up over a hill and along a street crowded with churches and schools?" they asked.

But back to the Pinnacle Street reconstruction.

Last year before the reconstruction work could even get underway, the old CN railway track had to be lifted and new sewer and watermains had to go down.

And the fact that there were Bell Telephone cables buried beneath the street didn't make the reconstruction job any easier.

RUN INTO CABLE

Several times contractors' jack-hammers ailed through buried cable and telephone subscribers in certain areas were suddenly without service.

And in at least one instance local hydro crewmen went a bit out of their way to avoid digging where telephone cable was buried.

Instead of digging the conventional hole for setting in a new hydro pole they rested the base of the pole on the sidewalk, supporting fourth metal brackets bolted to the concrete.

"Actually we don't like this type of a pole setting," noted one utilities official, "but otherwise we would have had to offset and that would have put the pole out of line."

Belleville on Film?

It is a dubious distinction for the city, but Belleville area mosquitoes have been immortalized on film.

For its series "The Nature of Things," the CBC has come up with an epic called "Biting Flies," with an all-star cast of the itchy blood-suckers from Thurlow Township. "Interiors" were shot in the laboratories of the Research Institute of the Department of Agriculture here.

This enterprise gives us another idea for rectifying the city's blighted industrial picture. Why not recruit a camera team to put Belleville on film, with particular emphasis on its existing industries, its achievements in suburban development, the new homes and the hospital extension, and such other construction as is being completed or in the mill, with commercial and industrial arterial arrears. The boys —who, perhaps get rid of their aggressive and competitive tendencies in sports — simply do not bother with boys they do not like.

It would seem that boys resent the masculinity of boys more than girls accept the femininity of girls. And this would argue some basic inferiority feeling that either nature or culture has implanted in them.

But this feminine tendency to suspect, criticize and reject other women cuts both ways. Because every woman is, in some sense, every other woman's natural enemy, it is also more important for her to have feminine allies and form confederacies throughout life.

Thus, men, as they grow up, tend not to have nearly as many close friends as women do. There may be several men they like, but the adult males do not have a "best friend," as nearly all women do, in an intimate, confidential, and self-disclosing way. Men, on the whole, are not as critical of other men as women are of other women; and, by the same token, neither do they form such close attachments to persons of the same sex.

All generalizations of this kind are dangerous, but it seems to me that women have a richer, more thickly-textured, more emotional life than men do: they love stronger and they hate stronger, from the time they are little girls. And we live more in the temperate zone, emotionally, and this is why their love often seems weak and cool to a woman.

The word, "love," indeed, may mean quite different things to a man and to a woman because their needs and expectations are different. It is when this difference is not recognized and accepted on both sides that "love" begins to curdle — and even here it curdles differently: it is the woman who, usually turns into hate, for the man, into indifference.

Stirctly Personal
The Male and Female Psyche

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I can't imagine why so many newspapers thought it was front-page material when a psychological experiment at UCLA last month disclosed that little boys are slower to coo another than little girls are.

The research indicated that girls are more aggressive and reject other people more than boys do." The girls, also, were more mobile, "a finding of rare and discomfort on some other child."

Any parents who have carefully observed their boy-children and their girl-children as both were progressed through school could have no doubts that this was the case, without any experimental verifying. Form clubs to enjoy one another's company; girls form cliques to exclude other girls, to criticize them and to feel superior to them.

By the time the girls are in fourth or fifth grade, they have developed to a high degree the power to wound and ostracize other girls and are intensely conscious of the social and caste-rial arrears. The boys —who, perhaps get rid of their aggressive and competitive tendencies in sports — simply do not bother with boys they do not like.

It would seem that boys resent the masculinity of boys more than girls accept the femininity of girls; and this would argue some basic inferiority feeling that either nature or culture has implanted in them.

But this feminine tendency to suspect, criticize and reject other women cuts both ways. Because every woman is, in some sense, every other woman's natural enemy, it is also more important for her to have feminine allies and form confederacies throughout life.

Cannifton Crossing

There will be considerable sympathy with Canadian National Railways' proposal that the Cannifton Road level crossing be upgraded with the provision of short arm crossing gates and associated signalling equipment.

Canadian National is exercising foresight in this regard, in view of the introduction next year of a new non-stop express between Toronto and Montreal which could pass through Belleville yards at speeds up to 60 m.p.h.

This train is being introduced to facilitate traffic to Expo. With its approximately 100 m.p.h. maximum speed, the train will be faster than any train in the world other than the Japanese super express between Tokyo and Osaka.

At the moment the Cannifton crossing has warning lights and bells which are adequate for present needs. But the new express in action next year, however, motorists will have less margin for errors of judgment in braking and crossing situations at this particular point. Seconds could mean the difference between safety or a fatality.

There is of course the matter of cost — some $17,000 to install two short arm crossing gates and modernize the signal circuits, plus estimated maintenance of around $850.

The City Engineer Wilbur Purcell has intimated that because of railway benefit the tracks are anticipated — albeit several years in the future — the cost of upgrading the crossing facilities is unwarranted, and that the Board of Transport Commissioners should be so advised.

Police Chief J. B. McLauchlan on the other hand believes that traffic in the area warrants acceptance of the Canadian National proposal.

The views of the Board of Transport Commissioners would certainly be welcome in this situation. It may be argued that if the upgrading is not effected, the Cannifton crossing as it now stands will constitute a traffic hazard of some proportions once the new express is in operation.

Given these circumstances, it will take only one fatality there next year to indicate what might have been done — and was not. Unless of course council or the Transport Commissioners decide otherwise in the near future.

The Mark of Genius

Frederick Loewe, of the celebrated Lerner and Lowe musical comedy team, was once a gambler and a prizefighter.

Viennese by birth, he still speaks with a pronounced European accent. Yet who could have captured more perfectly the essential national mood of such masterly creations as Brigadoon and My Fair Lady.

Loewe wrote the music for Brigadoon although he had never set foot in Scotland. But he had heard Annie Laurie, and in that classic Scots ballad he learned all he needed to know of the essential elements of the music of Scotland.

England of course he knew better, having settled there after leaving Europe. The result was My Fair Lady, so essentially English both in its unforgettable melodies and the lyrics by Alan Jay Lerner.

And, of course, there are those other memorable presentations of Gay and Carefree. Yet as Dr. Loewe explained in that interesting CBC radio program on his life last Sunday night, it was all very hard work. Such is the hallmark of genius — an infinite capacity for taking pains, even though to Dr. Loewe music had always been "like breathing in and breathing out."

In the program he explained that he had played the piano since the age of five. However, life had not always been easy for him and he was both gambler and prizefighter before his real genius for music asserted itself.

Bachelors' Shopping Trials

Saskatoon Star-Phoenix

We see where egg prices are down again. Maybe the hens are getting happier or someone is playing music for them. We don't know all about how contented cows are able to make chocolate bars, so now it may be that contented hens will make a greater effort to show their appreciation. Who knows? Animal psychology may one day progress to the point where we can eat bacon again.

In all the furor over prices, one poor guy has been overlooked — the bachelor. He knows nothing about the ways and means of stretching a food dollar. When he gets into the meat market or about how to make certain that the eggs are all as they should be perusing of the potion would contend. He watches as efficient ladies open these cartons and proceed to test the eggs around until they have a full dozen of the largest.

He sidles up to the freezer, reaches for a carton, and jumps three feet off the ground as he sees a pair of eyes staring at him from behind the racks. Grabbing the first dozen that comes his fingers, it inevitably turns out that he's gotten all the methuselah eggs in his feminine friends have discarded.

He needs four pork chops, but the packages contain only three. So he takes his fat rather than press the store clerk that he sends windows sliding open and bloodthirsty butchers glaring at him. He looks at the green peppers and is intimidated into thinking that he isn't invited as his own confidence.

No matter how he tries, it's always his paper carton that leaks or his bag of sugar that has a hole in it. Trying to be nonchalant, he finds that corn, peas, chili (gulping noticeably at the way his wallet deflates), and tomatoes to get away.

A sad story? This is only the beginning. The unhappy second stage comes when he gets home, recognizes the bags, and finds that although he has peanuts, doughnuts, ketchup, noodles, but no bacon, ice cream, powdered potatoes, or a car load of other stuff, he doesn't have the makings of a full meal. Somewhere along the line he has forgotten either the meat, the vegetables, the bread, or the salt.

Does he go back? Not very likely. He'll rationalize that a TV dinner will save him from the dish washing chores.

Maybe the price of eggs is one reason there are so many thin bachelors.

Britain's Trade Image

Christian Science Monitor

We have read with keen interest a letter to the Manchester Guardian Weekly written by two no-nonsense English gentlemenses.

"Sir," they begin, "Have just returned from the British Trade Fair at Oslo . . . may we express the hope that in the future the people responsible for these promotions will get their priorities right.

"We arrived fully expecting to find Britain proudly proclaiming, for all the world to hear, that our aircraft such as the VC-10 and the BAC 111 are the finest in the world; that our cars are as good as any; that we thought that the fact that we have for many years been leaders in the use of nuclear energy for peaceful purposes would have been stressed.

"Instead, what did we find? Reefeaters in those ridiculous uniforms; bowler-hatted city gents; a London Transport bus; a tramp playing a barrel-organ; and, as a special contribution to the entertainment, a personal appearance of the Pearly King and Queen.

"Do the organizers of these events seriously believe that these are the things which we should be parading abroad as representative of all that's best in Britain? If they consider that this is the way to go, the EFTA partners to take us seriously and restore confidence in the sterling?

"Yours faithfully,
R. Sullivan, W. F. Moody."

Ah, Mr. Sullivan and Mr. Moody, how well you put the case for stability representing Britain's true character! We are all for giving fair display to the impressive achievements of science whose great past does not keep it from pressing forward to new goals. But alone in little room also for the quaint and colorful aspects of British life which that country wisely retains as it moves forward.

Black Sheep Anyone!

Windsor Star

More and more people are becoming interested in their ancestors. Most of this continent (except perhaps in Quebec) have difficulty going back very far.

An Englishman has written a book about such quests. He reports that to belong to the Genealogical Society over there an applicant is asked to submit a family tree of his 32 great-great-grandparents. And even in England, with its family traditions, tracing is difficult.

How many of us can even name all our great-grandparents?

It is interesting to go back, the more difficult it becomes. It is stated if we go back to Adam (or some equivalent) we have perhaps a half million ancestors. The exact number is uncertain, because of the possibility of cousins having married.

It is reasonable to assume, among all our ancestors, there were some black sheep. A family tree doesn't stay absolutely pure for many generations, even if sheep can't climb trees.

To Your Good Health
Exercise Cannot Help And May Harm Hernia

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please write about hernia. I had one eight years ago on the left side of my groin and underwent surgery. The doctor did a good job. However, when I lift and strain the area pulls and is kind of sensitive. Do you think there is something wrong?

Now I have a hernia on the right side. I have been told that if I strengthen the muscles of my abdomen by exercise I can cure it and won't need an operation. If so, what exercises? — I am 64. — Frank A.

Men have a weak area in the groin, and if it finally begins to give way, and a bulge appears, that is a hernia. The surgeon corrects it by drawing together the tissues and closing the gap which has begun to form. Sometimes a special netting is inserted as a reinforcement.

Skilful as doctors may be, we can't expect them to do a perfect job that will be as good as new — although usually a surgeon comes pretty close to repairing a hernia. Some of the stitches used to draw the tissues together may have had to be a bit tight, which would explain the "pulling" that you notice at times.

It doubtless would be a good idea for you to have your doctor examine you. It would not surprise me if he reported that nothing is wrong, and that your experience is sensitivity merely because of some sma nu stitches.

As for exercises "curing" a hernia, no they won't work. It is the cause of the tissues giving pull apart, rather than merely weakened. Expecting exercises to cure a hernia is no more reasonable than expecting to cure a leak in your pants by pulling on the fabric.

If anything, the strain of exercises would gradually make the hernia worse instead of curing it. A hernia cannot get better by itself. It can only get worse and the longer you let it go, the more surgical repair will be required.

My advice, therefore, is to have your second hernia repaired as soon as possible. The sooner it is done, the better the job the surgeon can do for you.

(Besides, letting a hernia go can be dangerous. If a segment of the bowel pushes its way through the hernia and becomes caught, that is a "strangulated hernia," which is very painful and in addition is an extremely dangerous situation, requiring immediate emergency surgery.)

Dear Dr. Molner: I enclose 20 cents for one of your booklets addressed, stamped envelope for your booklet on gout. — G. G.

The booklet is quite new, and not only explains what gout is and the way it develops, but describes very effective means of prevention which have been developed in recent years.

Dear Dr. Molner: My sister-in-law's baby always slept on his stomach. He is now seven months old. Today when she stood him up, his feet turned out. Could this be from always sleeping on his stomach? — K.V.

It's quite natural for many babies to sleep on their tummies. Some do, some don't. It has no effect on the feet.

When a baby first stands up, his feet are likely to turn out. By seven months he isn't even ready to stand by himself. When he does start, he'll look as most babies do — like a little robot, feet out, legs stiff, as he tries to keep his balance. Walk until this youngster has started walking by himself deciding whether his feet need anything done to them.

Huron Area Chronicle

Stratford Beacon-Herald

Appearing each week in the Huron Expositor, of Seaforth, are installments of a community history by Miss Isabelle Campbell. From the "Guide - Board Swamp" period, when a sign deterred travellers on the Huron road, newly opened by Colonel Samuel Smith, early settlement is recorded in great detail. Miss Campbell has consulted early records, Expositor files back to the 80s, searched registry office records, carried on correspondence and conducted many interviews.

Many familiar family names appear in notices. Alex. Proctor, it is related, came in 1852 from Scotland, where his people did not approve of him leaving home. Being determined to see the new land, he delivered a load of flour from the Carnduff mill for shipment, got the money for it and headed for Canada. After working for a time in St. Marys and Clinton, he became one of Seaforth's leading businessmen.

Miss Campbell chronicles the period of the mill boom from 1868, and the development of wheat production in the 60s and 70s, when there was "more wheat shipped out of Seaforth than any other point in Ontario, not excluding Toronto." The history covers adjoining townships to some extent; Hibbert had already been written up by the same author.

Business changes are followed up to the present time, resulting in a history of very great value to the community and certainly an aid to other Ontario historians. Miss Campbell's work reflects economic research, and a great care with details so often lacking in less carefully compiled histories. The Expositor has made its an asset for publicizing this admirable production.

Centennial Challenge

Brantford Expositor

Long after Centennial Year has passed, Canadians will have a reminder of it in the $50,000 annual award established by the Royal Bank of Canada for the outstanding project by any one living in Canada or any group of persons here.

This centennial project just announced by the Royal Bank is the most imaginative private decision yet made to mark Canada's first century. It is also potentially one of the most important and enduring. First, as to its continuance there is the pledge that it will be awarded in perpetuity "or as long as the Bank Act lasts." Since Canada has had a Bank Act for 85 years and will need one to govern banking as long as there are banks, there is solid prospect that when the second Centennial arrives in 2067, the award will still be available.

By then, however, if the dollar has continued to lose purchasing power at the rate it has done since 1949, the $50,000 will have shrunk in value to less than a $1,000. Presumably the trustees of the Royal Bank will have taken steps to maintain the prize at its present attractive financial worth.

What we can chiefly hope the award will do, and no doubt what its donors intend, is to stimulate the kind of major achievement "to the common good and welfare of Canada and the world society" that will serve both its needs and the reputation of a relatively young country still making its way in the world.

The Power of A Woman!

Brantford Expositor

The Environmental Science Services Administration has announced the girls' names by which the 1968 hurricanes will identify hurricanes in the North Pacific.

There are 42 in all, divided equally between storms in the Atlantic, Caribbean and Gulf of Mexico and those of the eastern North Pacific.

For the former, the names are: Alma, Becky, Celia, Dorothy, Edna, Faith, Greta, Hallie, Inez, Judith, Kendra, Lois, Marsha, Noreen, Orpha, Patty, Rose, Sherry, Thora, Vicky and Wilma.

It is inevitable that we will come to know some of these names as storms of the year approach, as we can at least hope that as few as possible of them, in temperamental unpredictable and destructive gal alow up for their dates with the weatherman this summer.

Peace and Quiet

Ottawa Citizen

Officials of the Ontario department of lands and forests were said to have been relished at the high bids made when 40 cottage lots in a remote area that is now nothing but rock and forest were auctioned off. They should not have been. For the more than urban development covers the province the greater interest people will show in places that might offer peace and quiet.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

June 24, 1966 . . .

Canada was first played at Quebec City 86 years ago today — in 1880. Originally a national chant of French-speaking Canadians, the song now has several expressions in both French and English. Commissioned for the visit to Quebec of the governor-general, the Marquess of Lorne, the music was written by Calixa Lavallee, a native of Verchores, Que. The original words, in French, were written by Sir Adolphe Routhier, sometime chief justice of Quebec. The English adaptation by R. Stanley Weir, written for the tercentenary of Quebec in 1908, has achieved widest acceptance in English Canada.

1945 — The Berlin blockade began.

1956 — Col. Gamel Abdel Nasser was elected president of Egypt.

First World War

Fifty years ago today — in 1916 — Germans in East Africa were defeated in the battle south of Handeni on the Lukigura River; an Italian auxiliary cruiser was sunk and a French destroyer were torpedoed in the Mediterranean; 400 persons were drowned when the Russian ship Mercury was sunk by a mine in the Gulf of Riga; British artillery began the barrage for the great Somme attack.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1941 — Mr. A. W. Thomas, an American millionaire, said in Kingston, Ont., that a "peace" of American defence, aid to Britain and opposition short of war is merely a fast expedient of the moribund concept of peace." Opposition spokesmen despised a report that Prime Minister King had endorsed Churchill's invitation to an imperial war conference in London soon.

Leading Welfare Officials Ar Odds Over Aid to Aged

By DENNIS BELL

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two leading Canadian social welfare officials battled Thursday over federal legislation involving assistance to the aged at the Canadian Conference on Social Welfare.

Reuben C. Baetz of Ottawa, executive-director of the Canadian Welfare Council, told a press conference the $65,000,000 Canada Assistance Plan is foundering in a sea of controversy created by politicians and critics.

Dr. R. E. G. Davis of Toronto, former CWC executive-director and special consultant to the Senate committee on aging, answered that the plan "will never be out of the ground" if it isn't the main source of social assistance to the aged.

Said Mr. Baetz: "I want to express my deep concern at this moment for the future of the plan. It seems to be in grave danger of being scuppered."

Said Dr. Davis: "The Canada Assistance Plan is the greatest piece of legislation as it stands now. But a separate and parallel plan for the aged is needed to guarantee fixed minimum incomes for the elderly."

A HIGHER ISSUE?

The dispute over the Canada Assistance Plan emerged as the second major issue in the social welfare conference, which ends today.

Mr. Baetz claimed the assistance plan, a comprehensive bill covering virtually all aspects of social welfare, has been eviscerated by attacks from critics and chicanery by opposition parties in the Commons.

Introduction of minimum income legislation at this time, he said, "would be the way to guarantee that the elderly won't get immediate help." Mr. Baetz said it would be virtually impossible to get minimum wage legislation through the House without major delay due to disputes with the provinces and constitutional conflicts.

Dr. Davis replied that the Canada Assistance Plan would become hopelessly bogged down if it used to support the nation's 750,000 elderly in need of economic assistance.

SHOULDN'T BE HARD

He said he doubts there would be little trouble in setting up the "political insurance" of minimum fixed income law, though "political indecision" might delay it indefinitely.

He said that fixed incomes would require expenditures equal to the federal government of approximately $250,000,000 under a separate bill. Dr. Davis said it would cost the same amount under the Canada Assistance Plan, but the provinces would get half, working out an estimated $40,000,000 savings from other parts of the plan.

"The province stand to lose $100,000,000," said Dr. Davis.

In other conference developments, Alberta Health Minister J. Donovan Ross said in an interview he wants the federal government to drop the controversy of provincial health insurance. Study national medical care legislation now and be ready for the presentation to the conference.

Dr. Ross said the provinces "have a right" to see the bill before it becomes law to determine its effect on provincial medical health legislation already in force.

Ontario Govt. Reverses Policy On Pensions

TORONTO (CP)—The government today reversed its policy on municipal pensions and presented a bill in the legislature that will permit integration or "stacking" of the plans.

Introduced by Municipal Affairs Minister Spooner, the legislation will allow municipal employees "to negotiate with the councils and local boards for the best benefits in excess of the basic benefits" of the Ontario Municipal Employees Retirement System plan.

In a statement to the legislature, Mr. Spooner said it will now be provided that:

—All municipal employees must contribute, of course, to the Canada Pension Plan;

—They may contribute, with the concurrence of their council, to the basic benefits of OMERS;

—They may, as well, with the concurrence of their council, contribute to pension benefits up to the maximum level of two per cent of the employees' best five-year average earnings multiplied by years of service up to 35 years, if integrated with the CPP.

Arrest Four, Seize Bags Of Marijuana

TORONTO (CP)—Three Toronto men and a teen-age girl were arrested and charged with possession of marijuana Thursday night after a gunfight and police chase in downtown Toronto.

Four members of an RCMP narcotics squad were shot at through the rear window of a fleeing car at Charles and Jarvis streets. Police said a citizen who saw the shooting called them, giving the RCMP car's licence plate.

Toronto citizens converged on the chase area and officers in one cruiser, guns drawn, tried to stop the fleeing car. They recognized the RCMP officers and dropped back.

Police said three men and a girl were later arrested after a raid on a west-end home. Police said they found 30 bags of marijuana in the house.

Picton Crew Places First In 'Sail Off'

PICTON (Staff) — A Picton crew has placed first in the Ontario Dragons "Sail Off" held at the Royal Hamilton Yacht Club last Saturday.

And that's not bad considering it was the first time that R.C.S.C.C. Hallowell had entered a crew in the competition.

Petty Officer Cadet Pierre Boisvert coxswain, and Petty Officer Cadet David Corlyon crew member, also caused a sensation by winning all three races in their hats.

"Their ability and sportsmanship drew comment from regatta officials and speaks well of their training as members of the Picton Sea Cadet Corps," says James O'Grid, provincial secretary - treasurer of the Navy League of Canada, sponsors of the event, in a letter to the corps.

A total of 16 crews from Oshawa, Picton, Hamilton, Guelph, Dundas, Weston and Toronto competed in the races. The first four crews will represent Ontario at the Navy League of Canada National Regatta to be held at the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, Vancouver, B.C., July 30-31.

Cadet Boisvert and Corzlins will join winning crews from Weston, Hamilton and Toronto who will depart from Toronto July 14 by train for Vancouver. They will participate in a three-week training program at the Sea Cadet Training Base at Comox, B.C., just north of Victoria, from July 16 to August 5, during which they will return to Vancouver to compete in the National Regatta with the competitors from all over Canada.

"The Ontario Division wishes to congratulate the Picton crew who represented their corps in a commendable manner at the trials in Hamilton," said Mr. Crist. "Their achievement speaks well for the value of the Sea Cadet training program being conducted in the Picton community."

Girl Guides Will Collect For New Bldg.

PICTON (Staff) — The famous "crooked-mile" scene to have a reputation part of Picton's main street landscape these days and the local Girl Guides are going to line the crooked mile with pennies in an attempt to raise enough funds to erect a new building at their Waupoos camp-site. The Guides are Guide camp at Waupoos to have a reputation part of Picton as being one of the best in the province and the new building will add to the Guide facilities. The pennies collected by the Girl Guides will of course be painted on the mile long white strip as they are received and their campaign will get under way July 2 when Guides and Brownies will take turns to collect the pennies and supply tags in return.

Measures

a change in the Income Tax Act.

Under the current rules the provincers get half the tax money from electric, gas and steam utilities. The change would give them 60 per cent.

Marcel Lambert (PC —Edmonton West) thought Alberta—a stronghold of the party—would pass on the benefits to the industry. At the least, it would head off consumer rate increases.

David Lewis (NDP - York South) termed the bill nothing as attempted handout for the benefit of the big companies.

Government bills to permit the CPR to build two branch lines to Prairie industrial sites were given final approval.

The national dairy commission had a tougher ride. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker termed the government's milk subsidy program a hoodwinking scheme that failed to provide the farmer $4 a hundredweight for his manufacturing milk as promised.

The student loan money approved by parliament is for the current academic year.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that at its regular meeting on June the 20th, 1966, Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville passed a By-Law to amend By-Law Number 7033, being a By-Law to provide for the regulation of hours of retail gasoline service stations, gasoline pumps and outlets in the retail gasoline service industry as defined in the Industrial Standards Act, so that section 1 thereof now reads as follows: Paragraph 1. All gasoline service stations, gasoline pumps and outlets in the retail gasoline service industry as defined in the Industrial Standards Act within the Corporation of the City of Belleville shall be closed and remain closed between the hour of seven o'clock p.m. on each of the days namely Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday to seven o'clock a.m. of the following or next day, and between the hour of seven o'clock p.m. on Saturday to seven o'clock a.m. of the following Monday. This restriction shall not apply to the period from July the 1st, 1966, to November the 1st, 1966.

Inboard Power Boat Races Will Be Very Special Event

PICTON (Staff) — This year's Maple Leaf Trophy Classic boat races to be held at Hayward Beach July 1 to 3 is a "preliminary" for bringing the world 7 litre inboard power boat championships here again next year. This was the word passed to Picton Rotarians at their weekly meeting in Picton this week by the General Manager of the Canadian Boating Federation, James G. Perrin.

He said, that he hopes these races will be a big step for award, not only in the promotion of boat racing, but a big step to put Picton back on the map as fit as international boat racing is concerned.

He went on to praise the contribution made to boat racing by the town's Mayor, H. J. McFarland, the Prince Edward Yacht Club and the whole county in general. He also congratulated the Prince Edward Yacht Club officials in the work and he said that like all new events, there are teething troubles, and many problems in organization which must be overcome. In getting the international race going this year, it is really a preliminary for the staging of the big race in 1967, the Centennial year.

He continued saying that this year's event will be used by many stone to go unturned in order to make this a success. Perhaps the major difficulty between the staging of the Harmsworth Race at the Maple Leaf Trophy Races is that in the case of the Harmsworth Race, at the outset of all plans the course is predetermined and known and the race was built up around the competing countries. As far as this race is concerned the build up is necessary but up until the eve of the race the actual number of boats will not be known. To date there are some 25 boats registered for this race, and we are hoping for many times this number. Mr. Perrin continued saying that this being the first year and also taking place on the American holiday weekend that the event clashes with other race attractions throughout the United States as well as Canada, he stressed, I feel this race will have the best in Picton and that you will be provided with a weekend of boat racing second to none.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

FRIDAY

Tuna Rice Loaf or Puffs with Mushroom or Celery Soup Sauce, (see Mon.); French Fried Potatoes; Shredded Green Beans; Tomato Jelly Mould on Delicate Lettuce Cups; Cottage Cheese Dressing; Lemon Snow; Tea.

SUNDAY (Guests)

Chilled Pineapple Juice; Kona Chicken (see Wed.); Baked Bananas (see Wed.); Fluffy Rice; Relish Tray; Carrot and Celery Sticks and Green Onions; Verdi's Frozen Fruit Cream (see Thurs.); Tea.

HEADCHEESE

With whole shaved pig's head (unless the brain) either with the snout or cheese tongue (with tongue it is more delicate), use 4 shaved pigs' feet, and blanch in plenty of boiling water. Drain, and wash in cold water. Boil again, covered with water, and let simmer for at least 4 hours. Add, while cooking, 2 teaspoons salt, 6 whole peppercorns, ½ bay leaf, 2 whole onions, and take off the scum from time to time. Drain, strain and measure and reserve liquid. Pick meat and jelly-like tendons from bones. Chop them together and measure. You should have equal quantities of meat and liquid. If necessary, boil down liquid to correct measurement. Soak 2 tablespoons unflavored gelatin in ½ cup cold water and dissolve by stirring over hot water. Add to measured meat liquid. Stir into chopped meat. Taste and add salt and pepper if needed. This should be highly seasoned. Pour into moulds, glass or earthen or enamel bowls and chill until firm. This must be stored just as if it were a cooked meat.

QUESTION: I am the leader of a Sunday School group of thirty teen-agers. I thought I would have a small end-of-the-season get together and serve chocolate milk and doughnuts. Since I am a working gal and need to make shortcuts could you tell me the proportions for making good chocolate milk? Martha J.

ANSWER:

CHOCOLATE MILK (20 - 25 servings)

One 2-pound can chocolate "quick" powder
6 quarts 2 per cent Jersey milk
In a very large container blanked Mrs. Howell.

Centennial Night Held by Stirling IODE

STIRLING — 'Centennial Night' sponsored by the Hon. J. Cooke Chapter I.O.D.E. was held in the Stirling Community Centre Monday evening. The inclement weather may have had an influence on the turnout as the crowd was extremely small.

Mrs. Robert Hough, convener of the evening introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Dorthy Howell, chairman of Hastings County Women's Activities for the Ontario Centennial Planning Committee. Mrs. Howell presented slides entitled "67 Ideas for 67". She said that Canada will be the first nation in the world to celebrate its Centenn'al. Various ideas were suggested, both elaborate and simple. Some suggestions were: floral displays, cleaning up of reserves, illuminating of building and towns, centennial dances in turn-of-the-century costumed, coat-outs, dance contests, bandcraft shows, tours to bogges of local sights, family reunions antique shows, winter and summer festivals with choosing of kings and queens both senior and junior, and parades with float competition.

RIGHT AND WRONG APPROACH — The girl on the left doesn't leave herself much hope of landing the job, but the girl on the right seems well prepared for the task. By the way, both girls are the same girl, actress Julie Parrish.

Make the Right Impression During Job Interviews

By Reba and Bonnie Churchill

When applying for a job, first impressions begin long before that initial across-the-desk interview. They start with filling out an application blank. This provides a key to your qualifications and personality. So, be explicit and list all of your credits. Also, write clearly and neatly. Many employment agencies tell us that an, applicant has to work twice as hard dispelling the careless picture she's painted of herself with pen and pencil.

When that important interview does occur, remember you're being judged the minute you enter the room — not with that first handshake. Appearance, attitude and aptitude are being appraised. As actress Julie Parrish of the American-International Picture, "Fireball 500," illustrates there is a correct way to establish a successful image. Be prompt, polite and prepared. The opposite of the girl at left, who is always late, always apologetic and, therefore, always disorganized.

It includes exercises to improve carriage and add grace to your movements, as practised by TV and film personalities. ## Successful Living

Silent Treatment By Mother Not Fair

DEAR DORIS: Our mother no longer speaks to my sister and me. I started when my little sister yelled when I stepped her hitting us with a tennis racquet, by taking it away from her.

DORIS CLARE

She ran to my mother and told her I hit her (I didn't) and then Mother asked me what happened. I told her the truth but she didn't believe me so I began to cry.

That was a week ago. I've tried to start a conversation but she simply ignores me. Doris, I am desperate. The only one who talks to us is Dad.

I have tried to be a good daughter but it seems I have failed. The only one she likes now is my little sister, who can get away with anything.

I do ironing for her, and lots of things. My sister and I cleaned the upstairs and rec room and she didn't say a thing. — DESPERATE.

DEAR DESPERATE: It is a terrible thing when a girl's mother doesn't speak to her. One day moves into another and still — silence! Horrible!

It may surprise you, but parents are human, and there sometimes comes a time when Mother just doesn't feel like coping with things. She sees Little Sister as helpless and unprotected and takes her part. And breaks your heart.

Talk to your father, quite seriously. Tell him exactly how you feel, sparing nothing. To unload will help. And if he has an ounce of fairness in him, he'll go to bat for you.

DEAR DORIS: I am 50 and have to work. I cannot stand children. I have one of my own, who is the only one I am interested in. That is all the social welfare and employment office demand I do.

I can only work part time, by recommendation of my doctor. I have my business course of 17 years ago and have grade ten completed. What are the opportunities, if any?

As far as children are concerned, when I am forced to, I do, but I could not care any less as long as they button their lips and stay out of my sight. I feel like a cheat because I have to try to get the baby-sitting job and I cannot force myself to do what parents expect. I am there and it's legal. That said. — DISGUSTED.

DEAR DISGUSTED: With that kind of a reception, how do you think the babies feel?

Learn some discretion from baby care as possible. Brush up on your typing, and bring yourself up to date with an extension course in business practice. Then you'll have something to offer besides an aversion to young 'uns.

DEAR DORIS: A teacher is retiring after 44 years. The other teachers are putting on a banquet for her and I have been asked to make the place cards.

I hope you can give me some appropriate suggestions as to what I could put on them. I am a bit . . . ARTISTIC.

DEAR ARTISTIC: Could you sketch little line drawings? Each place card could carry its own simple cartoon. And here are some ideas:

1. The figures of two pupils riding a horse (suggesting how they got to school 40 years ago.)
2. Pupil wearing dunce cap.
3. Pupil writing on blackboard: Two plus two equals five (in figures.)
4. Boy playing baseball, fishing in stream.
5. For the retiring teacher, a figure reclining in a hammock, or with feet up on desk.
6. Two boys or girls walking to school holding hands. Let yourself go!

To LEADER OF YOUNG FRY: Adopting grandparents is becoming popular. Dr. Margaret Mead says we are geared to the two-generation family, with not much room left for Grandpa and some oldsters just don't come in contact with a single youngster.

Girl Scouts in New York launched the adopted grandparents program some years ago. One white-haired woman said, "My little Girl Scout visits me more often than my own son."

Try it with your girls, starting with a trip to the local home for seniors; and let's have a report.

Liberals

minority government in 1958.

"I'm happy at the gains we've made," said Mr. Pearkey, at 43 the oldest of the three contending leaders. "I'm just sorry we haven't made more."

Mr. Mokaz, 39, a business man who entered politics following what he was described as Liberal leader five years ago, said both his party and the Conservatives suffered because of the bad effect of the situation in Ottawa.

"People consider the petty arguments in Ottawa, including the Munsinger affair and others," he said, "and their dissatisfaction was shown in France Edward Island and Quebec."

TWO PROVINCES UPSET

In those two provinces, upsets were the order. The ruling Conservatives found themselves in a deadlock with the Liberals pending a deferred vote in one riding in P.E.I., and Daniel Johnson's Union Nationale squeezed out Jean Lesage's Liberals in Quebec.

No other provincial elections have been scheduled to date this year.

Both the Liberal and NDP campaigns stressed the theme that eight years of "stand-pat, do-nothing" Conservative government had left Manitoba standing still in comparison with economic development in the rest of Canada.

Premier Roblin's retort was that the province has known unprecedented prosperity under his administration; that industrial development had practically double the rate it did during the last eight years of Liberal rule.

Of the standings in the provinces — 16 Social Credit, two Communists and a single independent—Progressive Conservatives Jake Froese who is again the only sitting Social Credit MLA.

As results stand now, the Conservatives have a slim over-all majority even taking into account that they must appoint one of their members as Speaker who votes only in a tie.

REJECT PAPERS

Churchill, narrowly Conservative last time, could add another pro-vernment seat. The returning officer there rejected the Liberal candidate's nomination papers as being improperly filled out—a decision that is being appealed to the chief electoral officer.

In three seats where the winning candidates' pluralities are under 100 there could conceivably be a shuffle as a result of recounts or the hospital vote.

They are Brandon Flatin, which went to the NDP; Lac du Bonnet, in which a Conservative held a narrow edge, and Liberal-held Selkirk.

The hospital vote is a system in which patients in hospitals or rest homes are given blank ballots to write in the candidates of their choice in their home constituency. These ballots are counted next week.

When the full vote count is in, the total is expected to surpass the record 315,088 figure of 1958. With 38 per cent of the polls counted, the total stood at 314,304, in the winter election of 1962 the total was 297,030.

LAUNCH BALLOON

In addition was to serve as a marker in an earth-mapping project. The plastic balloon coated with aluminum to reflect sunlight is supposed to stay aloft for at least five years.

Sunday School Lesson

He Believed God Alive

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

Four present - day theologians have shocked the complacent religious world by insisting that God is dead. Their pronouncements as religious teachers, and the seriousness with which they speak, demand that the world listen to what they are trying to say.

Their position will be answered not so much by argument, but by experience. If Jeremiah had been convinced that God is dead, he would have had a much easier time of it. At one point in his experience, he cried out, "I have become a laughing stock all the day; everyone mocks me." He explained, "For the word of the Lord has become for me a reproach and decision all day long." But he couldn't stop preaching. "If I say, "I will not mention Him," or speak any more in His name," there is in my heart as it were a burning fire shut up in my bones, and I am weary with holding it in, and I cannot." No wonder he said, "O Lord . . . thou art stronger than I, and thou hast prevailed." (Jeremiah 20 RSV)

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for June 26: The Fall of Jerusalem" II Kings 24 and 25; II Chronicles 36; Jeremiah 38 through 39; 52.

Many men have had a similar experience. Isaiah was shaken to his depths when he felt he saw the Lord "high and lifted up." (Isaiah 6:1-4) He was moved more for preaching his faith than Paul, the Apostle. Yet Paul said, "Woe to me if I do not preach the gospel." (I Cor. 9:16 RSV) How God stops call ing men to preach and suffer for their faith, it will be easier to believe that He is dead.

JUDAH'S DARKEST HOUR

It was Jeremiah's fate to feel called to preach in Judah's darkest hour. Even in Josiah's day, he saw the dark clouds gathering. By the time of Jehoiakim's day, Jeremiah was convinced that no power on earth could hold back the military might of Babylon. Jehoiakim did not live to see the day when the Babylonian axe fell on Judah, but his son, Jehoiachi, did. Largely on Jeremiah's advice, Jehoiachi surrendered without a spear being thrown in defense. He, his family, and many of his nation's finest leaders were taken into captivity, where for a while Jehoiachi was imprisoned, but later freed and given special privileges in the Babylonian realm.

Zedekiah was not so fortunate, in private, he agreed with Jeremiah that any attempt at military resistance was suicide, but he was under pressure from the super-patriots of his realm who refused him to rebel against Babylon. Up to that point, Babylon suffered him to rule as a vassal, and the city of Jerusalem was spared. When he tried to rebel, Babylon marched in and ravaged the proud city, captured the king, and without mercy, forced him to watch the slaying of his two sons before his own eyes were put out. (II Kings 25 and 26)

FACE THE SAME DILEMMA

Both Jeremiah and Zedekiah thought they were doing right. Both wanted, if possible, to save the city of Jerusalem. Zedekiah thought the only way to do this was by military resistance. Jeremiah was a better student of human nature and of international affairs. Under the given conditions, he saw no way to save the city except to accept Babylon's over-lordship. This sounded like treason to the leaders of Judah. (Jer. 37:13) Jeremiah was abused and humiliated. He was imprisoned and at one point thrown into a dank cistern, and left to die. But with undoubted courage, he continued to warn the nation, and pronounce God's judgments on the people.

It is interesting how two people can face the same situation, and their reaction be as different as day is from night. Surely Jeremiah's faith. Instead now can deepen one person's it enabled him to see it in new faith and make another person bitter. Success can give one person an added sense of responsibility, and go to another person's head.

No freedom-loving person likes communism, but some let their hatred and fear of communism blind them to everything else. They think the only way to deal with communism is by military might. Others think bridges of communication must be built, that can lead to negotiation and peace.

Judah's defeat could have destroyed Jeremiah's faith. Instead dimensions. To those in captivity, he wrote such assurances of God's love, it has been called the gospel before Christ. (Jer. 31:1-14)

In Judah's darkest hour, God raised up his greatest prophet. To many in his day, he was a traitor. To succeeding generations he has been a man of monumental courage and faith. Instead of believing God is dead, Jeremiah believed He is very much alive, and will continue to reveal Himself when history's darkest hours are forgotten.

Training Course Is Held For Playground Leaders

East Central Ontario Group Gathers at Moira Lake Camp

The Intelligencer
BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, JUNE 24, 1966

SWEEPING FLOORS is part of the education being received by playground supervisors at the camp this week. Pat Lee, 16, Belleville, pushes a mean broom, while Janet Spencer, 18, Picton, collects the debris.

A group of 142 youths between the ages of 16 and 22 years has been spending this week at the East Central Ontario Playground Leaders' Training Course at Camp Quin-Mo-Lac.

Nestled in the wooded expanse on the southeast side of Moira Lake, about three miles south of Madoc, Camp Quin-mo-lac provides a perfect setting for the week-long training course.

Camp Director Norm Carter, assistant recreation director of Belleville, said: "There is a much more varied program this year than ever before in terms of fitness, track and field and a playground supervision program.

"We teach these kids how to be playground supervisors, how to operate a playground efficiently.

"And don't think these kids don't work hard here. They're a tired lot when they get back home."

In case parents think the camp directors are slave drivers the students have a compulsory social-recreation period every evening. Boys at the camp have a special bonus. They're outnumbered 5-1 by the girls.

This is the 16th year the course has operated. It started with a handful of young people from Belleville, Peterborough and Oshawa, and has grown steadily every year.

START AT 7 A.M.

The day starts at 7 a.m., with a swim period from 7 until 7.30. Breakfast is served between 7.30 and 8.30 a.m., and at 8.45 it's off to the sessions. The sessions, lectures and practical lessons, go right through until 9 p.m. with a break for swimming in the morning and afternoon and breaks for lunch and supper.

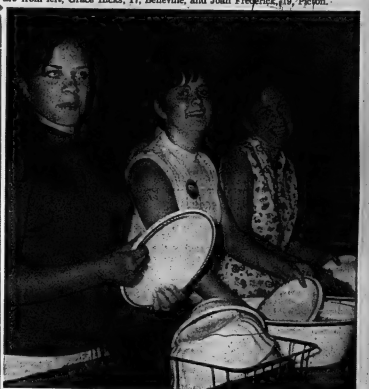
The campers come from as far afield as Kingston on the east, Whitby on the west, Haliburton on the north and Picton on the south.

There are 24 youths from Belleville in camp, 17 from Trenton nine from Picton and nine from the RCAF Station, Trenton, along with some from Wellington, Stirling, Madoc, Brighton, Tweed, Napanee, Colborne and Cambellford.

All aspects of playground operations are taught at the camp. The youths learn such things as arts and crafts, playground philosophy, leadership, group control, teaching techniques, special events, program planning and safety and first aid. (The latter is taught by Const. Bob Heal, Belleville Police Department.)

There is a separate day camp course being taught there at the same time involving 18 youths. They study such things as natural phenomena, nature projects, day camp administration, pioneer projects, organization of cookouts and camp games and woodcraft.

Among the 28 instructors at the camp are Norm Carter, camp director; Wayne Ring, Picton recreational director; Lloyd "Red" Doran, Belleville recreational director; Bill Workman, Trenton recreational director; FL-LT. Lorne Williams, staff recreation officer, Air Transport Command; Cpl. Fred Orlidge, Canadian Services Base recreation specialist; and Const. Bob Hall, Belleville City Police Department.



The youths are returning home from camp today.

Belleville's 24 playgrounds open Monday, July 4, and run eight weeks, fivedays per week, until August 26.

A new feature to the program here this summer will be weekly trips by each playground to the Khaneen Swimming Pool free of charge.

SPORTSLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

FICTON — This speedboat-conscious town took a well-deserved pat on the back the other day when Reid, through a Rotary Club address, that its contribution to power boat racing in Canada was "legendary."

The statement was made by Jim Perrin, general manager of the Canadian Boating Federation who was here in the interests of the first World Limited Power Boat championship slated for July 1, 2 and 3rd.

"Your Hayward Knock is the setting for perhaps the finest speedboat course anywhere in North America," he told the Rotarians.

The leadership of Mayor H. J. McFarland and the Prince Edward Yacht Club made outstanding success of the Harmsworth Trophy races held here and with the rebirth of the Maple Leaf Trophy for international competition for limited class boats, it was natural that the town and the yacht club be given the first opportunity to stage the classic event this year, Mr. Perrin said.

In direct tribute to Mayor McFarland, Mr. Perrin said he has done more for the sport of boating both in encouragement and promoting than perhaps any other person in Canada.

"His contribution to world hockey is in the annals of your history. His encouragement to individual sportsmen is well known. You must be proud of your native son Bobby Hull who brought pride to your country."

He stressed strongly the need for the co-operation of all people in making the July 1st classic a success. The promotion and staging of the race is the responsibility of the Prince Edward Yacht Club, but to make it a real success everybody must play their part.

He deplored that fact that todby too many citizens tend to dismiss with a shrug, even a sneer, efforts of their fellows to improve themselves and their communities.

He urged the Rotarians to "get after that kind of buck passer," and encourage participation by everybody in making the Maple Leaf Trophy Classic an outstanding success. "Show your mayor and your club that you believe in the leadership that has been shown.

He pointed ou that the major difference between the staging of the Harmsworth Races and the Maple Leaf Classic is that in the case of the former the detail of all planning, the contenders were known and the race built up around the competing countries.

"As far as the Maple Leaf Trophy race is concerned the building is necessary hot up until the eve of the race the actual number of boats will not be known."

"Todate we have 22 entries but we are hoping for considerably more than this."

"This being the first year and also taking place on a weekend that clashes with an American holiday weekend which provides other race attractions throughout the United States, but even so I feel that we will have the best in Picton and you will be provided with a weekend of boat racing second to none," Mr. Perrin concluded.

I agree with Mr. Perrin. The mighty unlimiteds of Harmsworth memories may be missing, but the same throat-tightening thrills will be there, only in greater quantity.

The up-to-seven-litre wave missiles will roar over Hayward Knockes unruffled waters at speeds approximating 150 miles per hour. Two times they'll hurl spray over the mile-and-one half course to negotiate a 15-mile race.

And there'll be no "open water" — no in some of the Harmsworth heats — between contenders. The records at most of the entries indicate "nose-to-bunch" finishes. To use horse-racing parlance, I'm looking forward to seeing "neck-and-neck stretch finishes" in the final bid for the coveted Maple Leaf Trophy.

A lot of the drivers are champions in their own right, veterans of many thrill-packed competitions. And with races scheduled at thirty-minute intervals, spectators will be given a steady diet of thrills and possibly spills.

I understand plans for the accommodation of an expected 25,000 spectators are dovetailing into shape. Traffic control is in process of organization, both ashore and afloat.

And if anyone thinks he can sneak into a raceway ringside seat with his canoe, catamaran, or cabin cruiser, the Mounties have news for him.

All-in-all, as Mr. Perrin said, "it will be a weekend of boat racing second-to-none."

And over here, if you're not wearing a "Maple Leaf" hat, some local "..007" is liable to ask you for your passport.

Wimbledon Tennis
Australians Riding High

LONDON (AP) — The powerful Australian tennis contingent today claimed six places in the last 16 of the Wimbledon tournament, and the big question was who could stop Roy Emerson from winning again.

"Emmo is hitting the ball so beautifully," said U.S. Davis Cup team manager George MacCall after watching the champion eliminate one of his American hopes, Charlie Pasarell.

The next man to try against Emerson will be Stan Smith, 20, of the U.S., who battered Keith Wooldridge of Britain 6-3, 6-2, 6-3 in the third round Thursday.

Smith is one of three Americans left in contention. The others are Dennis Ralston who defeated South Africa's Keith Diegraan 6-2, 4-8, 6-1, 6-1, and Cliff Richey, 4-6, 7-5, 7-5 winner over Frenchman Georges Goven.

The only Canadians scheduled to perform today are Keith Carpenter of Montreal and Vicki Berner of Vancouver, who play in the mixed doubles against South Africans Fred McMillan and Annette Van Zyl.

Leafs Win Third From Jets 3-0

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs may never make the first division of the International League this season, but they've proved they can beat the best on the circuit.

The Leafs won their third straight baseball game from league-leading Columbus Jets 3-0 Thursday night and moved into fifth place, 7½ games behind the leaders.

Elsewhere, Rochester Red Wings swept a doubleheader from Richmond Braves 4-3 and 2-0, Buffalo Bisons edged Toledo Mud Hens 6-5 and Syracuse Chiefs defeated Jacksonville Suns 6-3.

Blades Eye NHL Franchise

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The minor - league Los Angeles Blades, banking on the hope the National Hockey League will withdraw the franchise granted here to Jack Kent Cooke, have taken a new three-year lease on the Sports Arena.

"We won a battle but as yet not the war," said executive director Jack Geyer of the Western Hockey League club Thursday.

"We feel we have a fighting chance to get the National League franchise. The franchise given to Cooke was not a complete one. It is a conditional one, conditional on his building a stadium."

Cooke, a native of Hamilton who once owned Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League, now is a U.S. citizen. He said Thursday he was not concerned about the new development.

"All we've got to do, which we intend to do forthwith, is to choose our site and start building our building," Cooke said. tle.

Rocky Colavito, plagued by people asking what's happened to his home-run touch, has supplied the answer to his detractors by hammering four homers in a 24-hour period that ended Thursday when he led Cleveland Indians to an 8-6 victory over Detroit Tigers.

"Whenever I'm not going good someone asks me if I've lost my home-run touch," Colavito said. "They want to know every time you have a bad spell. Now that I've been around awhile, they ask it even more often."

While Colavito continued his torrid hitting, Detroit Tigers did the same, belting out a Washington Senators starter in the first inning for the third straight day as they romped to a 6-4 victory.

The American League-leading Baltimore Orioles rode two homers by Brooks Robinson to a 5-2 triumph over New York Yankees in the only other game scheduled, matching Chet's two-game lead over the second-place Tigers and three-game edge over the Indians.

BREAKS 1-1 TIE

Colavito's homer, his 24th of the season, broke a 1-1 tie in the third inning and the Indians never were headed. Fred Whitfield, Jim Landis and Chico Salmon also homered for Cleveland.

The Tigers jumped on Mike McCormick for three first-inning runs on walks to Dick McAuliffe and Norm Cash, Al Kaline's two-run double and a single by Willie Horton.

Earl Wilson posted his first victory as a Tiger, allowing only four hits before he was relieved by Larry Sherry in the eighth inning. Sherry's run came on Frank Howard's homer in the ninth.

Robinson hit solo homers in the second and eighth innings, his 16th and 18th of the year, while Andy Etchebarren and Sam Bowens also hit for the distance. Etchebarren also doubled home a run off Yankee starter Al Downing, now 6-6.

Jim Palmer, bringing his record to 8-3 with Eddie Fisher's relief help, surrendered Bob Yankee runs on homers by Joe Pepitone and Mickey Mantle.

Senior A Hockey Assured

After a lapse of six years senior "A" hockey returns to this city.

Bob Temple, representing a group of sponsors made the announcement last night.

"Belleville has officially entered a team in the Ontario Senior "A" Hockey League. A bond of $1,000 has been posted and the entry fee paid," Mr. Temple said.

Floyd Crawford, former Muskerland defence star and playing coach of Don Mosher of the International Hockey League last year, has been named playing coach of the new club.

Crawford and Mr. Temple will attend a meeting of the league in Toronto next Wednesday night.

The Belleville entry rounds out a ten-team group. These include Galt, Guelph, Oakville, Woodstock, Orillia, Barrie, Kingston, Toronto and Collingwood.

At a recent meeting of the league, a motion to split the group into two sections (providing Belleville entered) was carried.

With this city now an assured entry the sections will be Belleville, Kingston, Toronto, Barrie and Orillia in the east with Guelph, Oakville, Woodstock, Collingwood and Galt in the west.

Mr. Temple could not be drawn out on the question of player material.

"You can say we expect to have a highly competitive team," he said.

Hits Homer 521
Willie Matches Williams' Mark

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie Mays thinks he will never break the all-time home run record of 714 by Babe Ruth.

As the National League-leading San Francisco Giants swept a four-game series from Chicago Cubs with a 6-4 victory Thursday, Mays matched Ted Williams' homer production of 521, third on the all-time list.

Jimmy Foxx is second with 534 and it's taken for granted that Willie will catch this one before too long and become the greatest right-handed home-run production man in major-league history.

Mays smashed his 521st in a 13-year career with the Giants and 16th for the season in the third inning Thursday and collected two singles afterward for his first three-hit game since the seventh game of the season.

But, in the dressing room afterwards, Willie wasn't impressed. He said it was "just another home run."

"I'm 35 years old now and I don't think I'll ever beat out Ruth, or even come close to him," he said. "I don't feel any pressure in beating Foxx's mark.

"But for Ruth, I would have to average 35 to 40 homers every season for at least four or five more years and that's asking a lot when you don't know if you will be playing regularly. The older you get the fewer homers you will hit."

Mays said he was at the batting point in breaking Mel Ott's National League homer mark of 511 this spring. He tied it at Houston April 24 and broke it eight games later on May 4 in San Francisco.

"There can't be any more pressure after that," he said.

Elsewhere, Cincinnati Reds won their sixth straight, beating Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3 and St. Louis Cardinals edged Houston Astros 3-2.

Milt Pappas hit a tie-breaking homer and won his sixth game for the Reds with relief help from Don Nottebart. Vada Pinson walloped a two - run homer for the Reds.

Bob Gibson pitched a four-hit-ter for his 11th victory as the Cardinals shaded the Astros. Ron Brand struck out four, raising his total for the year to 139.

Lou Brock tripled leading off Phil Gagliano's single for St. in the eighth and rode home on Louis', winning run.

Chuvalo Out-Hugged By Bonavena

Split Decision

By ROD CURRIE

NEW YORK (CP)—Oscar Bonavena, the Argentinian boxer-showman, won a split decision over Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo Thursday night in a ring performance that left the Madison Square Garden crowd unimpressed.

GEORGE CHUVALO

For Chuvalo, the 8-to-5 favorite, the defeat was a bitter disappointment and he blamed the South American champ's bold-and-run tactics for the display that had the crowd of 11,182 booing, particularly in the late rounds of the 10-round match.

"The trouble is I anticipated a better fight but this guy is a mauler," Chuvalo said later in his dressing room. "I can make a good fight if I have someone to fight but he kept backing away and then when I had a chance at him he'd hold on. I couldn't get him off—he's strong as a bull."

Referee Art Mercanti, who spent most of the last five rounds prying the two beefy champs apart, scored it a draw at four rounds each and two even.

Judge Tony Rossi gave it to Bonavena seven rounds to three —a decision Chuvalo's manager called outrageous — and judge Tony Castellano made it 5-4-1 for Oscar, an ever - smiling, mandolin - strumming television and recording star in his native Buenos Aires.

NO KNOCKDOWNS

There were no knockdowns, although Chuvalo twice lost his balance and came dangerously close to hitting the canvas, and both fighters emerged unmarked.

"I thought I'd won by about six rounds to four," said Chuvalo, "but it wasn't my best fight."

Both he and manager Irving Ungerman said they would like a rematch with Bonavena and Ungerman said he was confident the defeat would not seriously damage Chuvalo's career.

But when one of the dozens of reporters who flocked to the dressing room suggested to Chuvalo, 26, that he did not seem as disappointed this time as he did after second of his other recent defeats, he smiled and replied: "Well, they're coming more frequently lately."

Chuvalo weighed 215, 1½ pounds lighter than for his 15-round bating after a sprint heavyweight champion Cassius Clay in Toronto March 29. Bonavena, 22, weighed 203.

WON 35 LOST 13

For Chuvalo, who has never been knocked off his feet, the decision leaves his record at 35 victories, 13 defeats and two draws. He has lost three of his last four fights. Bonavena has won 21, lost 2 and had no draws.

Best punch of the fight came in the second round when Bonavena landed a left hook that sent the Canadian staggering back into the ropes.

Chuvalo's sharpest attack came in the fifth when he landed a solid left hook, then connected with a right but missed with another left as Bonavena bandy away.

"Bony" Dreams Aloud

NEW YORK (AP)—"Paterson and Clay, all in one day."

Oscar Bonavena was dreaming out loud after his split 10-round decision over Toronto's George Chuvalo in a Madison Square Garden heavyweight match Thursday night.

"He's strong like a bull," said the Argentine champion of the Canadian title-holder. "He has a big, big heart. Now I want to fight Floyd Patterson, Cassius Clay, anybody."

Harry Markson, managing-director of boxing at the Garden, said he would like to match Bonavena with Patterson in the fall or, failing that, would promote a Bonavena-Chuvalo rematch.

Bonavena may return home to box Gregorio Peralta for the South American crown.

Clippers, Reds Deal Seven

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Clippers and Providence Reds completed a seven-player deal Thursday, one of the biggest in the 31-year history of the American Hockey League.

The Clippers gave up three players and obtained four. Coming to Baltimore will be defenceman Aldo Guidolin and Ian Anderson and forwards Willis Marshall and Jimmy Bartlett.

Sent to the Reds were defencemen Ken Stephenson and Mike Corbett and centre Ed Lawson.

Madoc Upsets Bobcats

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Madoc holds down the cellar spot in the Belleville and District Softball League but you may have a tough time convincing the Bobcats of that.

Charlie Hamilton's village crew "dumped the Tabbies 8-5 in a drawn-out affair at Alexander Park last night, preventing the Bobcats from taking over sole possession of first place.

It was Madoc's second win of the campaign — both over the Bobcats — and left the club two points back of Ellis Junkers.

Madoc racked loser Bob Lott for eight hits and six runs, in the first 3 2/3 innings. Joe Barons finished up in stronger fashion, allowing two runs and as many hits. They whiffed nine between them but lack of support left them wild.

Larry Griffin was the winning pitcher before control trouble forced him and Gray to take over in the eighth. Griffin gave up four of five 'Cat hits, fanned two and walked ten. Gray whiffed one and passed one.

Griffin's fly ball and Reid's hit drove in a pair to get Madoc moving in the lead, following an error. Griffin also drove in the club's third tally.

They added nine men to the plate in the fourth and scored three runs, two on a throwing error after Shaw, C. Reid and LeSage singled to load the bases. Griffin again hit safely to plate the other.

Gray lined a hard drive that was dropped for a four-base error in the sixth. A. Reid singled and Gerr slammed a solid double that looked like a homer — until he was called out for missing third. That made it 8-1.

The losers bat-ists men stranded, including eight in the last three frames. McKibbon's double and Zako's fly ball netted the first. Mills doubled two across after a walk and hit balter by the ailsby; walks and T. LeSage's hit cut it to 8-4 and a three - base error led to the final run.

Bill Pughes, Larr Griffin and Ab Reid stroked two singles each, Garry Gerr his "double," Ray LeSage, Elton Reid and Wayne Shaw one - baggers for Madoc.

John McKibbon had a double and single, Bill Mills a two-bagger, Len Mowat and Terry LeSage singles in defeat.

City Hotel Riding On "Crest"

City Hotel rolled to its fourth consecutive Commercial Softball win last night, 7-0 over Belvedere Hotel, behind the one-hit pitching of Gerry Genereaux.

City got Genereaux a 2-0 lead in the first and he took it from there, touched for a second-inning single by Belvedere's George Perry. Genereaux struck out five and issued just one free pass.

The winners added one run in the second, a trio in the fourth and another in the seventh, moving into a tie with the losers on the strength of the decision.

Jack Calnan started on the Belvedere mound when the club was minus a regular pitcher at game time. He gave up two runs and two hits, walking four, before Ken Osborne took over in the second. He allowed six more hits, fanned two and walked three.

Billy McGuire slammed a triple and single while Tom Coolen got two base knocks to spark the City stickers. Doug Hull had a double, Moe Hawkins, Bob Brooks and Genereaux a single each.

The four walks off Calnan and safeties by Hull and Brooks plated the first two tallies. An error and Hawkins' hit made it 3-0; walks and safeties by Genereaux and McGuire netted the next trio; Coolen followed another pass with a single to close the scoring.

Blondes Battle At Arena

They are billing it as "The Battle of the Blondes" and it is but one of two special events on tonight's professional wrestling card, at Belleville Memorial Arena.

The main bout is a challenge match between the circuit's two blonde bombshells, "Terrible" Terry Garvin and Gold en Boy Dupree.

Garvin used his special brand of villain's tricks to hoodwink Dupree and his mates out of last week's tag-team main event and Golden Boy threw a challenge at his tormentor for a fight to the finish.

It's a two-out-of-three falls meeting, with no time limit, and the loser must leave town, according to the agreement, never to wrestle in Memorial Arena again. (Well, a least not this summer).

Meanwhile, a mixed tag-team match, also two-of-three falls over 60 minutes, pits midget Roger Littlebrook and big guy Bill Williams against another midget, Frenchy Lamonte and full-sized villian Don Juan.

It is something different here and should be most entertaining.

One other bout is also scheduled for the show starts at nine o'clock.

NAMED ABRAHAM

The Plains of Abraham at Quebec were named after Abraham Martin, a pilot who once owned part of them.

Controversial Movie Given Rave Notices by Critics

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Edward Albee's study of faculty life at a small college, Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf has its world premiere at the Hollywood Pantages before one of the most critical audiences in recent times.

Everyone wanted to see if the movie proved as good as the advance notice. It did. Seldom has such searing drama, laced with outrageous comedy, been viewed on a movie screen.

As of now, the film is the performance for the 1966 Oscars in all departments. Elizabeth Taylor abandons all glamor to play a blowsy, brawling harridan with utter conviction. Richard Burton for the first time registers as a screen actor rather than as a stage performer working at films.

Sandy Dennis and George Segal are superb as the young couple who stumble into the wild, drunken night. The supporting player of Ernest Lehman, who also produced, marks most of the scenes wonderfully well. And Mike Nichols makes the most impressive debut as a director since Orson Welles filmed Citizen Kane.

The first reviews were unanimously enthusiastic. Philip K. Scheuer, Los Angeles Times: "monumental . . . a masterwork." George H. Jackson, Chicago Herald-Examiner: "a smashing, fiery experience." Daily Variety: "brilliant . . . an artistic bull's eye." Hollywood Reporter: "a masterpiece."

AUDIENCE RESTRAINED

Oddly, the huge audience seemed restrained. Perhaps it was because a professional audience is often less responsive than a general one. Perhaps the savagery of the Albee characters and the shock of their language suppressed reaction.

At any rate, the Hollywood crowd—the movie-going public —will be talking about Virginia Woolf for some time, and not merely because of its towering drama.

The film was made in defiance of large portions of the film industry's self-censorship code. The beleaguered code administrator, Geoffrey Shurlock, derided the film a scal because of its off-color introduction. He was overruled by a court of last resort — the company president.

Presumably the film chiefs reasoned that Virginia Woolf was such distinguished stuff that should not be diluted. They may also have been swayed by the fact that Warner Brothers and Investaid $7,500,000 in the project and was willing to forbid attendance by those under 16 unless accompanied by parents.

The film will doubtless shock rather than entertain some viewers.

Lainie Kazan Wins Regular Spot on Dean Martin Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Everybody knows the story of the legend about the unknown understudy who finally got her big chance and was an overnight sensation. Well, the overnight lightning failed to strike Lainie Kazan when her big chance came. She was understudying to Barbra Streisand in Funny Girl, a show that had made Miss Streisand an instant Broadway star. And Miss Streisand was healthy.

Lainie's big chance finally came the one night Miss Streisand came down with a virus 40 minutes before curtain.

One glorious night in Funny Girl didn't do it for Lainie, but her ambition and determination finally have.

She auditioned for jobs, including a spot on the Telephone Hour. She starred in a commercial on television by getting booked on a local, late-evening variety show. Her name started about her looks and voice and she started getting nightclub bookings, sang at weddings and "worked her little keeping her understudy job.

CAREER TAKES OFF

Now the career of Lainie Kazan has taken off. She's a regular on The Dean Martin Summer Show. She has performed in the dozen pre-taped shows, and although in the first few broadcasts she has done little beyond sing attractively, she gets a chance to later display her dozesome comedy and dancing.

George Burns has chosen her as his partner for some chat dates during the summer. And she has a July booking in New York's Persian Room, the Beverlyghan Palace of the nightclub circuit.

Lainie still is surprised that she is gaining recognition as a singer.

Her father, she admits frankly, was a bookmaker, but when he died there was little money for the family. Thus when she was making $17.85 a week for two years playing in off-Broadway show, and during even lesser days between minor stage jobs, she made a living by working as a switchboard operator, a salesgirl and once went around distributing samples of cigarettes to restaurants and night clubs.

PROPER HAND POSITION ON BACKSWING

The golfer who seeks a grooved swing that will repeat itself time after time should avoid any independent rolling of his hands and forearms on his backswings. Such rolling makes it difficult to return the clubface squarely to the ball.

I suggest you check the position of your hands when they are hip high on your backswings. If you have taken the club back properly, the back of your left hand should be facing at right angles to the target line—straight out from your body (see No. 1).

If the back of this hand is turned down or up (No. 2 and No. 3), you will have to compensate on your downswing to produce a square clubface during impact.

Queens Plate

Eleven Hopefuls Will Go To The Post

By JIM CREAM

TORONTO (CP) — George Duffus, 70, of Toronto, veteran oddsmaker for the Queen's Plate, has made Titled Hero a 2-to-5 favorite to win Saturday's big race.

Only one other horse went into Plate assigned a shorter price on its nose by Duffus. That was Northern Dancer, Queen's Plate winner two years ago whose morning line odds were 1 to 9.

The 1¼-mile classic for Canadian three-year-olds, scheduled to go off at 5:18 p.m. EDT and carried live on CBC television and radio, drew an 11-horse field Thursday when owners made their final eligibility payments of $1,000 each.

Titled Hero, owned by Peter Marshall of Toronto, was a 3-to-2 winter book favorite and added to his reputation last Monday with a 5½ - length triumph in the Plate trials. He'll be ridden by Avelino Gomez of Cuba, a jockey in North America with more than 3,000 winners.

Two sunshine starters Thursday assured a record purse of $80,175. The previous high was $80,000 in 1960. The winner's share will be $52,513, off the record of $54,850 which went to Cicadora, 1963 Plate winner.

BOUGHT FOR $1,000

The two surprises were Famous Monarch, owned by Frank Sherman Sr. of Hamilton, and Radiant Colors, a bay gelding bought by a 10-man Toronto syndicate a year ago for $1,000.

The field, starting from the inside rail, with morning line odds:

Echo Lad, owned by Ed Short of Toronto, trained by William Waterman, ridden by Frank Barzoy of Ravenscreg, Sask., 15 to 1;

The Hangman, owned by John Smallman of London, Ont., trained by Lou Cavalaris Jr., ridden by Noel Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B., 12 to 1;

Bright Monarch, owned by Mrs. Frank McMahon of Vancouver, trained by former jockey Johnny Longden of Tabor, Alta., ridden by Joe Bass of Seattle and the only western owned horse in the field, 6 to 1;

Arctic Troops, owned by Windfields Farm of Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor, trained by Gordon McCann, ridden by German-born Hugo Dittfach of Calgary, 8 to 1;

Titled Hero, owned by Marshall, trained by Pat McMurchy of Scotland, ridden by Gomez, 2 to 5;

Famous Monarch, owned by Frank Sherman Sr., trained by Wolfgang Von Richthofen of Germany, ridden by Hungarian jockey Vasilmir Zivkovic, coupled as an entry with Hotarctic, 10 to 1;

Radiant Colors, owned by Paul Joseph, trained by Jerry Meyer of Kitchener, ridden by Keith Robinson of Minnedosa, Man., 30 to 1;

Ry and Near, owned by Coca Cocchia of Toronto, trained by John Starr, ridden by Sam McComb of Ireland, 8 to 1;

Hotarctic, owned by Sherman and his son, Frank Jr. of Hamilton, trained by Von Richthofen, ridden by Jim Fitzsimmons of Calgary, 10 to 1;

Big Jive, owned by Ervie Lieberman of Toronto, trained by Stan Rose, ridden by Cliff Potts of Toronto, 15 to 1;

Solar Park, owned by Doug Weldon of London, Ont., and Tom Hays of Oakville, trained by Duke Campbell, ridden by Wayne Harris of Vancouver, the only filly in the race, 20 to 1.

Each horse will carry 126 except Solar Park, who gets a five-pound allowances as a filly and will carry 121.

Radiant Colors, sired by Sultan Mahmoud out of Trudeau and bred by Bill Beasley of Toronto, was purchased in May, 1965, by her owners, who all work in the same Toronto stock broker's office.

The bay gelding won three in a row this year before finishing fourth and has a career record of four firsts, a second and two fourths in nine starts.

Cheesemen Lay Egg At Point

Making the most of Cheesemen errors, the Point Anne Cementmen whitewashed Black Diamond Cheese 6-0 in Commercial Softball League action, at Point Anne, last night.

The victory boosted the winners into a second-place tie, two points out of first, while the setback left Black Diamond in last basement.

Five runs in the third put the decision in wraps.

Point Anne collected only five hits off losing pitcher Sonny Holoway but the Cheesemen committed seven errors.

Akey gave up eight hits but got good support, with only one Point Anne error, for the winners.

Details of the game, a "home" affair for Black Diamond, were not available.

WINTERS HOLDS TALKS

MOSCOW (CP)—Robert Winters, Canadian trade minister, had talks here Thursday with Dmitry Polyansky, Soviet first deputy prime minister, who leaves Sunday on a visit to Canada. The meeting was believed to have been mainly concerned with arrangements for Polyansky's visit. He will head a Soviet parliamentary delegation.

NEGROES SENTENCED

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (Reuters)—Seven more African Negroes who were arrested by Rhodesia after entering the country secretly from Zambia were sentenced to 20 years imprisonment each Thursday. The men were convicted of illegally possessing a large quantity of Soviet-and Chinese-made weapons and explosives.

Minor Baseball Results

Bellevi Little Giants took advantage of 16 walks by the opposing pitcher to whip the Little Oven Bakery 13-8 in a tyke tilt at the Alemite last night. Farrel Motors defeated Mead Johnson 9-2 in a bantam battle.

The Little Giants rallied in the final inning with eight runs to record the win.

Robin Guest and Bob Moore allowed six hits, struck out seven and walked five for the winners.

On the losers' mound, Rick Bell, Murrey Dales, and Mark Coates gave up only five hits, whiffed seven, and walked 16.

Jed Forster stroked a double and two singles for the Giants. Cliff Rashbourne doubled and Wally Dalnard singled.

Rick Bell slammed a triple and pair of base hits, Murrey Dales clouted two singles, and Don Cowan had a lone single for the bakery.

Steve Moore pitched Farrel Motors to a win with a four-hitter. He fanned 11 and walked four.

Jim Potts took the loss, giving up 11 hits, walking three and striking out 13.

Peter Middleton hit three singles to lead the winners' attack. George Farrara and Terry Pope had two base hits each, and Stephen Buckles doubled. Terry McTaggart, Steve Moore and Mike Stephenson had safties.

Mike Healey banged out a triple and single and Charles Crossen and Jeff Mason had singles for Mead Johnson.

Departmental Softball

City Hall stayed close on The Intelligencer's heels in the Departmental Softball League pennant race by tripping Public Works 11-6 in a postponed game last night.

The winners hold second place, two points behind The Intelligencer and two ahead of Public Works and the Fire Department, at the half-way point in the 12-game schedule.

Details of the game were not available.

Bolt, 68 Leads Western

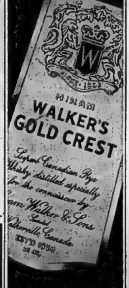
CHICAGO (AP) — Tommy Bolt, now a tranquil and infrequent circuit player, shot a three-under-par 68 and took the first-round lead in the $100,000 Western Open Thursday.

"I felt like Arnold Palmer out there, all over the place, but still getting that ball in the hole," said Bolt, 48, once known as Terrible Tommy because of his temper.

Bolt's 32-36 round over Medinah's tree-choked, 7,014 - yard par 71 layout, gave him a one stroke lead over U.S. open champion Billy Casper, who is defending Western open champion, Harold (Catfish) Kneece and Doug Sanders.

Tied at 70, one under par, were Bert Yancey and R. H. Sikes.

Palmer, whose game collapsed in his head-to-head closing duel with Casper for the U.S. open crown Sunday and Monday, continued to have his troubles with a one-over-par 72.



No fewer than 11 players were deadlocked at even-par 71, while another nine were bracketed with Palmer at 72.

First prize is $20,000.

SINGLE UNIT CONSTRUCTION NOW FROM AMERICAN MOTORS!

When Rolls-Royce announced that it would build its new Silver Shadow model with monocoque construction we blushed —with pride. We've used the same technique for years— except that we call it Single Unit Construction. The body and frame on all our cars are welded together into one, single, solid unit for tremendous strength and safety. It's only one of the advanced engineering features you get from American Motors today— features others won't offer you for years to come.

Engineering leadership is the extra value you get from American Motors. Years-ahead features. Built-in quality from drawing board to finished car. For example:

Double Safety Brakes. Not just one braking system, but two. If one set ever fails, the other stops you safely. (Double Safety Brakes have been an exclusive feature, at no extra cost, on all our models since 1962. Some other manufacturers have now announced that they will adopt this feature—but not until their 1967 models.)

Ceramic-Armoured Exhaust System. Not just sheet metal alone, but a ceramic-armoured coating exactly like the nose cone of a space rocket. Resists heat, corrosion, wear—season after season.

World's best rustproofing. All our cars get a "bath." They're deep-dipped up to their rooflines in rustproofing compound six separate times. Then they're dipped again in primer and given a separate spray coat of primer. Then come three gleaming coats of Lustre-Gard super enamel. You get a beautiful finish and long-lasting protection from the ravages of rust.

Most powerful standard engines in their classes. Swift, smooth, seven-main-bearing sixes. Powerful, virile V8's. Take your choice.

Widest range of seating options in the industry. Luxurious reclining seats (buckets, if you want). Armrests and adjustable headrests. And fine-furniture coil springs in all our seats in all our models. (Only one other North American car offers this—and it's in the luxury class.)

Fibreglass roofliners and double door seals. A far cry from flimsy fabric roofliners and single door seals. Noise stays out. Drafts, winds, chills can't get in.

Attention to detail. American Motors offers the durability of plastic kick panels, all-metal rear-deck shelves, even ashtrays that roll out on ball bearings. Small details, yes—but they add up to overall quality.

Beautiful luxury fittings. A big, big selection! All the power equipment and features you want. And floor consoles. Thick-cut pile carpeting. Wire wheel discs. Walnut interior paneling. Houndstooth Check fabric. New vinyl patterns. Exciting styling in top-of-the-line Ambassador DPL, Rambler Rogue and Rambler Rebel.

New car quality. We believe that quality is what you build in—not what you add on. We build quality into all our cars from the beginning. We take the time. We take the trouble. We always have. We always will.

Used car quality. The exclusive quality and features that we build into our full line of cars mean that an American Motors used car is a better value and a better buy.

Police, Troopers Hold Back Screaming, Cursing Whites In Philadelphia, Miss.

TOUGALOO, Miss. (AP) — Chilled by discussion and James H. Meredith's coolness, the Mississippi march to promote Negro voter registration stood at the last by today.

Meredith arrived Friday night after ignoring a rally in Canton, 35 miles to the north, where the trip was to receive a hero's ovation.

"The whole damn thing smells to me," he said after looking around the temporary headquarters in Canton.

Disappointed when he found that the march had proceeded from Canton to Tougaloo before his arrival, Meredith said he tentatively planned to march the 15 miles on his own today.

Meredith, who broke the racial barrier at the University of Mississippi in 1962, started the marathon civil rights effort June 5 in Memphis, Tenn., as a one-man crusade. He was wounded by shotgun fire the next day.

Civil rights leaders rushed in to continue the march while Meredith, now a law student at Columbia University, recuperated in New York. The march has covered 264 miles in 21 days, with voter registration rallies at county courthouses along the route.

Friday's night's rally in Canton was subdued. It broke up after about an hour. Meredith and Dr. Martin Luther King were absent.

Leaders of the militant Student Nonviolent Co - ordinating Committee, often at odds with more moderate organizations involved in the march, were angry over a decision not to try to raise the march's tents at Canton in defiance of police order.

Though a small detachment continued the march from Canton to Tougaloo Friday, most of the column was bus transferred — first at a mass demonstration in Philadelphia, Miss., a Ku Klux Klan stronghold, then in Canton Friday night.

Philadelphia, only the presence of armed highway patrolmen backed by various other police held back a screaming, cursing crowd of whites during the demonstration.

Jackson, state capital and goal of the march, lies eight miles south of Tougaloo. A massive march on the capital is predicted thousands would join in—was planned for Sunday.

French Leader To Visit Secret Red Space Centre

NOVOSIBIRSK, U.S.S.R. (AP) President de Gaulle visited the secret Soviet space centre from which Russian cosmonauts are launched, Tass disclosed today.

The official Soviet news agency said "it has become known that on his way from Novosibirsk to Leningrad President Charles de Gaulle will visit the Baikonur Cosmodrome."

Informed sources had reported earlier that the visit would take place, making de Gaulle the first foreign leader known to have seen the normally inaccessible space centre. The site is about 1,200 miles southeast of Moscow in Central Asia.

Baikonur lies in the deserts of the Soviet Central Asian region of Kazakhstan.

GOES TO LENINGRAD

From there, de Gaulle was to fly 1,300 miles northwest to Leningrad, the second-largest city on his tour of the Soviet Union.

Some reports had indicated de Gaulle might witness the launching of a Soviet space vehicle. France and the Soviet Union signed a pact Thursday an agreement of co-operation in space research and the exploitation of space for commercial applications.

French sources said only French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville, a personal aid to the president, his doctor and the deputy chief of his security services would accompany de Gaulle today, the rest of the party was on another plane, going directly to Leningrad.

De Gaulle was accompanied by Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny.

Tens of thousands of people crowded the streets of this Siberian industrial city to see the guests off. The flags of France, the Soviet Union and the Russian federation adorned the buildings.

Wheat Prices Going Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials of the U.S. agriculture department said today world grain prices are beginning to rise because of the struggle between the Soviet Union and China to purchase wheat.

Further competition between the two countries—and further upward price pressure—is expected, the officials said, as the two rival camps of the Communist world continue to build up food reserves.

Russia agreed Tuesday to purchase $800,000,000 worth of Canadian wheat — the largest wheat purchase in history. Thursday China bought $53,600,000 worth of wheat from Australia.

In the last 12 months, prices paid to U.S. farmers have climbed to around $1.80 a bushel of wheat from $1.33.

The officials said Eastern Europe, including Russia, exported around 1,000,000 bushels of wheat yearly in 1934-38, but will have to import around 14,000,000 bushels this year.

WOULD BE WELCOME

While the Russians have not indicated they are interested in acquiring U.S. wheat, the department officials said an approach from the Soviet Union would probably meet with favor here. These officials said the United States needs the dollars in foreign exchange which sales to the Soviets would provide.

Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman issued a statement.

Tractor Tie-Up Halted, Will Be Resumed Monday

OWEN SOUND (CP)—Ontario's tractor - driving farmers stopped demonstrations Friday night, avoiding a tie-up of weekend highway traffic in favor of goodwill from motorists. They will renew their protests Monday.

The farmers, members of the Ontario Farmers' Union, have been slowing traffic for nearly two weeks on provincial highways to protest low milk prices.

More than 50 farmers demonstrated in the Owen Sound and Shelburne area Friday but returned to their fields before dark.

OFU President John Dolmer said all milk producers will leave the highways during the weekend but will continue protests Monday for as long as necessary to secure demands.

Meanwhile, in Richmond, about 25 miles southwest of Ottawa, OFU officials passed out questionnaires Friday night to about 700 farmers in an attempt to assess eastern Ontario support for the demonstrations.

In Toronto, Agriculture Minister W. A. Stewart again told the legislature that the responsibility for farm products subsidies lies with Ottawa and not the provincial government.

The farmers are demanding a firm 34-a-hundredweight price for manufactured milk used in production of butter and cheese. The price now is $3.25 including a federal subsidy of 75 cents.

Mr. Stewart said farmers' demands for increased subsidies are the responsibility of Canada under the British North American Act.

"When it is necessary to subsidize any commodity all the citizens of Canada should bear the cost of such subsidy as it is grossly unfair to expect the citizens of any one province to provide such a subsidy to the rest of Canada," he said.

Mr. Stewart also told the legislature that a conference has been called this fall which "may be the most important ever held in the history of Ontario agriculture."

He said the conference Oct. 25-28 at Vineland "will re-assess our position as a province in the agriculture industry, not only from a provincial standpoint but from a national and international one as well".

Record Temperature Broken For Day at Trenton by Point

TORONTO (CP)—A clogging, sweltering heat wave, caused by a slow-moving high pressure area over Kentucky, covered most of Ontario Friday and threatened to continue until Wednesday.

Temperatures in Toronto reached 90 degrees under the skies and the humidex reading, combining temperature and humidity, was 103. Humidex readings of 100 and more are considered uncomfortable.

The weather office says temperatures will be in the mid-90s over the weekend under sunny skies and may extend until Wednesday.

Heat was blamed directly or indirectly for at least four deaths in Toronto. Gerald Leonard, 65, and Gilbert Rae, 35, collapsed and later died in hospital.

Police said Rudolph Sodeyko, 60, a transient, died when run over by a car while he was lying in deep grass to escape the heat.

An apparent electrocution, John Egan, 37, died when he was electrocuted while helping to install an air conditioner in a suburban office.

Elsewhere, record maximum temperatures for June 24 were set at four Ontario centres. Trenton recorded 96, breaking a record 88 set in 1936.

Temperatures at Timmins soared to 93, five degrees higher than the previous record of 88 set in 1963. Kitalke registered a 90-degree reading, breaking a record of 88 set in 1945.

North Bay recorded 87, one degree higher than the 1962 record, and Ottawa, with a reading of 90, tied a record set in 1963.

The heat wave also contributed to labor unrest at for southern Ontario cities.

More than 300 workers at the Parkdale Works of the Steel Co. of Canada in Hamilton walked off the job for two hours in protest to a demand for lemonade.

A workers' spokesman said the employees wanted lemonade on the job, in line with a policy followed some years ago when Coca-Cola or lemonade were handed out during hot weather.

At McCormick's Ltd. in London the heat triggered a wildcat strike by 30 employees who asked that baths owned be shut off when the temperature in the plant reached the 100-degree mark.

Supervisors refused and the workers were dismissed. But the company agreed later to reinstate them and said it would see what could be done about the working conditions.

Foundry production at McKinnon Industries Ltd. in St. Catharines was cut by half Friday when the heat forced about 250 employees to stop work.

"Enough men requested leave that we had to close down some of the lines," said E. J. Barnard, president and general manager of the company.

In Windsor, Chrysler Canada Ltd. allowed about 3,200 employees to go home when temperatures and humidity passed the 90-degree and 90-per-cent marks.

Another 500 workers at Dover Metal Products Ltd., a Chrysler subsidiary, were allowed to go home and at Kelsey Wheel, a firm supplying wheels to the auto industry, some 250 workers voted to leave their jobs.

Another emergency of a minor sort was reported in Toronto when a downtown tavern ran out of beer.

One of the coolest spots in the city Friday was Sunnyside Pool where 483 baptismal candidates were immersed in water during Jehovah's Witness ceremonies.

Elsewhere in the city, suburban North York public pools closed at half-hour early and outdoor pools were opened six days ahead of schedule.

Two Biggest Public Service Jobs Will Open This Fall

OTTAWA (CP)—The two biggest public-service jobs in Canada are due to open up late this year, as Donald Gordon of the CNR and Gordon R. McGregor of Air Canada reach the normal retirement age of 65.

Although it's considered possible that one or both men may be given an extension, speculation already is mounting here about the government's choice of successors.

Mr. Gordon has been president of the CNR since 1950 and Mr. McGregor has headed Air Canada since 1949. They are considered to be two of the leading transportation executives on the continent.

Norman J. MacMillan, 55-year-old executive vice - president of the railway, is reported to be the favorite to step into Mr. Gordon's shoes. He has been the CNR's top legal expert since 1945.

John R. Baldwin, deputy minister of transport and the key figure in federal aviation policy since 1949, is considered to have the inside track on the Air Canada appointment. He will be 54 in August.

Decision Seen As Breakthrough To Negotiations

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's seamen announced today they will accept a new offer from shipowners as a basis for negotiations on a settlement of the shipping strike, now in its 41st day.

Observers saw the announcement as a breakthrough.

At today's meeting of the national executive of the Seamen's Union there was a move by the moderate wing to accept this employers' offer immediately.

But militant executive members apparently resisted this and an amendment that the offer be made a basis for negotiation was approved by 26 votes to 17.

The shipowners reluctantly agreed Friday night to offer the seamen nine days extra leave a year on top of the 30 days paid leave recommended by a government-appointed court of inquiry.

This offer, regarded as a major concession by the employers, was seen here as a new hope of getting the Seamen's Union executive to compromise and call off the strike.

HEAD REPORTED

The union executive today heard reports from members of a negotiating committee that have been meeting the shipowners. The discussions were expected to go on all day.

If they accept the court of inquiry's recommendations on pay and conditions, plus the extra leave offered by the shipowners, British seamen will have their present 48-hour week at sea cut by eight hours immediately.

They would be another cut of eight hours next June and 40 days paid leave a year against the present average of 30.

Observers saw the position as a fight between moderate seamen's leaders—who seem to be willing to accept the new offer —and militants who want to hold out for the original demand of an immediate 40-hour week at sea.

Meanwhile, the first British ship to leave an English Channel port since the strike started has already sailed out for Gibraltala. It belongs to the Cross-Channel Car Ferry Company which said they duty ago to give its seamen the full demand of a 40-hour week.

Vaccine For Mumps Effective

CHICAGO (AP)—A new vaccine against mumps appears nearly 100-per-cent effective, a scientist reported today. His five eight-year-old daughter had a hand in developing it.

She supplied the strain of virus that is "tamed" or attenuated to produce the live-virus vaccine.

The scientist is Dr. Maurice R. Hilleman of the Merck Institute for Therapeutic Research, West Point, Pa. The virus is called the Jeryl Lynn strain, for his daughter who came down with mumps three years ago.

In one test involving schoolage and younger children, the vaccine was 96-per-cent effective in preventing mumps in among children exposed to natural virus infection. Dr. Hilleman told the American Therapeutics Society.

HOPES RAISED

Vaccinated youngsters have shown protective antibodies for as long as seven months, he said, raising hopes that one vaccination may confer life-long immunity.

The new vaccine is not yet available for general use. It must first undergo more testing

Revision Of Bank Act Off

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—On-again off-again revision of the Bank Act is off again, this time in circumstances which point to a real test of authority facing Finance Minister Sharp.

The long-delayed revision of the bank law governing Canada's chartered banks was to have been introduced next Monday, according to a government announcement Wednesday.

But some time Thursday a decision was made to postpone it again. The chartered banks have been running for more than two years on periodic extensions to the 1954 law which was due for revision in 1964. No official explanation was given for the further delay. A finance department source said that while no new date has been set, it is hoped the bill will be introduced later next week, or at least before Parliament adjourns for a summer recess early in July.

Other sources indicate that a fundamental division of opinion has been spread again between Mr. Sharp and his cabinet supporters on the one hand, and a militant group outside the cabinet which includes Walter Gordon, former finance minister, and Maurice Lamontagne, former state secretary.

Mr. Sharp has been reported willing to accept at least in part, the recommendation of the 1964 Porter royal commission on banking—and finance that the present ceiling of six per cent be lifted off this interest rate the banks may charge on loans.

The banks have argued that

500,000 Sweltering Montrealers See St. Jean Baptiste Day Parade

MONTREAL (CP)—Crowds of Montrealers, estimated at more than 500,000 strong, lined streets here Friday in sweltering heat to watch the annual St. Jean Baptiste Day parade.

The parade, which stretched more than four miles, highlighted the observance of the fete by nearly 1,000,000 descendants of the patron saint of French-speaking Canadians in Quebec. It led as its theme, "French Canada's presence in the world."

About 25 marching bands and 20 floats wound through the streets for about four hours. The floats included portrayals of French-Canadian discoveries, former National Hockey League star Maurice Richard and Montreal Canadiens.

Several minor incidents were reported.

A group of separatists attempted on to a City of Montreal float just before it arrived at the reviewing stand. As it moved by, they unfurled banners and shouting slogans. Several police officers marched with them.

At another point a man ran past police and lay down in front of them. The Saint Jean Baptiste Society float, stopping it for about two minutes. Police placed him off.

Police moved quickly to break up what appeared to be the start of a disturbance in a park in the city's east end. About 20 people were detained as a precaution against a possible larger demonstration by separatists.

Thousands of persons began Friday night when bonfires burned in most Quebec communities.

St. Jean Baptiste day has become a general holiday in Quebec with all provincial and federal government offices, banks, courts and retail facilities closed as well as most private, commercial and business firms.

U.S. Appears to Have Caught Britain in Economic Corner

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP)—The United States appears to have caught Britain in a neat economic corner in continuing American efforts to get more of her old friends and allies involved in the sticky Vietnamese war.

While Britain wants to stay out of the Viet Nam entanglement as much as possible, the Labor government is busily seeking ways of selling more arms to the U.S. to pay for the 50 F-111A swing-wing bombers ordered from the U.S. at a cost of $330,000,000.

The result may be a necessary compromise in the British policy to block the sale of arms which could be used in the Viet Nam struggle.

As already pointed out in the Commons, British arms are being used by Australian and New Zealand troops in South Viet Nam, though Defence Secretary Denis Healey maintains this has nothing to do with the issue.

However, he has been faced with one volley of attack on British policy and likely will face more onslaughts in the Commons next week.

He told questioners Thursday the government won't sell arms for use in Viet Nam. He also said the government was not "seek to impose restrictions on the use of arms which we sell to an ally."

Healey disclosed that the government already has turned down two U.S. requests to obtain airborne weapons for use in Viet Nam but acknowledged that part of the reason for one turndown was that Britain was not in a position to produce them.

British and American negotiators now are locked in bargaining on the kind of American arms orders that can be placed in Britain to cover the cost of the aircraft order.

One possible way out of the British dilemma is for Britain to ship arms to the U.S. not for use in Viet Nam but to replace American arms shipped to the Pacific. The government thus could continue its public policy of non-participation.

Although Prime Minister Wilson has given President Johnson limited support on American policy in Viet Nam, he has publicly appealed for a peaceful settlement.

Supplying of arms, said Healey, would be inconsistent with Britain's role as co-chairman of the 1954 Geneva conference on Indochina.

However, the other co-chairman, the Soviet Union, actively supports North Viet Nam with a full range of conventional arms.

Commentators have suggested the government is not as concerned about its role as co-chairman with the Labor party's volatile left wing which has strongly condemned American action in Viet Nam and demanded that Wilson persuade Johnson to pull out.

Flying Cat Shot to Earth Near Ottawa

ALFRED, Ont. (CP)—An animal described as a flying cat was shot to earth Friday night.

Constable Terrence Argall of the provincial police said it was "generally an ordinary looking black cat" except for a small bump on his back and "two wing-like growths about six inches long sticking out of the bump."

Residents told him the cat had terrorized other small animals and started becoming a nuisance. He said it attacked dogs and cats by taking a long run, jumping and gliding for distances of 30 feet or more.

It was killed by several bullets from a .22-calibre rifle after Maurice Reffle-Reid and Arthur Lavoie had chased it for more than a mile.

Alfred is on Highway 17 about 40 miles east of Ottawa.

Beatles' Visit To Japan Is Protested

TOKYO (Reuters) — A 27-year - old Japanese ultra - conservative began today a public-speaking campaign against the forthcoming visit of the Beatles with the cry: "Damned Beatles go home."

Bin Akao, leader of the tiny Issui Seinen-kai (Blue Wave), staged an apparently unimpressed group of 300 bystanders for an hour in a Tokyo park about the Beatles, due here Tuesday for a five-day visit.

Police estimate that the Beatles have 3,000,000 Japanese supporters, of whom Akao are classified as steady admirers and 50,000 as rabid fans.

Akao said it is a disgrace to allow a rock 'n' roll group to appear at the "sacred" Budokan Sports Auditorium, built in 1964 to promote judo and karate, the traditional Japanese arts of self-defence.

"We must protect our traditions and culture from the Beatles," he said. "Damned Beatles go home."

Wheat

meanwhile, on the wheat situation in which he said there is no cause for concern—about the possible worldwide shortage of food resulting from the recent sharp reductions in U.S. wheat supplies.

Freeman said that although American reserves may be reduced, he does not expect them to drop to the level of 250,000,000 bushels now being forecast in some trade circles.

The government has said 600,000,000 bushels is a safe reserve, but suppliers will be down to 350,000,000 bushels July 1, the end of the 1965 crop marketing year, and possibly to around 400 000,000 bushels a year later.

Air Conditioners and Ice Cream Are Suddenly in Demand Again

Most of us dislike these sultry days with temperatures soaring up around 90 degrees.

But there are at least two classes of people who like to see the hot summer days.

They are the ice cream and soft drink salesmen and the appliance dealers selling ventilation fans and air conditioners.

"We're beginning to get enquiries for air conditioners and electric fans," said one Front street merchant yesterday. "It usually takes a couple of really hot days to warm the buildings up and then people start thinking about something to try to get cool."

And the soft drink salesman and ice cream dealers have the same story to tell.

MORE WATER USED

The hot weather this week has also had its effect on the amount of water being pumped at the city water filtration plant in the west end of the city.

Normally the daily pumpage is around the five million gallon mark, but Thursday it jumped to six and a half million, while Friday was expected to see close to seven million gallons pour through city taps.

Already lawn watering restrictions have been placed into effect by the city utilities commission.

The program is for householders with odd street numbers to water on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, with those having even numbers watering lawns on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Everyone may water lawns on Sunday.

Lawn watering hours are 7:00 a.m. until 9:00 a.m. and from 5:00 until nine in the evening.

U.S. Senate Moves to End Slaughter With Safety Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Senate has voted a doubleharrelled attack at slaughter on the U.S. highways—expected to take 50,200 lives this year.

In rapid order Friday, senators:

—Passed unanimously a far-reaching auto safety bill that would set unprecedented mandatory federal safety standards for cars.

—Approved by voice vote a $460,000,000 measure designed to spur the states and cities to make a broader and more effective attack on traffic safety problems. There were no nay votes.

Both bills were sent to the House of Representatives where committees now are at work on companion measures. If it's a race leaders said today there is no doubt these would be acted on favorably later in the session.

President Johnson hailed the Senate action on the legislation, which went beyond his recommendations in some respects.

Under the auto safety bill, the first interim standards would be set by the secretary of commerce next year. These would be followed by permanent standards which would be prescribed for the first time by 1968, and be reviewed and updated every two years.

The bill would cover all U.S.-built foreign-made autos sold in the U.S. and also trucks, buses, motorcycles and motor scooters.

The measure, however, would not affect the almost 90,000,000 autos now on the highway.

Under the measure, the secretary would have to confer with the states and the auto industry before fixing the standards. He also would be authorized to carry out a testing and research program including the development of a prototype car.

Senate sponsors of the bill said that undoubtedly the interim standards set next year would be those the U.S. government is requiring on 1967 models it will buy for its own use.

These include such things as seat belts, padded dashboards, safety door latches, safety windows, dual brake systems, exhaust control devices, backup lights, safety rims, rupture-proof fuel tanks, and safe designs for door handles, ash trays, lighters and arm rests.

The bill also would require manufacturers to notify the first purchaser of a car of any safety-related defect and to repurchase from dealers all vehicles which do not meet the federal standards.

Car Driver Exonerated in Girl's Death

TORONTO (CP)—A coroner's jury investigating the death of a 13-year-old girl in a traffic accident recommended Friday at night that city safety requirements on road construction contracts should be made more specific.

Ronnie Doreen Whetung died May 7 at a construction site in east Toronto when another auto went out of control, crossed a median strip and crashed into Miss Whetung's sports car.

The jury said poor lighting and deceptive lane markings at the construction site contributed to the death. The driver of the other auto, Akira Sato, 37, was exonerated.

Miss Whetung narrowly escaped death in a traffic accident on Christmas day, 1964.

She was driving her parents and three sisters along Highway 7 near Peterborough when their car was struck by a second vehicle. The parents and one sister were killed. The family was relatives in the Peterborough area.

Pearson Cuts Ribbon to Open Centre

By BRENDA LARGE

ELLIOT LAKE, Ont. (CP)—Prime Minister Lester Pearson visited his Algoma East riding for the second time in three months Friday, flying from Ottawa to open an adult education centre here.

With Ontario Premier John Robarts, Mr. Pearson cut a ribbon officially opening the $1,000,000 Centre for Continuing Education, a joint project of the federal and provincial governments.

The centre, first proposed 20 months ago, has facilities for fine arts courses, conferences and seminars, elementary and high-school classes for adults, and vocational training classes.

Its construction has helped alleviate hopes for the recovery of this uranium-mining community which is starting to feel the effects of a slump in the world demand for uranium left it almost a ghost-town.

Its population, 27,000 at the height of the uranium boom, plummetted to 8,000 but now has crept up to 10,000.

The new centre is located in eight apartment blocks left vacant when hundreds of people left the town during its leanest days.

FRAISE RESIDENTS

Both Prime Minister Pearson and Premier Robarts in their speeches lauding the $5,000,000 Centre for Continuing Education, a joint project of the federal and provincial governments.

Mr. Pearson said: "This centre is another example of courageous community effort in a community which is known for its courage."

Premier Robarts expressed the satisfaction of his government for the co-operation of the people of Elliot Lake in building the new centre. He said: "These are people who are ready, willing and completely anxious to help themselves."

Today the Prime Minister will tour the mining research laboratory established here last year by the federal government.

Later in the day he will fly to Toronto to address the International Assembly on Nuclear Weapons at Scarborough College, its returns to Ottawa Sunday.

Scouting activities

17TH BELLEVILLE CUBS AND SCOUTS

A Scout Camporee was held at Saguaska (Colonel Rosco Vanderwater Park) on May 20th to 22rd and from all reports it was the best camp in the history of the 17th. Nearly 30 Scouts as well as 4 leaders attended the camp. The 17th had the honor of supplying two Sub-Camp Chiefs John Dodge, S.M. of "A" Troop (assisted by Wally Ludolph, A.C.M. "B" Pack) in charge of Mohawk site, and Murray Maw, S.M. of "B" Troop (assisted by Lou Kline, C.M. of "B" Pack) in charge of Cayuga site. The canoe championship race was won by Brian Young and Phil Grant. Scooters Maw and Kline won the leaders' canoe race by default — their opponents upset their craft into the Moira River 20 yards from the start line.

On June 19th four Scouts (Danny Kline, Bill Graham, Gerald McConnell and Doug Throop) received the Religion and Life Emblem. This is not an easy achievement and congratulations are congratulated for their efforts.

Twenty-seven cubs from "A" Pack journeyed to Kingston on June 11th to make a tour of Old Fort Henry. The boys enjoyed lunch on the fort grounds and rebursed by way of the Glenora ferry route. Akela Dresher, M. Maw, G. McLean, E. Tucker and B. Graham accompanied the group.

"A and B" Packs held their annual Cub camp at Sagoaska on June 18-19. Mohawk camp site was the scene for the weekend's activities. L. Kline (C.M. of "B" Pack) was Sub-Camp Chief assisted by M. Maw (S.M. of "B" Troop) W. Ludolph (A.C.M., "B" Pack) B. Jones (A.C.M., "A" Pack), H. Beach (Group Committee) and M. Stotesbury (volunteer). The main activities were the games (Kentucky derby, baseball, tug-o-war). On Saturday evening the boys gathered around a camp fire for skits enacted by each Six, a sing song led by Akela (Mrs. Dresher), Hobo Stew and marshmallows. Eric Maw received the Second Star with M. Maw making the presentation. L. Kline presented toymakers' badges to Kevin Scott and Peter McInroy. Eighteen Cubs received badges for attending the Camporee. Michael Collyer of "B" pack is the first cub to complete the Black Star requirements for the new Five Star system. He was also honored as the best Cub in the pack and received the Star and a book for his achievements at a previous meeting.

On Sunday afternoon the Cubs own service took place on the shores of the Moira River. Rev. A. McDowell and Mr. A. Miller presented bibles to a number of Cubs who were not able to attend the Sunday School awards service held at Eastminster Church Sunday morning.

The Ladies' Auxiliary did a terrific job cooking and serving the meals.

A note of thanks goes out to Akela Butcher for providing trailer accommodation for the ladies, to the group committee for their efforts and to the parents for providing transportation.

The camp was officially closed at 3.30 p.m.

All winter long Hugh Beach "done" his bit for Scouting by rounding up outstanding lecturers and helpers to assist Mr. Lou Andrews at the Y.M.C.A. pool. It wasn't easy to round people out of bed at 8.30 a.m. on cold and miserable Saturday mornings — but somehow Hugh managed. There are a great many boys in Belleville who owe Hugh a big "thank You" for without him and his efforts there would have been far fewer boys wearing their Swimmers' badges this year. Mr. Andrews could never have done it by himself.

17th Belleville is losing some of its best leaders this summer. Mr. Dolmeier (Scouts) and Mrs. Dolmeier (Cubs) are leaving for Toronto. They will both be missed by the boys. Mrs. Dolmeier had the unenviable task of keeping a good Cub leader and Roy was a real outdoorsman.

Mr. Benny Groy of "A" Pack is leaving a big hole in Akela Butcher's pack. Benny is being transferred to Edmonton at the end of June.

Another Scouting will be hanging up his hat and scarf soon, in the person of Jack Jones. Jack started in Cubs and for several years was leader of "A" Pack. For the past few years he has been Assistant Scoutmaster in "B" Troop.

All of these people will be missed as all of them were doing a great job with the youth of Eastminster Church and East Belleville. We owe them much.

TORONTO (CP) — Harvey (Busher) Jackson, 55, former star left winger for Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, died in hospital today following a lengthy illness.

Soldier Offered $500 For Armory, Guns Plans

MONTREAL (CP) — Two alleged members of a Montreal-based terrorist group were said Saturday to have offered $500 to a non-commissioned officer in the Canadian Army to investigate the defences of an armory in the city's north end, as well as a list of weapons kept in it.

Sgt. Robert Marchand, 18, said at a preliminary hearing of Robert Levesque, 25, of Montreal and Rejean Briggs, 21, of Asbestos, Que., that things introduced him to Levesque who had offered him the money in return for the information about the armory.

Sgt. Marchand had informed the RCMP of the offer and members of the force were in an adjoining room when the soldier arrived to hand over blueprints, supposedly of the armory, to Levesque.

Levesque and Briggs were being held in custody in Montreal on charges of having conspired to commit an armed robbery of the armory to obtain arms and ammunition.

Both men, who police said are members of an organization calling itself Le Mouvement pour l'Independance Nationale, were committed to voluntary statement June 29.

Western World Leadership Challenged by de Gaulle In Trip Through Russia

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The well-organized promotion of President de Gaulle of France, through the Soviet Union, could just possibly lead to a rash judgment on the question of who is contemporary affairs is the real leader of the western world.

Because of American wealth and modern supremacy, President Johnson naturally ascended to the leadership role and seemed to meet its terms of office with his Great Society theme. But that was before Viet Nam seemed him and he descended his international reputation.

While de Gaulle roams the world, Johnson has yet to cross the Atlantic as president. Rumors crop up that the American leader is about to descend on Europe and beg it to his breast, to convince it of his sincerity and sadness over Viet Nam.

But those who should know say Johnson is not coming. There is no prime minister and a trip would serve any useful purpose. The Viet Cong appear to have pinned Johnson in Washington.

EVENTS LIMIT WILSON

To some extent, events also have limited the operations of Britain's Prime Minister Wilson. He has been to the Soviet Union, in a rather decorative, tourist-like role, while his main hope have been to the United States, where he will make still another appearance next month.

It has been left to de Gaulle to make what may turn out to be the most glamorous and most dramatic trip of all. So far, de Gaulle hasn't given much away. He moves with mthrust of history, a paternal wish.

Summer Rites

Well, mid-summer's day has come and gone. And whatever else has been happening to the weather in recent years (from spring in January to winter in April-May) June 21 was a scorcher.

Not that anyone noticed. Indeed, it may be wondered if more than a handful realized the sun had reached its full stature and henceforth would begin its slow decline. It was great weather for the outdoors, but it was not in the wide open spaces that everyone chose to celebrate the turn of the year.

No air. Rather, it was indoors that at least one sizeable group in town arranged to spend the evening — playing bridge for heaven's sake!

It was the kind of evening the Swedes (with a climate much like our own) would reserve for mid-January, once their busy Christmas and New Year celebrations are over and further creative activities are needed to take their minds off the desolate northern winter, with its short days and gloomy air of foreboding which seems to prey on the Swedish psyche more than most.

In mid-summer the Swedes take to the outdoors with an abandon equalled by few. The blonde tresses and bikinis of fair-skinned girls, and the bronzed backs of young men dot beaches from Gothenburg to Stockholm. ,

And during mid-summer celebrations are held, folk dancing and the like, in praise of the season and the bounty it brings to the land and in thankfulness for an all too brief period of warmth and color.

Like the early Indians, the Swedes are sunworshippers, and there is a sort of charming paganism tinged with mysticism in this conscious focusing of attention on the summer solstice.

No such formal celebrations are held in Canada. The turning point of summer is now past, marked (unconsciously we suspect, without any special regard for the day itself) by our own peculiar rites — like bridge on that long, hot, summer's night.

Quinte Area Busy

Suddenly it seems the Belleville area is a hive of interesting activity in various spheres.

There was the country-come-to-the-town and hootenanny atmosphere of the dairy princess competitions and associated entertainment in the arena. And rural activity of a different nature with the tractor armada manned by farmers protesting the level of milk prices.

And sports at Redmerstell where the youngsters showed their paces in track and field events. Other evidence of this warm, bright summer is today's opening of the Kinsmen's swimming pool.

On the academic scene there were closing exercises at the Ontario School for the Deaf and the choice of Sir John A. Macdonald as the name for the new public school to be built in West Belleville.

Key Clubs are also in the spotlight with the news that BCIVS Key Club president Ron Ridley and Quinte's Lyn Harrington, lieutenant-governor of Division 8 of Key Clubs, will attend the Key Club international convention in Chicago later this month.

There is flying activity aplenty. Belleville (Michigan) Kiwanians flew into Trenton for a return visit with their Belleville counterparts.

On Sunday Belleville will play host to some 100 visiting aircraft. These "fly-ins" are becoming increasingly popular with clubs. At Stirling tomorrow there will be an air display at the airport there.

So it goes. These are a few of the activities of the week. Belleville is picking up. All we need now is progress on the industrial scene and then things may really start to hop.

Liter Problem

Belleville streets and sidewalks are still being despoiled by broken glass and often litter — a condition to which we drew attention not long ago.

There is a suggestion of deliberation about the placing of these slivers of glass, big and small, that one sees lying around. Entrances to streets and driveways seem to be popular spots, so that cars often are unable to avoid running over the stuff.

The sidewalk on Bridge Street west, on the city side of the bridge was littered with glass the other day. It was the same on the sidewalk on the hill north of Coleman street. And the grass verge incidentally was full of weeds where it was not ugly with bare patches.

We cannot vouch for other areas of the city, but if these examples are any criterion there is room for a good clean-up in Belleville generally. City council last week heard references to uncut weeds around the city, so we may expect some action in this regard.

"Technocrats" a Government Within the Government

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Nine years ago on the federal political horizon in Ottawa there appeared a cloud.

It was "no bigger than a man's hand," as these first faint puffs of the shape of things to come traditionally are described.

It was, in fact, the first wispy evidence that a new, in-coming Government first must get cozy with the existing Bureaucracy before it can begin properly and efficiently to attend to the public business.

There had been 22 unbroken years of Liberal rule when Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker first won minority power in 1957, going on to consolidate his position, as no government ever had, with his stunning 208-seat landslide a year later.

In those 22 Liberal years, most of the key bureaucrats, the all-powerful departmental deputies and the deputies' deputies, the directors-general, the chairmen of the multiple federal boards, bureaux and commissions had been appointed or promoted from the rank and file of the Civil Service.

Appointed or promoted by Prime Ministers Mackenzie King and Louis St. Laurent, or by ministers of their Cabinets.

LIBERAL MAFIA

It wasn't so much perhaps that these key bureaucrats with their powers and influence even decision were card-carrying Liberals.

They were't.

But it was that after all those years, the accepted way of doing the public business was the Liberal way.

The Bureaucracy, complained the Conservative Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton, "thought Liberal."

Frequently frustrated in policy making, the Conservatives blamed many of their difficulties on what they charged was their lack of support of a non-partisan co-operative bureaucratic hierarchy.

Alvin Hamilton called it the Liberal Mafia, the Grit Underground.

And Trade Minister Gordon Churchill fired one of them, his Deputy Minister, as old C. D. Howe had, Mitchell Sharp, now the Finance Minister.

But these the firing stopped. There was no purge.

The Conservatives lived and worked out their six years of power in an uneasy peace with the Bureaucracy.

And when the Liberals returned to power three years ago, the departmental deputies gathered in a room in the Centre Block on Parliament Hill to welcome "home" with speeches and cheers, "one of our own," the former Deputy Minister of Veterans Affairs, Lester Pearson who had become Prime Minister.

Now the cloud that nine years ago was "no bigger than a man's hand" has become an overcast that shadows an entire province. Quebec.

Out of Quebec City comes the information that a smooth transition of power to the new Union Nationale Government of Premier Daniel Johnson was "assured" by an informal consensus of senior provincial Civil Servants."

The consensus was communicated to Premier Johnson through an intermediary", so that at his press conference he was able to say that the new government would have "no intention of dispensing with the services of the top technocrats" of the retiring Bureaucracy.

This governmental elite comprises some 30 "technocrats", as they call themselves, mostly in their late 30's and early 40's, and located as among the most capable administrators of their generation in Quebec.

Their decision to stick with the new Union Nationale Government, say those who know the political scene in Quebec, will very probably be the crucial factor for any success the Johnson administration wins.

Quebec entered the era of "Big Government" in the six years of Liberal rule by former Premier Jean Lesage.

And in Quebec City, as in Ottawa since the Second War II, the Bureaucracy has become something of a separate constituency.

An appointed constituency in fact, in which the elected political leadership must win and hold confidence in order to provide smooth-running government for the efficient conduct of the public business.

How about that?

Gives the "technocrats" a kind of veto power over the government, and places them in a privileged position over and above the ordinary voter, doesn't it?

Says Trenton Is More Go-Ahead

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I was very impressed by a letter in your publication of June 16, as it voiced my feelings considerably. .

I can, as a business operator, who pays business and realty taxes grudgingly, understand the writer's reasons for requesting that his name be withheld. I, however, have no fear of Mr. Morris or our city council and want my name at the end of this letter.

I am ashamed to admit that it is necessary for me to depend on the Town of Trenton for the greater part of my business, as I heartily agree with Mr. Spiegel, at present there is little future in investing in Belleville.

I have known Mr. Spiegel and his associates for several years, and have had very pleasant and satisfactory dealings with them. In my opinion there is more business ability in the head of any one of them than in our entire city hall.

In taking a stroll along the main streets of Trenton, one cannot help being impressed by the lack of old foundations, many fires have taken their toll, instead you see reasonably modern buildings being wrecked to make way for larger and more impressive buildings. I have found it a pleasure to discuss matters with members of the Trenton town council. They don't "dilly dally" around. They get the business and have no fears about standing behind them.

Mr. Beaver and the majority of our city council find it very convenient to hide behind the skirts of the Municipal Board. A few short years ago our councils had little regard for the Ontario Municipal Board regulations, hence the hockey scandal, which they had seen fit to ignore in spite of warnings by the late Robert Pringle Q.C., city solicitor at that time.

However, when it comes to something that will benefit the community, we usually have the legs of chickens.

If the Ontario Municipal Board is concerned and interested in the welfare and growth of the municipalities under its jurisdiction then the governing bodies of the municipalities should treat it with the respect which is accorded to a member of our planning board or any member of council is given when we find it a matter of deal as such he should at least be man enough to get out."

The Trenton council member is very little better he informed me in answer to a query at a recent meeting that the council of years ago that Belleville could not buy big industry as it is not part of the Ontario Municipal Board regulations. Does he really want industry to come to Trenton when communities apparently get around the Ontario Municipal Board regulations? If it was so informed by a member of the legal profession at the same meeting. Excuses! Excuses!

So I may also scrap our so-called Industrial and Planning Commissions and the whole City Council. Let us have a real city manager not a yes man, but a real live city man to run him full authority and insist that he make Belleville a city Liberal rule by former Premier Jean Lesage.

And in Quebec City, as in Ottawa since the Second War II, the Bureaucracy has become something of a separate constituency.

An appointed constituency in fact, in which the elected political leadership must win and hold confidence in order to provide smooth-running government for the efficient conduct of the public business.

How about that?

Gives the "technocrats" a kind of veto power over the government, and places them in a privileged position over and above the ordinary voter, doesn't it?

Bell's Palsy Now For Facial Neuritis

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: The neurologist said I had Bell's Palsy, not a stroke. How serious is this. — Mrs. F. H.

Dear Doctor: Has anyone produced a cure for Bell's palsy? The doctor said if it didn't go away in six months it most likely would never go away. Eight months later the left side of my face is still paralyzed but finally my eye has started to blink again. — Mrs. F.

Bell's palsy is the name assigned to what happens when a stroke affects a branch of the facial nerve — that which controls muscles of the face. In a word it is neuritis in a certain place.

The nerves of the face are of necessity close to the surface. They cause the changes of the several facial muscles which express subtle emotions: the slight sneer, or hidden sympathy, or a faint distaste, or love or annoyance or a wink or happiness or a frown.

Bell's palsy doesn't affect all of the face, nor all of the expressions of that face, but it does paralyze the nerve branch which controls part of the face and its muscles.

A drooping of the corner of the mouth and of the eyelid on the affected side of the face is the sign of the face. A stroke is damage to some part of the brain, and the resulting paralysis depends on which part of that organ has been damaged, and how extensively. Bell's palsy has nothing to do with the brain and its signals. It is an interference in nerve signals at a "local station," and not at "headquarters."

What caused the trouble in the branch of the nerve? It may be a chill, an infection, or in occasional instances a physical injury. The general health of the patient can be a factor, but this is hard to evaluate.

For the most part, and for practical purposes, we usually can say no more than that something has affected the nerve, and the paralysis is usually temporary, although recovery may be rapid, in a week or two, or slow.

It may take longer than six months. Mrs. D. notes that the eyelid is getting over its weakness after eight months. This is a good sign.

Since the exact cause or type of injury is very hard to identify a specific cure does not exist. There is no "secret remedy" for Bell's palsy. But this does not mean you can't get over it. Most patients will, but the treatment is mainly help and nursing rather than sudden "cures."

Physiotherapy in the form of heat or massage, and sometimes electrostimulation by neurological experts, may help.

Most folks recovery, however, some never fully. After all, most of us get over a lame back, or bum knee, or other such ailments, but a few of us have to settle for partial recovery, and that's about the way it is with damage to a facial nerve, or Bell's Palsy.

Dear Dr. Molner: What effect does a tipped uterus have on conception? — Mrs. V. J. G.

It can, in some cases, make conception difficult or prevent it. In other cases it may not have any effect.

Note to E. R. R.: I'm glad you've found out about bowel regulators containing dioctyl sodium sulfosuccinate. There must be a dozen or more products which contain it. I've been recommending it for nearly 10 years. My suggestion, however, is that you get your doctor's advice on which particular brand will suit your needs best.

Grand Canyon Dam Project

Letter to the Christian Science Monitor

The recent Grand Canyon article is of great interest to me.

It seems almost wicked to me to ruin this unique, natural masterpiece, especially as the purpose is to provide electric power which surely could be developed elsewhere. In fact, some of the objectors with authoritative information say it could. Before these dams would be finished, they would be superseded by another development.

How Much Debt Can Canada Stand?

Financial Post

Is prosperity about to dissolve in a welter of debt?

On the surface, the latest figures on the amounts owed by governments, business and individuals suggest this country is going to hell in a mortgaged handcart. If you relate them to Canada's tremendous postwar production and income growth, the impending doom looks less obvious.

In a period of barely 12 years, federal government debt has roughly doubled, provincial debt has more than tripled and while municipal debt has gone up far more than four times, the total is heading towards $30 billion.

The willingness and the ability of individuals to live on the cuff is even more sensational. Between 1950 and the end of last year personal bank loans rose 362 percent, loans made by sales finance companies 87 percent, loans on life insurance policies almost doubled.

But the real pace-setters were the personal loan companies, whose loans went up 1,006 per cent and the finance companies with a 483 percent rise. Mortgages, the bulk of personal indebtedness, jumped from $13 billion in 1950 to more than $13.5 billion. Grand total: well over $30 billion.

Debt escalation at this speed, particularly for the consumer front, is bound to cause concern. Some observers base their forecasts of an impending slowdown in the economy on the large debt accumulation. They point to fields of unsold 1966 cars as evidence that borrowing is overextended.

Should a letdown in employment or incomes take place, families overburdened by debt may be hard hit — and so may some leading companies. Municipal debt in particular could be burdensome if the economy slowed substantially.

But there are encouraging aspects of the debt picture too.

Government obligations, for terms of the economy's pay-per-ers, are getting easier to carry. Despite the big increase, government debt has dropped from the equivalent of 125 per cent of gross national product to about 100 percent. Business funded debt and bank loans have risen somewhat more than government debt since 1950.

Thus, remarkably, total public and private debt has risen only slightly as a proportion of GNP in the past 15 years. Also, from a national point of view, our debts have remained within our ability to pay, and most of these debts we owe to ourselves not to foreigners — a significant factor.

Governments, the Jeremiahs say, are "passing today's burden on to tomorrow's children." But is the child born today not better off because of debt incurred yesterday to build roads, schools, and transportation facilities? Is he not better off also because parents borrowed to buy a home and some of its furnishings — both of which provided work and wages and a higher living standard for other Canadians?

Current attempts to keep inflationary trends under control may dampen for the time being the Canadian proclivity to live on the hoof. Also, consumer debt borrowing has undoubtedly forced some individuals, corporations and governments to live spending till their debts are smaller.

But given the education and productivity lag between Canada and the U.S., cited recently by the Economic Council, it is entirely possible that in some fields this country is not going enough into debt for the future, rather than too much.

Productivity Increased

Regina Leader-Post

The crash program launched in Manitoba less than a year ago to increase productivity by improving management skills in business and industries already is beginning to show promising results.

On advice by consultants, the provincial government enlisted the support of private business leaders in the formation of the Manitoba Institute of Management (MIM). This, in essence, was a movement from within industry to achieve the desired objective.

The provincial government agreed to finance one sector of the institute's endeavors — a work study program — for the first two or three years.

Work studies are aimed at achieving savings in the various basic factors of industry, plant and equipment, labor and buildings, materials, and services of all kinds.

Nine Manitoba companies sent executives in the first work study course which ran for eight weeks, from Jan. 31 to March 25.

Under the direction of experts employed by the institute, each of the executives undertook a work study principles and applied them to specific problems in their individual companies.

On completion of the course, the executives reported that operational efficiencies had been effected with substantial savings. In other words, increased productivity and profits had been achieved. Having acquired new skills in the work study techniques, these executives will be able to apply them more extensively in their own operations.

Manitoba's approach of upgrading management techniques is unique on this continent. A similar institute was established in Ireland, and it has enjoyed remarkable success.

A CHANCE ENCOUNTER

"Why should tales of long ago be told again to us . . . ?
They make clear life's mysteries . . . and make existence dear."

— Gordon Bottomley.

"Though I was born in Minnesota," recalls my mother (who was part of a family of pioneers of southern Minnesota), "I have yet to visit the twin cities: St. Paul and Minneapolis — places of glory and enchantment to my fancy as a child.

"When I was eight years old, however, I remember a wonderful event. A Mr. J. J. Hill of Minneapolis, owner of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad,, used to give the members of the State Legislature free tickets to pass out to their constituents, just to advertise the new train's running.

"The member of our constituency lived in the same little town as my family and one day gave my father two tickets. He and my mother went to the twin cities, and the thrill of their departure to my land of dreams remains as though it happened yesterday."

Such are the simple, charming notes told in every chapter which becomes the tissue of its history. In this case the name J. J. Hill was enough. Who was he? His name came from mother's memory, in spite of her 80-odd years, and that's impressed me.

This morning quite by chance I began reading "A Gentleman at Oxford" (published by Jonathan Cape) by A. L. Rowse, who is a foreseeable fellow, an outstanding Elizabethan scholar, a historian as well as a man of letters. And to my surprise, he recalls my mother's story to my mind.

How could Mr. Rowse, an Oxford scholar in English Literature at Christ Church who became a Fellow of All Souls at the age of 21, possibly do this?

It all stems from the fact, now in his 60's, he recalls through the aid of his diaries written during those college years in the 20s, facts, atmosphere and voices of those days. One learns that he attended Oxford under several handicaps. He suffered poor health with pain as a constant companion. Secondly, he was poverty's child. About this he says:

"With all the struggle there had been in getting to Oxford (one miserable scholarship for the whole county of Corn wall) Paul Tregarthen's family practically illiterate as mine was, worry became an obsession for me. I was going to become familiar with the one thing I feared — debt, all my life."

At Oxford, young Rowse speaks of the friends he made, among the young Oxford scholars like himself, all from vastly different backgrounds. One among many was a young American millionaire, and the two found they had many tastes and interests in common. They became life-long friends, as the years have proved.

Amongst the young men — guess who? Louis J. Hill, grandson of the "railway king, J. J. Hill, founder of the Great Northern and one of the great constructors of the later railway age," says Mr. Rowse. By origin he was a Canadian, but came south of the border to become the Lord Strathcona of the United States. Upon his death he left nine children, no will—and $6 million! which took a generation to settle.

Friday Louis is the "pohh, spirited" head of the family, the Hill Foundation "and all, benevolently over the dynasty of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Mother of Three Boys Concerned About Diet

DEAR DORIS: I am a mother of three small boys, one of whom is three months old. It has been discovered that he has cellac disease. He is on a gluten-free, no skim, no starch and no milk diet. Being so young I find it is hard to plan meals for him as well as the rest of us.

Is there anywhere I could get some booklets on meal planning for him? Will his diet upset my older children (two and four)?

The hospital supplied me with a diet chart but I hardly can judge the cooking process and receipts, as then the diet are subsitiutes for the real foods. — STUNNED.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR STUNNED: Of course you are stunned. But years ago, celiac was incurable. Now, with care, it can be classified as a minor childhood disease of the digestive tract. The whole answer is a rigid diet.

Your big job is to adjust your planning to an extra routine — that of preparing the special foods. Sometime you need, prepare enough for two or three meals at one time, and never even consider giving the others the same food.

The doctor, and the hospital, are your best friends and will go into great detail to guide you when you find you need help. Even a slight deviation from the prescribed diet can delay progress.

One more thing: Don't let your boy feel different, just because his diet is different. Make no fuss at all. When later on, he gets invitations to a birthday party, get his special packet of food into the hands of the hostess on the sly. He and you can emerge from this period with no bad memories or after-effects; it all depends on you.

DEAR DORIS: Some of the boys around my neighborhood call me by my last name. When they do they say it with disgust.

How can I get them to respect and not hurt me (physically)? I do not do anything to make them dislike me.—BEWILDERED.

P.S. I'm not a tees-ager. I'm 11.

DEAR BEWILDERED: Move over. Until I know what started this, I'll be bewildered too. Are they really threatening to hurt you or are they just teasing?

If you've been acting high hat, they taunt you to get a reaction. If they are older boys, and bullies, perhaps your Dad, or the police, should deal with them.

Try ignoring them and see if this bursts their balloon.

Wife Not Helpful Says Will

TORONTO (CP) — Walter Garfield Hunt of Toronto left a large part of his $470,356 estate to his wife even though "she has consistently and persistently made my life as miserable as possible," his will probated Friday said.

Mr. Hunt, whose estate was valued at $1,000, died in November of the same year.

Most of the contents of his home, with the exception of a copy rend-tree for three months before it passes to his son, and the furniture from 39 per cent of the balance of his estate after other bequests, was left to his wife.

"My wife has not been a help and comfort and a moral support to me as a faithful wife should be," the will said.

TABERNACLE CHURCH

To honor their departing minister, his wife and family, the United Church Women of Tabernacle United Church held "open house" for Rev. M. McFarlane, Mrs. McFarlane and members of their family.

Receiving the guests at the doors of the auditorium were the president, Mrs. B. Salisbury and a past president, Mrs. J. Alchenson.

An attractively appointed buffet centred with a silver bowl of colorful spring flowers and lighted by candles in silver holders, held crystal dishes of dainty cakes flanked by silver services of tea and coffee. Guests served themselves informally.

Mrs. B. Salisbury introduced Mrs. L. Andrews, first president of the UCW, who called upon Mrs. McFarlane to accept the appreciation felt by all, for the splendid contribution she had made, not only in the ranks of the women but in the entire church life. In response to an appropriate gift, Mrs. Andrews expressed the hope it would serve always to remind Mr. McFarlane of their years in Tabernacle. In Mrs. McFarlane's reply she spoke of the joy she had had in working and serving in this church.

Mrs. Salisbury called upon three scouts representing the Sixth Belleville Scout Troop: Bruce Lajoie, Ralph Spencer and David Loil. Mr. McFarlane was asked to accept the gift of a suitably engraved tray from the troop.

The refreshment committee was under the convenership of Mrs. H. Burley and Mrs. L. Stenson and Mrs. R. Pearson were in charge of the tea and coffee.

Tranquil Atmosphere Marks Denmark's Bornholm Island

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

BORNHOLM, Denmark — Look at a map of Europe and all of Denmark that will catch your eye is the speckling of islands just jutting out of Germany.

But besides Zealand Denmark consists of nearly 500 islands, about 100 of them inhabited, including the one called Bornholm on which Copenhagen is situated. They range from the world's largest, Greenland, further west than Iceland, to one of the world's smallest, Bornholm, as far east as Sweden.

Only 48,000 farmers and fishermen live on the 100-mile-around island, but their numbers are swelled by 220,000 European tourists a year, as many as 80,000 of them in July alone. The Germans call it the "Mallorca of the North," the Scandinavians, "Scandinavia in a Nutshell." Any wandering North American finding his way here is sure to pigeonhole it as the Martha's Vineyard of Europe.

Overnight ferries make it in 10 hours from Copenhagen daily, while SAS makes it even more frequently by jet or prop flight. The Swedes and Germans come for the south shore beaches, the Finns and Poles for the pine country village tranquility that travellers go to the ends of the earth for, but rarely do these days. But twas not ever thus.

As long ago as 1200 Bornholm was a lovely feudal pearl of Baltic power. It was there that Archbishop of Lund raised Hammershus Castle on the northwest point of Bornholm above Sandvig, on the northeast tip of the island.

ONLY RUIN STANDS

For three centuries the Swedes and Danes had marauding Lubeckers from this massive bastion, a seemingly impregnable crenelled castle of great brick walls and moats that was truly unconquerable. It was never taken by assault or siege, but only after an island revolution were the Bornholmers able to take it back again. They promptly proceeded to dismantle most of the fortress for building bricks, and today only its ghostly ruin — one of the largest in northern Europe — stands today.

As late as World War II Bornholm knew strife. It was the only part of Denmark to be bombed, and the only corner of it to be occupied by Nazis. Though Denmark was between Germany's Scandinavia pendants and Sweden, the Nazis let Sweden alone, but their Bornholm-like armada was methodically flattened by Bornholm's and the Russians.

They stayed on the island for a year, but left a more impression than the Swedes, who stayed for 200, or the Danes who've been here for 1,000. It is still pure Bornholm, where the people speak their own dialect, and their greetings as delectable as the finest cavalier, make the most beautiful candidates for clocks in the world, and count their blessings — including money — from the tourists.

It is an island of tumbledown pastel houses out of Hans Christian Andersen scenes of tiny fishing villages accessible only by nominal roads, roses and white geraniums that bloom in the spring, windmills and bell towers, round churches and conical smokehouses, miles of wind-whipped sand dunes and forests full of pheasant and deer.

UNIQUE CHURCHES

The round churches of Bornholm are unique. Only a handful exist in Europe, and four of Denmark's six are here. Wholesome stone buildings with conical slate roofs, they were ingeniously designed as village defense points against the ever-threatening Lubeckers. They date back 700 years and are still in daily use.

The one at Nylars, near Rønne, is typical. The ground floor consists of two circular chambers with pews around the walls. One of the chambers is supported by a massive brick pillar 25 feet around and decorated with primitive thirteenth century frescoes. The altar is out of view of most of the second chamber. But a medieval public address system — five holes in the ceiling above the altar — make the acoustics perfect.

A narrow staircase (so attackers couldn't use their axes on a time) twists to the right (so attackers couldn't use their swords) to the upper chamber. Here the women and children could find sanctuary if they were isolated through the churches only window, a shot through that stone door, now sealed, offered an emergency escape route.

In the top chamber the men fought off the attackers through slits just large enough for arrowing arrows. The centuries old petrified oak beams still can be seen here vaulting up to support the dome.

The island's prime church, Aakirkeby, dates from the 12th century and houses one of Scandinavia's greatest art treasures. It is a sandstone baptismal font from Gotland Island, intricately carved by an unknown Romanesque artist who depicted the life of Christ and is remarkable also for some early Christian runic inscriptions.

Beautiful and original ceramics are a major industry of Bornholm and replicas of the font is a favored subject of souvenirhunters.

NOTHING MODERN

What delights visitors most of all about Bornholm is that virtually nothing is new and modern. The countrified hotels, with their grandfather clocks and antiques in the lounges, are called Queen Victoria's girlhood. Lacking bowling alleys and casinos, Bornholm is the place for the tourist who doesn't particularly want to do anything.

Maybe just go down to the village market, buy a herring, and sit on the dock and get your sunbathe as an isolated grassy dune at Dueodde Beach. Or pick around with an outboard in a boat drifting over a rocky sea bed. Or listen to the nightingales and sylvan harmonies. Or go for a swing in a Bornholm dialect.

Or marvel at the great cliffs of the north, at the rare and rare rosefish and guillemet in the bird sanctuary of Graesholm rock, at the prehistoric graves and rock engravings on the coast, mementoes of centuries Age and symbols of fertility rites. Or just admire the great half-timbered farm houses that are like heavy oak frames, tarred plinths, and thatched roofs. Or the little art colony at Gudhjem, whose picturebook redroofed houses set against the blue sea and dramatic rocks and tropical profusion of flowers impart an unmistakable Mediterranean look.

It wouldn't surprise us if SAS brought more people here than they take out.

Readers' Friday Column

ATTENTION: We have been receiving many requests for information on making sandwiches for receptions, particularly wedding. Following is a repeat of our April 16, 1966 column which has been circulated to hundreds of our readers.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING RECEPTION SANDWICHES

All of the amounts given here are for making dainty sandwiches for tea or reception.

TEA SANDWICHES

When estimating requirements for mixed receptions and parties, allow 2 slices bread or 3 or 4 small sandwiches per person For ladies' tea parties only, allow 3 slices bread or 2 or 3 small sandwiches per person.

BREAD:

A 24-ounce loaf will cut into 36 to 42 ¼" slices and 7 serve 24 to 28 adequately. Varieties: Plain Breads — white, cheese, cracked wheat, rye, pumpernickel — good with most fillings. Fancy Breads — consists of nut, raisin, banana, cheese, chocolate, date nut, fruit, oatmeal raisin — generally used for sweet-type fillings containing cheese, peanut butter, fruit, nuts, etc.

BUTTER:

Butter should be soft. Allow ½ to 1 teaspoon butter per slice of bread when crusts are to be left on, but only ½ to ¾ teaspoon when crusts are to be removed. (One pound butter contains 36 teaspoons or 32 tablespoons or 16 ounces.) Example: for regular sliced loaf containing 20 slices allow 10 to 20 teaspoons (5/8 to 2 ounces) butter, when crusts are to be left on. For 24 to 28 slices allow 12 to 24½ ounces) when crusts are to be removed.

FILLING:

For one 36-ounce loaf allow: 1 pound (1½ pounds) meat meat, chicken or fish spread (1 pound raw chicken including bone will yield about 1 cup diced cooked chicken) OR 1 doz. hardcooked eggs, for egg salad filling OR 2 cucumbers (approximately 16 ounces each) for slicing ¼" thick OR 1 to 1½ pounds cream cheese OR 5 to 6 ounces peanut butter, jam or jelly, or sandwich spread; or 1 medium head lettuce

Preparation Tips: Cut fresh bread carefully in even slices; lengthwise slices are especially recommended for pinwheels, sandwich loaves and fancy sandwiches made with shaped cutters. Remove crusts before spreading fancy shapes, but with ribbons and plain sandwiches trim crusts off after they are made.

Filling Suggestions: 1) To cooked minced ham add mayonnaise to make of spreading consistency and chopped celery or horseradish, grated or chopped dill pickle, onion, grated pepper, mustard or chopped olives, pickle, mustard or pickled pickle, or onion, mustard, horseradish. 2) To hard-cooked eggs add mayonnaise to make of better spreading consistency and chopped celery, onion, grated or chopped cucumber, green pepper, green onion or chopped green and sweet red pepper, grated onion or hard cheese spread, chopped bacon or watercress. 3) To soft cream cheese add chopped anchovies or crisp bacon and mayonnaise or chopped nuts and raisins or dates and mayonnaise or chopped preserved or candied ginger and mayonnaise. 4) To thinly sliced cheddar or process cheese add chopped salami, chili sauce or chopped smoked olives, walnuts and mayonnaise or sliced ham or tomato.

Duplicate Bridge Session

Duplicate bridge players will find that it never pays to be "master-dupper" for you do know that whenever, during the bidding, a player drops a card on the table so that the face of it can be seen, the Director must require every such card to be left face up on the table until the bidding closes? As to payment — if it is a single card below honor-rank, there is no penalty, and when the bidding closes, the card may be picked up; but, if it is a card of honor-rank, or if more than one card is exposed, the offender's partner must pass when next it is his turn to call, and if the offender finally becomes a declarer, the declarer may treat every dropped card as a penalty card.

In the matter of card-dropping, once the bidding is over, the declarer has the best of it. Declarer is not subject to penalty for exposing a card, and no card of Declarer or Dummy ever becomes a penalty card. Declarer is not required to play any card dropped accidentally.

Attendance at the last Duplicate Bridge was the best to date with 46 players out. Everyone is welcome to come and try the game. Next session is June 28th, 7.30, at the Golf Club.

Mother's Helper

by Mary Moore

MUSIC can be a bond for your family as well as a joy to the individual. You can't start too early to interest children—with simple musical toys and a children's record player. As they grow older, add instruments if necessary, to let them try their hand for the fun of it. Encourage them to join the school band. Above all, keep music FUN, not a discipline. Good luck! (Thanks to Mrs. Robert Swan, Topeka, Kansas) ★

U.C.W. Meetings

SALEM U.C.W.

CONSECON — Salem U.C.W. met at the home of Mrs. Helen Keens for the meeting. The president, Mrs. Carman O'Hara opened the meeting and Mrs. Robert Brownsdell reviewed a chapter of the study book. Mrs. Rex Weese gave the Bible study.

Several pairs of pillow cases were handed in. The bazaar and bake sale is to be held August 3, in Kingerley Hall in Consecon. It was decided to have an ice cream and cake social on June 25 in Salem Church.

The next meeting is to be held at Mrs. Arthur Weir's home.

Ann Landers

Acme Could Be Least Of Your Troubles

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I can't get mail at home because my mother has X-ray eyes that can read right through envelopes. If you know what I mean. Please answer immediately as I'm clutched.

I am 16 years old and my boy friend Hank is 17. What I need to know right away is if a girl can catch acne from a boy. We are on the verge of doing some rather heavy necking and I want to know what the risks are. Rush your advice as I have a date with Hank for Saturday night. — IN SEARCH OF INFORMATION.

DEAR IN SEARCH OF: No, you can't. ANN LANDERS not catch acne from Hank but other things can happen which would make acne seem like small potatoes. My advice to you is to cool it, Sister.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Too much pride can be deadly — as you have said so often in your column. I wish I had been wise enough to take your word for it because now I am choking on my pride.

A few years ago I was in love with a wonderful man. I know he loved me, too. He showed it in everything he said and did. He was kind and thoughtful and decent and greatly respected by everyone who knew him.

So what was my problem? He was about one inch shorter than I and of slight build. We never discussed it but I am sure I weighed more than he did.

I always wanted to marry a broad-shouldered, husky brute of a man — someone I could look up at. My girlhood dream was to be carried into the bedroom on my wedding night.

Well, I married a husky, handsome brute and now I realize that the little guy is a lot bigger than those husky brutes. Please print my letter for the benefit of others who haven't yet made the decision. — NEW HAVEN FOOL.

DEAR NEW HAVEN: Here's your letter and thank you for having written it. When the word comes from the person who has been there it packs a double wallop. Are you listening, students?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several years ago you said something in your column that I liked so much I cut it out and carried it in my wallet until it became yellowed with age and I could no longer read it. It was something like this: "Children need examples more than they need critics."

Our children were small then and both my husband and I tried to follow that advice. I am happy to say it has paid off.

Our two sons behave as much like their dad that it is comical. Of course it is flattering to dad when he sees his neighbors trying to imitate him. And I feel the same when my little girl, now seven, pretends she is me when she feeds her dolly.

I wish you would re-emphasize the importance of parents setting a good example for their children. We all need to be reminded of these homey truths from time to time. — LEARNED FROM YOU.

DEAR LEARNED: Since the clipping has been discarded I'd like to supply you with another one for your wallet. It expresses the same idea and the man who said it was Francis Quarles, way back in 1635.

"If thou desirest to see thy child virtuous, let him not see his father's vices. Examples direct more than precepts; and as thy behaviour is before thy children's faces, will their behaviour be behind your back!"

Pie crust tables were made in England and the United States. This mahogany pie crust table was made in London about 1750. The carved edge of the round top gives the table its name.

Pottery Pie Crust Made When Real Thing Scarce

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

Pie crust means food to some, pottery to others and a table style to the collector of furniture.

The pie crust pottery is a cane ware that looks like the flaky cooked dough that surrounds the filling of home baked pie. It is an unglazed ivories. Pie crust ware was used when making game pie dishes. A stew was placed in the dish. When it was served at the table it looked like a flaky, crusty stew pie.

The pottery was made during a flour shortage in England during the eighteenth century when real pie crusts could not be made.

The pie crust table is a round table on a pedestal leg. The top of the table is carved so that a fluted edge borders the round top. It was made just like the crust on the fruit pie that grandma used to make.

In a good pie crust table the edge is carved from a solid piece of wood that also forms the rounded top. Some later examples were made by adding extra carved wood to form the raised "crust." Pie crust tables were Chippendale in design. They were first made during the mid-eighteenth century.

Q. A hand-woven towel has been in my family for many years. The woven words "The Independence of the United States of America July 4, 1776 Washington elected President of the Federal Union March 1789. E Pluribus Unum," are woven in it. There are other symbols woven in the cloth. The towel has a red border.

A. Your towel is one of many that was made for the Centennial Exhibition in 1876. They are of interest to collectors.

Q. Is Duncan Miller and Baccarat the same company?

A. No! The Duncan and Miller Glass Company made a variety of American pressed glass patterns. George Duncan started making glass in Pittsburgh, Pa., about 1865. He worked for several companies bearing his name.

In 1891 he joined with his other firms to form the United States Glass Company. James Duncan, George's son, and Edwin Miller formed the Duncan and Miller Glass Company in Washington, Pa., in 1894. They made many patterns of clear and colored pressed glass and blown table ware.

Le Compagnie des Cristalleries de Baccarat was located about 150 miles from Paris, France, about 1765. The firm was taken over in 1822 by Mr. Goddard. His family still is running the factory. The Baccarat factory made lead glass for windows, mirrors, colored glass and paperweights. Today they have added many table wares to the line.

Be Prepared for Today

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

In a small town in New York, traffic officers put up a sign on a drive which wound through a park. It read: "This road does not lead anywhere very rapidly. If you are in a hurry, you are on the wrong road."

Thereby hangs a tell-tale sign of our times.

What makes Sammy, Johnny or Freddy run? They are all dressed up, going nowhere, yet obviously in a hurry to get there. The mad tempo of our lives is often but a cover-up for their lack of meaning; we insist on running long after the race has been lost. And the pity: We imagine ourselves the victors.

Possessing such strenuous and sometimes wild timetables, we soon discover that we have run out of time to do many good and happy things.

"I wish I had the time for that", we piously declaim when confronted with simple pleasures or duties. The unabashed truth is to the contrary: We do have time, we are bored by simplicity, we refuse to ride a slow road.

Time has a way of running out on us, playing tricks on even the most unsuspecting.

Too often we spend so much effort preparing for what's to come, that we never get to enjoy each day's blessings. A host of lives have been wasted anticipating the future without making the most of the "everlasting now." We need to learn how to look ahead, but never overlook today in looking over tomorrow.

Before we cross the tracks to our never-never land, we've got to stop, look and listen to the call of the hour here and now.

END WITH NOTHING

In search of the rainbow at the edge of the horizon, many a man has lost his way in life. For a man who is seeking everything ends up with nothing. He's never satisfied with something.

To illustrate, here is the story of a poor woman who you knows better. She received an egg as a gift for her sick child.

"Mother, may I eat the egg?" the boy cried out. "I'm hungry."

"No, my son," she replied. "We must keep an eye to the future. We'll keep the chicken until it grows and begins to lay eggs."

"Then we'll have lots of eggs to eat."

"No, not so fast", replied the mother. "We shall gather the eggs together and have our chicken sit on them until they all hatch into many more chickens."

"Then we'll really be able to eat chicken as often as we like, won't we, Mother?"

"Not if we are to think of the future. We will sell some of the chickens and buy a calf, which we will raise until it is a cow. Eventually the cow will have calves, some of which we will raise and sell to buy a field. Just imagine, my son, how rich we shall become! We'll have a field with cows, with calves, with chickens, and with eggs — and all from this one, small egg!"

The woman became so excited at the thought of future riches that she clapped her hands with joy. But, alas! — in so doing, she smashed the little egg.

Counting her chickens before they were hatched, she never got to enjoy what she did have. And thinking only of what we are going to do, we neglect to do what we should be doing. We've got to be prepared. Not for tomorrow alone, but for today as well.

So dream your dreams, pursue your visions, and set your sights high and wide. But don't never barter this day for another. Right now, it's all you have.

Lawn Art Exhibit Highlights C. W. L. Tea

On Wednesday afternoon, the beautiful home of Mrs. S. Kvarda, with its decor of white and gold, assumed a gala appearance for the annual tea and bake sale, under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League of St. Michael's parish.

In this delightful atmosphere, the many guests were warmly greeted by Mrs. S. Kvarda, hostess, Mrs. G. F. O'Brien, president of the League, and Mrs. R. E. Barrett, convener of the tea.

The attractively appointed tea table, with its silver services, and hand-made cloth with lace insertions, was centred with a silver rose bowl of summer flowers with various colored roses predominating, and flanked by tri-branched silver candelabra with candles of white and gold, in keeping with the color decor. On either end the centre, to the flower bedecked table were attractive guest tables with white linen cloths each centred with a giggle red or pink peony.

Tea hostesses, Mrs. H. Brown and Mrs A. J. Black invited guests to the art exhibit on the spacious lawn, in a beautiful setting, overlooking the Bay. This display of interesting paintings from James Lisbecq Gallery, Montreal, showed something for each individual taste, from representational to abstract art.

Pouring tea throughout the afternoon were: Mrs. J. E. Boyd, Mrs. E. G. Kennedy, Mrs. F. R. Ross and Mrs. J. R. Kelly.

Mrs. B. Logan and Mrs. D. E. Moran convened the tea room.

In charge of the homebaking table, with its bountiful supply of delicacies, were: Mrs. J. A. Boyle, Mrs. J. H. Morey, Mrs. W. J. Lynch and Mrs. F. McKay.

Mrs. A. Wilkinson and Mrs. E. D. Tomsett were in charge of admission.

The tea was convened by Mrs. J. V. Farrell, assisted by Mrs. T. Rawson, and Mrs. R. Croft was responsible for the delicious cups of tea. Other members of the organization served and replenished the dainty refreshments, or tended the various kitchen duties.

EXTEND THANKS

Appreciative thanks was extended to the hostess, Mrs. S. Kvarda, who so graciously opened her home, to Mrs. R. E. Barrett, over-all convener for this event, to Mrs. F. Domenico for the exquisite flower arrangements, and to everyone who assisted in any way.

A Lift for Living

Belief Is the Root of Life And Action Is the Blossom

By REV. HAROLD E. KOBN

A few days ago I was invited into a living room where I was shown a bouquet of yellow lady slippers, which are members of the orchid family of flowers spread widely over North America. Only a few hours before these shy, lovely blossoms had nodded in the moist breath of cool woodland breezes. Then some intruder had invaded the hiding place of these wild flowers and had plucked them from their roots. Almost as soon as they were picked, these shining beauties began to lose their freshness and grace and started to wilt and wither. Before many hours had passed, the yellow ladyslippers were but poor, brown mementoes of the bright blazes of wild grace that once had warmed a wooded glade.

One of the prevailing fallacies of our time is that we can sustain blossoms and keep them alive and fresh without their roots. This is especially so concerning a so-called "Christian civilization." Many would like to believe that such a civilization can flower and remain vital without being rooted in Christian beliefs. This is impossible! How can a civilization based upon continuing struggle for moral responsibility, justice, peace and goodwill among men, survive if it is cut off from its roots? Such roots are beliefs that every person everywhere is a child of God and should be treated as God's child.

A civilization is more than a dynamos, machines, skyscrapers industry, commerces and competition, compassion for the poor and the mistreated. Civilization is a state of mind and spirit that produces these things. The material and spiritual advantages of our generation will at last be doomed if severed from the beliefs that make them impossible.

If our social order is to be in any degree Christian, it can only be because it is based upon compelling material things to serve the spirit of man rather than seducing the spirit to serve material things. Apart from Christian insight and belief there can be no Christian action or social order.

Psychologist Henry C. Link once said, "All the material advantages of our civilization conspire to make our lives easier and our characters weaker." Being "better off" does not mean we are really better. If we produce and increase wealth without a growing wisdom, identification of human contacts without deepening human understanding, bigger weapons without greater determination to help rather than hurt, then all the blossoms of "Christian" civilization are doomed to die because they are cut off from the roots that sustain them.

Our great fear today is not of guided missiles, but of misguided men. A better tomorrow will depend upon better men and women for tomorrow. And better men and women will depend upon better beliefs.

What we have just said about civilization is true also of one's individual life and character. Occasionally we hear someone say, "What does it matter what we believe, as long as we do what is right?" Of course it matters, precisely because what we do rises from what we believe. Belief is the root of action.

Dr. Samuel Johnson was once told that an acquaintance of his, a renowned cynic, had loudly professed to see no difference between virtue and vice. Dr. Johnson was astonished at the man's beliefs, and advised, "If he does really think there is no distinction between virtue and vice, why sir, when he leaves our houses let us count our spoons!" Dr. Johnson's precautions were well taken. We tend to act out what we really believe. Belief is the root of life. Action is the blossom.

The roots of Christian conduct are in Christian belief and dedication. If we want to improve conduct we must begin by improving the qualities of the basic beliefs to which we are committed. We must be like the alfalfa plant, which many farmers use for hay; it sends its roots deeper than almost any other cultivated crop. An alfalfa plant only two- or three-feet high has been known to extend its roots to a depth of fifty feet in search of nutriment. It is this tendency toward long roots that makes alfalfa a good soil builder and enables it to survive drought. Its greenness and vitality depend upon its roots.

If we want our spirits to survive the blighting effects of foul moods, anxiety, brief spells of unhappiness, and the temptations of a growing materialism in society, we must send our roots deep into the nourishing, vitalizing convictions that God is good, that He cares, that He is near, and that in Christ He gives all the light to live by that we shall ever need.

Stories of Famous Hymns

By HORACE R. POWELL

FATHER OF ALL, FROM LAND AND SEA

Father of all, from land and sea,
The nations sing: "Thine, Lord, are we;
Countless in number, but in Thee
May we be one."

O Son of God, whose love as free
For men died make Thee Man to be United to our God in Thee,
May we be one.

Join high with low, join young with old,
In love that never waxes cold;
Under one Shepherd, in one fold,
Make us all one.

O Spirit blest, who from above
Each at, gently gliding like a dove
Calm all our strife, give faith and love;
Oh make us one.

A church congress was being held at Nottingham, England in 1871 and Bishop Christopher Wordsworth, nephew of the distinguished poet, William Wordsworth, wrote a lengthy hymn poem to read before the assembly. The stanzas of this hymn were taken from that poem.

Bishop Wordsworth was a brilliant Cambridge scholar, athlete and poet. For 19 years he served as minister of a country parish and in 1868 was made bishop of Lincoln. He was a busy writer of prose, too, and published an entire commentary on the Bible. Commenting on his hymn-writing, he once said that "the first duty of a hymn is to teach sound doctrine, and thus save souls."

Lighting the Way

By Walter S. Crane

LITTLE THINGS ARE BIG

A Pan American jet was taking off from Merida, Mexico. A buzzard was sucked into the jet's motor, forcing the pilot to return for a landing. The plane blew out two tires on landing, and Pan American had to put up passengers in a local hotel while it sent for a new engine. Including the loss of operating time, it was estimated that the airline would be out $150,000 in all.

Today, we are so impressed by things because they are big, that someone has said "Jumbo" has become our national religion!" Big populations, big production, big profits, big numbers, all these command our admiration. We forget sometimes that a dollar is made of pennies, a beautiful tapestry is made of little threads, and a refreshing shower is made of little drops. Gunpowder was discovered from the falling of a spark on some materials mixed in a mortar. Little things are hinges on which turn the doors of destiny.

It may only be a smile, a warm handshake, a little thoughtfulness, a kindly understanding word, or even a little postcard, but it could shine someone feet that, after all, life is worth living.

Large Number Attend Two Openings

NAPANEE — It is estimated that over half the people living in Richmond Township turned out for the official opening or the two new schools early this week. Robert Brown, chairman of the area board chaired the meeting at each school, the school near the hospital at 7:30 and the other near Selby an hour later.

A. Douglas Alkenbrack, member of the Federal House for Prince Edward-Lennox, cut the ribbon in each school signifying of his personal connection with Richmond schools. He had passed his entrance examination, as it was then called, as a pupil of one Morley Oliver, trustee for 30 years, was also a member of that class, of the 15 one-room schools now closed. Other speakers were Norris Whitney of Consecon, member for the riding at the provincial legislature, and William Hood, assistant superintendent of education in Ontario, who was the guest speaker.

All members of the area Board attended, as well as Reeve Manley Hart and most of the councillors.

PRAISED FOR EFFORTS

Chairman Brown praised the efforts of all who had participated in bringing about this major change in the method of education the children of the township Secretary-treasurer Clayton Doyle, inspector Paul Anderson and the predecessor, the late H. H. Langford, were singled out for official commendation.

W. R. Doubleday of Kingston, on behalf of the Public School Trustees' Association, presented a Bible to each of the principals, Harry Rand of the Slash Road School and Fred Simmons of the school near Selby.

Mr. Wood spoke of the rapid changes taking place in education, predicting that these changes would accelerate. There would be greater use of television in schools, he said. To keep pace with these changes teachers must keep improving themselves. He foresaw the day when a university degree would be required of every public school teacher.

UCW Sponsor Strawberry, Ice Cream Social

DESERONTO — The evening unit of the Deseronto U.C.W. led off Thursday with the first of the parade of strawberry socials advertised for this area within the next week or so. It was a success with the eight small tables never empty from 6:30 to 8. Ice cream and delicious cake accompanied the berries, with tea for the adults, and cold drinks for the many children.

Rose baskets of garden flowers enhanced the festive atmosphere, with peonies and mock orange blossoms predominating. A single pink rose in a rose bowl was at the centre of each table.

The sale tables were soon cleared off, especially the one where tasty cakes and pies, cookies and tarts, were on display. Mrs. Percy VanVlack, Mrs. Herbert Aylsworth and Mrs. Ezzel Vanderwater were kept busy.

Mrs. Sidney Brown and Mrs. Ada Boyce were in charge at the variety table, and Mrs. Nellie Robertson of the table where the shopper found that somebody else's white elephant was exactly what she herself had been looking for.

Mrs. Gladys Gould was the leader for Thursday's successful event.

GO ON TRIAL

LISBON, Portugal (Reuters) Forty-nine Jehova's Witnesses went on trial Thursday charged with offences against the internal security of the state. The indictment brought against the 28 women and 34 men alleges five sect constitutes a political movement aimed at agitation and subversion of the masses.

Many Items Dealt With at School Meet

TYENDINAGA RESERVE—The final meeting for the year of teachers, school committees, and superintendent M. W. McCracken of the Tyendinaga Reserve, was held this week in the Quinte-Mohawk School.

Chief problem to be solved was the distribution of pupils of the three one-room schools, so that overcrowding in two of them would be relieved. Mrs. Emily Mowitt has had 13 pupils this year, while Mrs. Ethel Hazard reported an enrolment of 26 at the Eastern School and Mrs. Bordey Elliott had 23 registered. Certain pupils now registered in the two overcrowded schools were selected to attend the Western School next year. The first three grades are taught in these schools.

The Quinte-Mohawk School has four classrooms, with one of them occupied by an opportunity class taught by Mrs. H. W. Reibbon. Howard Allen is the principal and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Claus complete the staff. Mr. Allen has recently been named supervising principal of all four schools. The appointment was made by Howard Smith, superintendent of Indian education for Ontario and M. W. McCracken, superintendent of the Reserve. This school had a registration of 126 at the end of May.

The meeting committee roughly corresponde to the board of trustees in schools outside the Reserves. They deal with many local matters, and arranging for transportation is one of the most important.

Members of the present committee are: Mrs. Carl (Shirley) Brant, Mrs. Donald (Phyllis) Green, Mrs. Kenneth (Joan) Maracle, Mrs. William Arthur (Margaret) Brant, and Mrs. Earl (Lorraine) Hill.

Field day for all four schools will be at the Quinte-Mohawk School Tuesday, June 26, it was decided at the meeting.

The Quinte-Mohawk School has rooms equipped for teaching household science and shop work.

Court Upholds Conviction Of Art Dealer

TORONTO (CP) — Conviction of former art dealer Dorothy Cameron on a charge of exposing obscene pictures was upheld unanimously by the Ontario Court of Appeal.

Her lawyer, Meredith Fleming, says he has tried in vain to persuade his client to appeal the case to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Miss Cameron, who closed her Toronto gallery after the charges were laid, was fined $350 Nov. 25, 1965 by Magistrate F. C. Haynes.

Revision

the interest ceiling prevents them from competing effectively with trust and loan companies. Lifting the ceiling would enable the banks to pay more in interest to depositors, and let them participate in National Housing Act mortgage lending as well.

But a group generally outside the cabinet, including Mr. Gordon and Mr. Lamontagne, have argued strenuously for retaining the six-per-cent ceiling. Their view is that removing the ceiling will brand the Liberal party as a high-interest money party.

The issues were narrowed two weeks ago, after being threshed out in the Liberal party's Parliament caucus. A compromise formula was reported to have been reached in cabinet a week ago Thursday.

Last Monday the advance resolution preceding introduction of the amending Bank Act bill appeared on the Commons order paper.

On Wednesday Works Minister Mcilraith, government House leader, told the Commons the bill would be brought up for preliminary debate next Monday.

Sometime Thursday, the decision was made not to proceed Monday, but to postpone the measure to an indefinite date.

As one source described it, it apparently was a decision not to decide finally to proceed.

Observers see the situation now as forcing a serious test of prestige and authority on Mr. Sharp.

before it can be considered for government license.

Mumps, generally a mild disease, sometimes leads to serious complications, especially in adults.

These include meningo - encephalitis which occasionally is fatal or which may produce permanent mental damage; deafness, and involvement of the testa with impaired fertility. Mumps infections may also involve the eyes, heart, or pancreas gland.

Mumps vaccines containing killed virus are available, but have "even only limited use because of the short term of the immunity induced," Dr. Hillerman said.

SUGAR OUTPUT DROPS

HAVANA (AP)—A total of 4,452,788 tons of sugar has been produced in Cuba this year, a big drop from 1965, officials reported Friday. The year's production is nearly complete. Last year, the output was slightly more than 6,000,000 tons. The goal for this year was 6,500,000, but production was drastically cut by bad weather.

The pact calls for 132,000,000 bushels of wheat to be shipped to the Soviet Union in the first year of the agreement, July 31, 1968 to Aug. 1, 1967.

The award of this contract, plus the possibility of others, brought highs to two major uranium issues during the week.

Denison climbed ¼ to 54¾, and touched a high of 55¼ Friday. Its subsidiary Roman Crop. gained ½ to 31¾, after touching its high of 22¼, also on Friday. Rio Algom was ahead 2¼ at 39¼.

By Geo. H. Carver

Has George Chuvalo's sojourn "among the stars" of boredom come to an end or will he continue trying to convince people that he has a potential that so far he has failed to produce?

He has been defeated his last three times out of four with the John win registered against mediocre opposition.

Twice he rose to the heights and twice he fell, figuratively, into the lower levels.

Self-appraisal of an athlete's effort has never yet won a fortune or a good medal. On two occasions Chuvalo has pest-mortemed "I thought I won the fight." After that four-hay ballot with Boxcaverie Wednesday night Chuvalo used to another reason. "It was not one of my best fights."

His managerial post-fight squawks, usually, with the exception of the Clay hoop-de-do, are unreasonable facsimiles of the famous ring classic "We Was Robbed."

I saw the Clay Caper live. I witnessed the Terrell foxtrot via the idiot box. I ogled the Patterson party on the movies. And read about the South American chachas in the public prints.

And I am yet to be convinced that Chuvalo carries a solid knockout punch in either fist. In all fairness to the lad it should be said that every opponent to three of his opponents in the fights mentioned. The exception is Patterson.

The only thing Chuvalo retrieved from any of these ring misfortunes in his repertoire of fist saver having been knocked off his feet. The South American crooner can claim the only near-miss when he rocked Chuvalo to a 45-degree angle in the second round.

In each of the three fights I saw Chuvalo engage in he used the same battering-ram bull-head tactics. Nothing fancy, head lowered. Whether the Chuvalo brain-bust believes this would eventually prove a winning attack or whether Chuvalo refuses to change his style, your guess is as good as mine.

This repeated similarity of offence is duck-soup for the boards of directors of any opponent of Chuvalo. All they need is the movie film — and they can plan their fight planning for months in advance.

Chuvalo may "think" after the fights that he won, but his thinking is not restricted to post-bout opinions. He "thinks" while he is battling — and thinks so hard he is, so to speak, deaf to anything else going on, such as ringside instructions from his coterie of advisors.

This was demonstrated clearly at the Clay-Chuvalo fight in Toronto earlier in the year. I sat in the ringside press row with Vic Bagnato an old buddy and a boxing expert of repute.

Vic was, and is, a solid Chuvalo supporter but unlike some boxing experts I know, uses a sense of fairness in all his opinions.

In a pre-fight chat Vic told me he did not expect to see Chuvalo win, but "he'll give Clay a great fight and chase him to a close decision." Vic was not too far off the track.

"One thing" about George" said Vic, "is that he concentrates on one man and he is doing — and he is doing what he is doing his own way. He won't listen to his seconds instructions."

He was right. On two occasions Chuvalo had "Clay the ropes but when his bull-doser attacks but failed to follow up his advantage.

"Go after him — go after him" screamed his corner. They were just wasting their breath.

With his defeat at the hands of Sonavesa a bitter blow to his hopes, Chuvalo may be headed, as they say in the trade, back to the drawing board. After all the Argentinian "Beatle" doesn't rate too highly in boxing's pho's, outside of South America. In fact few but ever heard of him.

Perhaps Chuvalo missed the boat when he failed to take guitar lessons, develop a rock-and-roll caterwaul, and learn the frug and watusi. Maybe Vic Bagnato can round him up a combo.

Pitcher Was Walk Away From Perfection

Terry McTaggart came within one walk of a perfect game in an E.O.B.A. bantam contest at Park Dale last night.

He buried a no-hit shutout over Frankford for Belleville Ellis', striking out 12 en route to his 10-0 seven-inning triumph.

The winners notched two runs in the first, one in the second and fourth, two in the fifth, and four in the sixth to give McTaggart more than enough support.

B. Cook, W. Kemp, and Fox toiled on the losers' mound. They walked eight, walked six and gave up ten hits.

Paul Hall slammed a home run for Ellis', Brian Coughlin stroked two safeties, Steve Moore had three, and Mike Healey hit a pair. Terry Macgher and Jim Parks each doubled.

In E.O.B.A. play this weekend, Oshawa pewwees will play two games here Sunday, against Lions Club at 1:00 p.m. and against Holy Rosary at 3:00 p.m., both at Park Dale. The second game is moved up from July 3.

Belleville Midgets play a postponed game in Peterborough Monday, at 8:00 p.m., while next Friday's bantam tilt, Ellis' at Whitby, has been postponed. The Belleville club is playing in a tournament at Chesley that day.

"Rock" Blasts; Indians Little Help

By MIKE RATHER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Rock still is rolling.

Continuing a homer assault that began Wednesday, Rocky Colavito fired a two-run blast to astro for Cleveland Indians Friday night and now has collected six in his last four games while hitting his total for the season to 16.

The Indians, however, have been unable to give Colavito much assistance and have split the four games, bowing to Kansas City Athletics' 15-hit attack, 7-4, while their slugging outfielder put on his latest one-man show.

Colavito began flexing his muscles in Fenway Park when he slammed three homers in Wednesday's doubleheader. He added one more against the Red Sox Thursday, then moved his show back to Cleveland and more spacious Municipal Stadium.

But Rocky continued to roll, driving in all of the Indians' runs with a solo homer in the fourth inning, a three-run shot in the seventh and a run-producing single in the ninth.

The loss left the third-place Indians three games behind the American League-leading Baltimore Orioles, who beat Chicago Minnesota Angels 5-4 in 14 innings. Second - place Detroit Tigers closed to within ½ of the lead with a split, beating Minnesota Twins 3-1 and losing 9-2.

Elsewhere, New York Yankees whipped Chicago White Sox 5-3 and Boston Red Sox bested Washington Senators 4-3.

Mike Hershberger collected three key hits as the Athletics overcame Colavito's 4 for 4 hammering. Hershberger contributed a run-producing double in a four-run uprising in the sixth inning, then singled in the game-winning tally in Kansas City added single runs in each inning.

The Angels ended a four-hour, 31-minute marathon by pushing across a run against the Orioles in the 14th on singles by Joe Adcock and Rick Reichardt, a walk to Paul Schaal and a single by Tom Satriano.

The Orioles had played catch up most of the game, twice putting into ties on homers, by Boog Powell and Paul Blair.

TIGERS STRIKE

The Tigers were held to one hit for eight innings by Jim Kaat and Al Worthington in the opener but struck for the winning run in the ninth on four singles, the last by Bill Freehan.

The Twins came back in the nightcap and broke Detroit's six-game winning streak behind Zoilo Versalles, who drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a single, and Jerry Zimmerman, who knocked in three with a double.

Elston Howard hit the first grand-slam homer of his 12-year career to power the Yankees to eighth inning off Juan Pizarro, powering the Yankees to their second San Francisco Giants 12-4 for their seventh straight victory.

The winning streak constitutes half of the victory total this season for Ellis, who has been a starter and reliever to keep him out of the bullpen—a place he doesn't mind having visited but one he doesn't want to stay in.

As a relief pitcher in 1964, Ellis compiled a 1-3 record. Reds' manager Don Heffner removed him in that job two weeks ago in hopes that the 25-year - old righthander would start pitching well again.

DIDN'T LIKE IT

"He got too much enjoyment out of his release from the bullpen last year.

"I liked the job. It was interesting," Ellis said of his relief role. "I just didn't like it will decrease my longevity.

"I want to be around 10 or 15 years — and three or four and wind up carrying a lunch pail. I don't want any part of it."

His two straight victories have come in the winning streak that has vaulted the Red Sox a sixth-place tie in the National League, only one game under .500.

Elsewhere in the National League Dodgers blanked Atlanta Braves 4-0, Pittsburgh Pirates toppled Philadelphia Phillies 4-3, Houston Astros defeated St. Louis Cardinals 5-4 and New York Mets stopped Chicago Cubs 4-2.

STOPS GIANTS

Ellis stopped the first-place Giants on a five-hitter through 8½ out until the eighth when Don Mason homered. John Edwards led off the inning with a pair of singles while Deron Johnson knocked in three and Tommy Harper two.

Clocke Ortoon held Atlanta to four hits in eight innings and triggered Los Angeles' four-run eighth with a single.

Wood Vean outdueled Philadelphia's Jim Bunning, allowing the Phillies only five hits. He was backed by Pittsburgh homers by Roberto Clemente, Jose Gondor and Willie Stargell.

Houston's Dave Nicholson drove in a run with a triple and scored the winner against St. Louis.

Ron Taves broke a 3d tie for New York with a seventh-inning homer, then added a run-scoring single in the ninth. Bob Friend gained his first victory as a Met.

Sammy Ellis, who pitched himself back into his old job two weeks ago, apparently is looking it again.

Ellis, an ace reliever two years ago who became a 20-game winner as a starter last year, hurled his second straight game Friday night as Cincinnati Reds beat San Francisco Giants 12-4 for their seventh straight victory.

The winning streak constitutes half of the victory total this season for Ellis, who has been a starter and reliever to keep him out of the bullpen—a place he doesn't mind having.

Percival Says No

Pro Or No—That Is The Question

TORONTO (CP)—The executive of Toronto's Don Mills Track Club has asked the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada to define a professional while refusing, in the meantime, to dispense with the services of coach Lloyd Percival.

The Central Ontario branch of the AAUC Thursday ruled that the Don Mills club cannot use the services of a professional coach again.

Percival, coach of the club for 10 years, was charged last month with administering drugs to his athletes for the purpose of improving their performances.

The Central Ontario branch also suspended for two weeks athletes Nanky McCredie of Brampton, Ont., Susan Nigh and Peter Boag of Toronto along with coach Bob Meldrum of Turonto for taking drugs while members of the Don Mills club. Bill Lisby, secretary of the club, Friday night released the text of a telegram to Lloyd Stinson of Saskatoon, president of the AAUC, asking for an official definition of a professional coach.

Percival arrived in Toronto from New York Friday and said he was meeting with his lawyers today.

"The Don Mills Track Club received a telegram today telling them to get rid of their professional coach, but they're going to be surprised when they discuss it at a meeting tonight because they won't be able to find a professional coach," said Percival, who denies the charges against him.

"I never took a cent for being their coach. It was just a hobby."

The Grunt-and-Groaners

One 'Golden Boy' Less

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

The only "Golden Boy" left in Quaint-and-Queer here is Rocky Hull but it took a "two-speed referee" and a lucky Terry Garvin to down Golden Boy Dupree in last night's wrestling challenge match.

Garvin and Dupree hooked up in the no-time limit affair with the loser vowing to leave the district.

They threw everything at each other but the pretty referee, one "Doc" Halliday.

Garvin launched a surprise attack before the bell and beat Dupree into the mat, from behind in just 31 seconds of the first fall.

Dupree came back for blood in the second and had it on Garvin's head, when he finally trapped running-boy in the ring. Dupree gave Terry plenty of his own medicine, with boot, fist and ring post to even the affair in six minutes.

Garvin was too beat to leave the ring and Golden Boy gave him more of the same in the heated windup. Dupree showed no mercy and had his man all but cold.

Four times he fell across his outstretched opponent for seconds on end but Halliday, a very slow motion, never counted past two.

Then it happened. In a crash off the ropes, Garvin landed on top and the "Doc" switched into second as fast it would shame some of the local bootrodders with four-on-the-floor.

Dupree was counted in nothing flat and "Terrible" Terry Garvin gets to stay. The crowd undoubtedly hopes Hall's day does not.

The official also drew the "Doc" query in the ring for a mixed tag team pitting villians Don Jung and midget Frenchy Lamonte against Cowsin Bill Williams and midget Roger Littlebrook.

It was a two-on-one affair most of the night with the "good guy" getting the final fall when Littlebrook pinned Juan, allowing the battered Williams to make the pin. Justice was served, Juan had bared Littlebrook with a punch in the stomach, while he was pinning the snapping Lamonte, to win the first.

The fans completely circled the ring watching a few kicks from Juan and Lamonte, and were warned several times to be quiet by referee Halliday. The grunt-and-groaners did not get out of the ring from the first fall on.

Littlebrook gave them a beating in the second, ditto for Roger over Frenchy and Littlebrook pinned the latter when it.

Earlier, in a light matches, Williams disposed of Juan but Lamonte topped Littlebrook in another of those zany midget affairs that the crowd loved.

The next matches next Friday, the Kentucky HillBillies are slated to headline the July 4 card here.

To Him Who Waits, Says Aaron

Everything Comes - A Lot Of It Goes

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Patience is paying off for Hank Aaron, latest threat to home-run records in the major baseball leagues.

Aaron's row to make a strong showing in Atlanta Braves' first season in the South hasn't hurt the 32-year-old Negro slugger, either.

"I'm a better hitter this year because I'm waiting for my pitches," Aaron said in explaining his explosive start in which he slammed 24 home runs and drove in 60 runs in his first 66 games.

"I used to hit too many bad balls."

"I'm striking out a lot more because some times the pitch-ers throw me without ever touching my pitch," said Aaron, who fanned 38 times during the 66-game stretch.

He leads the National League in runs driven in and both major leagues in home runs. Only one more home run to become the first National League player to hit 25 through June 20.

Aaron's home-run pace, fastest in National League history, is still shy of Roger Maris and Babe Ruth, American League single-season record holders.

Ruth hit his 24th homer in his 60th game in 1927 when he batted .356 and the Yankees Maris slammed his 24th in his 62nd game in 1961 when he wound up with 61 for the Yanks.

Aaron had hit his highest batting average of any active big league player going into the 1966 season with .320, and never has hit less than 24 home runs since his rookie season in 1954.

He holds numerous National League batting records and is a sure-fingered right fielder although he does not put on the breathtaking shows of a Willie Mays on defense.

"This year I wanted to get off to a good start because we were in a new town for the first time. All of the guys on the team did, but some of them pressed so much it hurt them.

"Playing in Georgia hasn't bothered me one bit."

He and his wife, Barbara, and their four children moved last week into a spacious brick home on a large wooded lot in an integrated neighborhood in Atlanta's suburbs.

Cooper Drops To Second

Two Share Lead In Western

CHICAGO (AP) — Homers by Bunker and Kermit Zarley, two former golf team-mates at the University of Houston, shot the two-under-par 70s they each day to share the second-round lead in the $100,000 Western Open.

Their halfway total of 140, two under par for the distance on the Medinah Country Club's No. 3 course, put the former collegiate stars one stroke ahead of U.S. Open champion Billy Casper.

Casper, a defending Western open champion, slackened to a one-over-par 72 after an opening 67 for 141.

Bunker was one stroke ahead of Tommy Bolt, the first-round leaders, and Arnold Palmer, trying to make off the streets of his collapse before the rallying Casper in the U.S. Open next weekend.

Palmer produced one of the day's only four sub-par rounds with a fast-finishing 70 for his 142 total.

The others tied with Bolt and Palmer at 142 were former U.S. open champion Ken Venturi and British open champion Tony Lema with one-under-par 70 and 71, respectively, and Jack Mc-

Gowan, who shot his second successive 71.

Multi-Million Sports Centre

Govt. Hot; Amateurs Warming Up

OTTAWA (CP)—A lobby with a difference is evolving around the idea for a multi-million-dollar sports training centre for Canada.

Lobbyists usually are directed at federal authorities. In this case, the reverse is true: Government employees are trying to fight a fire under amateur sports officials in an effort to create some enthusiasm for the project.

Their efforts appear successful. Magistrate Mervin Ferguson in Vancouver, president of the Canadian Amateur Sports Federation, has announced his intention to call a meeting of the leaders of 40 or more sports governing bodies sometime in the fall with sports centre the only topic of discussion.

Officials of the health department's fitness and amateur sports directorate have been told on the idea since Judy LaMarsh, then health minister, returned from Europe with flowing accounts of similar centres there.

Three times the matter has been put on meetings of the Canadian Amateur Sports Federation. Each time the project was given unanimous, if lukewarm, approval. Last winter federation delegates endorsed a feasibility study suggested by the fitness directorate.

Although the study is not yet under way, sports bodies found themselves criticized because they weren't jumping for joy over the possibilities of rent-free headquarters in a central location, building complex of offices staff and a training grounds.

In general, sports leaders could say the idea is not new. They discussed it long before the fitness directorate came into existence and called for government consideration of it. With the creation of the fitness council, they've been looking to the council for leadership.

They also could point out that little money now with a pair of singles while Deron Johnson knocked in three and Tommy government will have over the centre and thus over the sports themselves.

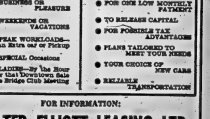
Health department officials say the centre, as they want it, would cost about $7,000,000. The site mentioned has been Gatineau Park near Ottawa which has many natural sport facilities.

With the fitness council directorate fired up, the sports people now are being called upon to yell for the centre.



A spokesman for Health Minister MacEachen said he agrees with criticism of the sports federation for not trying to lend the minister's ear more. The minister heard from it only after its annual meeting. Mr. MacEachen had an open mind on the issue and wants more information before going in bat for it in cabinet.

John Gary Had Long Road To Travel in Comeback

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — John Gary is excited about his career, when associates comment on it, "isn't it great, now that you're an overnight success?"

A success he is—but in the night club and on disc, starring for the Columbia Broadcasting System this summer on the John Gary Show, replacing Danny Kaye.

Overnight? Forget it. John, now 33, was singing to huge audiences at an age when most boys are playing little league. His splendid soprano won him a singing scholarship in New York at the age of nine, and he came on up the river from his home in New Orleans.

Later John was singing in Ken Murray's Blackouts show in Hollywood.

VOICED CRACKED

"I was in the show for a year and a half," he recalled. "Then one night I was singing When Irish Eyes are Smiling at Willie Wilson and my voice cracked. I lost my soprano and my career at the same time."

Later he learned to sing again by studying the records of Tony Bennett, Vic Damone, Perry Como and others.

John's career was going well until he encountered rock 'n' roll. He figured he couldn't survive amid such dissonance and so went into the salvage business in New Orleans.

"What lured me back was seeing Mitch Miller, Jack Jones, Andy Williams and Robert Goulet make it in the record field," he said. "I figured there might be a chance for me."

He accord well in clubs and his rendition of Danny Boy was heard by an executive of the Kaye show. That led to three guest shots with Kaye last season. During the last season, Gary appeared nine times as part of the plan to groom him for the summer takeover.

At the Belle

"THE TROUBLE WITH ANGELS"

Rosalind Russell, who, despite her many other brilliant performances, seems to be tabbed as Auntie Mamie, that preposterous uttering of bon mots and high priestess of the ultra-drawing room set, makes a brilliant departure from that characterization in "The Trouble With Angels," now showing at the Belle Theatre, in Technicolor. She plays the Mother Superior of a convent school, a strict disciplinarian, sympathetically understanding of the high spirits and prankish behavior of some of her adolescent charges.

And Hayley Mills, who was that oh-so-cute Pollyanna, co-stars in the new Columbia pictures release as the most undisciplined, prankish and troublesome of the school's rudest body.

The combination and the changes of pace are infectious indeed.

"The Trouble with Angels" is sheer, heart-warming delight.

The Misses Russell and Mills, aided by a brilliant company of talented players, a fine script and a superb director, make "The Trouble With Angels," one of the year's better comedies, a picture well worth seeing again.

Also starred in the film, which was directed by actress-writer-director Ida Lupino are Binnie Barnes, Gypsy Rose Lee, Camilla Sparv, Mary Wickes and June Harding as Rachel Miss Harding, from Broadway and television, is a youngster's delight as Hayley's devout follower, always ready for additional conflict with the Mother Superior, who manages to out-smart and outmaneuver her rambunctious charges much to the times of them, and to enjoy them all the time.

Miss Hartes' return to the screen after a long absence is indeed felicitious, she appears as a nun whose teachers must lead the student band, with cotton plugs in her ears so she need not hear the noise they make. Miss Sparv, one of America's most successful "cover girls," appears as the nun whom her students call "The flawless beauty" and Miss Wickes, as a gym instructor whose near-stated tensile shoes contributes to her awkwardness. Gypsy Rose Lee is not a nun in the film; she does play an eccentric instructor of interpretive dancing.

Odds Say Plate One-Horse Race

Eleven Start

By JIM CREAR

TORONTO (CP) —The 107th running of the Queen's Plate carries a record $80,175 purse, but the owners of favored Tilled Hero won't end up with anything like a record share of it—if Tilled Hero lives up to just about every experts prediction.

Eleven horses go to the post today for the 1¼ mile test for Canadian three-year-olds but as far as the oddsmakers are concerned, it's a one-horse race.

Tilled Hero, owned by Peter Marshall of Toronto and ridden by Cobart Avelino Gomez, started the day at odds of 2 to 5. Only Northern Dancer, the 1964 winner of the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Queen's Plate, had shorter morning line odds. He was 1 to 9 on the morning of his plate triumph.

But Northern Dancer didn't produce the smallest payoff. Shortest - price winners in the plate's history were Horometer in 1934 and Victoria Park in 1960. Hatometer returned $2.10, $2.05 and $2.05 and Victoria Park $2.10, $2.20 and $2.10.

The $80,175 purse breaks the former mark of $80,029 in 1963. But even if Tilled Hero comes through as expected, he won't be the biggest plate winner. Canebora, the 1961 winner, collected $84,830 as his share. First place today is worth $52,113.75.

SECOND'S WORTH $18,625

Second - place finisher gets $16,035, third place is worth $8,017.50 and fourth place $4,008.75.

The winning owner will also receive a bank draft for 50 gold sovereigns, a traditional gift from the Queen, and a small gold cup valued at $3,000.

With clear skies and temperatures in the high 80's forecast, the crowd could top 30,000.

The race, starting at 5:12 p.m. EDT, will be carried by CBC television and radio.

Gomez, among the top 10 jockeys in North America with more than 3,000 winners, will be after his third plate victory. He won on Victoria Park in 1960 and Lyford Cay in 1957. Both horses were owned by Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor. Only five jockeys have won the plate three times since it was first run in 1860.

Taylor, who sold Tilled Hero to Marshall for $15,000 as a yearling, has owned nine of the last 17 plate winners and has a horse in today's field, Arctic Troops, third choice at 8 to 1 and ridden by German - born Hugo Dittfach, formerly of Calgary.

Second choice in a field regarded as one of the weakest in years is Bright Monarch at 4 to 1, owned by Mrs. Frank McMahon of Vancouver.

Whirling Sea, owned by Calgarian Paul Oliver, was the only Western Canadian-owned horse to win the plate.

Bright Monarch is trained by former jockey Johnny Longden of Taber, Alta., who rode 6,033 winners during his career.

Listed at 8 to 1 with Arctic Troops is Rye and Near, owned by Conn Smythe of Toronto and ridden by Sam McComb of Ireland. Frank Sherman Sr. and his son, Frank Jr., both of Hamilton, have the race's only stable entry in Holarctic and Famous Monarch, both at 10 to 1. Holarctic will have Jim Fitzsimmons of Calgary aboard while Yugoslavian Jockey Vladimir Mosa Monarch.

The rest of the field includes The Hangman, owned by John Smallman of London, Ont., and ridden by Noel Torcotte of Grand Falls, N.B., at 12 to 1; Echo Lad, owned by Ed Short of Toronto and ridden by Frank Barroby of Ravenscraig, Sask., at 15 to 1; Big Jive, owned by Ernie Lieberman of Toronto with Cliff Potts of Toronto aboard, 15 to 1; Radiant Colors, purchased a year ago for $1,600 by 15 Toronto financial analysts headed by Paul Joseph and ridden by Keith Robinson of Minnedosa, Man., at 20 to 1, and Solar Park, owned by Doug Weldom of London, Ont., and Tom Hays of Oakville and ridden by Wayne Harris of Vancouver, at 20 to 1.

The only filly in the field, Solar Park, gets a five-pound allowance and will carry 121 pounds. The rest will carry 126. Three fillies have won the plate since 1943 when Psolita turned the trick. The others were Canadiana in 1952 and Flaming Page in 1962.

The Trots

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Betsy Herbert, owned by William Herbert of London, Ont., won her first start in nine this season Friday night, winning the featured eighth race at Garden City Raceway in 2:02 3-5.

The seven-year-old mare that won the July 1 Canadian trotting championship here last season went away from the No. 6 post position. She followed Cadeau to the quarter pole in 30 3-5 seconds, took the lead in the back stretch and won by a neck over Danny Song A, owned by the Galleon stable of Toronto.

Her $1,500 share of the purse brought her season's earnings to $6,000 in nine starts.

Good Bye Killean combined with Leland Hanover in the first and second races to fashion a $19.90 daily double.

Brave Sir and Anglo United in the fifth returned a $13.80 exacta.

Golf Tourney

NY Gals Defeat Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—A team of 10 New York State women golfers Friday won the annual series of international matches against an Ontario team for the fourth time in a row and the fifth time in seven years.

The 10 golfers from Buffalo won the series 14-6, the widest margin in the history of the two-day tournament which ended at St. George's Golf Club Friday.

The women handed Toronto teams two shutouts in the Nassau play and won all but one of the five concluding contests. The Nassau system awards a point for front-nine winners, a point for back-nine and one for total 18.

Cookie Berger, a finalist in the United States amateur, the senior champion Kae Pequignot, blanked the strongest Canadian pair of Kay Heikoff of Rosedale ad Shirley Woodley of Thornhill.

The other shutout was administered by Mrs. Cam Postal and Jane Pollard, both playing out of Buffalo's Park Club.

Leafs Split With Hens, Braves Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jerry Stephenson has been getting the short end of the stick all week.

The former Boston Red Sox right-hander, suspended without salary for not reporting to the International League's Toronto Maple Leafs last Sunday, arrived in Toledo Friday night to pitch for the Leafs.

He hurled three strong innings for the Leafs as they won a 6-4 second-game victory over Toledo Mud Hens, but the official decision reversed his first decision and credited a reliever with the win.

The Leafs lost the first game 7-2-0 while Richmond Braves walloped Syracuse Chiefs 8-1, Jacksonville Suns tumbled Rochester Red Wings 17-1 and Buffalo Bisons shutout Columbus Jets 3-0.

Russ Gibson and Tony Horton triggered the Leafs' victory with home runs in the nightcap. Dick Hughes pitched a two-hitter to contain the Leafs to the opener.

Minor Baseball Results

Fountain Park outslugged Tip Top 20-11 in peewee play last night at the C.M.A.

The winners scored in every inning but one, and ground out 16 base hits.

Stan Brooks and John Mulvihill combined to hurl the win. They gave up seven hits, walked 12, and whiffed 10.

Jim Gallagher and Dean Lang shared the loss. They issued six walks and struck out nine.

Ted Free led the Park at the plate with a double and two singles. Stan Lapenskie, Terry Doran, and John Mulvihill stroked three safeties each, and Jim Gallagher, Dean Lang and Paul Wolfe all singled.

Jim Strather banged out a double and single for the losers. With singles were Dean Lang, Phil Kirby, Fred Lynch, Bob Broznn and John Irvine.

Grey Cup Turns 'Pro'

TORONTO (CP) — After 57 years the Canadian Rugby Union Friday relinquished its grasp on the Grey Cup and turned it over to the professionals.

BIR McEwen of Ottawa, president of the CRU, announced at a special general meeting of the CRU as such was going out of business to be reborn as the Canadian Amateur Football Association.

"Was a last gesture before the name change the Grey Cup, which has been in the custody of the CRU since its presentation by Lord Grey in 1909, was turned over to the Canadian Football League to be held in trusteeship by the president and the secretary of the CFL," McEwan said.

The gesture came 12 years after the professionals took a virtual monopoly on the cup.

The last time an amateur team challenged for what was established as an amateur trophy was in 1954 when Kitchener Waterloo Dutchmen of the Ontario Rugby Football Union lost 36-6 to Edmonton Eskimos who went on to defeat Montreal Alouettes for the Cup.

The CRU was established in 1882 to promote amateur football in Canada, and went through reorganizations in 1891, 1931, and 1956.

EMPLOYMENT NEWS

By J. R. STAVELEY

The increased local labor supply during the past week reflected the influx of the community's high school students who are currently registered at the National Employment Office seeking employment.

These young people can be divided into two groups; 1 those seeking permanent work, and 2 —those looking for summer employment only, in preparation for further education.

The first group representing over 200 young people who have completed their high school courses will be able to apply for regular work in the present tight labor market across Canada. Some of these High School graduates will obtain local employment, the majority however, will find their career in other areas. The second group of students are concerned mainly in finding any type of casual or temporary summer work in the local areas.

Having the above in mind, the Community's employers are invited to list their employment vacancies with the local N.E.S. Office. These labor requirements could range from a few hours of a casual nature to the permanent career type of employment. The experienced employment officers of the N.E.S. will refer suitable applicants to meet the requirements of the vacant position.

JOB OPPORTUNITIES

The following opportunities areamong those listed at the local N.E.S. office; — In the female division locally the local canning factory will be requiring a number of women to work in the plant to process the season's strawberry pack. Anyone interested in this type of work or in picking strawberries are requested to contact the N.E.S at their earliest convenience.

A mature experienced cook is required to manage a retail variety store. A dry cleaning business is looking for a presser who is experienced in operating a heavy type press machine. For someone speaking Dutch, German or Italian, and possessing a knowledge of European processed mat items, etc. there is an interesting sales position vacant on a regular basis. Out-of-town positions range from plant production assembly work to clerical employment and airline hostess positions.

SKILLED WORKERS SOUGHT

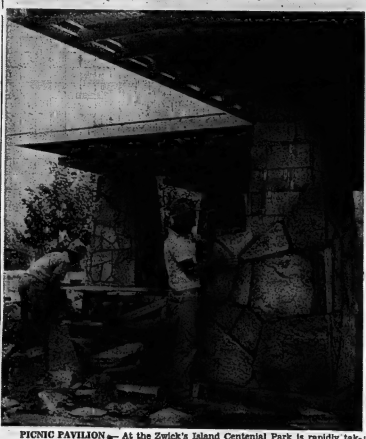
In the male division locally there is a continuing shortage in trades such as machinists, welders, metal workers and electronic technicians. Still required is an experienced meat cutter to act as manager of a store meat department. Another vacancy exists for a qualified typewriter repairman. Elsewhere attractive training plans are being offered to Grade 12 or 13 graduates to enter the merchandising, banking and consumer credit fields.

It is suggested that Community's adventuresome young men give serious consideration to a career in the north in one of Canada's basic industries - mining. Several well-known mining companies now offer attractive training plans for interested young men. The training period is comparatively short with wages and bonus incentives enrolled for the trained miner. These mining opportunities are mentioned as being of particular interest to healthy robust young men who may not have been able to enter high school or whose career in secondary school was cut short.

Workers seeking employment and employers seeking workers are invited to contact the Employment Office, 224 Church St. or phone 962-2231.



COVERED PATIO is being built completely around the existing Zwick's Island canteen to improve its appearance and increase efficiency. Concrete walls are being covered with vertical cedar siding (left) while patio ceiling will be slat covered.

WADING POOLS for the toddlers will be a feature of the new park. Here workmen lay steel netting reinforcement prior to pouring concrete for the larger kidney shaped pool.

Zwick's Island Project on Schedule

PICNIC PAVILION — At the Zwick's Island Centenial Park is rapidly taking shape. Here Gordon Ruckstuhl, Trenton area stone mason, works on one of the several stone pillars holding up cruciform roof.

Belleville Zwick's Island Centennial Park project is right on schedule but local residents are still not expected to get much benefit this year from the approximately $140,000 expenditure.

That apparently will have to wait until 1967 following a summer's care this year to give acres of new grass a healthy start.

Contractors doing construction work in connection with the Island Centennial Project say that most of the building will be completed in three to four weeks' time.

After this is done topsoil and new seeding has to go down and any traffic through the park could conceivably do considerable damage to the new grass.

But the Centennial project sheppies are going to get a pleasant surprise when all the work is completed.

WORK WELL ADVANCED

Work is well advanced on the new picnic pavilion atop the Island Knoll, while dressing up of the existing concession is near to completion.

Immediately to the north of the Island beach area workmen have all but completed the forms for the two wading pools which will delight the hearts of the toddlers and older ladies.

Lightcap Construction is building the picnic pavilion, doing the renovations to the canteen and installing the two wading pools.

Laying the roadways throughout the park, installing irrigation facilities, placing topsoil and seeding is being done by The Twin Sun Company.

In charge of building construction is Henry Hersten, supervisor with Lightcap Construction Ruckstuhl and Roberts, Trenton area masonry contractors are doing the stone work on the picnic pavilion while Acme Electric of Belleville are installing the lighting for the roadways and pedestrian walks.

All wiring and other utilities at the park is being placed underground.

ATTRACTIVE BUILDING

Possibly the most attractive building on the island park will be the picnic pavilion.

This cruciform roof structure 66 feet across the wings, is supported on handsome stone pillars. In the centre there will be eight barbecues served by a single central chimney. There will be room for about 18 picnic tables on the patio stones beneath the pavilion roof.

Quarried stone for the pillars is being brought in from north of Toronto. Originally the intention was to build the pillar from field stone but this would have increased labor costs considerably.

No structural change is being made at the island concession canteen but a ten-foot wide roofed patio is being placed completely around the structure and the exterior of the original canteen building is being covered with vertical cedar siding.

TWO WADING POOLS

There will be two, wading pools, one a very shallow one for the wee toddlers and a second kidney shaped pool with an extreme depth of one foot ten inches.

Both pools will be fenced to keep the toddlers from wandering away.

In addition to the above named structures and roadways, the Island project includes planting of shrubbery and the provision of tennis courts and ball diamonds.

WOULD SAVE MET

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Governor Rockefeller Friday he had signed legislation designed to preserve the old Metropolitan Opera House in New York City. The structure has been abandoned and is slated to be torn down and replaced by an office building. The new law establishes a private corporation with the power to buy the old Met or acquire it through condemnation from its present owners.

Ontario Motor League

QUESTION: We will be doing a lot of camping this summer, and should have an Ontario Park Permit. Can I buy this permit and how much are they and for how long? — I. S., Belleville.

ANSWER: These camping permits are now available at the OML office in Cataraqui. If you phone the OML in Belleville it will get them for you. They cost $5 for the season. These are in form of a sticker and are stuck on the windshield.

EXPO 67

The OML Eastern Ontario Club is actively promoting Expo 67 through the sale of passport (tickets) to the public at a cost considerably reduced from that to be charged at the gates. It is estimated that the majority of visitors to the Montreal Expo 67 will arrive by car. In preparing for the expected influx of some 450,000 affiliated club members to Montreal to visit Expo 67, the Royal Automobile Club of Montreal has plans to increase its accommodation services, to provide trained counselors and to alert road service outlets of the necessity of providing especially good service to members.

Hymn-Singing Poles Clash With Police

WARSAW (AP)—About 1,000 hymn - singing Polish Roman Catholics clashed with club-swinging police Sunday night in two attempts to march on Communist party headquarters in Warsaw.

At the height of the outbreak, helmeted police charged into a chanting crowd of youthful supporters of Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, the Polish primate, and swung their truncheons. Several persons were arrested.

The violence erupted 10 years to the month after the bloody 1956 riot of Polish workers in Poznan, which set off a shock wave felt throughout the Communist world. The trouble in Poznan was a forerunner of the Hungarian revolution.

The Catholic hierarchy and Poland's Communist regime have been at odds for months over a proposal by Polish bishops for Polish-German reconciliation.

As a result the government rejected a proposed visit to Poland by Pope Paul, barred Cardinal Wyszynski from traveling abroad and closed Polish borders to foreign pilgrims during the celebration this year of the millennium of Christianity in Poland.

Sunday night's demonstrations started after some then 20,000 Catholics jammed St. John's Cathedral and nearby streets for services concluding a week-long celebration of the millennium in Warsaw.

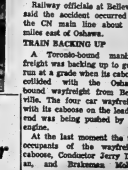
Freight Trains Collide At Oshawa Killing Brakeman Jerry Moher, 39

TRAIN COLLISION 2 miles east of Oshawa killed Jerry Moher, 39, a Belleville railroader, about noon Saturday. A CN freight was backing up and collided with a wayfreight being pushed caboose-first. Moher was in the caboose. He jumped but was pinned beneath a bunker. Four other local men were injured. (Staff Photo by Don Cameron)

A Belleville father of five children was killed Saturday as two freight trains collided on the CNR line two miles east of Oshawa.

Killed was Jeremiah Daniel "Jerry" Moher, 39, of 13 Burton Street, who was pinned by a boxcar as he attempted to jump clear of the caboose in which he was riding. Mr. Moher was a brakeman.

Three other Belleville men, and a fourth man from Stirling, were injured in the rail smash.



They are engineer J. R. Histed, Elmwood Drive, who suffered a broken leg; Jerry Doran, conductor; Myron McTaggart, fireman, and Walter Rogers of Stirling, brakeman. The last three suffered cuts and bruises but were released after receiving hospital treatment.

Railway officials at Belleville said the accident occurred on the CN main line about two miles east of Oshawa.

TRAIN BACKING UP

A Toronto-bound manifest freight was backing up to get a run at a grade when its caboose collided with the Oshawa-bound wayfreight from Belleville. The four car wayfreight with its caboose on the leading end was being pushed by the engine.

At the last moment the two occupants of the wayfreight caboose, Conductor Jerry Doran, and Brakeman Moher, jumped from their train but Mr. Moher was pinned beneath the engine.

The three other injured men were riding in the wayfreight engine.

NATIVE OF CITY

Born in Belleville, Mr. Moher was the son of Mrs. Ellen Moher and the late Robert Moher, and had lived in the city all his life with the exception of service in the Canadian Infantry during World War II.

An avid sports fan he played both Junior and Intermediate hockey and also baseball. He was a keen horse-racing fan.

A member of St. Michael's Church, he attended St. Michael's Separate School and was a graduate of the Ontario Business College.

Jail 25 For Tilco Picketing

TORONTO (CP) — Sentences of two months each were imposed today on five Peterborough union leaders convicted June 6 of contempt of court.

Another 21 men each received a 15-day sentence. All were taken immediately to the Peterborough jail.

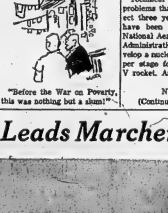
Mr. Justice G. A. Gale imposed two-month sentences on Charles Clark, William Mulders, Stanley Rouse, George Rutherford, and Victor Sharjai.

All had been convicted of contempt for violating an injunction restricting picketing at the strikebound Tilco Plastics Co. plant in Peterborough.

Chief Justice Gale said in his judgment June 6 that mass demonstrations outside the Tilco plant Feb. 23-24 were illegal in the face of a court injunction limiting pickets to 12.

He said the illegal picketing was well planned and deliberate and was an open challenge to the authority of the court.

The Tilco strike last Dec. 16 when members of the Textile Workers of America (CLC) walked out. The plant has continued to operate.



The sentence imposed today on Harry Woodbeck of Peterborough was suspended because he is convalescing from a heart attack.

Top labor leaders in Ontario, who since the convictions were registered have called for united labor action to change the law on injunctions, were quick to react to today's sentences.

David Archer, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor, said the sentences were ridiculous. Douglas Hamilton, secretary-treasurer of the OFL, said he was astounded at their harshness.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — With confidence gained from recent ground tests, the United States hopes to launch its first nuclear-rocket from Cape Kennedy in 1975—aiming to have it ready for manned trips to the planets in the 1980s.

Technical and budgetary problems that plagued the project three years ago appear to have been overcome and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is pushing to develop a nuclear rocket as an upper stage for the huge Saturn V rocket. An industry contract

Tractor Rides May Be Boom Or Bust in Milk Price Squeeze

TORONTO (CP)—Can farmers achieve higher prices for their products with tractor demonstrations on the open highways or will harassment of the motoring public bring resentment rather than sympathy for the farmer's economic plight?

Those are questions worrying leaders of the Ontario Farmers Union, a dissident agricultural organization that has promised to launch an army of 30,000 farmers driving tractors at seven miles an hour along the vacation-crowded highways of the province.

There are other questions: Do the farmers, on their unlicensed vehicles, have any rights on the highways? What will be the legal position if a farmer is killed by a motorist or a motorist by a farmer? Why is the public already watching the consumer price of farm products rising being made the goat in a dispute between the farmers, the shippers, the processors and the government?

John Dolmer, 46-year-old union president, doesn't have all the answers. But he is sure of one thing—the farmers' cause is a just one, and the tractor demonstration is the least harmful of the courses of action open to his union.

The current crisis has been building for 25 years, he said in a recent interview. It arose primarily from the cost-price squeeze.

Farmers can no longer make a profit, even with good weather he says. Thousands are selling out and moving into town.

Unless city people become aware of what is happening, the cost of everything will go skyhigh because of scarcity.

Drive To Clear Decks

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons resumes today its drive to clear the decks for a two-month summer recess starting Thursday night.

At least 10 bills are scheduled for debate this week, but little controversy is foreseen.

First item today is legislation allocating $50,000,000 to the Atlantic Development Board, which has nearly exhausted its original $100,000,000 fund.

The board has been pumping money into the undeveloped economy of the Atlantic provinces since 1963 with aid for major power and highway projects, industrial growth and economic research.

Other bills coming up this week all passed preliminary debate last week. They include the Canada Assistance Plan, the $500,000,000 medical training fund, the Company of Young Canadians and the $10,000,000 to assist Canadian movie-makers.

APPROVED BUDGET BILLS

Last week the House passed two bills arising from the budget, the addition of $16,000,000 to the student loan fund, amendments to the Bankruptcy Act and bills authorizing the CPR to build two industrial branch lines in Western Canada.

That brought to 38 the number of government bills passed in the first 104 sittings of the new 27th Parliament.

Two major bills — the Bank Act revision and medical care insurance are expected to be introduced this week, but they are unlikely to pass before the recess.

Keeps Self and Babe Alive Two Days in Plane Wreck

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—Her courage and initiative saved our baby's life," says the husband of a young mother who managed to keep her two-month-old baby and herself alive for two days in the wreckage of a plane on a cold, snowy mountain.

Loren Little, 24-year-old University of Washington medical student, spoke with pride as he told of the ordeal his wife, Karla, 23, underwent to save herself and their daughter, Laurie.

Mrs. Little's father and stepmother died in the crash on the snow-covered side of 9,671-foot Mount St. Helens.

Mrs. Little suffered a broken back, broken ribbs, a collapsed lung and frostbitten feet. Doctors reported she was resting comfortably in a hospital today. Her daughter has only a bruised forehead.

Little said his wife, who was rescued Saturday, was alert and recalled the ordeal clearly.

It began when Mrs. Little and her daughter were picked up in a rented plane by her father, Grant Erickson, 49, an executive of a Radio Supply Co. in Sioux Falls, S.D., and his wife.

They planned to fly to Norwalk, Calif., for the golden wedding anniversary of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Erickson.

Flying south Thursday the four ran into heavy weather. Mrs. Little thinks a wingtip struck the rocky side of the mountain.

Erickson crash-landed on a ledge at the 5,500-foot level. He and his wife were killed.

Inside the broken plane, Little's wife, paralyzed below the waist, cuddled and nursed her baby, thankful she could breastfeed Laurie but worried the child would not receive enough.

She did manage to reach two baby blankets, wrapped Laurie in one and stuff the other in a broken window to keep out windblown snow.

Thursday she could hear the search planes. Friday she saw them but had no way or strength to signal. Finally, Saturday afternoon, a helicopter spotted the broken plane.

Meredith Leads Marchers Into Jackson

REACHES HIS GOAL — James Meredith, who set out walking to Jackson, Miss., from Memphis on June 5, smiles and waves his walking stick as he arrives at the speakers' platform on the grounds of the Mississippi State Capitol in Jackson Sunday afternoon. (AP Wirephoto)

JACKSON, MISS. (AP)—The long and turbulent Mississippi march has ended with James Meredith—who started it as a "journey against fear"—saying the "governor and every other person is going to pay attention to the Negro."

"The system of white supremacy will reign no longer" in the U.S., Meredith told a heavily-guarded rally behind the imposing state Capitol building Sunday.

Some 15,000 persons, most of them Negroes, flowed through Jackson streets to join into a portion of the grounds and adjacent areas.

The final leg of the march—from Tougaloo College on the outskirts of Jackson to the capitol—and the rally were marked by a subdued atmosphere.

Meredith, 33, led the procession along with a number of national civil rights leaders, including Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

RESPONSE GREATEST

Meredith drew the greatest response from the crowd, which couldn't hear half of what was said from the flatbed truck that served as a speaker's platform.

Meredith said his fight now ended, told him most white persons "are pretty decent."

"It's true that we put some mean white folks in Mississippi jail . . . but these people can be decent.

"There is only one thing that is holding them back. And that thing is the system of white supremacy.

"The purpose of the march that I started three weeks ago . . . was to point up and to challenge that thing as the base of the system of white supremacy. That thing is fear. . . ."

Say Reds Used Ship Strike But Did Not Form Conspiracy

LONDON (CP)—A qualified informant says Prime Minister Wilson has evidence that Communists took political advantage of the damaging seamen's strike, but did not conspire to use it as a national plot against Britain's economy.

Nevertheless, Wilson is reported determined to tell Parliament Tuesday that events in the six-week strike, which soon may be settled, point to a need for greater vigilance against militant left-wingers who seek to seize power from union moderates.

The informant says evidence shows that moderates in the 65,000 - member union were so complacent they were unable to cope with the pressure from militant leftists who had successfully gained so much support for the strike that a compromise reasonable to the moderates could not be accepted.

This was the proposal by Lord Pearson that the seamen's current 56-hour week be implemented next year instead of in two years as the shipowners had offered.

Wilson, angered by the holdout, spoke in veiled terms of backstage pressures by a tightly-knit group of politically motivated men. The seamen's 66-man national executive demanded a full explanation.

Every union is aware that the 25,000-member British Communist party, of which Edmonton-born Bert Ramelson is national industrial organizer, tries to influence the course of British unions wherever possible.

Gordon Norris, a member of the seamen's negotiating committee, is a self-acknowledged Communist. Another Jack Coward, member of the union's Victoria and Albert strike committee. Still another is Jack Dash, unofficial leader of London dockworkers.

Some British newspapers question whether Wilson will want to give Parliament a full report on infiltration since he seeks a strike settlement and wants no emotional response that would keep seamen from their ships.

Nevertheless, the informant says Wilson is preparing a long statement, ready to name individuals. He may challenge the members' judgment.

Nuclear

to begin development of the rocket, engine is expected to be awarded soon.)

Nuclear rockets also are being built as power sources for space ships intended to survive for several years away from earth.

Tests now under way at the nuclear rocket development station in Nevada involve full-power firings of an engine being developed for the project, in which stands for nuclear engine for rocket vehicle application. Rover is the name.

On June 9, a Nerva engine, anchored to a test stand, poured 100,000 gallons of liquid hydrogen propellant through a nuclear reactor and produced 1,100 megawatts of thermal power for 15 minutes related to the peak output of nearby Hoover Dam. It produced more than 30,000 pounds of thrust.

The contract for the flight Nerva will call for a thrust of 200,000 to 250,000 pounds.

Harold B. Finger, manager of the NASA-Atomic Energy Commission space nuclear propulsion office recently advised the U.S. Senate space committee the advanced Nerva engine "opens up tremendous new dimensions for which nuclear rockets offer significant advantages."

He said that while no mission now exists for the nuclear rocket, missions being planned are extended lunar exploration, manned and unmanned deep space flights and manned landings on Mars and Venus.

PROVES FEASIBLE

Finger said that ground tests have proved the feasibility of a nuclear rocket and that the goal of the program is to have an engine ready for whatever mission might evolve.

Dr. Harold Johnson interjected to decide later this year what the United States should aim for in space after landing men on the moon. Many experts are suggesting a national goal of landing men on Mars in the 1980s—a round trip that would take more than 400 days.

NASA Administrator James E. Webb, in a recent press conference, said:

"If you want to go out to examine Mars, you can still do this with a chemical rocket if you do unmanned—you've got just about enough in the Saturn V to do this. But now when you want to go to the next step, which is to go out with men, you must have the nuclear rocket."

With the advanced Nerva engine, he said, "you'd have the next step, the next jump, the method of transportation the human race has ever had."

Seeing Eye Dog Goes Blind, Operation Restores Its Sight

DETROIT (AP)—Hesitancy at the end of the leash told 23-year-old Jack McAdams something was wrong.

It turned out the blind was leading the blind.

McAdams' dog, Dell, was guiding him through downtown Detroit streets on a rainy April day when he sensed indecision on the dog's part.

A veterinarian discovered that Dell was as blind as her master and had been leading him "on instinct and guts alone."

Dell had cataracts, a malady common to both humans and dogs, and could barely distinguish light from darkness.

Fortunately, dogs have a second set of lenses, though an operation to remove the defective set costs $300.

A short-wave radio operator, McAdams told other hams about his and Dell's plight. The operation money rolled in.

Two weeks ago Dr. William Magrane of Mishawaka, Ind., removed Dell's clouded lenses. Thursday the stitches inside her eyelids were removed.

Dell had trouble shaking off effects of the anesthetic, because she is a canine diabetic.

But McAdams knows Dell can see again, even without a veterinarian's assurance. He can feel a more confident tug on the leash.

Is Attending Social Work Seminar

Mr. V. Castellano, director of the Family Counselling Service of Belleville and Hastings County, is at Waterloo Lutheran University this week to participate in the first of a series of seminars for fieldwork instructors, in connection with the new Graduate School of Social Work to be opened in Waterloo next September.

The new school of postgraduate studies is the ninth such graduate school in Canada and the first to be organized since 1952. The curriculum of the school will involve a two-year program including fieldwork instruction and classroom activities leading to a Master of Social Work degree.

Mr. Joel Mazer, Chairman of the Family Counselling Service Committee, expressed the hope that in the near future social work students will be placed in our community social agencies for fieldwork training. It is also hoped, Mr. Mazer stated, that by establishing a relationship with the new school Belleville may attract badly needed professional social workers."

80 Aircraft 'Fly-in' For Fine Day at Club

It's a bird!

It's a plane?

No, it's an autogyro, plane of the future, and it gave a demonstration yesterday along with some 80 other aircraft at the third annual Steak Fly-In presented by the Belleville Flying Club.

One man, John Gill, even flew in from New York City to attend the fly-in. (Mr. Gill won two prizes, one for flying the longest distance, and one for being the oldest pilot to fly in. He is 62.)

The autogyro, piloted by Don McIntosh of Toronto, takes off and lands on a dime. It weighs 1200 pounds and is so well balanced a man can lift the nose of it right off the ground with a minimum of effort.

John Faichney of Buttonville also attended the fly-in in his home built mini-plane. The mini-plane is about eight feet long, has a wing span of approximately 16 feet, has a 125 h.p. engine and cruises at 100 mph and lands at 90 mph.

A large crowd attended the day long activities and went through the 600 steaks on hand for the program.

Officials termed the day a success, but expressed some disappointment in the early morning prize. A Flying Club official said, "If it hadn't been for that lane this morning, we probably would have had over 100 planes fly in."

Despite the haze though, Frank McArthur flew in from Oshawa, landing at 7.30 a.m. to capture the prize for the first aircraft to land.

Youngest pilot to land was 17-year-old Jim Griffin of Oshawa.

Ground traffic was administrated by officials of the Emergency Measures Organization. EMO had one control station and three mobile units to assist the Flying Club in communications and air traffic safety.

Dave Charles of CJBQ acted as Master of Ceremonies for the program and admission was free to the general public.

The fly-in also featured an R.C.A.F. display of the flying "banana" and the Caribou, a home built aircraft display, the Gail Chapman marching debs and a paper streaming cutting demonstration.

One disgruntled male pilot watched a female pilot negotiate a landing in her aircraft and said, "Hmph, I'm dodging women drivers all day in my car, so I took up flying to get some peace and quiet and what happens . . . women pilots."

A man beside him commented, "Who cares how she flys. Look at that hind she's got on."

It appears the battle of the sexes has even gone into the air.

Most Plants Close Friday

The majority of local industries will give their employees a holiday this Friday as Canada celebrates 99 years of Confederation.

Most plants do not operate Saturdays as a rule so this will be a three-day weekend for many city residents. Most of those industries normally working Saturdays will either close down or get along with skeleton staffs to allow as many employees as possible to enjoy the holiday. An exception to the rule is Wilson Concrete — It will operate Friday, close Monday.

Go North Young Man

"Go North Young Man — Want a Cool Fortune?" This was the apt headline of a Toronto newspaper over Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing's plea for young Canadians to fill a serious staff shortage in the North.

We were going to suggest that perhaps the financial rewards of such postings are insufficient when set against the loneliness and other discomforts synonymous with banishment to Arctic regions. But this is not the case. Just as Russians who work in Siberia decide days are better off materially than their compatriots in balmier regions of the Soviet Union, so too are Canadians on government postings in the Northwest Territories and the Yukon.

True, the climate in these regions is "a brutal one" (Mr. Laing's own words), but any young Canadian with good health "and any brains at all," according to the minister, could go into the Canadian north and be financially independent within 10 years.

Mr. Laing made these comments in the Commons while explaining his department's troubles in recruiting staff for northern positions. Vacancies in some branches are as high as 53 per cent.

Financial inducements, incidentally (as outlined by department officials), include subsidized housing, allowances up to $2,000 a year to make up for the isolation and loneliness, and a free aircraft trip to the South once a year.

Hubert Badanai (L. Fort William), a former mayor of the Lakehead city, had an interesting suggestion. He asked whether the department had considered helping immigrants establish in the north. Mr. Laing replied that the idea had been discussed but that the department is striving to put Eskimos and Indians in the North to work.

Presumably this means that vacancies that exist are in various categories of administration. Where then are the young Canadians with "pioneering spirit?" Some have found their way into the Company of Young Canadians which is destined to go out in Peace Corps fashion, soon, in areas of need at home and abroad. But there must be many others who would find equal challenge in the far north.

Wanderlust

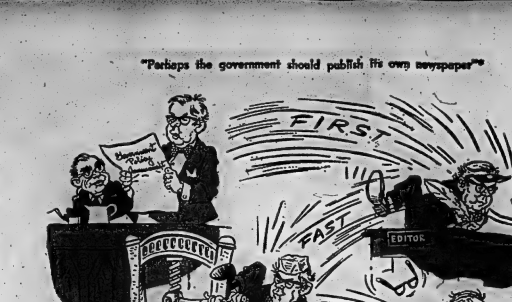
The major stumbling blocks to world travel are time, distance and cost. However, there is a fourth one, equally important, and that is the matter of desire. For where there is a will there is a way.

How much plain will-power is involved? A great deal to be sure, because overseas travel takes a lot of planning in the way of acquiring tickets, passports, visas and other documentation. Many North Americans never even get to the point of considering an excursion into foreign fields. There are even folk who live on the prairies or the mid-western regions of the United States who have never seen the ocean.

On the other hand, the prairie farmer for one is in a better position than most to take time to the featureless horizons that bind him to the soil. For although there is little to arrest his attention on the tableland, the tilling of the land is his wealthy will in all. We know one such farmer who spends his winters travelling in the far east and southern hemisphere. Quebec-born, he grows wheat in the lowlands of Alberta which along with Saskatchewan and Manitoba today affords the world farmer the greatest wealth he has ever known.

But what about the man of average income, and the young people who are just leaving school, or are attending university and have more time than money?



Well, we have suggested that young North Americans, and Canadians particularly, are more inclined to stay at home, marry and settle down without having seen much of the world beyond the immediate region they have known all their lives.

In some ways Europeans are luckier in this respect. The exotic landscapes and historical treasures of the old world are concentrated in a relatively small old area now well within the financial means of an increasing number of people.

And it is to Europe that thousands of non-Europeans are flocking these days. The travelling propensities of the people of our fellow Commonwealth nations in the southern hemisphere of course are legendary. London is their usual mecca. Here there is a vast pool of available jobs of a temporary nature, particularly in the clerical and stenographic fields. By the time they have done with travelling, it is not uncommon for young Australians and New Zealanders to have worked their way around the world, by way of England and this continent.

Thus, while money and means are important, the world "on a shoestring" is within the reach of any young person of imagination and resourcefulness who is prepared to rough it. Or course a summer job can make it easier — like the $95 a week a Montreal advertiser is offering male college students up to the age of 26, not to mention a $1,000 scholarship and an all-expenses, paid holiday in Rome to one lucky student employee.

"Perhaps the government should publish its own newspaper"

Strictly Personal
How People Evade Issues

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"Why aren't more people actively concerned about the possibility, and prevention, of atomic war?" a college student asked me recently, during the question period following a seminar I had taken part in.

There are many different answers to that question, but I think the one that covers the greatest number of cases is the "cognitive dissonance" theory — a new concept that psychologists have forced most fruitful in studying behavior variations.

Cognitive dissonance is the difference between what we know to be true and what we want to be true. Cigarette smoking is an excellent example; smokers know it is harmful to their health, but they do not want to believe it — so they set up various psychological mechanisms to conceal or distort or deny the facts.

Automobile accidents are another prime area for cognitive dissonance. We know how dangerous driving has become, and we also know which precautions should be taken — like checking the car, in wearing seat belts, in obeying speed limits, in exercised courtesy and restraint on the road. But we do not observe these precautions, which could save thousands of lives a year.

In the case of smoking, we prefer to believe that lung cancer is something that happens to other people, but cannot happen to us; in the case of auto safety, we prefer to believe that fatal accidents happen to other people, but cannot happen to us. And we include ourselves in all kinds of irrational arguments to hide the dissonance between fact and fancy.

This same mechanism is operating, I am convinced, in the matter of atomic warfare. We know what unrestricted thermonuclear war would mean in terms of the human race, and we also know that the nations of the earth are doing little — if anything — to prevent its occurrence. Yet, at the same time, we can't afford to believe that it will really happen to us, to our family, to our community, to our country.

To conceal this dissonance, we lull ourselves with various untruths and half-truths: "Political leaders won't let it happen." "What can one person do to stop it?" "Weapons are so terrible that no one will dare to start an atomic war." "If we build up enough defence, no one will attack us." "After all, nations didn't use bacteria and gas in the last war, even though they were available." And so on and so on.

We get actively concerned about elections, budgets, taxes, zoning laws, civil rights, the space program, the right to work. But the right to live, which precedes all else, is tucked away in the bottom of the mind, the way a child desperately represses what it most fears.

The Law on Lotteries

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

Thinking Canadians should share that uncomfortable feeling Magistrate Kirkpatrick had in a Galt police court the other day when he was obliged to fine a man for selling 25-cent pool tickets.

The magistrate pointed out that the laws against lotteries are being breached on a wide scale, even on television and radio programs. He could have gone beyond that and spoken of bingos at which large cash prizes and cars are publicly advertised and held frequently all across the nation.

The charge against the man selling pool tickets was laid by the anti-gambling squad of the Ontario Provincial Police, who must find this form of thing as distasteful as the magistrate and the rest of us.

Canada's gambling laws are in the process of a complete review by the federal officials responsible. Surely until the result of that review is made public, and if only in the interest of consistency, we can stop persecuting little people who sell two-bit tickets.

It would seem to be the honest course, in the event either that or persuade the law officers to start laying charges against the bingo operators, the food, oil, and drink companies and all the rest who manage to flout the laws of chance so easily applied to the humble.

Hypocrisy is bad enough but where it is accompanied by discrimination it is much worse.

Public School Board's Role

London Free Press

London City Council's action in requesting the Province of Ontario to take over all high education and replace all school boards with a central department was a natural one as a result of the continuing disagreement between Council and the Board of Education.

It is also a sign of the times. We are obviously moving in the direction of greater standardization. With the Province bearing an increasing proportion of costs it is virtually certain to have a greater voice in setting standard. It is doubtful if the province desires this, but the trend is one which it is difficult to reverse.

If local boards of education could demonstrate that they have a real job to do, and are doing it efficiently there would not be motions of this sort by city councils. Nor would there be worries about the public relations of school boards. But if boards regard themselves as mere rubber stamps, questions will certainly arise about whether there is any real reason for their continued existence.

In some countries there is no equivalent of our local school boards. There the chief complaint is a deadening uniformity and resistance to change. France is experiencing such a wave at the moment. Britain's misnamed public schools are described as a defence against excessive uniformity, and as places where innovation may be tested. They are also attacked as bulwarks of the class system.

Standardization presents opportunities for added economy and efficiency. We are spending so much on education now that it is important that we should make the best possible use of the money. It is also important that the province should have equal whether they come from wealthy municipalities or not. We in Ontario can afford to overlook any of these potential savings.

Local autonomy is historically so strong that it is unlikely to sink without a struggle. But school boards, like other municipal institutions, will only survive if they justify their existence by doing something which could otherwise not be done or not done as well.

French Come As Aliens

Strasford Beacon-Herald

An interesting angle is that while immigration from France is light — something like 3,000 a year — these members of the once wholly founded Canada are "aliens" for purposes of acquiring citizenship, though "an adequate knowledge of the French language" is an alien rate qualification to a knowledge of English, on the part of candidates for citizenship.

British subjects, from whatever quarter of the globe, even though naturalized, need reside here only one year before polling date in order to vote. Also a British citizenship is not ordinarily required to appear for examination before the court.

To Your Good Health
Though Baby Spits Up He Gains, So No Woe

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My Baby son is six months old and has been spitting up ever since he was born. At five months the doctor put him on homogenized milk but he still spits up. Sometimes it is more like vomiting.

My doctor said the baby will undoubtedly continue doing this until he is a year old or starts to walk. Can you tell me anything about why this occurs?

The baby sometimes seems well-adjusted. He is gaining weight and is happy. — A. D. W.

Babies have various reasons for spitting up, ranging from inconsequential to serious, but you said one thing that is a very optimistic sign — he is gaining weight.

The more serious problems can be expected to involve loss of weight or failure to gain.

Your doctor is in better position than I am to analyze the situation in your baby's case, but from what you have related, I don't think there is any cause for deep concern.

Babies spit up because they swallow too much air — and up comes milk with a burp or a gurgle.

Or a baby may be allergic to a certain food, but there will be signs other than spitting up. Many times a baby will functionally try to push away or spit out food that bothers him allergically.

There can be pylorospasm, or spasm of the outlet of the stomach, which forces regurgitation. A mild relaxant will correct that condition. It is not a serious however messy feel unfortunate.

The more serious cases of spitting up involve a thickening of the outlet of the stomach (pyloric stenosis) or some other anatomical defect. In such cases, as I said, the baby simply is not able to retain enough food and the condition promptly leads to loss of weight or failure to gain. This requires X-ray diagnosis and surgical correction, but it obviously does not apply in this case, with the baby happy and gaining. Even though he spits up a lot, clearly he is getting enough nourishment.

Dear Dr. Molner: What effect does vaccination have on a person with psoriasis? I have it, and wonder whether I am taking a risk when receiving a smallpox vaccination. — R. A.

It is true that we try to avoid vaccination of small children if they are broken out with eczema. However, vaccinations for smallpox, typhoid and tetanus (the ones usually given to adults in preparation for foreign travel) will have no effect on psoriasis.

Dear Dr. Molner: Some time ago I became pregnant in a Fallopian tube and underwent surgery. The doctor who operated on me died and I never got a chance to ask him how many tubes were removed, or just one. Would this be apt to happen again? I am past menopause.— Mrs. B. R.

Except under the most farfetched circumstances, removal of only one tube is required. Originally there are two, one on each side. Since you are past menopause, there is no danger of an ectopic (tubal) pregnancy in the remaining one.

Note to G.E.: There may not be any harm in eating a raw egg daily, except that it is an excellent material in which to grow germs. If any dangerous germs have entered the egg, they can do a lot of mischief. It doesn't happen often, but it can happen. That's why, personally, I want an egg cooked, or if it's an eggnog I want it pasteurized.

Dental Facilities Strained

Brantford Expositor

In an address to the Canadian Dental Association Health Minister MacEachen pinpointed the major obstacle in the way of providing a comprehensive dental service program of the kind the Hall Commission recommended should be operative by the 1980s. He said preliminary studies by his department showed that to provide dental services to only five percent more of the population by 1975 would require additional treatment facilities equivalent to 1,000 more dentists. Canadian dental schools now graduate only about 250 dentists each year.

The minister went on to refer to the federal government's proposed $500 million health resources fund that is to be used over the next 15 years to assist the provinces to acquire, construct and renovate health training facilities and research institutions. With a critical shortage of anaesthetists and personnel in so many other branches of medicine, the annual shortage of dentists is not likely to be very significant. In 1964-65 for example, just $1 million in federal funds granted was utilized by the provinces for dental purposes.

The old argument of which comes first, the chicken or the egg, is invariably raised in any discussion of whether government-financed medical care as basic right for every citizen. Canada will probably never be in the position where all the facilities and personnel deemed advisable will be available for a fully comprehensive health program. Ottawa's $500 million health resources fund, to be matched by the provinces, welcome as it is may hardly be sufficient to bring peace with our population growth.

With forest products playing a major role in Canada's economy anything that boosts the forest output is of interest to all of the country. An experiment now under way in Victoria, B.C., is designed to help to advance the flowering of Douglas fir. The Douglas fir is the chief source of lumber. It produces the abundance of fir wood for building construction and home-building in a big way.

There is a great financial potential in the increase in the softening process in the fir tree if it will result in a better crop record than the present average of once every 12 years.

Surveys conducted in B.C. since 1923 have revealed eight collectable crops of Douglas fir seeds but only four were of commercial value.

Dr. L. F. Ebell of the Forest Research Laboratory says he has been experimenting with artificial flowing inducements for seven years.

He explained that his basic method is to artificially create drought conditions when favorable or small grafted trees are being bred.

The presence of drought during the period of bud production can cause trees to produce cones to be used for seeding. It will advance the tree-breeding program and permit tree crosses to be made in about five to 20 or more years normally required for seed production.

Artificial drought conditions in seed orchards will increase the yield and supply of seed displaying a particular character growth and sound quality.

If the experiment proves worthwhile, as "seems indicated, we can look for a new race of Douglas fir of the quality to maintain Canada's high reputation for quality lumber and of course a much greater yield in return with more money to spend in Canada.

Northern Electric Working On Satellites' Use in North

JASPER, Alta. (CP)—Northern Electric Co. researchers are working on the use of satellites to extend communications, including television, into the Canadian north, the Telephone Association of Canada was told today.

E. V. Cox, president of the New Brunswick Telephone Co., told the association's 37th annual meeting that the telephone industry will play an active part in the development of domestic satellite communications.

Mr. Cox, who also is president of the association, said Northern Electric is working on an efficient ground station that would allow satellite-communications to cover isolated locations in the north within a few years.

The number of telephones in Canada had reached 7,440,000 last year, up six per cent from 1964, and long distance calls totalled more than 300,000,000, an eight-per-cent gain.

Quebec's Friday-to-Sunday total included 16 traffic fatalities and 10 drownings. The St. Jean Baptiste one-day toll listed 10 road deaths, 2 drownings and three children who suffocated.

Eight persons died in traffic accidents in British Columbia, while another died on the Alberta highways. Alberta also reported the death from a fall.

Saskatchewan and Manitoba each had three road deaths.

Three persons died on New Brunswick highways and another two persons were drowned. In Nova Scotia two persons were killed on the highways and one in a train accident.

sixth of Ontario's 120,000 farmers. It doesn't have funds for research, and couldn't afford the full - scale strike some farm unionists advocate.

Neither could members afford to dump their milk, as other farmers want done, but it can help publicize the plight of the farmer by public demonstrations.

The price paid the farmer for milk going to processors is the major issue.

Farmers are paid $3.35 a hundredweight for milk sold to manufacturers. It is usually, but not necessarily, of the same grade of drinking milk.

On top of that, the federal government recently agreed to pay a 75-cent subsidy, bringing the price on delivery to the dairy to $4 a hundredweight.

Mr. Dolmer said the point of the farm protest is not simply that they must pay transport costs of about 25 cents out of the 75-cent subsidy, but that shippers have increased their charges a cent or two, and because paid for storage and equipment have been discontinued. Both these developments, he said, came about after it was known that farmers would get the subsidy.

The OFU wants $4 a hundredweight paid for milk at the farm, and it doesn't care where the extra 25 cents comes from.

"We have been presenting briefs for years and they (the governments) always shake our hands and say they will look into the situation.

"This isn't good enough, so we put the tractors out on the roads. I know this has brought thousands of complaints to the provincial police, and we can only hope these complaints will be passed on to other branches of government."

The union has discussed the possibility of stalling tractors on the highways, of a general food production strike and of a limited strike by dumping milk.

WOMEN WORRY

Mr. Dolmer and the people back on the farms, hope no drastic action will be necessary. The wives, in particular, worry that someone will be hurt in the demonstrations.

Mrs. Morley Hutchison, a Thamesford, Ont., area farm wife, said the protestors have proved their point. "Now they should stop before there is an accident."

It is wives, more than anyone, who see the milk price disputs as only one element of a bigger problem: general low farm incomes.

"No farm is making a profit today," said Mrs. Chris Crains of the Thamesford area. "We're making do because our son goes out to work in a factory.

"We would not ask out if he didn't hold down another job, and this goes for most of our neighbors."

Mrs. Bert Dobson, wife of the past president of OFU Local 37 in Coldwater, said 50 per cent of farm families have either a husband or wife working off the farm.

Mr. Dolmer says farmers have been instructed not to demonstrate in peak weekend traffic periods, but he couldn't be sure what individuals might do.

It isn't true that farmers have no rights on the highways because they don't pay gasoline tax, he said. They pay the tax, then get a rebate equal to the tax paid on gas used off the public roads. But they do not pay tax on diesel fuel and some tractors are diesel.

Back on the highways, where the demonstrations are to resume this week, provincial police have been instructed to enforce the law fairly but with discretion.

Tractor - drivers will be charged if they deliberately create an obstruction, either by the spacing of their tractors or by refusing a police order to move to the shoulder of the road. So far, the police order has been the only government reaction.

workers blocked street intersections to try to keep Catholic marchers from getting into the centre of the city.

One group of more than 3,000 Catholics massed outside the palace of Cardinal Wyszynski. When traffic police attempted to clear the streets, angry demonstrators lashed out with umbrellas.

About 1,000 of the demonstrators chanted "primate, primate" and "Catholic unity" as they marched toward the downtown headquarters of Wladyslaw Gomulka's ruling Polish United Workers (Communist) party.

A truck carrying eight riot police tried to stop the marchers. The demonstrators shifted to the other side of the street, shouted "Gestapo, Gestapo!" and continued on.

Two dozen policemen charged with clubs flying and tear gas capsules at the ready. The crowd turned back and eventually dispersed as police trucks cowered on the area.

By midnight the city was quiet.

No Partisan Politics In Senate Claim of Mme. M. Joidon, Retired

MONTREAL (CP)—Men become more charming as they grow older but women don't, says 84-year-old Marinna Joidon.

"So I decided to leave the Senate before it was too late."

Appointed to the Senate 13 years ago, Mme. Joidon was the first French - Canadian woman to sit in the red chamber.

When the Senate Retirement Act came into force, Mme. Joidon, and 28 other senators over 75, had to choose between retirement and serving out their life appointments.

All future senators will be required to retire at 75.

Although it was a difficult decision, Mme. Joidon made it in 24 hours.

She believes the Senate has an important steadying role to play in the government of Canada, and for this reason she was sad about her retirement.

"There are no partisan politics in the Senate. It is a body of men and women who work exclusively for the over-all welfare of their country."

WANTED TO BE LAWYER

Mme. Joidon has been active in politics since 1930 when she founded the Wilfrid Laurier Liberal Club.

She was Quebec president of the National Federation of Liberal Women and vice-president of the Federation of Liberal Women of Canada.

When she was young she wanted to be a lawyer.

"But in those days this was impossible for a woman, so I tried to be as useful to the community as I could in a non-professional capacity."

She has been an ardent champion of women's rights, and has helped to further the cause in Quebec.

Her voluntary service during the Second World War as chairman of the French - speaking section of the consumers' branch of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board earned her an MBE.

Mme. Joidon lives in a Montreal apartment with her sister. Her son and her three daughters all live here with their children.

"I am in good health," she says, "but with my retirement I will be able to relax more and spend time with my family.

"When the Senate was in session, I went to Ottawa every Tuesday and returned to Montreal each Thursday evening. It was a heavy schedule."

Mme. Joidon thinks a French-Canadian woman will be named to replace her in the Senate.

KEEPING IN CHARACTER — The drawing room of Earnscliffe, official residence of the British high commissioner in Ottawa, is finished in ivory and gold with its furnishing mostly reproductions and antiques. Lady Lintott, wife of the present high commissioner, has tried to match the decor with the character of the house. The greystone mansion was once the home of Sir John A. Macdonald. (CP Photo)

Sir John A. Probably Spent Happiest Times at Earnscliffe

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—Sir John A. Macdonald probably spent some of the happiest times of his life at Earnscliffe, a Victorian greystone mansion on the south bank of theOttawa River here.

He had given the historic dwelling its name in 1871 when Thomas Reynolds, the owner then, was thinking of calling it Eaglescliffe. Sir John suggested instead "earn", the old English word for eagle.

He bought the house in 1883 for $30,000 and lived there until his death in the upstairs front bedroom June 6, 1891, when reporters camped on the wide tree-shaded lawns and temporary telegraph lines were installed for them.

Sir John liked to attend the children's parties given at Earnscliffe for his invalid daughter, Mary, and to sit with her on a garden sundeck which still remains, overlooking the river.

In his time, $7,000 worth of alterations were done to the house, including the addition of a study with a handy escape door to the garden. After his death, his widow received a title from Queen Victoria and chose to be called Baroness Macdonald of Earnscliffe.

The main part of the house was built in 1856 by businessman John MacKinnon. MacKinnon mortgaged the property repeatedly, so that when he died in 1866 there was $6,000 owed on the house. But his widow, Annie, had a brother - in - law, Thomas Keefer, who bought the place and the mortgage for $6k.

Keefer cleared up the debts and in 1868 auctioned Earnscliffe for $7,500 to Thomas Reynolds, manager of a railway that had been a business interest of John MacKinnon.

Reynolds sold it to Prime Minister Macdonald, none of whose furniture or belongings remain in the house. Some items were sold at his death, the rest at the death of the next owner, Dr. Charles Harriss, a magician who came here from England.

The Harrisses were a wealthy couple—Mrs. Harriss had first been married to an American industrialist. She added a terrace at the back of the house overlooking the river, a balcony to the second storey and a bow window to the master bedroom.

When they bought the house in 1900, the price was $15,000. At Dr. Harriss' death in 1920, the furnishings, including the best pieces from the Macdonald occupancy, were sold for $28,000.

OLD SOFAS BETTER

Earnscliffe went to the British government that year for $80,000 and has been the residence of that country's high commissioners ever since.

Its furnishings are mostly reproductions and antiques, from England. Lady Lintott, wife of the present high commissioner, Sir Henry Lintott, has tried to match the decor to the character of the house.

Downstairs the drawing room and the large grey-painted dining room, a recent addition, have a wide view of the curving Ottawa River through big picture windows.

The drawing room, where receptions and parties are held, is ivory with gold drapes and comfortable down sofas in gold brocade.

"They told me I could have new sofas but I liked the old ones better," says the slim blonde wife of the high commissioner.

Her favorite place in the house is the little room at the back of the drawing room where she has her writing desk. Window-walls afford a sweeping view of the river.

At the front of the house are Sir John's library and the adjoining studies he had built for his secretary and himself. The Lintott's daughter, Harriet, 12, does her homework in one of them and some Beatles albums and pictures of Herman's Hermits lighten the traditional decor.

There are paintings in the house by British artists, including a study of a girl in orange by the high commissioner's father. He has also done portraits of Lady Lintott, Harriet and John, 16, which hang in Lady Lintott's writing room.

On the second floor are four bedrooms, including the one where Sir John A. Macdonald died. A recently added guest bathroom now takes up the place where he bed stood.

The third-floor rooms, fitted in under the gabled roof, were formerly the servants' quarters. Lady Lintott is having them remodelled—one into a punk - carpeted bedroom for Harriet, another in grey and red for John and the remainder for guests.

The servants now live in what was formerly the stable, a big stone building which served as office space before the new British High Commission building opened a few years ago in downtown Ottawa.

Although none of Sir John A. Macdonald's effects remain in the house there are two other reminders that he lived there. Plaques in French and English record the fact on the outside of the house, and the first thing a visitor sees in the entry hall is a bronze bust of Canada's first prime minister.

Husband's Need to Be Important Destroys Him

DEAR DORIS: I have taken the liberty to enclose a letter which I have recently received from my sister. I am deeply concerned because I fear that the unfortunate symptoms of distress displayed by her husband could ultimately become a threat to his family's physical safety.

There must be some positive steps which she should take. I will appreciate any suggestions — ON THE SIDELINES.

DEAR SIDELINES — The symptoms — rude talk, exhibitionism, jealousy, completa-hate of kindness to his own children — all these things suggest a disjointed approach to life. You say his parents were cold, his brother much preferred.

His reaction has been a perverted effort to throw his weight around in order to feel important. Perhaps the emotional imbalance is increasing.

Your sister should seek professional guidance, which will also help to keep her own balance and to give security and comfort to her daughter. Your letters can be a tremendous source of strength for; don't fail to write often.

TO LINEN SHOWER: Start things off with a trick parcel, with several layers of wrapping. It bears the name of a guest, who undoes it only to find another wrapping and the name of another guest, or her description in rhyme; such as

"If your hair is fair this is not for you;
Pass it along to the girl in blue."

Said girl in blue finds inside another gift wrap and a riddle:

"This is for one who has six kids;
Give it to her or they'll flip their lids."

Eventually, if the poetry holds out, the box reaches the bride-to-be, who opens it and dons the corsage it contains. Lots of fun and a good ice-breaker.

Follow up with "The Bride's Scrap Book" which is an evening's entertainment all by itself. I'm sending you the directions (which may be had by anyone writing in and enclosing ten cents and a five-cent-stamped envelope.)

Doctors Says Women Do Not Have to Worry About Pills

By DAVE PIKE

NEW YORK (CP) — A New York physician who has spent more than a year with fellow members of a U.S. government committee reviewing the effects of birth-control pills says women can relax their fears about these oral contraceptives.

"The fears that women have that the pills can cause untoward experiences have been greatly exaggerated," Dr. Kenneth Adamsons said Saturday in an interview.

Dr. Adamsons, associate attending obstetrician and gynecologist at Columbus Presbyterian Medical Centre, added that the pills are virtually 100-percent effective in preventing conception.

He is a member of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration's nine-member advisory committee which for the last year has been looking at the studies of various public and private agencies, of drug companies and private investigators in an attempt to evaluate the pill's physiological and psychological effects.

Dr. Adamsons, who has been pondering the pill on and off since 1960-61 when he participated in an American Medical Association drug council study, cautioned that "there are many things that probably will take many years to determine — whether there is any causal relationship between the pills and experiences women have."

SEEM HIGHLY EFFECTIVE

However, at this stage, all evidence indicates that "when the pills are taken conscientiously as prescribed, they are more than 99-per-cent effective."

Dr. Adamsons pointed out that studies have indicated that intra-uterine devices, for example, have proved to be less effective, with about five-per-cent failure is preventing conception.

He added that, sexually, "if anything the effects have had a positive value by relieving anxiety. Most couples have been favorably impressed in this area."

Dr. Adamsons said that during his six years' evaluation "nothing basically has been changed in the components of the pills. We have just been accumulating more details regarding their possible side effects such as weight gain . . . various metabolic processes in the human body . . ."

But none of the effects, he said, could be classified as hazardous to health.

Dr. Adamsons suggested the pills should be made readily available to both married and unmarried women, "an opinion which I think is shared by many physicians."

The latest World Health Organization studies in the United States indicate that between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 women are using the pill of which there are at least seven different brands.

UP IN SMOKE — Quinte area Girl Guide officials Sunday afternoon took part in a long-awaited ceremony, the burning of the 6-year-old $20,000 mortgage of Waupoos, the scenic camp for area guides located about 10 miles east of Picton on Lake Ontario. Pictured, from left, are Mrs. A. M. Haig, former Quinte Area Commissioner; Miss M. Potter, Chairman of Training for Ontario and representing the Ontario Council of the Girl Guides of Canada; and Mrs. W. D. MacArthur, Quinte Area Chairman of Camp Development.

Weather Suitable for Tropical Plants But Not Party Guests

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—The weather was suitable for the tropical plants in the Rideau Hall greenhouse, but 3,500 guests wilted at the Governor-General's garden party Saturday as the temperature climbed to a damp 84.

It was a day for mini-skirts, but none showed up among the throng, the largest ever to pour through the stone-pillared gates. One brave male guest wore Bermuda shorts, but many of the men sweltered in long-tailed morning coats with warm wool vests. Guardsmen in bearskin hats wore a sweat-glazed look of incredulous agony as the afternoon wore on.

Half the crowd was Some-body-diplomats, MPs and government officials—and the other half was just folks—people who signed the Government House guest book during the year. The heat melted them into a colorful mass of bright cottons and silks, top hats and flowered bonnets.

The 6,000 invitations sent out last week said come at 4 p.m., but as usual families with starched children began to arrive two hours early. They sidled through greenhouses where banana trees flourished and goldfish swam languidly under a fountain.

CARS BACKED UP

The real surge came 15 minutes after the Gov.-Gen. and Mme. Vanier walked out on the porch to a fanfare of trumpets. As the vice-regal couple moved among the crowd, the cars of late arrivals were backed up for blocks along Sussex Drive.

Harried Mounties had to make an invitation-check with every driver in cars that had turned into portable sauna baths.

Under the shade trees on the lawn, a slight breeze revived the sufferers. The vice-regal couple took tea with diplomats and special guests in a tent surrounded by roped-off enclosure, but spent more time getting there than they did inside.

"Better have an ice-cream," Mme. Vanier advised one guest. About 1,500 did—at least that's how many dixie cups the 45 catering staff had laid by. They also served, 1,500 glasses of orange or ginger ale, 400 gallons of tea and coffee and 3,000 little cakes.

A fleet of trucks arrived before the guests with the pink table cloths, paper plates and plastic spoons, and all those cups and saucers. They reduced 700 loaves of bread and 150 pounds of filling to mounds of fancy sandwiches.

FOUR GROUNDS

After the goodies, guests drifted around the grounds, inspecting the tennis court and a totem pole presented in 1946 by B.C. Indians. Gardeners remarked on the progress of peonies and portulaca in the formal beds, and sportsmen watched a cricket match on a nearby field.

When the Vaniers left the tent, it took them 15 minutes to hand-shake their way the 100 yards back to the house.

The two bands which played Broadway tunes all afternoon took turns with God Save the Queen and O Canada, and the vice-regal couple went inside.

"I'd say it was a successful party," said a representative of the St. John's ambulance, as the crowd slowly filtered out to the parking lot. "Nobody fainted."

'Quinte District' Guides Burn $20,000 Mortgage

PICTON (Staff) — In spite of Sunday's terrific heat it wasn't too warm for a "mortgage burning" at Waupoos Camp for Girl Guides. Indeed, most of the old timers seemed to enjoy the fire.

A crowd of about 300 attended the short but impressive ceremony with Guides, Brownies and Rangers present from all over the Quinte area. The Quinte area Guide Camp at Waupoos has been operating for six years and at that time the mortgage against the buildings and property was $20,000. As of Dec. 31, 1965 the mortgage has been paid off and the Girl Guides of Canada "Quinte District" now own their own camp.

Prior to the burning of the mortgage prayers were said and a welcome and best wishes were extended by Warden Harold Soper on behalf of Prince Edward County. The proceedings, because of the heat, were kept short, platform guests were introduced and Mrs. A. M. Haig (who was Quinte Area commissioner when the camp was taken over and over the past six years) was the featured speaker of the day. She said: "the world is full of willing people, some willing to work and some willing to let them. I don't believe," she continues, "that any Guide has let us down for everyone has been a most willing worker in accomplishing this project." She went on to congratulate all those who participated in making this day one of reality. She gave special thanks to Mayor H. J. McFarland, Arthur Hamblin, Mike Finnegan, Betty Holland and Mrs. W. D. MacArthur and the whole area executive for their time and willingness over the past years.

The mortgage was brought forward on a trey by Colleen Burke, Girl Guide from Belleville, Lorna Gadd, a Brownie from R R 3, Demorestville, and Linda Racine from Sunset Crescent, Napanee, a Ranger. Participating in the actual burning were Mrs. A. M. Haig of Belleville, (Mrs. Haig was Quinte Area Commissioner during the six years the camp was being paid for) Miss A. M. Potter, Chairman of Training for Ontario, who represented the Ontario Council of the Girl Guides of Canada and Mrs. W. D. MacArthur, Chairman of Camp Development for Quinte Area.

After the "Burning" there was a poem of thanksgiving and some pool skits were performed by members of the Guides, Brownies and Rangers from the different areas represented.

15,000 People Admitted to Outlet Park

PICTON — To escape sweltering heat over 25,000 people were admitted to Outlet Provincial Park beaches and campsites this weekend. Campsites were three quarters full with 850 campers registered.

In addition two special duty provincial constables will be assigned to Outlet Park this summer. The action was taken following an outbreak of rowdyism and theft at the park last year.

Corporal Fletcher, head of the Picton detachment O.P.P., said that several weekends so far this year have already resulted in large crowds at the popular campsite and swimming area in the park but that there has been little trouble.

Park Superintendent Robert Davison stresses that names of persistent offenders at the campsite are being taken down this summer and that they will be refused admittance.

R.C.M.P. as well as O.P.P. were called on yesterday to aid in a search for a lost child at Sandbanks Provincial Park. The child was found just as additional forces arrived.

Meanwhile, Provincial Police in Picton obtained a new addition last week. He is Probationary Constable Stanley Miller, formerly of Napanee. He will be taking up residence here with his wife and three children. In announcing the appointment Corporal Fletcher said that this brings the strength of the detachment to 30.

Leg Fractured In Accident

PICTON (Staff) — A car-Honda accident sent a 16-year-old boy Neil McCraw to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital with a bad fracture of the left leg bout 5 p.m. Saturday afternoon. The accident occurred about five miles west of Milford on the road to Cherry Valley and both vehicles were proceeding west toward that village. The car driven by Mrs. Wilfred Wannamaker of South Bay was attempting to pass two Honda motor bikes, when McCraw, who was in the lead was struck passable while he was attempting to make a turn. The accident occurred nearly in front of the boy's home. O.P.P. of the Picton detachment report only two other very minor accidents in the county over the week-end despite heavy traffic to the Provincial Parks and Beaches.

"Tired" Titled Hero Won By Three Lengths

The Intelligencer
MONDAY, JUNE 27, 1966

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Colorful Moe Norman who put on a one-man show at the Bay of Quinte Country Clubs first Festival of Golf will return to the scene of his first Ontario Open Golf Championship in quest of his third Open title.

The Golf Haven Country Club pro donned his first crown at the Kingston Cataraqui Country Club back in 1958 and made it a double win at Pine Valley five years later.

He will be after that elusive number three as the Cataraqui course when the 1966 Open gets under way July 14th through 16th.

His record play indicates that he is at top form and should rate him as favorite to grab the gonfalon at Kingston.

He recently captured the $13,000 Pro-Amateur at Calgary which was the first step on the history-making Curling Canadian Golf Tour comprising the British Columbia, Alberta, Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec Opens in succession and concluding with the Millar at Markland Woods.

At stake at each Open is not only the prize money $1,200 for first at Cataraqui, but the coveted award of a free trip to the $200,000 Curling World Championship at the Royal Birkdale Golf Club, Southport, Lancashire, August 31, September 1, 2 and 3rd.

Norman figures his game is ideally suited for the narrow rolling, tree-lined dog-legged holes at Cataraqui with the undulating greens. If wind becomes a factor, as is often the case on this course, Moe's chances are further enhanced as he is one of Canada's finest wind players.

But, most observers feel, Nick Weslock's all-time record-shattering nine under par 284 shot at Trafalgar last year should not be in jeopardy at Kingston, as Moe won with a one over par 211 at Cataraqui in 1958.

And Norman will be up against some pretty tough competition. Some of the top pros of Ontario and Quebec have been turning in brilliant practice scores and bid fair to roadblock Moe's dash for repetition.

These include Frank Wibbley of Westmount, Leo De Calve, Oakdale; Bob Panasiuk, Bytownay, Windsor; Bob Rose and Wally Byers of Maple Downs; Alvie Thompson of Whitevale; Bruce Murray of St. Catharines; Murray Tucker and Bob Young of the Board of Trade, Woodbridge; Norman Doyle, Golf Sta. Francis, Quebec; Jean Guy Perland, Beauchemin, Quebec and Phil Giroux of Carderville Golf Club, Montreal.

Bay of Quinte Country Club members have a nostalgic interest in the Open. Gary Bowerman of Maple Downs will be in the running and should give an excellent account of himself.

Gary "trained" during the winter down Florida way and set a record as one of the popular southern courses with a net 68.

BRITISH EMPIRE GAMES

Another Belleville athlete will join the Canadian team in the British Empire Games at Kingston, Jamaica in early August.

Bill McMurter, former weightlifter and later judge and referee, joins Ken Carr-Brahet who was recently appointed coach of the national "lifting" team.

The Jamaican Government invited three Canadian officials to join the team. McMurter volunteered and was immediately accepted to act as a judge, referee or official.

By JIM CREHAR

Toronto (CP)—A horse that was nothing but trouble earlier this year redeemed himself Saturday by running away to a three - length victory in the Queen's Plate.

Titled Hero, a muscular black colt owned by Peter Marshall of Toronto, galloped through the heat at Toronto's Woodbine Race Track to defeat 10 rivals in the 107th running of the 1¼-mile classic for Canadian-foaled three-year-olds.

The victory climaxed an uphill struggle for trainer Pat McMurchy, the 68-year-old native of Port Patrick, Scotland, who nursed the colt through a bout of virus and two bad injuries to get him into the Queen's Plate winner's enclosure.

Jockey Avelino Gomez, told by McMurchy to ride favored Titled Hero as he saw fit, played it cool before 25,846 fans, who sweltered in temperatures in the high 90s.

ANGERED McCOMB

But jockey Sam McComb o' Belfast, Ireland, who rode second-place Bye and Near, was hot under the collar. He accused Gomez, 39-year-old winner of 3,119 races in his career, of bumping.

Bye and Near, owned by Conn Smythe, former head of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, couldn't keep up in the stretch.

McComb said Gomez bumped Bye and Near late in the race, "but you don't claim foul when you ride for Major Smythe."

"He's a sportsman and I'm from the old country and I've got some of that, too."

He said the race stewards are in for a surprise when they review the race today on film and see Gomez's ride.

Third was Bright Monarch, owned by Mrs. Frank McMahon of Vancouver and ridden by Joe Bass of Seattle. The only western-Canadian-owned horse in the race, Bright Monarch finished 10 lengths off the pace. He is trained by former jockey Johnny Longden of Tabor, Alta., winner of a record 6,032 races during his riding career.

Gomez, in a hurry to climb aboard a mount in the next race, seemed unruffled by McComb's accusations. The Colombo ace, who became the sixth jockey to ride three Plate winners, said only that Titled Hero didn't run his best race.

"He was tired. He did 1:43 3-5 on Monday in the Plate Trial and that took a lot out of him."

The trial was the 1-1/8 mile. Titled Hero's time over the additional three - sixteenths of a mile Saturday was 2:03 3-5, well off the plate record of 2:02 set in 1909 by Victoria Park.

Gomez's other plate triumphs were aboard Lyford Cay in 1957 and Victoria Park.

The winter-book favorite at 2 to 5 and bet down to 1 to 4 post time, Titled Hero returned $2.50, $2.30 and $2.10. Bye and Near, a 13-to-1 bet, paid $4.70 and $3 while Bright Monarch, at 7 to 1, returned $3.70 to show.

More than half of the $236,646 wagered on the race was bet on Titled Hero. The record pool for the plate, $293,734, was set last year when Whistling Wind, at 91-, 263,110 was $133,232 short of the track record set on plate day last year.

Titled Hero claimed $52,113.75 as his share of a record purse of $80,175. Marshall also was presented with a bank draft for 50 guineas, traditional gift of the Queen, and a small gold cup worth $5,000 by Lt.-Gov. Earl Rowe of Ontario.

Bye and Near picked up $16,035 and Bright Monarch collected $8,017.50. Holastic, part of a two-horse entry from the Hamilton stable of Frank Sherman Sr. and his son, Frank Jr., finished fourth 13 lengths behind and collected $4,006.75.

NO SURPRISE — Titled Hero, ridden by Avelino Gomez, surprised no-one Saturday when he swept past the finish line at Woodbine Racetrack in Toronto to win the 107th running of the Queen's Plate. Titled Hero, owned by P. K. Marshall of Toronto, was a heavy favorite to win the $50,000 added, along with the gold cup and the traditional gift of 50 guineas from Queen Elizabeth. ## The "King" Is Retired

BALTIMORE (AP) — Kauai King, the winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness who pulled up lame after Saturday's Arlington Classic, has been retired from racing, the Baltimore Sun said Sunday.

In a story from Chicago, Sun racing writer Bill Boniface said Mike Ford decided to retire Kauai King to stud after receiving a report on the three-year-old colt's left front ankle.

Ford, the original sole owner of Kauai King, recently told the colt to a syndicate for $2,200,000 and remained the largest stock holder by retaining eight shares himself.

Reached by telephone in Virginia, where he was touring horse farms, Ford told Boniface he had received a report from veterinarian Dr. Raymond Murphy of Laurel, Md.

Ford said Murphy read x-rays which they were still wet "but is 99 per cent sure no bones are fractured. However, he said the compensories of the leg are pulled pretty bad and much worse than he originally believed."

In The 220

Jerome Sets New Mark

VANCOUVER (CP) — Harry Jerome of Vancouver established a Canadian open record of 20.8 seconds for the 220-yard dash at the window meet of the Western Canada track and field championships Saturday.

The former record of 20.9 was set by Jerome in 1962.

In the 100-yards, Jerome finished in 9.4 seconds, his best time this season, but two-tenths of a second off his Canadian record.

Archie San Romani of Portland, Ore., won the mile event in 4:08.4, just ahead of Vancouver's Terry Dooley.

In the women's 220-yard dash, Jerome's sister, Valerie Parker, squalled the British Columbia native record of 26.6 but lost to Marlene Turner of Nova Scotia, by four-tenths of a second.

Jerome, Gordon Johnson Tony Clarke and Mike Evans of Vancouver set a B.C. native record of 3:19.5 in the one-mile relay.

"I felt good and the warm weather really helped," said Jerome after the meet.

He said he will run in Calgary July 9, but doesn't know whether he will run for Canada at the British Empire Games in Jamaica in August.

Jerome said he is uncertain of his future in international track and field. He said his only definite plan now is to return to the University of British Columbia and work toward his masters degree.

NEW YORK (AP)— Jim Ryun, the 19-year-old Kansas flash, opened up in the last 200 yards and sprinted to an eight-yard victory over Dyrol Burleson of Eugene, Ore. Sunday in the climax mile of the U.S. AAU track and field championships. The time was 3:56.6.

If you're ready to buy car tires and you're worried about safety...

forget your worries at Fina

Some tires are safer than others. Only Fina hasn't any "others"

We make tire-buying safe and simple by limiting our tires to just three basic lines—and all three give you more strength and safety—for less money!

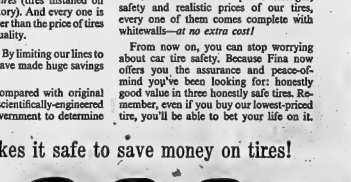
Every one of these Fina tires—the Fina Executive, the Fina Flyer, the Fina Superline—is as safe or safer than standard original equipment tires (tires installed on new cars at the factory). And every one is offered at a price lower than the price of tires of equal or better quality.



How can we do it? By limiting our lines to only safe tires, we have made huge savings on handling costs.

Fina tires were compared with original equipment tires by a scientifically-engineered test used by the government to determine carcass strength—the most important factor in tire safety. Results proved that our premium tire, the Fina Executive, is 70% stronger than most original equipment tires. Our near-premium tire, the Fina Flyer, is 30% stronger, and our first line tire, the Fina Superline, is 20% stronger.

In addition to the superior strength, safety and realistic prices of our tires, every one of them comes complete with whitewalls—at no extra cost!

From now on, you can stop worrying about car tire safety. Because Fina now offers you the assurance and peace-of-mind you've been looking for: honestly good value in three honestly safe tires. Remember, even if you buy our lowest-priced tire, you'll be able to bet your life on it.

Fina makes it safe to save money on tires!

Fina Executive ...the hand-crafted premium tire. World's only tire with single ring whitewall on one side... double on the other.

Fina Flyer ...the near-premium tire that's 30% stronger than most original equipment tires.

Fina Superline ...our lowest-priced tire—20% stronger than most original equipment tires.

Mud Hens Player Hits 4 Homers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The once impregnable New York Yankees are going to defend the crown that Bobby Murcer has had enough seasoning in the International League.

The American League Yankees, currently in seventh place, sent Murcer to Toledo Mud Hens about a month ago. He's been wielding a bat bat over since, but he reached his zenith Sunday, hammering four consecutive home runs against Toronto Maple Leafs.

He started his assault with two in his final two trips to the plate in the opener as Toledo won 15-4 and hit homers in his first two trips to bat in the second game, won by the Leafs 3-2.

Elsewhere, Syracuse Chiefs swept a doubleheader 6-3 and 8-2 from Richmond Braves, Rochester Red Wings defeated Jacksonville Suns 4-3, and Buffalo Bisons stunned Columbus Jets 3-0 before losing the second 4-3.

Saturday, Rochester defeated Jacksonville 3-1, Richmond downed Syracuse 3-0, Toronto defeated Toledo 16-6 and Buffalo defeated Columbus 5-2.

Wins Western; Palmer Ninth

Casper Gives Youngsters Lesson

CHICAGO (AP)—Golfer Billy Casper, in command of himself and his game, won the Western Open Sunday by letting a corps of youngsters flounder in his wake and border another on past faltering Arnold Palmer.

Casper, 35, shot a steady one-under-par 70 for a 283 total, the only score to better 4-finalist No. 3's par of 284 for 72 holes. He won $20,000 to wrest the PGA money-winning lead from Palmer, whom he defeated in a playoff for the U.S. Open crown last week.

Casper took dead aim at less experienced youngsters — Kermit Zarley, 34, Homero Blancas, 28, and Tommy Aaron, 28—to get his win.

Aaron went into the final round with a one-stroke lead over the field, but Casper went out front on the third hole with a birdie and dared the others to catch him.

RUNNER WAS SECOND

Zarley threw with a closing 71 finished second with a 286 and won $12,000, Aaron blew to a 75 and Zarley shot a 74 as the youngsters settled for 287 totals and $6,250 each.

"I think it's a little tougher for them," said Casper in reflection to the younger set's failure to catch him. "You'll notice

Crothers Wins In Nairobi

NAIROBI (Reuters) — Kenya's world record holder Kipchoge Keino will be favorite to win the 1968 Olympic 3,000 and 5,000 metres gold medals in Mexico City's high altitude, Canadian runner Bill Crothers said Saturday.

Crothers, of Markham, Ont., and 800 metres Tokyo Olympic silver medallist, clocked one minute, 49.7 seconds to win a half-mile race run at an altitude of 6,000 feet in northern Kenya Saturday.

Crothers said: "Keino has got a wonderful country to train in and at this altitude he must be favorite for Mexico. Although I won my race I never felt such an effect on me. My legs were heavy and my chest burned."

Mexico City has an altitude of 7,478 feet and several critics have said that Olympic athletes would need at least six weeks acclimatizing themselves before competing.

Andretti Wins 300 At Atlanta

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Mario Andretti, driving a Lotus-Ford, grabbed an early lead and held it all the way Sunday to win the second annual championship 300-mile race at Atlanta International Raceway.

He steadily built his lead over Billy Foster, of Victoria and finished a full lap in front. However, Foster, also driving a Lotus-Ford was penalized three laps for passing two cars under a caution flag. This dropped him to third place. Fieldings second was Gordon Johncock of Hasting, Mich., in a Lotus-Ford.

Andretti's winning time was 139.310 miles an hour.

What You Should Know About Your Wife

In July Reader's Digest, a humorous writer reveals the mature women. It's all in fun, but food for thought. What's your wife's reaction to taking out the garbage and fixing the vacuum cleaner? What does she say when you overdo things? Has her cooking improved? You'll want to read this article in July Reader's Digest—now on sale.

His name is not Robinson, but Boog Powell is hitting like one. The Yankees haven't been getting the same recognition accorded Frank and Brooks Robinson in Baltimore's run for the American League pennant, again emphasized his credentials Sunday by driving in four runs with three hits in a 10-7 win over California Angels.

The way he's been going the 26-year-old first baseman may be ready to claim an equal share with the Robinsons in the Orioles' power structure.

A month ago Powell was hitting a woeful .185. Since then he has hit a .402 clip while hammering nine homers and 30 runs batted in.

ENTERS HEADS HITTERS

With Powell driving in four hits, Brooks knocking in the lead run and Russ Snyder collecting five hits — and taking over the AL batting lead with a .326 average—the Orioles built their league lead to three games over Detroit.

Minnesota clipped the Tigers twice 7-4 and 7-1, New York Yankees swept Chicago White Sox 7-2 and 3-0, Kansas City defeated Cleveland 4-3 before the Indians came back for a 14-3 triumph and Boston walloped Washington 13-7 before the Senators turned the tables 9-3.

Saturday Baltimore edged the Angels 1-0, Chicago nipped New York 2-1, Detroit scored a 1-0 victory over Minnesota, Washington edged Boston 4-3 and Kansas City whipped Cleveland 7-4.

BAD 29 HITS

The Orioles who finished with 29 hits, led 5-0 and 4-3 but had to come from behind a 7-5 deficit in the eighth inning. Frank Robinson's single and an error by Jose Cardenal on the hit let Lois Aparicio score the tying run. Brooks Robinson also singled in the tie - breaker and Powell singled home another run.

Five hits for three Baltimore runs in the ninth and put it out of reach.

The Twins rapped 14 hits in the opener with Harmon Killebrew slamming a double and two singles. A five-run fifth inning in which Killebrew doubled home a run and scored another put it away.

In the nightcap, the Twins again pecked five runs into one inning, this time the third, and Jim Perry took it from there with a three-hitter.

Tom Tresh hit a two - run homer and Roger Maris hit a three-run shot in the Yankees' first game victory.

Trosh singled home the only run Fritz Peterson needed in the nightcap as Peterson checked the White Sox on six hits.

Kansas City won the opener on homers by Dick Green, Roger Repoz and Bert Campaneris. Campaneris' came against Indians' ace Sam McDowell, working in relief in his first appearance since injuring his arm.

ROCKY HOMERS

The nightcap was deadlocked until the sixth when the Indians erupted for seven runs, including homers by Rocky Colavito—his seventh in five days—and Max Alvis. Chico Salmon also homered for Cleveland drove in five runs.

The Red Sox won the opener as Joe Foy hit a grand slam homer and Don Demeter and Dalton Petrocelli contributed solo shots.

The Senators got even in the nightcap with Fred Valentine and Ken Harrelson hitting homers.

Stephen McDowell cracked a double and single to spearhead the winners' attack. Bill Coughlan, Richard Griffin, Mike Goggan and Art Wellsley contributed singles.

Bad Boy singles went to Rick Burnett, Brian Cousins and Mike Bell.

Boomhower Sparks Win
Juniors Whip Picton

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Carl Boomhower's bat fell of doubles and a bad sixth inning paved Ellis Juniors to an 8-4 B. and D. softball victory over Picton Kinsmen before an other big crowd at Alemite Park Saturday night.

The Juniors snapped a 3-3 deadlock with the sixth inning when Boomhower led off with the third of his four doubles and Picton erred three times. A walk and Barker's sacrifice leading to two of the errors, also helped the cause.

Picton formerly the Bloomfield team, jumped ahead 2-0 in the top of the first on three singles Wesse's double and an error.

Boomhower got one back when Cyri Stacey, pitching with his broken left arm still in a cast, threw wild first on Wellsley's tap. Ellis' moved ahead on Moon's solid home run, another Boomhower two-bagger and a wild pitch, 3-2 in the third.

The losers' Keith MacDonald, who collected four singles without once getting solid wood on the ball, broke a slump and came around on passed balls and an out to tie it 3-3.

After the Juniors' big play, Picton netted loners in the seventh and eighth to make it close again, but Al Wills and Don MacDonald and Forester plated one and Carson slammed a pinch-hit homer for the next.

Boomhower and Ethier sandwiched doubles around another double to wrap it up with a pair in the Juniors' eighth.

Backing Boomhower on the hit list was Bob Ethier with a double and single and Bob Moon, with his home run. Ellis' had only one man on base, that in the first inning.

The seven hits were all that Isaac Carl Stacey gave up. He struck out 12 and walked only one, deserving better support.

Bob Ethier allowed 11 hits on the winners' hilltop, firing third artillery past Dr. walking four, and twice pitching out of bases-loaded jams.

Ron Wessel downed MacDonald's four-hit total with a double and single while Frank Forster singled twice, Eldon Carson homered, Warren Ostrander and Dave Lockwood got a base hit each.

Giants' Perry Stops Reds' Win Streak

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

by Ned Riddle

"... and in 1907, he was hanged for being the meanest horse thief in American history."

Gaylord Perry is running like Joan Of Arc'hal and winning like him, too.

Perry continued his sprint toward baseball immortality and Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles Sunday, pitching a two-hitter as the National League-leading San Francisco Giants stopped Cincinnati's eight - game winning streak 2-0.

The victory was the 10th against one defeat for Perry, giving him a .909 percentage, best among the league's top pitchers. Marichal, at 10-2, has an .857 mark with Koufax, who posted his 56th triumph against two defeats Sunday, is at .875.

The National League has left the season of his five-year major league career, Perry has picked up one of Marichal's habits. Instead of plodding to the mound each inning as virtually all pitchers do, Marichal runs.

Perry does, too.

MISSED THREE WEEKS

The 27-year-old righthander has accomplished half a season season even though he missed nearly three weeks after hurting his left middle finger on his second base May 24.

He still walks with a noticeable limp.

He had the Reds worried through five innings after he retired the first 15 batters he faced. But Chico Ruiz led off the sixth with a single and Cincinnati got two more baserunners before the shutout was resolved.

In other games Los Angeles edged Atlanta 2-1, Pittsburgh downed Philadelphia 3-0, Houston topped St. Louis 6-0 in 11 innings and Chicago whipped New York 7-0 before losing 8-2. Saturday Atlanta beat the Dodgers 5-4 and 4-3, Cincinnati edged the Giants 3-2, Houston defeated St. Louis 3-2, Philadelphia edged Pittsburgh 5-7 and New York trounced Chicago 9-2.

While Perry sprained the Reds, the Giants exploded with five home runs—two by Tom Haller and one each by Jim Davenport, Don Landrum and Willie Mays—as Juan Marichal suffered his third defeat in 12 decisions.

Koufax became the winning set pitcher in the majors, scattering seven hits and striking out 14. The Dodgers pulled it out in the ninth on Dennis Menke's two - base error and Willie Davis' double.

Woody Fryman shut out Philadelphia on three hits while Roberto Clemente and Willie Stargell, who walked, scored the Pirate runs.

Jim Wynn's three-run homer off Joe Hoerner in the 12th boosted Houston past St. Louis. The Astros, blanked on five hits by Al Jackson through eight innings, scraped for three runs and a 3-3 tie in the ninth. Wynn drove in the tying run with a sacrifice fly.

Jack Simmons pitched a five-hitter for the Cubs in the opener of the doubleheader and was supported by Ernie Banks, who drove in three runs with a single and a sacrifice fly.

Ron Santo extended his hitting streak to 22 straight games before leaving the game in the third. Santo suffered a double fracture of the left cheek bone when hit by a Jack Fisher pitch.

The Mets came back in the nightcap behind Dennis Ribant's six hitter.

Daysailer Regatta

Burrows Boat Second

The first Ontario - Quebec Regional Daysailer regatta was held in Belleville June 25th and 26th, 1966, at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, who were host for this event.

Both contestants were visitors from the United States and were not eligible to win the Ontario - Quebec Regional Daysailer trophy but were presented with other trophies and awards by the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club.

Other contestants raised as follows: Addison Scholes, Geneseo, N.Y. and his crew John Wills of Belleville, 30 points; Arthur Alves, Belleville, 37 points; Charlie Manches, Stouffville, 37 points; Bob Leach, Belleville, 38 points; Grant Rathbun, Trenton, 38 points; Les Turi, Toronto, 38 points; Ken Goyer, Belleville, 38 points; Philmore Cane Belleville, 21 points; T. Milton, Reseale, 19 points; J. E. Mollens, Toronto, 11 points; Ed. Davies, Oshawa 11 points; Cliff Cooper, Port Credit, 11 points. Bob Webster, Port Credit, 8 points.

Freeman Burrows was Regatta chairman, and the races were run under the direction of Ben Guyer chairman of the Race Committee with George Haggis and Cy Gardiner acting as race officials. Vice Commodore Ernie Colborne's yacht "Fedrick" acted as committee boat for Saturday's races, and Stuart McDougall's boat for Sunday's race. Commodore Dr. Harold Craig made presentation of awards and prizes. Bill Wills out watching the races aboard "Freedream" ably rescued a capsized daysailer in Saturday's first race.

Belcha disposed of Zion 17-2 in the opening round, drew a bye in the "A" elimination and defeated Westwood 11-6 in the "A" championship game.

Meanwhile, Oshawa won the "B" championship for the first-round tourney, by whipping Zion in the titular game 10-2. Oshawa defeated Cobourg in a 12-12 elimination squeaker to reach the finals.

In the opening round, played early in the day, Springbrook topped Cobourg 10-7, Westwood whipped Oshawa 11-6 and Belleville trounced Zion 17-2.

In the "A" elimination, Westwood whipped Springbrook 13-5.

Stars of the tournament were Belleville catcher Greg Scarlett and pitchers John Sprackett and Gary McMurray.

Scarlett hit two home runs and a triple against Zion and cleaned up with a home run, triple and single in the "A" championship game. He won the tournament's Most Valuable Player award.

Combined to pitch a two-hitter Sprackett and McMurray against Zion, striking out 17. Sprackett stopped Westwood on five hits, with relief help from McMurray in the last inning, in the championship game.

The terrific heat kept crowds low throughout the day.

Umpires from both the Quinte District Association and the Belleville and District Association handled the games.

Ti-Cats Open Training Camp

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference open their training camp today, but coach Ralph Sazio isn't sure whether all-star end Hal Patterson will be among the 65 contenders for jobs with the defending champions.

The last time I talked with Hal," said Sazio, "he was going to call me and let me know whether he would be here, but I haven't heard from him."

Patterson is a veteran of 10 years of professional football with Hamilton and Montreal.

Armbro Flight Beaten

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Perfect Freight, a 22-to-1 longshot, turned in one of harness racing's biggest upsets by winning the $89,111 Realization Trot at Roosevelt Raceway Saturday night in the world record time of 2:08 3-5 for the 1 1-16 miles.

After the even-money favorite, Armbro Flight, and Noble Victory, the third choice, went off-stride at the first turn, Perfect Freight, piloted by Del Insko, stormed down the middle of the stretch over All Aflame, and won by a head.

It was the first stakes victory for the four-year-old colt by Stars Pride and Pebble Hanover, owned by the ABC stables of New York.

Perfect Freight paid $47, $11 and $8.80. All Aflame returned $4 and $3. Evans Hanover, an 8-5 favorite, Sharp Rodney, paid $8 to show.

Armbro Flight, a four-year-old sire owned by Clarence and Armstrong brothers ca. Brampton, Ont., came from far back to take fourth but was disqualified and placed last for interfering with Noble Victory on the first turn.

Joe O'Brien of Alberton, P.E.I., driver of Armbro Flight, was suspended for five days immediately after the race for the infraction. Ralph Dancer, who drove Noble Victory, said the trotter suffered a leg cut in the first turn mishap and may be out of action for some time.

The previous record was 2:08 4-5, set by Duke Rodney in 1962 and equalled by Dartmouth in 1964.

War Will Be Presented As a Barrel of Laughs

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—While television's comic enthusiasts—the competition next fall will be a non-war comedy called The Lucy Show, which in its time has fought and defeated some powerful competition.

Speaking of Lucy, for the first time in many, many years there will be no reruns of another Lucille Ball series on CBS' daytime lineup next fall. And reruns of The Real McCoys are finally being retired, too. They will be replaced in the morning schedule with repeats of old Candid Camera and early Beverly Hillbillies episodes.

ABC's Combat and 12 O'Clock High are straight action shows, one about combat infantrymen in France and the other about British-based U.S. airmen. CBS' new Jericho will fight the underground war. Hogan's Heroes and F Troop are just for laughs.

But even the stars-to-be of the forthcoming Rat Patrol are not exactly sure yet whether they are in a war picture or an adventure series. They suspect a bit of both.

HEAD FOR SPAIN

The four young men who comprise four-fifths of the ABC show's leading players, hiked through New York this weekend en route to Spain for three months in which they will turn out 17 shows. They will be using sandy locations and even sets previously used in the film Lawrence of Arabia, since apparently some sections of Spain look more like African desert than Africa. Rat Patrol is built around Rommel's ill-fated African campaign.

The quartet—Chris George, Lawrence Casey, Justin Tarr and Jim Hutton—are not ready to make the pilot film, but already have a tendency to work as a team, often finishing each other's sentences.

Rat Patrol, one gathered from them, will be "audacious and bigger than life" and portray "the camaraderie of the professional soldier." It also will have a regular character who is a German officer, played by Gudegast, and he will be as awfully good guy even if he is their enemy.

"I am not a heavy," insisted Gudegast. "Even though occasionally I think I may have to try to kill one of them."

George will be an American sergeant, Casey and Tarr will be privates. A fifth actor will join them on the Costa Brava to play a British sergeant. All of them are practically unknown at the moment. Tarr auditions for his part upon graduating from the American Academy of Dramatic Arts.

There is but one damper on

Koufax Could Win 30

ATLANTA (AP)—Sandy Koufax says he doesn't think he can become Baseball's first 30-game winner in 32 years unless he gets a chance for some victories in relief.

"You can't win 30 games as a starting pitcher," the Los Angeles lefty said after winning his 14th victory Sunday with a 7-1 decision over Atlanta, making him the winningest pitcher in the major leagues.

"You've got to win some in relief to get 30," added Koufax, who indicated he wouldn't object to pitching in relief late in the season.

He is almost two weeks ahead of the pace set by Dizzy Dean when he won 30 games for St. Louis Cardinals in 1934, last time a pitcher won 30.

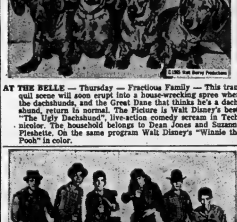
Dean won his 14th game on July 8, a pace also surpassed last year by Koufax when he collected No. 14 on July 3 in his 18th start, en route to 26 victories in 1965.

WON IN RELIEF

"Dean won five or six games in relief that year," Koufax said. "You've got to, because you only start about 40 games, curve ball to win his 14th game. and it's tough to win 30 of 40.

"I love open a blister on my This year Koufax has started left thumb when I batted in the 18 games and finished 14, losing both losing. I couldn't throw twice.

"I want to start every fourth curve ball after that, although day the rest of the season and curve every once in a while just maybe every third date late in to keep the Braves honest." the year."



Koufax struck out 11 and scattered seven hits.

Martie Balsam Is Not Letting Oscar Go to Head

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—If nice guys finished last, how does Martie Balsam won the Oscar?

He won it playing a role you might have missed if you went into the lobby for popcorn. Nonetheless, Martin Balsam accended to the ranks of the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium April 18 to claim his prize as best supporting actor of 1965 for his performance in A Thousand Clowns.

The actor immediately returned to the Tucson, Ariz., location of Stagecoach. He now is back in Hollywood to finish the film.

"As to the career benefits," Balsam says of the award, "I'm not sure that anything has changed. Oh, maybe the scripts they're sending me now are better than before—bigger parts, though not necessarily better ones. The Oscar may put me in a somewhat different class; we'll wait and see.

"But there are dangers, too. Maybe producers will think, 'oh he's just an actor,' when actually his price will be doubled."

Balsam isn't about to let the Oscar go to his head.

At 44, he has clocked 25 years as an actor, Bronx-born, he studied dramatics at New York's New School for Social Research and got his first job in a Long Island stock company.

After service as a flight engineer with the air force in the Second World War, he tried his luck as a nightclub comic, then eased into television. His first film was On the Waterfront, and he quickly became one of the screen's most accessible character actors (Marjorie Morningstar, Psycho, Breakfast at Tiffany's, The Carpetbaggers, etc.)

"I almost didn't take the job in A Thousand Clowns," Balsam said. "The part wasn't that big, and I didn't think I wanted to play another agent.

"But I happened to be in New York when they were shooting there, and my wife was having a baby, so I took the picture."

Will Beat Jones Badly"

Terrell Thumps Fight Dragon

HOUSTON (AP)—Ryan Terrell, a man who thinks he should be called world's heavyweight boxing champion because he represents the only world association, tries to boost his claim Tuesday against tough Doug Jones.

Terrell, recognized by the World Boxing Association but not accorded such distinction in New York, California and Massachusetts and by many fans, will clash with the Cuban who gave Cassius Clay, Ernie's chief tormentor, a rough evening.

Terrell said he is not cocky and didn't say that Doug should have had the decision.

And it is on this basis that Terrell expects to gain the respect he figures is due a champion who has beaten all the good boys."

"I think I'll beat him bad," Terrell said in the modest tradition.

PREDICTS KAYO

"I probably will knock him out, but if I don't it will still be a bad beating," said the six-foot six - inch Terrell. "That ought to help stop away this thing that's hanging over me that Clay is the real champion."

Clay reportedly is regarded as the heavyweight champion, which infuriates Terrell, who says he has not been accorded a gym for a sparring session.

Terrell has been talking so much about Clay in the belief that Jones says Ernie must be confused about whom he is fighting.

"I'll have to straighten him out," quipped Jones, who will be giving away a solid fourteen pounds lighter when they clash 15 rounds and will depend on his speed to carry him through.

Jones even predicted he would knock out the champion.

An examination of the records of the two would indicate Terrell should be a solid favorite. They started fighting within a year of each other and Terrell has a 24-1 record compared to 20-5-1 for Jones.

Fractured Cheek-Bone

Bean-Ball Battle Flares

CHICAGO (AP)—Ron Santo, Chicago Cubs' top candidate for the All-Star team, will undergo surgery today for a fractured left cheekbone after being hit Monday by New York Met pitcher Jack Fisher.

The beaning of the veteran third baseman came in the third inning shortly after Met manager Wes Westrum and Cub manager Leo Durocher exchanged words over a baseball battle which erupted in the second inning.

However, Westrum and plate umpire Chris Pelekoudas both said that the hitting of Santo was unintentional and that the pitch merely got away from Fisher.

Santo, who had extended his hitting streak to 10 games with a single in the first inning, was carried off the field by attendants and was expected be will be sidelined two weeks.

PHILLIPS HIT

Adolfo Phillips, who had homered for Chicago in the first inning, was hit by Fisher in the left elbow and has sat out the games in the second inning.

When the Mets came to bat in the third, Shamsky hit Ron Hunt and that started the argument. Shortly thereafter Durocher with Westrum being restrained by the other umpires threw brushing Pelekoudas away.

"I know in my heart Fisher didn't throw at Santo," Westrum said. "The ball just sailed and Santo froze. Jack even yelled 'look out' just as soon as he released the pitch."

Pelekoudas said, "This wasn't the case of Fisher throwing at Santo. I had warned both managers that I would hold them responsible if there were any further incidents after the second inning.

"The ball just got away from Fisher. Fisher yelled, but instead of falling away, Santo just bent his knees."

Argentina's Army Chief Ousts Illia

From AP-Reuters

BUENOS AIRES (CP) — Argentina's military leaders overthrew elected President Arturo Illia during the night in a swift bloodless coup aimed at shutting the Peronists out of the political picture.

The mildly mild-mannered president, who had served 32 months of his six-year term, holed up for the night in Casa Rosada, the pink stone seat of government, and defied the generals this morning to remove him by force.

But within 20 minutes he was on his way to an undisclosed destination — perhaps under arrest.

Military sources said the army commander-in-chief who led the coup, Lt.-Gen. Pascual A. Pistarini, and the commanders of the navy and air force would form a governing junta and then would install Lt.-Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania, the former army commander-in-chief and Argentina's most prominent military man, as interim president.

Vice-President Carlos Perette fled across the Plate River to Uruguay during the night. The rest of the 86-year-old president's cabinet stood with him as he defied Maj.-Gen. Julio R. Alsogaray, commander of the 1st Army Corps who asked Illia to leave Casa Rosada.

'WON'T SURRENDER'

Illia told Alsogaray he was Argentina's constitutional president and would not surrender to force.

A government house source said the president left the building at 6:05 a.m. (4 a.m. EST) but did not disclose the circumstances.

Although troops of the presidential guard had manned machine-guns in the halls and entrances of Casa Rosada, Alsogaray's troops ringed the building and occupied it without trouble.

The military declared a bank holiday but said government offices and other activities would operate as usual.

In a communique read on the radio, Gen. Pistarini announced he had deployed his forces to guarantee the safety of public order.

The communique said the three branches of the armed forces were in control and would maintain peace in the country.

It said all airports throughout Argentina were under air force control. The communique went on:

"President Illia offered his resignation at 2000 local time (9 p.m. EST) Monday to the commander-in-chief of the navy and air force. Contradictory attitudes of Illia later compelled this command to adopt speedy action."

Rhodesia Runs Out Of Time

By HAROLD HOBSON

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Wilson's special emissary, Oliver Wright, returns to the Rhodesian capital of Salisbury in a few days to offer the last flexible regions what may be the last chance to open ground for acceptable negotiations before economic screws are tightened against Rhodesia.

Informants disclosed Monday that the commonwealth prime minister's conference will be held here Sept. 6-25 and this is offered as a deadline on the time left for Anglo-Rhodesian exploratory talks.

Senior British and Rhodesian officials have been holding confidential talks since early May to decide whether there is any ground for launching ministerial bargaining to settle the Rhodesian crisis.

If no progress is made before Commonwealth leaders gather at Marlborough House, Wilson is expected to come under heavy African pressure to find

Farmers Will Leave Highways To Motorists Until Haying Over

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Farmers protesting low milk prices will leave the highways to the automobiles for the next couple of weeks while they rush to finish their haying. But once the hay is in the tractor demonstrations will resume, Ontario Farmers Union officials said Monday.

In Toronto, OFU President John Dolmer said farmers plan a mass demonstration in about 10 days with the legislature building in Toronto the probable target.

He said as many as 1,000 tractors could converge on Queen's Park.

The farmers are seeking a firm price of $4 a hundredweight for milk supplied for use in the production of butter and cheese. The price now is $3.25, plus a 75-cent government subsidy, but farmers are demanding as much as 30 cents a hundredweight for shipping to manufacturers.

The Peterborough-Durham local of the OFU Monday called off all demonstrations until haying is completed. At the same time the local reaffirmed its determination to back the protests against low farm product prices.

At Richmond, 25 miles southwest of Ottawa, the results of a ballot taken among farmers Friday showed more than 90 per cent in favor of tractor-driving demonstrations.

Bert Dobson, past president of the OFU local in Coldwater, 12 miles west of Orillia, said farmers in his area hoped to stage a demonstration today.

William Langdon of Medina, president of the OFU local in Oxford County said there would be no further demonstrations in his area until the hay is in unless rain delays the harvest.

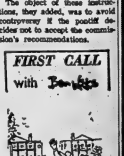
Pope Paul Gets Report Of Birth Control Study

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Jolies Cardinal Doepfner of Munich today handed Pope Paul the conclusions of the birth control commission on whether to retain the Roman Catholic ban on contraception, Vatican sources said.

Cardinal Doepfner is a vice-president of the commission, along with John Cardinal Heenan of Westminster. The commission, composed of 15 cardinals and bishops assisted by more than 30 experts, held several final discussions all last week.



Pope Paul now will study the conclusions and decide whether to accept, reject or modify them.

Vatican sources believe this probably will take until the fall.

The deliberations of the commission have been held in strict secrecy. Sources said recent press reports of the commission favoring use of the contraceptive pill were pure speculation and new instructions had been issued in the last few days that information was to be disclosed.

The object of these instructions, they added, was to avoid controversy if the pontiff decides not to accept the commission's recommendations.

Drug Profits Said Reasonable But Doctors Want Prices Cut

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Medical Association said Tuesday drug manufacturers make "very reasonable" profits from the average prescription and druggists probably are not adequately rewarded for time and professional judgment in filling it.

However, the association suggested in a brief to the Commons drug price inquiry several steps to ease the burden of drug prices on the consumer, including removal of the 11-per-cent federal sales tax.

Withdrawal of this "tax on sickness" would effect a five-per-cent reduction in the retail cost of prescribed drugs, the brief said.

The CMA figured that in the average prescription of $3.47 in 1964 the federal sales tax, collected on manufacturers' sales, amounts to 14 cents of the retail price.

The figures conflicted with those supplied to Commons committee earlier by Revenue Minister Benson who testified the tax represents between 1.8 and three cents of the retail dollar price of prescription drugs.

The CMA estimated that the druggist got $1.74 in 1964 out of the average $3.47 prescription while the manufacturers' after-tax profit was eight cents.

Forty-one cents of the $3.47 average prescription in 1964 went for medical information and marketing, the CMA said. It added that there is too little factual information to support the view that this is too costly.

Since 1960, the flood of direct mail promotion by the manufacturers had considerably abated. The CMA said this method is "the least desirable" way to promote drugs to the doctor.

Giving doctors free samples seemed, until recently, wasteful and expensive but now regulations had curtailed it. Any change in the regulations should be aimed at tighter control of sampling.

The CMA said that "any selish profits would have a negligible effect on the cost of the average prescription."

Eighty-four per cent of prescriptions in September, 1964, cost less than $3.00 and 96 per cent less than $5. Almost 86 per cent cost less than $7.00 or twice the average price.

Among other recommendations and comments:

—Further study should be given to creation of a drug information service.

—Government aid should be given persons sustaining continuous expense for drug treatment for chronic illness.

—Voluntary insurance programs against drug costs should be set up with government financial help to low-income groups.

Judge Anderson Finds All Four Accused Guilty

Four montreal men charged with the $16,000 armed robbery of the Bank of Montreal in Frankford on March 30 were found guilty by Judge J. C. Anderson today and sentenced to 10 years each in the penitentiary.

Maurice Lasnis, 31, Armand Bisson, 29, Victor Tessier, 42, and Gilles Gaudette, 27, showed little emotion when the sentence was announced.

All four men have lengthy criminal records. Tessier's record dates almost continually from 1942, Langis' from 1954, Bisson from 1959 and Gaudette from 1957.

Judge Anderson said, "this offence was carefully and deliberately planned.

"I must come to the conclusion that each was committed, and almost equally committed to this crime.

"I think we must give due notice to anyone who wishes to carry on activities of this nature in our country that they are not going to be lightly dealt with, especially when violent crime of this is involved.

REFORM HOPE SCANT

"Reluctantly I come to the conclusion that because of the lengthy records of these men, the possibility of rehabilitation of any one of them is very slight indeed.

"There must be punishment for people who offend our laws as gravely as these men have. People who conduct themselves in this manner must be kept out of circulation."

Judge Anderson praised the work of defence counsel Robert Pemplin in giving the four men the best possible defence. "The accused had able counsel and every possible bit of evidence that may have helped them in their case was brought out."

He said there was a great deal of circumstantial evidence in the trial and "no logical explanation was offered in evidence that would exonerate or tend to exonerate them."

ARE HARSH SENTENCES

Crown Attorney John Pringle said they were all engaged in a common purpose and should receive the same sentence. "One was as great a danger as the other to the public.

"They've all been before the courts. They know right from wrong and know the consequences of criminal behavior."

Mr. Pringle said they came

Gas Bomb Takes Life Of Widow

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (Reuters) — Police in Belfast, where religious friction has whipped up a wave of violence, announced today the arrest of nine men, five of them charged with murder.

The arrests came amid concern that extremists of the Roman Catholic minority and Protestant majority might clash dangerously after a recent series of disturbances.

Prime Minister Terence O'Neill cut short a visit to Paris to fly home Monday after tension rose over the weekend killing of 18-year-old Roman Catholic barman, Peter Ward.

It also was revealed that a 70-year-old widow, Mrs. Matilda Gould, victim of a gasoline bomb raid on her home in the same Protestant area, had died. The third murder under investigation is into the death of factory worker John Scottion, 36, stabbed in the street four weeks ago.

MURDER CHARGED

Police in an early morning statement said two men had been arrested and charged with the murder of Ward and three with the murder of Scottion. Four others were arrested on charges concerning possession of explosives and the firing of shots into a house.

Ward died in a hospital after being shot down by gunmen who also wounded two of his companions in a filling station on a city street at 2 a.m. Sunday.

The increased tension between Protestants and Catholics in Belfast has caused anxiety here and in London about the Queen's annual visit to Northern Ireland next week.

In London, some members of Parliament are demanding firm action by the British government to quell violence in Northern Ireland, a self-governing province.

Demands are expected in Parliament for cancellation of the Queen's visit.

May Delay Summer Recess

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — A hot weather drive to wrap through a long list of legislation before taking a summer recess is expected to reach its crucial point in the Commons today when debate reopens on the Canada Assistance Plan.

Government sources indicated Monday it is hoped the Commons and Senate can adjourn Thursday night, on the eve of the Dominion Day holiday weekend, for a recess that might last into September.

But before Parliament can take the summer off, the government wants approval in principle of the Canada Assistance Plan, formal introduction of a controversial revision of the Bank Act and legislation governing medical care insurance.

The Bank Act and medical insurance could each take one full day's debate under Commons rules, and there has been no clear indication how long the Canada Assistance Plan may be under debate.

Government officials have insisted that MPs and senators may have to come back for at least a few days work again next week.

West German Heads NATO Forces

PARIS (Reuters) — West German Army Gen. Johann Adolph Count von Kielmansegg will succeed French Army Gen. Jean Crepin as commander-in-chief Allied Forces Central Europe next July 1, U. S. Army Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, supreme commander of Allied Forces in Europe, announced today.

From next month Gen. von Kielmansegg will have the highest NATO post ever held by a West German. It is the second most important military post in the alliance and he will have under his command the American 7th Army, the British Army of The Rhine, and the units of other European allies.

Gen. Crepin leaves the post as a result of the withdrawal of French forces from NATO's integrated NATO commands. The 70,000 French troops in West Germany will not therefore be under Gen. von Kielmansegg's command.

Farmers

Sunday was at Thamesford, where eight farmers, including two women, drove their tractors from Thamesford to Woodstock. Mayor Maxapfel of Oxford Centre said the turnout was smaller than expected because of Alternop-General Wishart's threat that farmers obstructing the highway will be charged.

'GOT SCARED'

"We would have had a lot more but some of them got scared of Wishart's warning," Mr. Maxapfel said.

The vehicles were spaced 400 to 500 feet apart.

The Ontario Milk Distributors' Association said Monday the dispute involves only farmers supplying milk for manufacture into skim milk powder, butter and other manufactured products.

An OMDA statement noted that farmers who supply fluid milk to dairies for home use were paid $5.30 a hundredweight in southern Ontario and $5.86 a hundredweight in Northern Ontario. On July 1, because of an order by the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, both of these prices will be increased by 40 cents a hundredweight.

Rezoning Bylaw Gets Approval Of the OMB

The Ontario Municipal Board has approved city council's rezoning by-law which would allow construction of a small shopping plaza at the northwest corner of North Front and Donald Streets.

The area formerly was zoned multiple residential the rezoning being requested by Mr. Sidney Spiegel to allow him to construct a shopping plaza.

Mr. Spegel's original request for a building permit was made last October. This spring city council okayed the rezoning by-law and it was forwarded to the OMB for approval.

In the meantime, however, Mr. Spiegel about two weeks ago said he was fed up with delays at city hall and reported he was no longer interested in construction of his proposed shopping plaza.

Today, Mr. Spiegel was not available for comment on whether OMB approval of the rezoning might result in him changing his mind regarding the plaza.

Red Cross Study Centre Holds Concluding Banquet

The flag of the International Red Cross will be presented to the Albert College flagpole today but the occasion will not be a sad one. For the 85 delegates to the Red Cross Youth Study Centre held at the college during the past week, the flag has stood for a good time had by all, with a lot of work being accomplished in the bargain.

Last evening, at a "wind-up" banquet for the delegates held in the Memorial Centre cafeteria Hall, the official announcement was made of the election of a 5 member Red Cross Youth Executive Committee, the first time in Ontario that such a step has been taken.

Mr. John Gustavson, selected as Chairman of the committee, said that the move was made to remedy the present lack of communication between the high school Red Cross groups and the senior Red Cross Youth Committee, which to date has been responsible for deciding Red Cross Youth policy. The new five member committee, whose existence will be subject to official approval from Red Cross headquarters in Ottawa, is initially intended to convey the ideas and suggestions of Red Cross youth to the senior group that decides youth policy. It is expected that in the fall the newly formed body will gain representation on the Red Cross Youth Committee and youth will have, for the first time, an actual voice in their own affairs.

Aside from trying to gain a voice in the administration of Red Cross affairs, the new Red Cross Youth Executive Committee is designed to distribute information on the various organization programs to high school members.

PRESENT SPEAKS

Mr. R. H. M. Lowndes, President of the Ontario Division of the Canadian Red Cross Society, told the assembled group that

"You're very important people. You and groups like you across Canada are the future of this country," Mr. Lowndes reminded the delegates that they were a part of one of the greatest charitable organization the world has ever seen," and noted that Canada is the second biggest contributor financially to the League of Red Cross Societies of all countries in the world.

Included on the program was an address by J. E. Smith, chairman of the Red Cross Youth Committee of Ontario, on the subject of "Looking ahead in education." Mr. Smith described as "not very successful" past efforts to meet technological, vocational, and educational advances in the building of more adequate educational facilities. "We tend to build in accordance with what has been happening in the past, or what is happening at the present," he said.

"Education was at one time for the idle rich," Mr. Smith continued, "and the educated person was a parasite on society. The situation is now reversed—the time is coming when the majority of the population will be living off the portion of the educated."

"Time in Ontario that calls on the mind, rather than on the muscles will be the type which is greatly rewarded."

ROLE IS IMPORTANT

Mr. Smith, commenting on the establishment of Junior Red Cross in some 87 countries throughout the world, stressed to the delegates that "beyond education such movements as the Red Cross youth are certain to play a more vital role in a society with an excess of spare time on its hands," which he felt was the inevitable result of man's progress.

During the evening, John Gustavson presented, on behalf of all the delegates from Ontario, several Canadian Red Cross momentos to Julius Reed a delegate from Houston, Texas. Mr. Reed received a standing ovation when, in thanking the delegates for their hospitality, he said "with persons like yourselves here, there is no wonder why Canada cannot become a great nation."

Following the formal proceedings, delegates adjourned for a hardly organized, yet well-performed, talent show, which featured everything from a piano rendition of a Beethoven symphonade, to a zany impression of comedienne Phyllis Diller.

OPPOSES STOPPAGE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Marshall Wright, U.S. state department press officer, said Monday "the United States continues to be opposed to an unsuspected moratorium" on underground nuclear testing. Wright told a press conference he was restating the U.S. position, and not quarrelling with a resolution passed Sunday at the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna.

"Shaker" Baker Skis 7 Miles Behind Pilotless Power Boat

Canadian boating regulations call for water skiers to be towed by a boat carrying two persons — one driving the boat and the other to watch the skier.

But Sunday evening John "Shaky" Baker, 30, local CN express deliveryman living at 346 Front Street added a completely new twist to the water skiing in the Bay of Quinte.

When the two occupants of his tow-boat were tossed overboard as it unexpectedly struck rough water, Mr. Baker continued as his own stoneman with the boat running wild down the bay.

After about seven miles at 35 miles per hour, the pilotless boat grounded on Big Island and the water skier raced in to shut off the threshing motor.

STREAKS BY BOAT

"I could have dropped off any time I wanted to but I found that by sniffing gasoline on the line I could partially steer the board," Mr. Baker said.

"I was afraid that if I had let go other boaters on the bay might have been endangered."

JOHN BAKER

The runaway boat episode happened shortly after six o'clock Sunday evening in the Big Bay area east of the city.

Mr. Baker was being towed by Ray Tinsdale and another friend. The two in the boat were watching the skier when the boat cut across a point into rough water.

The boat struck the high waves at the wrong angle and the two men were thrown out. The boat righted itself and continued on, with the two boatmen swimming to Mr. Baker's nearby houseboat.

Mr. Baker said that at first he thought he might be able to steer the boat toward the Point Anne shore but he was unable to swing it sufficiently and it continued on down the bay, beaching at the east end of Big Island.

HIT TREES

The speeding boat bounced over shore rocks and came to rest against some trees.

Provincial police and the RCAP Search and Rescue were notified but before the RCAP helicopter arrived Mr. Baker had landed safely.

Historical Society May Have To Close Hastings Museum

Hastings County Museum may have the distinction of being the only museum in Canada to close its doors in 1967, T. S. Ransom, past president of Hastings County Historical Society and full museum chairman told the executive of the society, at a meeting Monday night.

He explained: "We as a historical society have carried the ball about as far as we can. On our present finances, we can only continue going on a basis, offering a minimum number of hours of operation and curtailed services to the community."

Cause of the museum's difficulties, Mr. Ransom explained, is higher curators' fees due to minimum wage laws and longer hours of operation. Services to school children and public exhibits have also taken a large bite out of the society's budget.

As one solution to the museum's problems, the executive decided to form a wage and mean's committee to explore the possible setting up of a series of regional museums in Hastings County under a museum board.

The committee will meet with Peter Szymo, museum advisor of the Ontario Department of Tourism and Information, with County Council and with the municipalities of Belleville and Trenton.

TWO MUSEUMS PLANNED

In addition to Hastings County Museum on Church Street, museums at Bancroft and at O'Hara's Mill near Madoc are now in the planning stage. Coordination of their operations under a central, municipally-run board might result in increased efficiency and economy of operation, the executive decided. The two museums would function independently of the Historical Society.

Until the ways and means committee brings in its report, the local museum will continue its normal summer operation for the month of July at least. Cutbacks, if necessary, will be decided upon at a later date.

Museum revenue now comes from provincial grants of $600 a year and one-third of curators' fees, a County grant of $200, $480 from the City of Belleville and $50 from Trenton. In addition, Historical Society membership, admission fees and sales of souvenirs brought in over $700 last year, giving the museum an operating budget of $2,000.

The museum is custodian of the Cooldrey Collection of Furniture Antiques, bequeathed to the city by a former Belleville resident, and the recently purchased Paul collection of lighting devices.

Election of officers, originally scheduled for the meeting, was deferred until after the museum's uncertain position is clarified.

May Delay

East), a doctor from Orillia, Ont., will head off for the opposition on the Canada Assistance Plan today after several minor pieces of legislation are passed and sent to the Senate to keep it busy.

PROGRAMS UPDATED

Health Minister MacEachen, introducing the second-reading debate Monday night, said the new, all-embracing federal-provincial welfare measure has already prompted most provinces to update their welfare programs.

The plan has also won the plaudits of most organizations as the Canadian Welfare Council and the Canadian Labor Congress, he said.

Mr. MacEachen said the plan is designed to encourage the development of welfare programs across Canada that are "humane, effective and have a positive emphasis" on them.

"In addition to making a switch from a means-test basis to one under which concern with the need of individuals for welfare assistance, the Canada Assistance Plan would bring federal funds into a wide range of social work to which it had not hitherto contributed, such as child care and training."

Mr. MacEachen said about 1,000,000 Canadians will receive direct aid through various programs included in the Canada Assistance Plan. It will cost $85,000,000 a year more than governments now spend — now p.. s various welfare programs, bringing the total federal expenditure in this area to more than $250,000,000 a year.

Milk Pricing Policies to Be Studied

GUELPH (CP)—A two-year study of milk pricing policies in Ontario has been launched by Prof. Brian Perkins of Guelph University agriculture department.

Backed by a federal department of agriculture grant, the study comes at a time when the Ontario Farmers' Union is seeking a clear return to farmers of $4 a hundredweight for milk. The union says $3.25 a hundredweight plus a 75-cent federal subsidy is not a fair price for transportation.

Prof. Perkins, an economist, said his investigations will include:

—The possibility of establishing uniform prices in Ontario for Class 1 milk as sold in stores and Class 2 milk as used for processing.

—Possible creation of two producers' price pools in which different prices for given qualities of milk will be replaced with a uniform price for Grade A milk and another for other qualities.

HAMILTON (CP) — Retail milk prices will jump two cents a quart here Friday as a result of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board's decision to increase producer prices, it was announced Monday.

The producers' rates will jump to $5.75 a hundredweight from $5.29.

A three-quart container of milk now will cost about 64 cents instead of 58 cents. Price of a home-delivered quart will rise to 30 cents from 28.

Capt. Chas. S. Rutherford, V.C., holding the painting of himself presented him by Colborne Legion, enjoys a humorous reminiscence with fellow V.C. winner Col. John Foote.

Colborne Legion Honors Capt. Chas. Rutherford

BRIGHTON — Highlighted by greetings from Queen Elizabeth, Colborne Legion honored Capt. Charles S. Rutherford, Saturday night. He won the Victoria Cross in a single handed act of bravery on a battlefield in France during World War I.

Capt. Rutherford, the Colborne native, received the highest military award by approaching a German machine gun pill box and persuading the 45 men and two officers to surrender to him at gunpoint. He had previously been wounded in action three times and had been awarded the Military Cross and bar and the Military Medal and bar.

Also at the event, attended by provincial, municipal, provincial and local civic and legion personalities was Col. John Foote, former provincial cabinet minister. Col. Foote received the V.C. for his action on the beaches of Dieppe in deciding to remain with his men when they were forced to surrender following the raid.

After receiving a colored painting of himself, created by a Toronto artist from a photo taken after he was awarded the V.C., Capt. Rutherford observed: "It as a great age we live in, an age that spans time from the horse and buggy to the rocket age."

Representing the Canadian Government, guest speaker Revenue Minister Hon. E. J. Benson commented that in going over the records of the 94 Canadians who have been awarded the Commonwealth's highest military honor for bravery in action, he was "astonished by the parallel of their distinguished military careers which has been followed in many cases by a similar career of public service in their civilian life."

From 1858 to 1940, Capt. Rutherford served as Sgt.-at-Arms in the Ontario Legislature. He volunteered for service in the Veterans Guard of Canada in World War II and served in Canada and the Bahamas. He returned to his home community of Colborne where he served as postmaster until his retirement some years ago and is now a resident of Kerwick.

A brief arrival at the Legion Branch Hall which bears his name, Capt. Rutherford received a myrtle of honor week, up of a quarter-guard unit of the First Canadian Guards, Picton.

Parents and Students Briefed On Student Exchange Visits

Noble Hatton of Toronto, the Ontario Regional Director for the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews was in the city yesterday to brief parents and students who are participating in this year's Student Exchange Visit program. The meeting took place in the library of Bora Secondary School.

Five Belleville secondary school students, one from Frankford, one from Canifton and one from Trenton will participate in the program established by Mr. Hatton as a plan to improve understanding between French and English speaking Canadians. This year, some 2,500 students and their families are taking part and for the first time, the Maritimes are represented in the group.

Linda Boleyn and Paul Martinez of Bora Secondary School students; Marcia McPherson and Susan Riley, Secondary School, and Anne Cronk, Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, are the Belleville representatives. Mary McDonald of Frankford and Gail Parks of Canifton also attend Quinte Secondary School and the only boy in the group is Christopher Magnus, a student at Trenton High School.

638 TO TAKE PART

The 630 Ontario students taking part will leave July 7 for a two-week stay in Quebec homes. The French students accompany their English-speaking counterparts to Ontario for a two-week visit here, July 21.

When matching students for the exchange program, representatives of the CCCI aim for compatibility. When the pairing of is done, such things as age, grades, hobbies, interests, height and weight are taken into consideration. The pairing is done in May in order that there will be time for an exchange of letters between each. Each must write in the other's language.

Mr. Hatton emphasized to the parents that from the time the trip to Quebec begins, the students are the responsibility of CCCI officials. He reminded the students not to take everything they own on the trip. Visiting students must follow the "ground rules" governing the families they stay with. Each visitor will be treated as one of that family. In closing Mr. Hatton urged the students to "be responsible."

Visa Trouble

Bureaucracy, or officialdom as it is sometimes called, is the sort of thing we associate more with the countries of South America, or perhaps the communist world, than with Canada.

Unfortunately it does crop up here on occasions. A case in point was the recent detention by Vancouver immigration officials of a 19-year-old Japanese girl who arrived for a four-month stay.

Masako Endo, a Tokyo office worker, had arranged to spend the period with an Esquimalt couple, Mr. and Mrs. John Collins. But her travel agent had neglected to get her a visa needed by Japanese visitors planning to spend more than three months in Canada.

While the Collins' family waited at Victoria airport, Miss Endo, who speaks little English, was held at Vancouver, questioned and ordered deported by immigration officials. Eventually immigration relented and allowed the girl to sign a conditional release, whereupon she was lodged in a hotel as a responsibility of the airline that brought her to Canada — Canadian Pacific Airlines .There she stayed for 14 hours without food because no one told her she could leave at will.

An angry Mr. Collins, who decided to sponsor the girl's visit after she wrote to a Victoria newspaper, spoke to Victoria MP David Groos by phone in Ottawa. Mr. Groos, also reported next day the incident, recalled that on a recent visit to Japan he was treated with great courtesy and kindness, which is in line with Japanese traditions. What really that by contrast this young Oriental visitor to or shores should have been made to feel so unwelcome.

Mr. Collins' comment was the point. "They let the Mafia and other undesirables in," he said, but they give a harmless girl a rough time."

Just Hard Work

Genius has been defined as an infinite capacity for taking pains, and a contemporary claimant to this accolade is Alberta-born camera artist Roloff Beny.

Beny, more accustomed to photographing the ancient civilizations of the Mediterranean, (as presented in such classic works as The Thrones of Earth and Heaven) is having problems compiling his Canadian Centennial magnum opus. Tentatively called Odyssey in Time, the artist admits it is by far the toughest assignment of his career. Yet it is just one of many he is working on all over the world.

There is the problem of subject matter. "In Canada, I'm not going to turn a corner and find a temple 2,000 years old," he told Bruce Moss of Weekend Magazine in a recent interview. "Europe has given me an edge in the way of beauty to photograph. But here the oldest subject I'm likely to run into is a moose skull."

Then there is the goodwill of publishers and sponsors to consider. Although Beny's talents have brought him considerable wealth and fame there is a hint of the recluse in the artist who, being without honor in his own land — in this statement for example: "Artistic pioneering exhausts me. Publishers, I regret to say, have proved themselves conservative in many instances. I sometimes feel I can do more for Canada by staying in Rome where I belong.

"For three years now I've been working day and night trying to put the country and its people together visually. It's no use. Too many compromises have to be made. A reaction is beginning to set in. I am going to have to ask my sponsors for another $50,000 at least. Creating a book is an operatic performance. My standards are so high there will soon be nothing left to publish. . ."

Anyone who has seen Beny's Thrones of Earth and Heaven will understand what he means. After all, he is not producing a calendar but a work of art.

Beny's early talents revealed themselves in his paintings of forbidding prairie landscapes. Forsaking the artist's brush for film, his superb photography earned this from one critic: "His camera is like an artist's brush adding beauty to beauty."

A Disgrace

Last week we were talking about broken glass and litter. Since then we have learned of an incident that brings home the seriousness of leaving fragments of glass, in particular, lying around.

The mishap occurred on Friday and it involved a 12-year-old Belleville girl. Barefoot, she trod on a broken soft drink bottle.

Thirty-five stitches were required to close the wound, she now walks with crutches and she will miss a 10-day summer camp she was scheduled to attend shortly.

As we said last week, glass and litter are strewn all over the place. The stuff can be seen on city streets and sidewalks, even on private home properties. It is a disgrace.

Presenting the Estimates Is a Parliamentary Art

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — It is Estimates time again here on The Hill. The season when the backbench get gets his crack at the Cabinet and the Ministers get their lumps.

The time the usually blasé Backbencher gets to ask about — and get answers — to things that matter.

The things that interest the folks back home in the constituency.

Farm costs and prices in rural Ontario. Wheat quotas, shipments, payments in the West. Fish, forest products, transportation, the Navy, jobs and labor problems on both coasts. Trade, tariffs and the state of industry in the sprawling metro sections of Ontario, Quebec. Public Works everywhere.

And if you're a Cabinet Minister there are really only two basic ways you can get your departmental Estimates — the operating cost of your particular segment of the administration — through the usually critical Commons.

You can sweet-talk them past a disarmed House, lulled into comfortable relaxation by your smooth charm and soft words.

Or you can bulldoze them through with fire and fury of political battle.

WALTZ OF THE WEEKS

If you do it well, either way you are in charge.

It is your show.

But if you blow what supposedly might be the "easier" middle course, administering neither soothing syrup nor hitting hard in the House, you run the risk of merely being dull.

You lose the House.

You lose control.

No longer is it your show.

And the House, being what it is, can waltz you around for weeks.

Still by far the most professional exponent of the soft-and-sock-'em school of jack-hammering the Estimates through the House was former Conservative Works Minister (now Senator) David J. Walker. He initially came on the scene with a rosy nothing bumble about "Chubby," as deadly a political enemy as he could find, but he spoke with total involvement from utter dedication.

And that when he asked for help, for ideas, for suggestions, for criticism, that was what he needed.

So they gave in full measure. "Chubby" Power's successor in the skill of the Soft Word is Works Minister George Mcilraith.

His is a special touch. Not humility exactly, but sweet reason. So soothing, so reasonable, so unassuming, so as to leave no points protruding for protest.

In Parliament there is no art quite like the Art of Estimates.

Maine Trims Expo Budget

Montreal Gazette ——— Bill Bantey in the

The State Legislature has given the go-ahead for Maine's participation at Expo '67 with a budget trimmed by $150,000.

"It was felt $400,000 would be sufficient. If we were careful we did the project justice," says Expo, instead of contracting it out," says Standish K. Bachman, commissioner general of the Maine participation.

Maine is one of three U.S. states which will have their own cultural pavilions at Expo, the two others being New York and Vermont. Vermont, however, is taking part alone in a world exhibition for the first time.

"We have a very close kinship with Canada" says Bachman, "if only we are about as close to Canadians as we are to our neighboring states. Secondly, a participation in Expo is that it is a great opportunity to promote tourism and our industrial resources."

The design of the pavilion is yet to be announced but according to Bachman, the architecture will be early colonial. Nor has it been revealed what the pavilion will contain. But it is a good guess in the fine arts field is the work of Maine Artist-Andrew Wyeth.

Maine already has begun its publicity drive in connection with Expo — like Vermont again, it is suggesting a stopover for visits en route to and from the exhibition — and one of its most eye-catching items is a giant postcard proclaiming the "Montreal World's Fair 1967."

The front of the card shows a map of the eastern U.S. and Quebec while the reverse notes: "A fascinating world is waiting who will attend the 1967 Montreal World Fair. Only eight miles from New York and include the historic Quebec City and the state of Maine on the return trip. Maine and Quebec provinces have an affinity for each other that is unique. Thousands of French Canadians visit the ecastal beaches in southwestern Maine annually."

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

June 28, 1966 . . .

The Treaty of Versailles formally ended the First World War 47 years ago today—in 1919—and laid the foundations of the League of Nations with the intention of guaranteeing international peace. As the price for diplomatic rehabilitation, Germany accepted full responsibility for causing the war, surrendered land to France, Belgium and Poland and promised to pay huge reparations to the Allies. Continuing unrest in part of these clauses, planned to prevent Germany from ever again becoming a military giant, contributed directly to Hitler's rise to power only 14 years later.

1964—500 people were drowned in the wreck of the Norge on Rockall, an uninhabited island off Scotland.

Britain's Need

Ottawa Journal

The method of improving British economic condition is pretty well agreed on; production must increase. The Daily Mirror, regarded as left-of-centre, asks Britons to take seriously the advice of the Seers for International Settlements to stop inflationary wage increases. The London newspaper adds:

"Britain must wake up to the fact that compared with rival countries she is not productive enough, not efficient enough, not working hard enough.

If the British can find a way to make people who are living well work harder and longer they will solve their financial problem, and be the envy of every other nation.

Transplanting of Hair Expensive Technique

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a woman of 40 and have a problem of hair loss. A physical checkup and blood count show me to be normal. In view of this what are the possibilities of hair transplanting? — Mrs. R. E.

* * *

Transplanting of hair has been done, apparently successfully, but it is quite a new technique. It is painstaking and expensive. Obviously it is also dependent on having enough hair on some areas for transplanting.

For those reasons I am not disposed to recommend it. I'd people try it without carefully balancing all the factors.

There is one further and very important thing for you to do. Have a dermatologist examine your scalp. For example, if there is some skin ailment or infection which is causing hair loss, such loss can continue despite the effort and cost of transplanting.

There are different reasons for loss of hair. It is not unusual for women to notice some thinning as they reach 40. Or hair loss may be a matter of the hair being brittle and breaking off rather than inability of the follicles to grow hair.

Has your thyroid been checked? Low thyroid activity can be an important factor and a correctable one.

In some instances the use of certain dyes or other materials applied to the hair may be harmful. Here again a dermatologist can help trace down and identify the trouble.

Nervous problems sometimes produce patchy loss of hair, and cure of these does bring regrowth. but this takes time.

Finally, beredity is a strong force which we cannot change. Although baldness is many times more frequent in men than in women, a fair number of women are affected. This does not have to be commonly known, doubtless there is a woman with that trouble promptly and understandably resorts to a wig. Men are more prone to let their locks scalps shine.

Appealing as the idea of transplanting hair is, it isn't an easy solution to the problem. A skilled and definitely not investigational of the type of hair loss is the sensible first step before leaping to the conclusion that transplanting is going to be the answer. I have no doubt that the people who developed the transplanting technique will tell you the same thing.

Dear Dr. Molner: Are there any exercises one should avoid with a hiatal hernia? I'm told walking to exercises is a trim-and-fit class in which I have enrolled.

I enclose 20 cents in coin and stamps, self-addressed, stamped envelope for your booklet, "Hiatal Hernia and Eight Ways to Control It." — Mrs. C. C.

Lifting particularly heavy lifting should be avoided, and as you read the booklet, which describes precisely what a hiatal hernia is, you'll readily see why.

It is important to lose weight (if necessary) if you have a hiatal hernia, as exercises, except for lifting, will be helpful.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain "thyroid storm" and its causes in a woman of 73. She had a prolonged period of emotional stress just prior to the episode. — Mrs. S. G.

A thyroid storm is a violent flare-up of a toxic thyroid condition. Pulse and heart rate are rapid, temperature is elevated and the patient is very ill. Stress could bring on such an attack, provided the underlying thyroid condition already existed.

Yoga—Is It The Answer?

The Globe and Mail

A Montreal psychiatrist has concluded that impulsiveness is more of a factor in unmarried girls' pregnancies than knowledge of contraceptives or addicted women becoming pregnant on vacation.

It may not be entirely irrelevant to call attention to plans to open a yoga camp in the Laurentians this summer. Kerosene and judo will also be taught. According to Mrs. Diane Bachley, who has taught yoga at the University of Montreal for two years, yoga is "marvellous for people with tensions and teaches people to control their emotions."

This is just what the psychiatrist ordered: yoga to control your own emotions and karate to control the emotions of others.

Strictly Personal

Cenorship Is Negative

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The U.S. Supreme Court last month struck down the federal obscenity conviction of a Nashville man and wife who took nude pictures of each other and received prints through the mails.

It indicates how asinine our obscenity laws are if a husband and wife cannot take any pictures of themselves they care to take and have the prints sent only to themselves. Surely the law against sending "pornography" through the U.S. mails was not passed to stop this kind of thing, foolish or vain though it might be.

And this is the whole trouble with obscenity laws. They never get at any reasonable point, but pursue their way to the peak of the ridiculous. Was it not until after and about that this Nashville couple had to go all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court to reverse their conviction for an "offence" that means absolutely nothing?

In his new book, "Fresh Every Morning," Bishop Gerald Kennedy writes: "I have come to the conclusion finally that censorship is wrong and that it raises more questions than it solves." And, recently, even the Catholic Church has done away with its famous "index" of banned books, on the sensible grounds that it is more useful to instruct the public in what it should read than to fulminate against those books it shouldn't read.

All censorship is negative — and negative injunctions have never prevented anyone from doing anything bad he wanted to do. "Thou shalt not kill" is the most ignored commandment in the Decalogue: nations punish their citizens for killing, but then turn right around and kill their enemies with a clear conscience.

Only by training young people how to care for others (and such training must consist largely in setting a meaningful can we stop killing; and, likewise, as Bishop Kennedy says, only by raising the tastes of all men so that the filthy and obscene will have no appeal? can we do away with pornography. If most people continue to read junk, what difference does it make if the junk is pornographic or not, for even non-pornographic junk deadens the mind and the spirit.

Moreover, censorship, besides being ineffectual because it does not go to the roots of human motivation, by its very nature is totalitarian and continually tries to move and move under full control. it is a form of political persecution, and does not recognize any legitimate limit to its goals — just as the Nazis, who began with repressing the Communists, ended and rest until every element in society was shackled.

It seems to me that our nation has more to fear from the militantly censorious than from the married couple who take nude photos of each other, presumably in preference to staying at nude photos of themselves.

Prestige of A Doctorate

Vancouver Sun

The pressing shortage of teachers to man our universities resolves around that sacred academic tradition, the PhD. Unless a graduate has stratified through to his doctorate, it is laid down, he cannot earn the spires of a full professor.

Now Yale, one of the most respected universities in the world, has moved to break the log - jam. That Ivy League bastion has come up with a new graduate degree, the Master of Philosophy, that is designed to end the teacher shortage.

Previous criticisms of artificially maintained degree requirements have run up against the prestige of the PhD. Yale's idea is to skirt the PhD issue and, instead, upgrade the Master's degree. The new M.Ph. would signify that the candidate has completed all PhD requirements, save the time-consuming dissertation.

The usefulness for the slow-to-change academic world is that the change is coming, not from some rinky-dink football factory, but from mighty Yale. If a few other high-prestige schools follow, the trend will be under way.

Those who maintain that the mystique of the PhD cannot be violated might recall that up to 100 years ago any scholar seeking the materials had to go to Europe to get it. The first university to demolish that snobbish tradition? Why Yale, of course.

Forestry Conference Opens Monday

Paul Plummer, editor and general manager of the Kenebec Journal, agrees with Bachman that Maine residents feel close links with Canada.

"A lot of Maine's population is of Canadian origin," says Plummer, "and we maintain close ties."

Plummer says his newspaper has received a good deal of advanced publicity about Expo, as well as two or three offers to visit the site.

"We are not publishing a great deal about Expo except in special travel sections. But in time goes by, we will publish more about Maine's participation."

He is the first to admit that the newspapers in the U.S. have not "really grasped" the concept of Expo.

"Even as he is concerned, the most outstanding aspect of Expo is the site.

"Maine is its real character," he says.

into a quiet community, armed, and could easily have caused death. "Surely people have a right to expect that if people violate the law like this, they should be severely dealt with.

"This is the first armed robbery we've had in this area for many years. I would ask your honor to bring home the point to would-be marauders in this part of the province that they will be severely punished."

Mr. Temple agreed that three things have to be considered in sentencing: "one, sentences as a deterrent to others; two, punishment to the persons involved; and three, the question of rehabilitation."

"In this particular instance, and I ask your honor to consider it, no one was hurt.

"I also think it noteworthy, that these guns were not of the type that could accidently be fired." Mr. Temple poined out that all the money was recovered.

THREE-DAY TRIAL

The three-day trial of the four men ended June 2 following acceptance of evidence given by O.P.P. Cpl. J. Claude Courville who spent 17 hours in Hastings County Jail with the accused men, posing as a prisoner.

Judge Anderson said today that Courville's evidence was very strong and left no doubt the four men were all involved in the robbery.

Written arguments were submitted June 16 by counsel to Judge Anderson.

The robbery took place about 2:30 p.m. March 30 when the four men, armed and hooded, entered the bank and escaped with almost $16,000. They were apprehended three days later as they drove towards Toronto on Highway 401.

new ways of toppling Smith's white-minority regime which so far has refused to make any major concessions to Rhodesia's Negro majority. It was over the concessions issue that the Smith government seized independence from Britain last year.

WILL CONTINUE

Commonwealth Secretary Arthur Bottomley told the Commons that despite the lack of progress, the Salisbury talks will continue though Britain will not launch any official ministerial bargaining with the Smith group except on previously-agreed-on principles.

These include agreement by Rhodesia to return to constitutional rule under Britain's authority and to move towards full political freedom for the non-whites.

Bottomley also told the Commons that economic sanctions will not be vigorously applied against Rhodesia.

British officials said later they do not know how long the current Anglo-Rhodesian exploratory talks will continue.

Bail Set For Union Leaders

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Bail has been set at $2,000 cash for each of five union leaders sentenced to two months in county jail here on contempt of court charges arising from a mass demonstration Feb. 23-24 at the Tilco Plastics Ltd. plant here.

Bail has been set at $1,000 for each of the remaining 20 men who were brought to Jail here immediately after being sentenced in Toronto Monday by Chief Justice E. A. Gale of the Ontario Supreme Court.

The 25 men arrived Monday at the county court building in an air-conditioned bus hired by the Ontario government. One other man, Harry Woodcock of Peterborough, had his sentence suspended because he is recovering from a heart attack.

The right to appeal the court's decision was granted Monday afternoon by Mr. Justice Bora Laskin. No date has yet been set for the appeal.

The men, expected to be out on bail this afternoon, will be free until the day before the appeal. Then they will surrender themselves to the court and spend another night in jail.

Rotary Told Have-Not Lands May Some Day Take Needs

A day when the Chinese and the Russians might dominate this continent and take that which they are now buying from us was envisaged by Dr. W. E. Swinton, director of the Royal Ontario Museum in an address to Belleville Rotary Club's Ladies' Night gathering on Monday evening at the Country Club.

"I feel Canada is in a very important — and yet very vulnerable position," said Dr. Swinton.

"I think that one of these days, unless we do something very drastic politically to avert it, the Chinese and the Russians may decide not to come and buy our wheat. Rather they will come and take it — and I have a feeling they will not even stop and learn French on the way."

While painting a sombre picture of inaction by the wealthy countries to combat what he termed the peril at the gates represented by the population explosion, Dr. Swinton said he believed Canada, as a country which enjoys universal respect, was in a position to extend its efforts in underdeveloped countries in the type of work pioneered by the United States Peace Corps.

He spoke of areas of the world, now desert, which should be developed in face of the mounting need for food production. The Sahara, he said was once the granary of the Roman Empire.

The museum director and scientist contrasted the terrible poverty and squalor of India and parts of Africa and South America with conditions in Canada, which he said was now authoritatively regarded as having the highest standard of living in the world.

NOT FAIRY TALE

Dr. Swinton said the predictions relating to the population explosion (standing room only within 1,000 years) were not fairy tales, but scientific fact. He said it was useless to talk of introducing birth control pills costing a mere penny each in countries like India when the average income there was only about $0 a year.

In another comparison of the contrasting economies of the "have" and the "have-not" nations, Dr. Swinton mentioned that the influential Financial Times of England, and another journal he did not name, in viewing Canada as the country with the highest standard of living in the world, placed the eyes between Toronto and Montreal at the apex of that standard.

Yet every day nearly one million babies were born around the world, and about 90 per cent of them would never know what it is like to be properly fed and housed.

Scientifically, Dr. Swinton went on, we can answer almost any question relating to the civilized world at the present time. We have the means to make life almost a paradise. A stumbling block, however, was the ignorance of the people themselves, in nations that need help, in a land like India, for example, "where it takes 10 people to carry a ladder from me to you."

While he suggested that the race to put man on the moon was inspired by a need for additional living space, Dr. Swinton said there were thousands of unhappy people dying around the world. Yet nobody was doing anything about it.

Reminding his audience of the prediction that there will be standing room only within 1,000 years, he appealed to people of taste and responsibility to "halt the disruption of mankind and the disappearance of civilization."

Dr. Swinton touched on a subject regarded with scepticism by many laymen. He spoke of the possibility of intelligent life existing in other planets.

"We are on the verge perhaps of communicating with outer space—only what they're about

Bitter, Unhappy Mother Needs Counselling

DEAR DORIS: Here I am writing to you again. I received some good advice and came to see that my worst fault was self-pity. One who wrote to me reminded me that every step forward is achieved through vision and courage.

DORIS CLARK

Like "Bored Stiff" I was, and am, depressed with staying home so much. Government assistance doesn't stretch very far with the prices of food and clothing up higher and the amount staying the same.

I'm too nervous to babysit. I find myself hard to get along with. I'm too bitter. The children are unhappy; they feel unloved and are getting to be a problem. Therefore I'm seeking ways of earning. — STILL LONELY AND ALONE.

DEAR ALONE: Just because it's tough raising a family without a father, do you have to write off the treasures you do possess? I know couples who would give their eye teeth for three nice children. If yours feel unloved, start loving them!

Where's that courage you've been reading about? Take hold of a good big grab of it and get down to the one place in town which is set up to encourage families like yours to hold together — the Family Counselling Service of Belleville and Hastings County, 63 West Moira Street, Belleville.

Tell them I suggested you call on them.

DEAR DORIS: What would you say to close acquaintances, both women and men, who continually and liberally spice their conversation with the names of God and Jesus Christ? What do you think of this habit? — FOR GOODNESS' SAKE.

DEAR GOODNESS: I don't think much of it. It is jarring to those who love and revere the Beings whose names are thus used as swear words. That's what it amounts to, isn't it? People who need such devices to give emphasis to their remarks reveal a sad paucity of words.

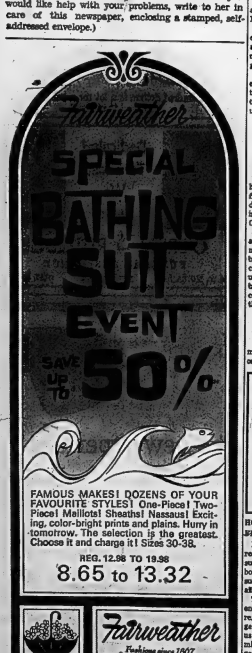
I'd surmise they learn them in youth, when searching which shocks the "squares" seems smart; and then the habit sticks.

Perhaps if your particular conversation-spicer is a close enough friend, you could drop a hint that you hate to have your good image of him spoiled with shocking expletives. Reminds me of: "The oracle hath spoken. The spell is broken!"

* * *

IN MEMORIAM: Nothing should please such a public spirited employer as sharclift his library with schools and teachers in far-off places, where literary programs are hampered by a shortage of reading materials.

They need fiction and non-fiction, biographies and literary classics, texts on child care, psychology, arts, science, economics, and stories for boys and girls. Practically anything readable.



I'm sending you a copy of the folder turned out by the Overseas Institute of Canada, which tells where the book centres are, how to ship books and other details.

One revealing quote comes in a letter of appreciation sent from Temagami, after receiving a shipment:

"I am sure that you have often seen monkeys snatch at offered bananas, and immediately dash off to a corner to enjoy their prize. These boys, with their books, do the same thing. It is both pitiable and humorous. They have almost no money at all, and rely on you and people like you for their reading relaxation."

FISH FILLET TURBANS

When I examined the fresh frozen fish counter for different kinds of fillets I found them ranging from 89c to 79c. These included everything from cod to perch to haddock to sole. I compromised and chose 2 pounds of haddock fillets at 39c per pound for the unusual treatment of fillets I am giving you today

Corned Beef and Cabbage; Mustard Relish; Hot German Potato Salad; Relish Tray; Celery Sticks and, Dill Spears; Chilled Bing Cherries; Crackers and Cheese; Coffee.

They are called Fish Turbans for each fillet is wrapped around a little wedge of Swiss Gruyere cheese and they look like turbans These are smothered in a mushroom soup sauce and baked. The cheese centre seems to blend with the fish but picks up smoothly when the turbans are served.

FISH FILLET TURBANS
(Serves 6)

2 pounds fresh or frash frozen fish fillets (cod, perch, haddock or sole)
6 little wedges Swiss Gruyere cheese one 10 oz. can cream of mushroom soup
½ soupcan milk
1 teaspoon chopped parsley
paprika

If fish is frozen thaw it. Wrap each fillet around a wedge of cheese NOTES: 1) If you have more than 6 fillets or some fillets are small wrap the extras around halved wedges of cheese. 2) If some of the pieces of fish are too thick and short cut pockets in them and slip wedge of cheese in them. If desired fasten turbans with toothpicks but I did not find it necessary. Stand upright in a greased casserole or baking dish. Combine soup and milk and parsley until blended and pour evenly over turbans. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 30 to 35 minutes or until fish is opaque and flakes when one turban is tested with tip of paring knife.

We served these with asparagus and French Garlic Bread. It was popular with everybody.

P.S. I had one turban leftover and ate it cold for lunch next day and it was surprisingly good.

Women Used To Direct Car Traffic

VANCOUVER (CP)—Marilyn Thomson is a traffic director. All she has to do is stand there.

The pretty miss is one of eight women traffic controllers now directing drivers near construction sites.

They are hired by a new company which provides traffic-trained personnel to construction companies to direct cars around construction sites.

Mary Ellis, former physical education director and highway information department inspector, who formed the company, said:

"I thought female traffic controllers would command a little more respect from passing motorists."

The girls are dressed in eye-catching outfits of blaze-orange jackets and stretchy black slacks.

"We get a most favorable reaction from motorists," says Miss Thomson.

"They only get angry if you confuse them. Of course, we get a few wolf whistles but we ignore them and usually the men go away without any trouble.

"It's fancy to see the amazed expression on most faces as they drive by. Women, in particular, seem very happy to see us."

ST. JOHN'S
FRIENDSHIP GROUP

The Friendship Group of St. John's Anglican Church, Point Anne, held its monthly meeting on Tuesday at the home of the Rev. Brown and the preacher, Mrs. Green, welcomed everyone.

Correspondence was read from Edna Mann's and Simpson's in regard to floor covering.

It was decided to wait until a future date to decide on the floor covering.

Plans were made for a strawberry social to be held on the lawn of the home of Mrs. Murney Green, Jr., or in the hall in case of rain. The date will depend on the time of the peak of the berry season.

Big Goulash House Dream of 2 Women

TORONTO (CP)—One worked as an interpreter for the Nuremberg occupation forces in Germany, the other learned English in a Canadian brassiere factory.

Now Ruth Schneicer and Dina Feraru are partners operating Boutique Real Estate Ltd., developers of the Lothian Mews and the sophisticated Colonnade on Bloor Street West in Toronto.

They are located in an area of high-class shops in the midtown district.

"This is our most fashionable stretch," Miss Schneicer says. "Potentiality is the most valuable and we control, in one way or another, almost all of the property in the development in this block (between Avenue Road and Bay Street)."

Lothian Mews was a back lane slush everywhere, so to gravelled parking lot. The income from the property was $200 a month. Now it has two floors of shops around a courtyard and coffee house. The income is more than five times as much.

HOW TO GET LETTERS FROM CAMPERS

Dear Susanna: Our two children are away at camp for the summer, as my husband and I both work, and this does make such a wonderful break for us all.

The first problem is to find enough time to write them both regularly — the second, is to get them to keep in touch with us so that we don't go out of our minds wondering how they are getting along.

Number one is simple. We take turns writing every other day, and we use carbon paper so that both our boy and girl receive the same letter.

The intangible part, about getting them to write back, was a little more difficult. But we've found a pretty fair solution.

We add a page of questions to each letter we write, with a blank line or two for each answer. A stamped addressed envelope is included.

They actually get rather a kick out of filling in the empty spaces — Mrs. Wm. T. Bennett.

Instant Letters, yet! — Susanna.

CARS Centre Commended By Doctor

The June meeting of the Belleville branch of The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society was held at the Social Service Centre, 294 John Street.

This being the last meeting of the board, before the summer recess, Mr. A. E. Chatland, president, brought the directors up to date on the plans and development for the participation of the society in the United Appeal Campaign for 1956.

Mrs. R. David, discussed the plans for a dinner meeting with an outstanding speaker, to be held at Christ Church Parish Hall in ia's September or early October

Mrs. Kathryn Brown, staff, physiotherapist, reported that 295 treatments were given in May, five new cases were opened and five closed.

Mrs. Brown will be on vacation during the last two weeks of July and the first week of August, so the treatment clinic held Tuesday and Thursday evenings each week will be closed during that time.

Dr. J. S. Loynes, medical director of the local branch, commented on the splendid work carried out by the staff physiotherapist in caring for this busy clinic and the interesting treatment centre at Belleville General Hospital is doing a real head in the community. Many patients who are still able to carry on their jobs during the day and the more seriously crippled patients who are brought by relatives or friends and the evening clinic is convenience.

Dr. Loynes said the educational program of the society at the Dominion, Provincial and local levels has to be carried out on a fairly continuing basis, to make the public aware of the seriousness of this disease which causes so much suffering

UCW Groups Hear Plans For Centennial

Recently the Actinolite United Church Women were joined by the Tweed unit and by representatives from women's groups of the various churches in the area. About 60 were in attendance.

The meeting took place in the historic old stone church in Actinolite which recently celebrated its 102nd anniversary.

The theme for the meeting was a most patriotic one and stressed the importance of Canadian heritage. Music in keeping with the theme was provided by the Actinolite school choir under the direction of Miss Gwen Leal. Mrs. Ken Fisher, president of the Tweed U.C.W., conducted the business portion and appropriate hymns were sung.

Guest speaker for the event was Mrs. Dorothy Howell of Belleville, the Hastings County chairman on the Women's Activities committee for Centennial planning in Canada.

Mrs. Howell gave a most interesting and inspiring talk on Centennial projects and offered many helpful suggestions for both individual and community effort. Excellent slides furnished by the Centennial committee illustrated the talk. These also showed how many of the projects could be carried out successfully.

The speaker concluded by saying, "Canadian women must supply the icing for the centennial birthday cake."

Mrs. C. Klotzsteker expressed thanks on behalf of the groups to Mrs. Howell.

An informative discussion followed after which lunch was served and a social half hour was enjoyed.

District Girls Graduate From Modelling School

At the commencement exercises of the Patricia Stevens Career Colleges and Finishing school held at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, on Saturday evening four Belleville area girls received their diplomas. Pictured wearing a white lame mandarin styled sheath dress in (left) Ruth Lightfoot, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Lightfoot, Carryon Place R.R. 1. Miss Lightfoot is a graduate of the fashion merchandising section of the school. She received the model's award and was the only girl from this group to win it; also a special award for being the best performer during the walk down the modelling ramp. Well-known in this area for their ice skating performances and now professionals with the Holiday on Ice Show are Peggy and Jane McCutcheon, daughters of Dr. W. C. McCutcheon and Mrs. McCutcheon, Belleville. Both graduated from the professional modelling course and are shown wearing white dresses in princess lines. Wearing a smoke blue crepe low cut dress (right) is Mary Ellen Samain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Samain, Belleville R.R. 2, who graduated in the Fashion Merchandising.

Ann Landers
Cleanliness Bug Has Real Problem

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your column is the best place to know to air a gripe. I am up to here with a certain friend who has been boring me (and others) for years about what a clean cook and housekeeper she is. If she says once more that a person should put all her flour in a jar, I just may bolt her.

ANN LANDERS

Last night she came to a church supper and wouldn't eat a thing because she had no way of knowing who had prepared the food — or if the kitchen was clean. All during the meal she gave us a running conversation of how she washed her bacon and lunch meat and frankfurters in three waters "even though they usually come wrapped in cellophane these days." Her steaks, chops and roasts, she confided (at the top of her voice) go through six waters.

Her poor husband sat there in silence and didn't say a word, even when she turned to him and asked, "Don't I, dear?"

I have always thought this woman was a loon, but when she announced that she even runs the pealed bananas under the faucet before she puts them into a salad, I knew she was nuts. What do you think? — DIRTY COOK.

DEAR COOK: I think as you do. She's nuts.

Meats that come wrapped in cellophane need not be washed. Steaks and chops and roasts should not be washed — wiping them with a damp cloth is sufficient.

Fruits that have peelings — well, why go into anything as obvious as that? I feel like a darned fool saying it!

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Since you are the American oracle of oracles we want your answer to this question. Few parents, if any, can face this sort of thing with any degree of maturity.

Question: A 21-year-old son returns home from college for the summer vacation. He says to his parents, "I'm going to take out a girl tonight. She's a nice thing and I know I can score. May I use my bedroom or are you going to force me to use the automobile?"

We have two sons, Ann, and we are permitting them both to use their bedrooms. I feel that we are being realistic and modern. Our friends are horrified.

Your viewpoint is respected by millions and we want to know what you think about this. We know you are a moralist, but we also know you are a realist. Express yourself, Madame.— O.H.J.

DEAR O.H.J.: The fact that your sons would ask your permission to bring girls home for sex purposes gives me a fairly good idea of what your sons think of your moral standards. The fact that you gave your approval in such an appealing request is proof positive that they did not misjudge you.

You are not only condoning their shoddy behaviour but encouraging it. Moreover you are encouraging your sons to use girls as playthings, which is as irresponsible an approach to parenthood as I have ever encountered.

If one of your "modern" sons get a not-so-modern girl pregnant as the result of your co-operative efforts, will you be able to look the girl's parents in the eye and accept your share of the responsibility?

* * *

Confidential to THE BEST THINGS IN LIFE ARE FREE: Sorry but what you call "the best things" may not be the best for you. They may be the worst things. And if you think you can get anything in this life without paying for it, forget it, Bub. The bill will come later.

THE PRICE OF MILK

IF YOU DRINK OR BUY MILK, THIS MAY BE OF INTEREST TO YOU

Effective July 1st, 1966, the price paid by dairies to Ontario farmers for each 100 pounds of milk used for fresh milk sales will be increased by 46 cents. This means that the dairy farmer will be receiving about 1.2¢ more for each quart of milk that he sells.

The dairy farmer is caught in a cost-price squeeze which makes it increasingly difficult for him to stay in business while producing milk at existing payment levels. If there is to be an adequate fresh milk supply, it is absolutely necessary that the dairy farmer receive this price increase.

Virtually everything that the dairy farmer needs to operate his farm has risen in price faster than the return for milk. It has been possible to offset some of these rising costs by increased productivity and greater efficiency. However, the trend has been towards a general decrease in the dairy farmer's personal standard of living.

Reproduced in this advertisement are some comparative prices of commonly required dairy farm purchases. It is evident from these figures that the economic pressures of the dairy farmers are real and oppressive. Returns for labour and investment have now become so inadequate that farmers are leaving the dairy industry.

To assure a continuing supply of fresh milk to consumers now and in the future, the price must rise.

This advertisement has been sponsored by Ontario dairy farmers to acquaint you with the economic pressures that necessitate an increase in milk prices.

FARM OPERATING INCREASES 1955 to 1965

farm wage rates.....up 54 percent farm machinery prices.....up 45 percent taxes and interest rates.....up 58 percent composite index farm-required goods and services.....up 36 percent

MILK PAYMENT INCREASES 1955 to 1965

To offset these cost increases the dairy farmer has only received an additional 17 percent for each 100 pounds of milk that he sells.

ONTARIO WAGE INCREASES 1955 to 1965

In Ontario, average weekly wages and salaries rose from $63.55 to $94.42, an increase of 49 percent.

THE ONTARIO MILK MARKETING BOARD

This increase to shippers of milk for use in fresh milk sales has no bearing on the price paid to farmers for milk used in manufacturing (e.g. butter, milk powder, cheese, evaporated milk, etc.)

Ham Radio Operators Plan To Spread Centennial Story

By STEPHEN SCOTT

VANCOUVER (CP) — What might be described as a group of poor man's ham radio operators has hit on a novel way to advertise Canada's and British Columbia's centennials.

The idea so intrigued the Canada Centennial Council that it backed it with a cheque for $300.

It's simple enough—a jamboree of the International Federation of Radio Clubs at Steese Park, 30 miles east of Vancouver, July 1-4.

The Jamboree will bring together 1,000 owners of radio sets using the citizen's bands in Canada and the United States. They're expected to spread the word about the centennials throughout the western United States and Canada when they return home.

The citizen's bands are frequencies reserved for individuals to use for direct radio communications between cars, boats, homes and business offices. Power is limited to three watts, giving a maximum distance of about 100 miles.

Bob Orr, a Vancouver ambulance attendant and radio buff, says about 2,500 belong to the B.C. Federation of GRS Clubs, the District's Commissioner, Joe Irish and his wife.

GRS is the Canadian designation for the band. He says there must be 1,000,000 radio owners in the United States.

These owners, says Mr. Cox, get to know each other through listening and talking on the bands. Partly through his efforts, an international federation was formed and now has 36 clubs from B.C. to California.

While the bands are used for business conversations and reporting emergencies, there are also enough private conversations to get radio owners interested in meeting each other.

He says the radios provide split-second service in emergency situations as well as such relatively minor problems as a stranger losing his way in town.

"It opens the door for people going into a strange country."

This year's Jamboree coincides with the 100th anniversary of Vancouver Island's union with the mainland to form British Columbia. Next year it is hoped there will be a Jamboree marking the 100th anniversary of Confederation.

Adviser on Indian Culture May Have to Return to Ranch

By ED GOULD

CALGARY (CP) — When Indian artist Alex Janvier is angry at white society he signs his paintings with his treaty number rather than his name.

Janvier, or 367 if he prefers, is a graduate of art from the Southern Alberta Institute of Technology here and for the last year has been a cultural adviser to Indians for the Indian affairs department.

Last spring, after a year of working with Indian groups at Eastern reserves, he was given permission to "go paint where with."

He chose Calgary because "the mountains inspire me and because this is where I got my start."

He is currently working on 30 canvases for two exhibitions to be held simultaneously in Montreal and Toronto in September, both sponsored by the Indian Affairs department.

The 31 - year - old Chipewyan first tasted success in 1959 when one of his paintings was chosen for the International Vatican Exhibition at Rome.

PICKED BY MRS. PEARSON

In 1963 his delicately water color, Hoar Frost on The Window, was selected by Mrs. Pearson, wife of the prime minister. It now hangs in Government House, Ottawa.

Janvier was proud of his Indian heritage and it was for this reason as well as his artistic ability that the department selected him for his present job. However, his contract runs out September.

"Then it's back to the ranch," Janvier says, referring to his home on Le Goff Reserve, 150 miles northeast of Edmonton.

He and his brother John, a graduate of Agricultural College at Vermilion, Alta., operate a beef ranch with their father.

The Janviers have a herd of about 100 Hereford cattle acquired under an Indian affairs cattle loan arrangement. For $10 a head, Indians may borrow up to 20 mature cattle for a three-year period and keep the offspring.

GAVE UP TRAPPING

"The Chips were never ranchers, they were trappers and hunters," Janvier says. But since they turned our trap lines into a bombing range we had to change our ways."

An RCAF station is located at nearby Cold Lake, Alta., on the Alberta-Saskatchewan border.

Janvier got angry about what he considers indignities inflicted on the Indian. A delegation he headed at an Indian-Metis conference in Edmonton last year was refused accommodation at a downtown hotel.

Janvier complained to the Edmonton Journal and other news media and the hotel owner backed down and apologized.

But he doesn't consider Indians blameless for the poor regard in which they are sometimes held.

"The reserve system will never work unless Indians themselves make it work," he says. He hopes his own example of bridging the white and Indian worlds will serve as an example and encouragement to others.

PREFERS OILS

During his early painting days Janvier worked mostly in water colors because they were cheaper to purchase but he prefers oils.

His style is abstract — "I stopped painting pretty faces a long time ago."

He believes it is useless for Indians to reproduce the same arts and crafts created by their ancestors.

"They have to combine old crafts with new techniques if they wish to compete in today's world.

"Indians at Camp Croker in Ontario make beautifully designed baskets from porcupine quills, an old craft, but they also produce rustic furniture, something new for them.

"Abenakis Indians in Quebec preserve a delicately perfumed sweet grass into fine birch baskets. The baskets look good, smell good, and they sell."

West German Social Democrats Confer With East German Reds

West German socialists and East German Communists will meet in mid-July to talk about some of the differences between the two Germanys. Canadian Press reporter John Best writes about the significance of the unprecedented dialogue.

By JOHN BEST

EAST BERLIN (CP)—When West German Social Democrats and East German Communists sit down to talk in East Marx Stadt in mid-July, they'll be performing what some regard as a minor miracle.

Their talks on issues dividing the two countries, will be the first East-West political contacts in Germany in about 20 years and the wonder is that they were ever arranged at all.

Not that anyone is expecting the dialogue to settle anything. But it could help lead to an eventual settlement of the issue of a divided Germany by creating a climate in which further, more official talks could be held.

Proposed earlier this year by the East Germans, the idea provoked a lot of bickering before agreement was finally reached toward the end of May.

Negotiations became tangled when the West Germans brought up the question of discussing the Berlin Wall. Then there was the problem of setting when and where the meeting would take place. And there was also the question of safe conduct for the East German team when it travels in the West.

East Germany, which originally suggested May as the time of the talks, switched to July, saying May would conflict with important provincial election scheduled for that time in West Germany.

Some in West Germany interpreted the postponement as an indication the Communists were getting cold feet—that they had proposed the dialogue in the first place as a propaganda stunt, not expecting the West would accept.

It was finally decided to open the meetings in East Germany July 14 and conclude in Hannover, West Germany, a week later.

Heading the West delegation going to East Marx Stadt, 115 miles south of Berlin, will be Mayor Willi Brandt of West Berlin, chairman of the Social Democratic party, main opposition group in the West German parliament. Party deputies Fritz Erler and Herbert Wehner are to accompany him.

The East Germans haven't announced the makeup of the team that will go to Hannover. Observers are wondering whether Communist party boss Walter Ulbricht will go.

The thorniest issue on the way to settling plans for the dialogue was a West German law that holds leaders of Communist - ruled East Germany answerable for shootings at the Berlin Wall.

"Just to think, if one of our leaders went over there he could be arrested for murder, as East German official told me indignantly.

West German political leaders later agreed to work out a bill that would remove safe conduct of the East Germans.

West Germany's Christian Democratic government, while showing no enthusiasm for the meetings, has gone along with the idea to the extent of not putting obstacles in the way.

Officials in the West are reported to be of two minds about the debates. On the domestic front they feel the advantage will go to the non-Communist side.

The East German people, they say, are far more vulnerable and receptive to Western ideas than West Germans are to Communist arguments.

The fact that many East Germans are disenchanted with conditions here was recognized by the Ulbricht regime itself five years ago when it erected the wall to prevent people escaping to the West.

One condition Western negotiators insisted on was that the debates have full press coverage, including live television and radio broadcasts.

On the other hand, some West German officials are understood to be of the view the debates will have on world opinion. The spectacle of representatives of East and West German states debating on terms of equality might serve to point up the notion that East Germany is just as much a state as West Germany, a thought that conflicts with the views of the Bonn government.

A West German diplomat who has grave misgivings about the dialogue says world opinion will not take particular note of the fact that the two states are between political parties and not between two governments.

His argument is that this will lead to wider acceptance of the idea that the two Germanys are separate from each another on unification and other questions, an idea that East Germany and the Soviet bloc have been peddling for years.

The decision on whether Ulbricht takes part may depend on how much value East Germany places on this aspect of the debates.

At the same time, East German officials believe the contacts may open prospects of wider relations with West Germany at the official level should the Social Democrats ever win power in Bonn from Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's Christian Democrats.

One issue that the debates are likely to bring into focus is that of a confederation of the two Germanys, strongly endorsed by Moscow as a means of ending the division.

West Germany has resisted the idea, continuing to insist that reunification should be accomplished on the basis of country-wide free elections.

Moreover, it dislikes the whole idea that reunification should be arranged out between the two German states. West German officials know the Soviet Union will never give the East Germans a free hand anyway. And they insist that Moscow and the other big powers have a responsibility in reunifying the country.

WORTH EXPLORING

In other Western countries, however, there is growing belief that the confederation idea, pushed by Moscow, could at least be explored, even if it means some form of recognition of East Germany.

"We can't just pretend that it doesn't exist," said a Western diplomat.

Despite the seemingly insurmountable difficulties in which the German problem is enmeshed, the visiting talks have evoked much interest in both East and West.

They represent the first concrete move to get something moving since Nikita Khrushchev planned a visit to Bonn nearly two years ago before it was upset by his removal from the Soviet leadership.

It has been seven years since the last four-power conference on Germany. And across the East-West frontier here, Western and Communist armed forces still confront each other in hostility.

Tomorrow: Behind the Berlin Wall.

UNOFFICIAL DIALOGUE ON DIVIDED GERMANY — The first East-West political talks in Germany in the last 20 years will start July 14 in Karl Marx Stadt in East Germany. The unofficial talks will be between the Social Democrats, the opposition party in West Germany, and the Communist party of East Germany. These first talks on the issues of a divided Germany are not expected to settle anything but could lead to a favorable climate for further meetings. (CP Newsmap)

Whoopers Add Three at Resting Area

OTTAWA (CP) — You can't count your whooping cranes even after they're hatched, says the Canadian Wildlife Service.

But it does appear the population of the stately, snow white bird has increased to 34 from 31.

A helicopter patrol over the Sass Lake area of Wood Buffalo National Park spotted three young whoopers June 15, the wildlife service said.

But counting the birds before they leave the nesting area and return to their wintering grounds in Texas won't give you an accurate figure, it said.

The new birds might not survive and some of the 46 who left Texas for the north could die before returning in the fall. An accurate tally was possible only then.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

The most expeditious manner of presenting a house for sale is important. Brokers prefer a vacant property for it usually makes for a quicker sale because they can offer immediate possession. The owner, on the other hand, usually fares better with an occupied house. Often it is possible to reconcile both interests.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: "When we bought a new home two years ago, we did not sell the old house but rented it. We have been averaging a very satisfactory 10 percent return, but looking after it has become burdensome.

"The tenant's lease expires next month, and we plan to sell at that time. The realtor who will handle the transaction wants us to vacate the property. He says that selling a vacant house presents fewer problems. We are reluctant to lose the income. What would you do if this were your house? — Faithful Reader.

ANSWER: I'm afraid the realtor is solving your problem in a manner that makes his job simpler, but is disadvantageous to the owner.

From the realtor's standpoint, a vacant house often makes for a quick sale, because he can offer the buyer immediate occupancy.

From the owner's viewpoint, a vacant house is usually detrimental because market experience indicates that an occupied house usually brings a higher price. With furniture, the rooms appear larger, the defects are less obvious, and the decoration blemishes are not too apparent.

It usually takes several months to sell and prepare for settlement. If the tenant is given a month-to-month lease instead of a yearly lease, then the broker has the equivalent of a vacant house to sell. the owner gets the advantages of an occupied house, plus rent for the several months involved.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We have been fortunate in our investment for our home and our summer cottage. Both properties give us much pleasure and have increased in value over the years.

We have reached the stage that we would like to invest in an income - producing property. We have about $60,000 available and are thinking of purchasing a small apartment house. Brokers have shown us apartment houses costing $60,000 to $75,000 which can be bought with a $12,000 to $15,000 down payment. The figures presented to us seem fantastic. These properties show a net income of $7,000 to $7,000 and would leave available to us $2,000 to $3,000 after mortgage payments.

Are we being told the truth? The investment return is too fantastic to believe. — Love Real Estate

ANSWER: I must conclude that you are being told only a partial truth, for investment returns of close to 100 percent returns that are being shown to you arise because of the following reasons:

(a) The operating expense statement ignores such items as management, vacancy and rent loss, depreciation, and assumes that the owner will make his own repairs, be his own janitor, etc.

(b) The income and operating expenses have been "doctored." This is not uncommon in presenting an investment property for a buyer's consideration.

(c) The property involved is located in a very high risk, deteriorating neighborhood.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My house is 90 percent done, but I don't know where to get the money to finish. I thought I was proceeding the way you recommended, but something seems to have gone wrong.

Before I started, I secured a letter of commitment for a $15,000 construction loan. However, my father was willing to advance $10,000 on an interest-free basis, so naturally I accepted. Since I did much of the work myself, my father's money was almost enough.

When I ran out of money and went to the savings and loan association to pick up the commitment, they told me they could not give me money because they should have been in on the job from the beginning. What do I do now? — Building the Hard Way

ANSWER: A construction loan commitment, as the name implies, means money for construction and is intended to be used from the start of the job. The refusal of your lending institution to participate at this late stage is normal. Besides, since they did not inspect the job from the beginning, they are reluctant to face unknowns at this late stage.

Even if the lender were willing to advance money at this time, I would not recommend it. You would have to go through a mortgage closing or settlement—and that is costly. The best method would be to borrow the relatively small amount necessary for completion from a bank. After completion, you can pay off your father's and the bank's loan by obtaining a long-term mortgage.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

The Girl a Man Courts Differs From One He Finds He Has Wed

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP). — Yep, nothing changes a girl like marriage.

She seems so sweet, simple and direct when a fellow is courting her. But after they agree to test the theory that two can live as cheaply as one, a great change comes over her.

For example:

She used to hang on every word he said. Now she uses every word he utters in order to try to hang him.

Before marriage she looked as if she had been poured into her clothes. After marriage, if he didn't tug and pull and zip, she'd never be able to get dressed.

There was a time when she thought he looked dashing in a bow tie. Now, if he does once, she remarks witheringly, "Who do you think you are—Joe College?"

It was easy in the old days for him to put his hands around her waist and lift her lightly over an old stone wall. Later, using both arms, he could barely budge her off her high heels.

Before marriage she loved to comb his thick stubborn hair. After marriage, she thinks he got bald just to spite her.

Once she complimented him on how broad his shoulders were. Today all she can see is the dandruff on them.

In the dim past she could stay up half the night listening to him tell about his dreams and ambitions. Now she routs him out of bed at dawn and says, "You'd better get to work early today or they'll probably fire you—not that I'd blame them."

Before they were wed he had to go easy so as not to beat her too badly at tennis. After they are wed he discovers she actally can beat him at Indian hand wrestling.

County Will Co-operate for '67 Celebration

NAPANEE — Lennox and Addington county will co-operate with Napanee in the Centennial celebration. The county committee had come to this decision but waited until its acceptance last week before committing the council.

Members of the committee are Reeve Harold Creighton of South Fredericksburg, Reeve Erwell Huff of Bestorville, Dr. Hawker, (Bath) Warden Gordon Plout, County Clerk Mrs. Hazel Wright, and County Treasurer Mrs. Yvonne Wilson.

Ronald Macpherson, chairman of the Centennial committee, addressed the council outlining the overall plan for the celebration. He spoke highly of the enthusiasm of those working with him, and of the wealth of ideas and suggestions being accumulated. "It was fun helping put the celebration across in '67," he said. "It is going to be even more fun this time, with that experience to make it easier."

An initial grant of $1,000 was made for the project, and additional $500 in reserve should it be found necessary to use.

LIONS CLUB JAMBOREE

Excessive heat kept down the attendance for the Lions Club Jamboree last Thursday through Saturday, but those who braved it had a good time. The parade was led by the Boys' and Girls' Lions Club Band of Kingston. Prizes won by draws formed an interesting feature, and there were horses and antique cars.

The sports car was won by Constable Tom McCrea, and the patios furniture by Doug McKinley, a former resident. There were three draws for Girlshard furniture, Ed Colby winning the mahogany utility server, and Ray Wesse and Charles McCracken each winning a cherry step-table. Timmy Markle won the cash attendance prize for children Thursday night.

Final figures for the jamborees are not yet available.

Awards Given At Brownie, Guide Banquet

DESERONTO — About 210 Rangers, Guides, Brownies, their leaders and guests enjoyed the annual mother and daughter banquet last Wednesday evening. Among the guests were Mayor Lott and Mrs. Lott; Mr. Jack Hamilton, president of the Lions Club, scene who formerly was AP Saigon correspondent and now is a free-lance writer.

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON (AP)—An 11-year-old boy was feeling bored last Near Year's Day, so he went out in the fields. He took about 100 steps and then was blown to pieces by a Viet Cong mine.

That make many have been planted by one of the squads commanded by his own father.

His mother had tried to chase him into the field outside their hut, but could not run. One of her legs had been blown off by a French mortar shell during the Indochina war.

Now, Mrs. Ho Thi Truc lives alone at the hamlet of Tam Phuoc 30 miles south of Saigon.

Her dead son was her only child, and her husband, the Viet Cong commander, has not been home since before his son was born.

In dense, malarial jungle a few dozen miles northeast of Saigon, armies of insects make their way along trails, fighting, and bleeding and burning. For the American casualties there is a swift helicopter ride to an aid station or hospital, and even the United States is only a day away.

LIVE AND DIE THERE

For many Vietnamese, whether they fight on the Viet Cong or government side, the question of life or death must be decided right there in the jungle.

Lt. Huynh Thach Thuong, 27, is a medical officer in the Saigon government army. He mobile command post, more than 30 miles from Thuong. But Kiet is also a Viet Cong officer, but stationed in the Mekong River delta. It was True's son who was killed by the land mine. True, 40, has belonged to the Viet Cong and its forerunner, the Viet Minh, since 1944, and he now holds high rank. He is in charge of Viet Cong intelligence for an important sector of the Mekong delta.

True's and Kiet's father, Ha Van Phuoc, was also a Viet Cong, but he is dead now, of tuberculosis he contracted during long years in the jungle.

The father of their government brother - in - law, Thuong, also is dead. He was a government official in the French colonial administration of Viet Nam before he was kidnapped and murdered by the Viet Minh.

The two families were linked by marriage three years ago. It took an endless series of family feuds and an eloquent

Somehow, despite the passions of family feuds and revenge, despite the never-ending war, despite the ghastly dislocations and tragedy, Vietnamese go on marrying, raising children and hoping that some day things will be different.

But after a quarter century, the Nguyens have learned much meaning, and women weep over their husbands' and brothers' coffins without tears.

In these two south Vietnamese families, the Huynhs and the Hos, politics, war and death have been the pattern since most of their members can remember. Among them there are Buddhists, Catholics and atheists. There are government officials and army officers, and there are Viet Cong officials and officers.

A member of the Huynh family, Thuong, and a member of the Ho family Ha Thi Kim Lan, have had three daughters in their three years of marriage.

They share a comfortable room in Saigon's teeming Tan Dinh district. Thuong's 240-a-month U.S. pay will buy luxuries. Recreation is listening to a Japanese transistor radio or guzzling tea with relatives.

But the young officer gets home about once a week for a couple of days. The rest of the time he is with his unit out in Long Khanh province. He has never met his Viet Cong brother-in-law, and accept philosophically the fact that he might one day have to kill one or both of the other of them.

Thuong's mother, the widow of his murdered father, lives in the Nguyen family home with little gifts of money and any other way she can manage. The family house in Tra Vinh has been sold, because it is now too dangerous and difficult to make frequent trips between Ben Tre and Saigon.

In 1949, Lan's mother was on her way to Viet Nam from Saigon, and was waiting to take the ferry across the Mekong River when a group of French army truck hit her and killed her.

Lan's father, was in the jungle with the Viet Minh, asked the Communist high command for permission to marry his wife's funeral. Permission was denied. By then, the old man had become an important commissar.

In 1953, obviously dying of tuberculosis, old Ho Van Phuoc finally was allowed to leave the jungle and return to French-occupied Ben Tre. He died there three years later.

HAD EIGHT SONS

Phuoc's wife had borne him eight sons and three daughters. In 1944, Phuoc wanted one of his sons to join him with the guerrillas, and sent word to Ben Tre that True, the third son, should come. That son is now True became a Viet Cong.

When the war ended at the Geneva agreements of 1954, all Communist forces were ordered to leave South Viet Nam to be "regrouped" in North Viet Nam —the new "Democratic Republic of Viet Nam."

True was one of these troops. He rose rapidly through the ranks in Hanoi, and was sent for training abroad, successively to France, England and Communist China. In China he was taught military intelligence.

In 1964 True returned to his native Mekong River delta. His wife sir, has not seen him in 14 years and his son is now dead.

PAINTS U.S. RAILROAD

Announce New Healing Substance: Shrinks Piles

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and relieve itching and discomfort in minutes and speed up healing of the injured inflamed tissue. In most cases after one application relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most important of all — results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue.

Now Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H. Ask for it at all drug stores. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Hint at Province - Wide Protests by Labor Unions

TORONTO (CP)—The threat of province-wide labor demonstrations flared up Monday in the wake of jail sentences handed out to 28 men convicted of defying a court injunction that restricted pickets.

The men, five of them union leaders, were sentenced by the Ontario Supreme Court in connection with an injunction last February that limited pickets at the Tilco Plastics Ltd. plant in Peterborough to 32 persons.

In an interview after the convictions, David Archer, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor, said union leaders from across the province will meet here Wednesday to discuss the political implications of the sentences.

He said the unionists will shape plans for their fight against injunctions. They also will meet Premier Robarts for a discussion of the whole situation.

Chief Justice G. A. Gale of the Ontario Supreme Court sentenced the five union leaders to two months in jail each and 28 men, pickets at Tilco, to 15 days each. One man had his sentence suspended.

The sentences took effect immediately, but appeals against both convictions and sentences were filed.

Their sentences brought scathing attacks from various labor leaders.

George Burt, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers Union (CLC), said "organized labor will hang this ruling around the neck of the government."

"Undoubtedly," he said, "the learned judge fancies himself to be upholding and insisting on the dignity of the courts. Instead, he has heaped indignity on them, because in the eyes of the Canadian working man, this ruling shows the courts to be an instrument of the establishment."

Ramon Park, assistant to the Canadian director of the United Steelworkers of America, accused Chief Justice Gale of impertinence and of turning the court into a soap box.

David Montgomery, president of the Toronto and District Labor Council, said "this is a declaration of war by the attorney-general against the labor movement."

HONORED AT GATHERING in Picton last night were Captain and Mrs. Len Pearo of the Salvation Army who have received an appointment to Woodstock. Their children joined them at the head table. The Pearos have been at Picton for the past four years.

Salvation Army Leaders Are Honored by Community

PICTON (Staff) — Community leaders from Picton and Prince Edward County met last night gathered to extend their good wishes to two of the country's leading citizens whose work here has become known far and wide. Capt. Len Pearo and his wife, Salvation Army officials at the Picton Citadel for the past four years, have made themselves a host of friends in this area, as was indicated when about 100 were present for the "farewell party" at Picton's Royal Hotel. Present were heads of local organizations, Warden of the County Harold Bonter, Mayor H. J. McFarland (who left the Mayors and Reeves Conference in Sarnia to attend) and Reeve Barney Hepburn. The evening events saw members of Picton's Kiwanis Club play host at their regular Monday night meeting.

It was open house for all service club members and their wives as they came together to wish the young couple "Bon Voyage". Represented were the Chamber of Commerce, the Ministerial Association, Kiwanis, Rotary, Kinsmen, Jaycees, and the Business and Professional Women's Club. All expressed their regrets at having the Pearos leave the community, for Woodstock, Ont., Jack LeHeup, and Jesse Mason, both Kiwanians, who headed the Red Shield campaigns in Picton spoke and wished the Pearos well.

Mayor H. J. McFarland who said as had flown over Woodstock on his way back to Picton and had dropped leaflets over the city. He hoped that when they were read by Woodstock citizens they would send the Pearos back to Picton and Prince Edward County.

Rev. E. V. C. Lewis said that the Ministerial Association will be greatly at a loss to fill "our brothers' place" in our midst. We have come to depend on them for so much and for every one in the Association wish them God-speed wherever they go."

GET MOVIE OUTFIT

The Pearos were presented with a complete home movie outfit by those who were present and movies were taken of the night's proceedings by Victor Lord local camera merchant and Kiwanian. These films will be forwarded to the Pearos at their new Citadel in Woodstock.

Capt. Pearo said living and working in Prince Edward County has been a most rewarding experience. He urged the people of the county and of Picton to be ever mindful of the youth. "We must insure that the youth of today will be guided along the right paths that Prince Edward County will continue to have fine citizens," he said.

Vice President of Kiwanis William Strachan conducted the opening of the meeting, while Kinsman Jack Evans acted as chairman for the program. Head table guests were introduced by Wm. Strachan.

INTERIOR DECORATOR

LONDON (AP)—Police were impressed when they visited the home of Anthony Sweet. The furnishings, including the picture on the walls, looked as if they belonged in a show house. They did. Sweet, 17, was arrested for breaking into a builders' display house to furnish his mother's home.

Argentina's

coup have been circulating here for some weeks. The military chiefs were reported increasingly concerned with the state of the nation and wanted stronger leadership.

The military has frequently charged that Illia's administration was inept and corrupt, that the universities were nests of communism and that bankruptcy was just around the corner.

The military leaders were also known to be fearful of a resurgence of Peronism in the political sphere. It was the army which overthrew dictator Juan Peron in 1955.

The main fear in the mind of the military is that the Peronists, who scored considerable gains in the 1965 elections for half of Congress and became the largest single party in the house, could well take over control of Congress when its second half is re-elected in March, 1967.

Although President Illia is lackadaisy in office until October, 1968, it is generally conceded that a president working against a hostile Congress would be in an impossible position, having either to bow to decrees —a form of virtual dictatorship —or to resign.

When trying to dismiss Gen. Pistarini Monday night, President Illia accused him of rebellion in defying the authority of the war secretary, Gen. Edwardo Castro Sanchez.

Later the entire cabinet resigned to allow Illia freedom of action in his attempt to save the 33-month-old regime.

All access was cut today to the tree-lined square in central Buenos Aires on which stands the Pink House, as the presidential palace is known.

International telephone channels were cut but telegrams and telex were still functioning.

TAKE CONTROL

Artillery units took control of the congress building and soldiers of the armed cavalry regiments surrounded the municipal offices. Both regiments are loyal to Gen. Pistarini.

By late this morning all radio stations had joined in a nationwide hookup, broadcasting the army communique every few minutes.

The atmosphere in the capital was quietly tense. A few cars and taxis moved slowly along the dimly lit streets as a crowd of some 500 persons gathered in front of Government House to see officials, supporters and military officers coming and going.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

The hipsters of modern sport and the squares of yesteryear may at long last be able to settle the age-long unanswered question "Are the champions of today better than those of four or five decades ago?"

That is if the idea of a Philadelphia disc jockey which had a successful debut develops into something of a broad nature.

Melvin Kuralag writing in the TV Guide said the jockey Jim Gearheart envisioned a "dream world series" featuring the celebrated players of all time.

Gearheart phoned the Philadelphia Computer Company and asked if its machine fed sufficient material on players making up two teams could simulate a ball game. He was told the computer could probably get the job done.

He asked his listeners to name their all-time National and American League favorites and the consensus was this:

National League: Hartnett, Terry, Hornsby, Traynor, Wagner, Musial, Mays and Ott.

American League: Dickey, Gehrig, Gehringer, Baker, Cronin, Cobb, DiMaggio, Ruth.

Gearheart selected his own pitchers putting Matthewson, Alexander, Dean, Hubbell, Spahn and Koufax against Johnson, Plank, Young, Feller and Grove.

The computer gave Warren Spahn a 3-2 ten-inning win over Walter Johnson, and Sandy Koufax a 9-5 victory over Lefty Grove. Koufax was nicked for 11 hits but struck out 13 including Ruth, DiMaggio and Gehringer.

Gearheart's idea went over so well there is talk of syndicated television which would embrace other sports besides baseball.

This should make for some interesting viewing, but it must be understood the then-and-now combatants are computer-judged solely on their athletic records. Personal habits, mannerisms and antics are not fed into the machine.

For instance, Kuralag points out, oldtime pitchers doctored the balls with licorice, tobacco juice, slippery elm and put sticks on the horsehide to ensure flight. To-day a speck of dirt on a ball sees it tossed out of the game.

Anyway it should be interesting to watch. How will Joe Louis, the stalking tiger of the heavyweight jungle stack up against a charging "killer" named Jack Dempsey?

And how would David had fared had he missed the first-round lucky punch with Goliath, and the bout gone into extra rounds?

Will the computer show that the famous Ranger line of Bill and Bun Cook and Frank Boucher was faster and more powerful than Hull Apsodis and Maki. Will the Leafs equally-famous kid line of Primeau, Jackson and Conacher stack up against the Bellyeau, Rennemo and Tremblays of the Canadiens?

(No, Mushmouth, Adam and Eve is out. They had no previous records when they were thrown out of the park).

And how will the Kiniskis, the Schmidts, the Brewers and other modern wrestling heights fare against Strangler Lewis, Frank Gotch and Hackenschmit of four-hour bouts. Don't bother guessing. The computer would probably say "Sorry, out for lunch."

It should be interesting to note how Fritzie Hansen and his rollicking Bombers would emerge from a televised tussle with the Hamilton Tigers of last year.

And could the Chicago Bears of 1940 beat the Green Bay Packers of 1965? Kuralag says he may be puzzled but the computer taps its skull knowingly.

City sportsdom reeled from the impact of shock and surprise when the Grim Reaper striking suddenly, took the life of Jerry Maher in a railroad accident over the weekend. Especially saddened are the members of the "Toots Shor" Juniors of two decades ago for Jerry was a charter member. He had seldom missed an annual reunion.

Jerry loved hockey, baseball and horse-racing. He was a clean hard player who played the game for the game's sake. He was extremely popular with fellow players — and with the fans. This department extends deepest sympathy to the family.

Willie Now Third In Homer Classic

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Willie Mays was not trying to get past anybody, but he moved fast enough Monday night to catch Bob Gibson and overtake Ted Williams.

In the stretch run of a brilliant career, Mays passed Williams, another thoroughbred, to become the third-greatest home run hitter of all time.

The blast that put him there was a two-run shot off Gibson in the first inning Monday night that gave National League-leading San Francisco Giants a 3-1 victory over St. Louis Cardinals. It was his 17th of the season and the 522nd of his 15-year career, putting him ahead of Williams.

Only Babe Ruth, with 714 homers, Jimmy Foxx, with 534, are between him and the top.

But Mays took in stride all the glory heaped upon him.

"I'm not trying to get past anybody," he said. "I might have been passing for No. 513 which broke the National League record, but the pressure wasn't as great for this one.

"I was just trying to hit the ball off Gibson, but I knew this one was gone when I hit it."

Mays has had his troubles catching the Cardinal right-hander. It was only his second homer off Gibson and the first since June, 1962.

Dick Ellsworth, the victim of Mays' 521st homer, bounced back with a route-going victory as Chicago Cubs whipped Atlanta Braves 5-1, Roberto Clemente stroked three key hits to Pittsburgh Pirates' 5-3 decision over Houston Astros and Cincinnati Reds defeated Los Angeles 7-1 in other National League activity.

Ball more Orioles trimmed California Angeles 4-1 and Minnesota Twins beat Cleveland Indians 6-2 in the only American League games scheduled.

Ellsworth scattered eight hits, scored one run and singled in another while picking up only his third victory in 13 decisions. The Cubs, who had dropped seven of their previous eight games, broke it open with three runs in the fifth against loser Joey Jay.

Ellsworth and Glenn Beckert each singled a run across in the fifth and Don Kessinger delivered another with a double.

CLEMENTE NOW .322

Clemente, raising his league-leading batting mark to .332, set up a run with a fourth-inning single, snapped a 2-2 tie with a run-scoring double in the fifth and singled home in a five-run seventh - inning burst that wrapped it up for the Pirates and right - hander Steve Blass.

Blass, 6-1, needed relief help from Elroy Face in the ninth, when the Astros pushed over three unearned runs.

The Reds, scored twice in the first inning, Pete Rose doubling one run in and scoring the other on Vada Pinson's single. They added a insurance run in the second on John Edward's homer.

Milt Pappas checked the Dodgers on a run and eight hits before hurling his right foot on a play at first base in the eighth and giving way to reliever Billy McCool.

In the American League, Jim Kaat pitched a six-hitter in Minnesota's victory—ninth against five defeats.

Three of the Indians' six hits off Kaat came in the first inning when they scored both of their runs. But the Twins tied it, then went ahead with a four-run sixth inning.

Baltimore and California were scoreless until the Orioles rallied for two runs in the sixth. Boog Powell singled, Frank Robinson doubled and Brooks Robinson was walked purposely, loading the bases. The first run crossed on Jim Fregosi's error and the second on a double play grounder.

Three Years At $35,000

Blues Sign Boom-Boom

NEW YORK (AP) — Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, looking trim and apparently anxious for action, is ready to lead New York Rangers out of the National Hockey League cellar.

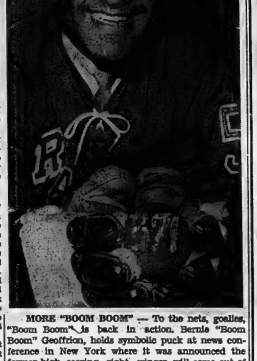
"I didn't come here to play for a loser," said the right winger who scored 371 goals in 16 seasons with Montreal Canadiens before retiring two years ago to coach Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League.

The Rangers claimed Geoffrion on waivers from Montreal after he decided to make a comeback as a player.

"Geoffrion still has a lot of good hockey left in him," said Ranger general manage Emile Francis. "I'm delighted we could get him."

Geoffrion said he thinks he retired from hockey too soon. "I was only 33, but some people thought I was over the hill.

"I took the Quebec coaching job with an eye on the Montreal job. I coached the Aces to two first-place finishes and they called me in and said 'if you've got another offer, take it.'"



TRYING COMEBACK

Geoffrion, fuming at the Aces' management, decided to make a comeback as a player. Because waivers were not obtained in 1964 when he was placed on the voluntarily retired list, he was available at the $30,000 price and the Rangers made their claim.

Boom Boom, fifth-highest goal scorer in NHL history, said Ted Lindsay's successful comeback with Detroit two years ago helped influence his decision to play again. Lindsay scored 14 goals after a four-year layoff.

"If he could play that well at 39, I can do it at 35. And don't forget, he was away four years. I've only missed two seasons."

In addition to paying the $30,000 waiver price, the Rangers gave Geoffrion a three-year contract at an estimated $35,000 a year.

MORE "BOOM BOOM" — To the nets, goalies, "Boom Boom" is back in action. Bernie "Boom Boom" Geoffrion, holds symbolic puck at news conference in New York where it was announced the former high scoring right winger will come out of retirement after a two-year absence from the National Hockey League. The fifth-highest scorer in league history, 371 goals, was non-playing coach for Quebec of the American Hockey League the past two years. (AP Wirephoto)

Ron Maracle Tosses No-Hitter

Ron Maracle joined his father, Pat Maracle, in the local softball hall of fame last night, pitching a no-hitter as Point Anne Whipped Lightfoot Construction 6-1 in a Consumer Cial Softball League battle, at Alemite Park.

Maracle struck out 10 batters but had control trouble with seven walks.

He lost his shutout in the Lightfoot sixth when two walks and an error loaded the bases with none out. The run scored on a force play but an interference call on a bunt and strikeout ended the threat.

The Anne run for Lightfoots made it a 2-1 game at that point. The Cementmen topped up the win in the top of the seventh with four runs on five hits. Maracle had singled home his club's initial marker in the first.

Don Smith gave up 10 hits on the losers' rubber, striking out two and passing three.

The victory kept Point Anne in second place, two points behind Stewart Warner and two up on the Lightfoots.

Glen Maracle and brother Glen Maracle also starred on the Point Anne attack, each shooting a double and a pair of singles.

Vern Whalen helped the cause with two singles while Denny Maher and Eric Maher each hit a double.

Both clubs played strong ball afield, charged with a lone error each.

Madoc Inters Picton

MADOC — Forced to play without a pitcher in their lineup, the Picton Kinsmen suffered a 20-7 Belleville and District Softball League whipping at the hands of Madoc here last night.

Madoc's victory boosted the club to within two points of Kilts Juniors and the shortstatted and slipping Picton squad. Picton led the league less than two weeks but now own a four-and-five won-lost record.

The winners' sent 17 men to the plate and scored 13 runs in the sixth inning to open up a 12-7 lead.

Larry Griffin and Darryl Krupp split the Madoc pitching allowing six hits. Picton scored four times in the third and added three in the fifth to make it close at that point.

With neither Ken DeMille or Carl Searcy available for pitching, Picton coach Keith Searcy started and before it was over, Garry Hazard, M. Searcy and Warren Ostrander had all seen action. They handed out a bucket of walks along with 15 Madoc hits.

As well as the big 13-run sixth the winners got five in the second and losers in the first, fourth, fifth and seventh.

Larry Griffin had a double and two singles for Madoc with Eldon Grey, Bulley and Ray LeSage getting two hits each to lead the onslaught.

Ron Wesse had a three-run homer, Keith MacDonald and Warren Ostrander doubles, Bob Carson, M. Stacey and Dave Lockwood singles in defeat.

Track Club Moves To Keep Percival

—Appeals To National AAU—

By STERLING TAYLOR

TORONTO (CP) — The Don Mills Track Club of Toronto made its first formal moves Monday in an effort to retain physical fitness expert Lloyd Percival as its coach.

The club refused to accept Percival's resignation and issued an appeal to the national executive committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada against a decision by the AAUC's Central Ontario branch last week ordering the dismissal of Percival as the club's coach.

Percival, charged earlier this month with providing his athletes with drugs for the purpose of improving their performances, said late last week he had instructed his lawyers to institute action in the Ontario Supreme Court against five members of the central Ontario physical recreation committee for libel and slander.

The registration of athletes Percival was suspended for two weeks athletes Nancy McCredie of Brampton, Ont., Susan Nigh and Peter Hogg of Toronto, and track coach Bob Middleton, also of Toronto, for admittedly taking dexadrine while members of the Don Mills club.

It had considered the immediate dismissal of Percival as coach.

In its appeal, the Don Mills club said the AAUC has no legislation which allows it to order the dismissal.

Meanwhile in Saskatoon, E. W. Stinson, national president of the AAUC, said the association's legislation states that professionals "may" be allowed to coach. Stinson said he interprets this to mean that permission may be granted, but by a provincial body rather than the national organization.

"The AAUC does not, in practice, says whether a club can have a professional coach," Stinson said.

The appeal by the Don Mills club will also forwarded to the central Ontario branch and Stinson.

The appeal says Percival was not given a proper opportunity to defend himself and that, if he had, he would have been proven innocent without doubt.

Percival was first charged with providing his athletes with drugs by middle-distance Bill Crothers, a Markham, Ont., pharmacist. Percival has denied he ever gave or recommended drugs to his athletes for the purpose of improving their performances.

In a subsequent investigation by the registration committee of the central Ontario branch, it was decided that Percival had provided dexadrine to Don Mills club athletes.

Percival tendered his formal resignation Monday, "until such time as the ruling . . . is reclosed.

"If this cannot be achieved . . . I will have no recourse but to sustain my official separation from the Don Mills Track Club according to the instructions received . . . from Mr. George Dennison, chairman of the registration committee."

Saturday, Percival said he had instructed his lawyers to institute action in the Ontario Supreme Court against registration committee members Dennison, Doreen Davis, Jack Bradfield, Jesse Lightwood and Fred Foot for libel and slander.

Mud Hens Beat Leafs, Suns Lose

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was pitchers' night in the International League Monday.

Jack Cullen scattered seven hits to contain Toronto Maple Leafs and lead Toledo Mud Hens to an 8-4 victory, Dick Kelley allowed only four hits as Richmond Braves defeated Rochester Red Wings 5-1 and Billy Graham threw a three-hitter to give Syracuse Chiefs a 2-1 decision over Jacksonville Suns.

Meanwhile, Asa Small allowed one hit in 2 1-3 innings of relief as Columbus Jets rebounded from a 4-1 deficit to defeat Buffalo Bisons 5-4.

Meets Doug Jones Tonight
Terrell 6-5 Favorite

HOUSTON (AP)—Doug Jones makes his second attempt at a championship tonight when he pits his speed and punching power against the finess and left jab of Ernie Terrell, who holds the World Boxing Association heavyweight title.

Jones tried for the light heavyweight crown in 1962 and lost to Harold Johnson in 15 rounds.

Since then, he has fought the best heavyweights he could find, including Cassius Clay, the generally recognized champion, who was just coming up then. Clay outpointed him, but many claimed the decision went the wrong way.

Terrell is 6-to-5 favorite.

The two come together in a match scheduled for 15 rounds expected to start about 12 p.m. EDT. A crowd approaching 10,000 and paying $180,000 is expected in Sam Houston Coliseum.

Irving Ungerman, manager of George Chuvalo of Toronto, who was beaten by Terrell in November, made a bid of $75,000 to the winner of the fight.

Hugh Benbow, manager of Cleveland Williams, the only fighter to knock out Terrell—in 1962—made an offer of $50,000.

Terrell figures to get $365,000 from both the gate and closed television going into 67 cities. Jones expects about $182,500.

Terrell will enter the ring at 210 pounds and boasting a five-inch height advantage over the 180-pound Jones. Terrell also has an advantage of five inches in reach.

S. Warner Shades Cheesemen

Stewart Warner snapped out of a slump and retained first place in the Commercial Softball league last night with an 11-inning 3-2 win over last-place Black Diamond.

Gary Gee scored the deciding run in the 11th to give Warner pitcher Doug Ellis a hard earned victory. Ellis gave up only five hits.

The winners notched one run in the first but dropped behind in the fifth when the Cheesemen scored twice. Warriers tied it in the sixth and won it five frames later.

Doug Ellis fanned seven and walked three in his winning effort. He pitched 10 shutout innings in all.

Don Holway was almost as sharp on the opposing mound. He struck out two, walked two and allowed seven hits.

Holway helped himself three base hits to lead Stewart Warner at the plate. Chuck Rowbotham banged a pair of singles, while Rod Turner and Gary Gee had safeties.

Jack Francis slammed a home run and single for the losers. Ross Empey singled twice, and Ken Lovsck had a base hit.

Departmental Softball

Sparked by Bob Lloyd's heavy hitting, the Fire Department walloped Public Works 12-3 in Departmental Softball League play last night.

The clubs were tied for third place before the game and the fire department scored City Hall with eight points each.

Lloyd hit a home run and three singles to pace the Fire Department. Grand Parks contributed two hits and Reid pitched good ball to earn the victory.

Jim Sweet had a homer run and Jud Semark got two hits for Public Works but errors kept the club in trouble. "Pug" Kidar pitched the loss with Moe Huddleston taking over in the last inning.

Says Injury Was An Accident

CHICAGO (AP)—Third baseman Ron Santo of Chicago Cubs underwent surgery for a fractured left cheekbone Monday and urged that "the world be told that Jack didn't throw at me intentionally."

Santo, after hitting safely through his 25th game in the doubleheader opener with New York Mets Sunday, was hit in the face by a Jack Fisher pitch in the third inning.

Golfer Has "Troutie" Hole-in-One

JASPER, Alta. (CP)—Normally, Lyle Philpott's enthusiasm for fishing and golf is equalled only by his lack of success. He golfs in the low 200s and fishes in the high zeros.

But the 39-year-old Calgarian landed his first fish of the year Saturday on his Jasper Park Lodge golf course.

As he teed up his ball on the 10th hole, Philpott saw a trout leap out of the water in a pond a short distance down the fairway. He drove and the ball soared in a high arc into the water just short of the far side. Philpott and his partners went to retrieve the ball.

"When we got there, we saw this trout still struggling, near death," he said.

The 3½ - pound speckled trout was hauled out with a golf club, showing a round hole in its head.

Inspired, Philpott completed his round in 126 and won a trophy for "best achievement of the day, excluding fishing."

Wimbledon Tennis
Australian "King" Loses Crown

By GEOFFREY MILLER

LONDON (AP) — Wimbledon's tennis King is dethroned.

Roy Emerson, the wiry Australian who has won the Wimbledon title for two years running, was eliminated Monday by fellow-countryman Owen Davidson.

Emerson took a tumble during the opening set of his quarter-final against Davidson and strained a ligament in his left shoulder. The partly crippled champion went out 1-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Three players now have the chance to break the Australian domination of Wimbledon—Dennis Ralston of the United States, Manuel Santana and South Africa's Cliff Drysdale.

Ralston plays Drysdale or Tony Roche, another Australian, in the semi-finals. Santana has to play Ken Fletcher of Australia in the quarter-finals and the winner will take on Davidson in the other semi-final.

Ralston played his best tennis of the tournament Monday, crushing Bob Hewitt of Australia 7-5, 6-2, 11-9 in the quarter-finals.

In last year's tournament, Ralston was eliminated by Emerson in the semi-finals.

The last American to win the Wimbledon title was Chuck McKinley in 1963. Otherwise, the Australians have an unbroken run of victories since 1959.

Today the two outstanding quarter-finals were scheduled—Santana vs. Fletcher and Drysdale vs. Roche.

The women's quarter - finals also were scheduled for today. They lined up like this:

Margaret Smith, Australia, vs. Trudy Groenman, Netherlands; Billie Jean Moffit King, Long Beach, Calif., vs. Annette Van Zyl, South Africa; Nancy Richey, Dallas, Tex., vs. Mrs. Ann Jones, Britain; and Maria Bueno, Brazil, vs. Francoise Durr, France.

Lunch With Batman Costs Dina Burke's Dad a Grand

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What happens when an eight-year-old girl has lunch with Batman? The results can be unpredictable when the girl is Dina Burke.

Dina (pronounced Deen) is the daughter of Paula Burke, the star of television series 12 O'Clock High. The lunch had its inception when the actor and his wife were attending the recent SHARE benefit, at which an auction is held to raise funds for disturbed children.

Amid the fur coats and jewelry, auctioneer Dean Martin offered up another item: "What am I bid for Batman?"

"I thought I had just been asked to donate a cape or something like that," cries fighter Adam West explained. "But I guess Martin had an idea of his own and he offered me up for auction.

"I didn't quite realize what was going on until I visited the Burkes' table afterward. I noticed they were kind of looking me over; I felt as if I were a slave block. I found out later that they had bought me."

PRICE WAS $1,000

Indeed Burke offered a $1,000 donation if Bateman would have lunch with his daughter. "Sold!" said Martin and West was committed.

The $1,000 lunch took place at a cafe opposite Pathe Studios, where Batman has begun filming its second season. At first Dina declined to sit next to West.

"I don't like you," she announced.

"Why not?"

"Because you never let the Penguin win," said Dina. She took a place next to West after he agreed to treat the Penguin (Burgess Meredith) more kindly.

Dina worked up to her luncheon partner, who has a way with kids, especially eight-year-old girls; he has one of his own. Dina admitted that her schoolmates had been excited about her lunch and asked her to bring back autographed photos for them.

While Dina sipped her drink, West told a reporter, "I've started the day wonderfully. Nearly all day and rehearsing into the night for my first big personal appearance at Shea stadium in New York.

"I'm getting close to $150,000 for the show and I want it to be good."

'Dark Shadows' New ABC Serial Not Soapy Opera

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Dark Shadows, ABC's new serial, moved into position Monday and while it takes more than one episode to really appreciate this type of program it has the mark of a welcome change from formula soap opera.

The costumes of the principals are contemporary. Our first glimpse of the heroine showed a pretty, young girl in a turtleneck sweater and a tessed hairdo. But the language and setting—dashing and implusty ball room and dark shadows — suggested the shutter-flapping, creaking-door novels of another generation.

All-time is deliberate since the series is billed as "a Gothic tale." It starts with the heroine, Victoria Winters, coming by train rushing through the night to Collinsport on the Maine coast. "My journey is a beginning . . ."

Then we cut to an enormous hilltop mansion where Jonathan Bennett gazes from a window, looking terribly sad and aristocratic. She is Carolyn Collingswood in Collinsport. There also is her brother, who has all the airs of a feudal one.

HIRED AS GOVERNESS

Victoria, it appears, has been hired to be her young son's governess.

The Collins clan is terribly rich and social. You gather this because they are arguing in a large drawing room with an enormous fireplace and accessorial portraits on the wall.

Some rather sudsy plot lines already are appearing, however. There's a grim, mysterious stranger who warns our heroine to keep away from the Collins family. And there's something funny about Victoria's background. She's foundling who was brought up in an orphanage. And the Collins grande dame—Miss Bennett —has been a recluse for more than 18 years.

The first show got pretty far away from the usual daytime soaps. It does, however, have a slight Peyton Place feel about it.

Jane Kean, once part of a popular nightclub act with her sister Betty, has been signed to play the TV wife of Art Carney in next season's 10 musical versions of The Honeymooners in Jackie Gleason's shows. The role originally was played by Joyce Randolph.

Hockey Pays Tribute

TORONTO (CP) — Hockey's Hall of Fame was represented at the funeral Monday of the man thought most deserving of enrolment, but who so far has been denied it.

Among those who paid final tribute to Ralph Harvey (Busher) Laughton, 83, were his former linemates on the famed Toronto Maple Leaf Kid Line of the 1920—Charlie Conacher and Joe Primeau.

Also there were Hap Day, Red Horner and King Clancy, all former Leafs who, with Conacher and Primeau, have been elevated to the Hall of Fame; Conn Smythe and Frankie Selke, who operated the Leafs during the son's career; Bobby Hewitson, Hall of Fame curator; Clarence Campbell, NHL president and League's president; and other former and present Leaf players.

Laughton died in hospital Saturday after a lengthy illness.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Noel Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B., rode five of the seven winners at Woodbine race track Monday, giving him a total of 16 for the meeting.

Two of the three horses ridden by the 24-year-old Turcotte were heavy favorites. They were Merry Arctic in the first race and Fortunatus in the third. The 2-5 shot Merry Arctic paid $42 in winning the second race.

Merry Arctic, owned by Viscount Hardinge, paid $4.60 in capturing the opening six-furlong dash and combined with Queencrest for a $146.70 daily double.

Fortunatus, a three-year-old son of Silver Ship; won his first race for Mrs. Clara Exeley. Fortunatus paid $3.30.

Wayne Harris, a 19-year-old from Vancouver, also had a good day in the saddle, winning the featured sixth abaord Doug Banks' Hinemoa and the final race with Bimini Bill. Harris has ridden 14 winners this season.

Robinson, McCovey Lead All-Star Infields

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Third baseman Brooks Robinson of Baltimore Orioles, top vote-getter with 307, and shortstop Dick McAuliffe of Detroit Tigers were the only repeaters on the two starting infields named today for the July 23 All-Star baseball game at St. Louis.

Robinson and McAuliffe were joined by rookie first baseman George Scott of Boston Red Sox and second baseman Bobby Knoop of California Angels on the American League infield.

Robinson got all but two votes of those eligible to pick him. The Orioles could not vote for their team-mates.

Willie McCovey, first baseman of San Francisco Giants, led the National League voting with 294. Joe Morgan, Houston second baseman, and Ron Santo, Chicago Cubs' third baseman, both were picked to the team are, is released at the same time.

Eckert's office will release the names of the starting outfielders Thursday and catchers Sunday. The pitching staffs and the rest of the 31-man squads will be named later.

Starters were selected by 2 vote of players, managers and coaches in each league.

The closest contest was between Knoop and Bobby Richardson of New York Mets and second baseman, for the National League infield.

Robinson was in a huddle and both Scott and McAuliffe had comfortable margins.

Santo beat Jim Ray Hart of San Francisco Giants in the third base competition in the National League, the closest contest. McCovey was a topsided winner over Bill White of Philadelphia, Cardenas had a slight edge on Manny Mota of Los Angeles and Morgan beat out Jim Lefebvre of the Dodgers 144-94.

Marlene Almost In With A 71

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Marlene Stewart Streit almost assured herself of a spot on Ontario's provincial golf team Monday as she shot a five-under-par 71 in qualifying round at the Toronto Golf Club.

The round was the third in a series of seven test matches to pick four places on Ontario's team. Mrs. Streit was 12 shots ahead of the nearest player after Monday's match.

Gail Harvey Moore of suburban Scarborough has one of the team spots because of her victory in the Canadian close championship last year.

The battle for the other spots is led by Mrs. Streit followed by Shirley Woodley of Thornhill, who shot an 84 Monday for a total of 15 points.

Moving into contention for the final place on the Ontario four-some are Sue Milligan of Toronto and Mrs. Edie Creed of Oakdale. Each shot 86 in the third test to earn two points.

Mrs. Milligan has eight points and Mrs. Creed six.

Leagues Discuss Merger

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — The American Hockey League has voted to discontinue its interlocking schedule with the Western Hockey League and has discussed plans for the two leagues to merge, it was reported Monday.

Jack Riley, AHL president, said the owners voted at the league's meeting in Hershey to continue the schedule. He said AHL teams did'nt earn much money at the gate when they played WHL teams at home.

Each league had set up committees to work out details of a merger and "the Western League is very receptive to the idea." Riley said the teams may merge by the 1967-68 season, or possibly before.

There are nine teams in the AHL and six, in the WHL. San Diego is expected to join the WHL, bringing its total to seven.

The leagues started their interlocking schedule last year.

O'Clay To Scrap In Erin

LONDON (AP) — Mike Barrett, a London fight promoter, said Monday that heavyweight champion Ernie Terrell has agreed in principle to defend his title in Dublin, Ireland, Aug. 6 for a guarantee of $250,000.

Barrett said no opponent has been named.

In Louisville, Ky., a spokesman for the group that sponsors Clay said negotiations have been going on with Barrett but no decision has been made.

"I offered Brian London the fight for $80,000 after he defeated Amos Johnson," Barrett said. "But he indicated that his manager had an option on his next two fights."

Barrett said he was now making offers to Americans Joe Spencer and Argentinian Eduardo Corfetti.

It was the second win for Breadner behind Louis G, owned by Lillian Connelly of Toronto.

Will Swap Golden Glove for Base Hits

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Tresh will gladly swap his Golden Glove for more base hits.

Tresh, 27, who won the American Baseball League's Golden Glove award as New York Yankees' left fielder last season, is beginning to feel at home at third base, his third position five years in the majors. But his batting average is keeping him restless.

They made a left fielder of me three years ago," the former shortstop said. "I'll took some time to adjust. But I came along last year. Now I think I can make the plays at third . . . but there's a fellow named Brooks Robinson is the best I have to forget about the Golden Glove."

Tresh also played third base briefly in the minors, only recently has began to deliver at the plate.

In the last 10 games, Tresh has ripped 13 hits in 37 swings, a .351 pace that has lifted his over-all average 25 points.

TWEED SCOUT TROOP

TWEED — Four members of the Tweed Boy Scout Troop, Richard Holmes, Brian Jones, Lorne Douglas and John Patterson received their Queen's Scouts' certificates at a special parents' night held in the Tweed-Hungerford High School gymnasium on Saturday.

A total of 54 special awards were presented to local scouts under the leadership of Mr. Keith Cotton. Former Scout Leaders Harold Miller of Toronto, W. Marsh of Cobourg and Raymond Holmes of Picton presented the awards.

Coming Scout activities will include a district church parade at the ball park in Madoc on June 19 and a father and son banquet at St. Carthagh's hall in Tweed on June 22.

Marmora

MARMORA — A downtown parking lot is being prepared in the vacant lot between the Plaza Theatre and the Embers restaurant. The vacancy was caused by a fire which destroyed a block of stores a few years ago.

25th WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

On the occasion of the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Bedore, R R 2, Marmora, Mass was said for their intentions by Rev. Father F. J. Spence in Sacred Heart Church on Tuesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Bedore were married in Winnipeg on June 14, 1941. A native of Winnipeg "Betty" was the former Elizabeth Gross, a daughter of Mr. A. D. Gross and the late Mrs. Gross. After their marriage, they came east on their honeymoon and settled on Ted's farm at R R 2, Marmora. He is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bedore. Besides farming, Ted also holds a position with Marmoraton Mining Co.

The couple have two children — their son, Kenneth, is a civil engineer in Vancouver. He and his wife, Jane, were unable to be present for the occasion. Suzanne, their daughter, is a receptionist with the Bell Telephone Company in Toronto.

Mrs. Bedore's sister, Mrs. Albert Gross, of Winnipeg, was present and will stay until Wednesday.

On Sunday afternoon "Open House" was held at the Bedore home. Highlight of the day was a telephone message from their son and daughter-in-law in Vancouver. A three-tier anniversary cake centred the dining room table, and pouring tea for guests were Mrs. Charles Brady, Marmora, and Mrs. Gross. Mrs. Leo Doyle assisted with refreshments and serving were Misses Lillian O'Connor, Beverly Bedore and Kathie Bronson.

HOME AND SCHOOL EXECUTIVE MEETING

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Vilneff were hosts at their riverside home on Wednesday evening to the Home and School executive of Marmora Public Schools. Teachers of the two schools were present. Games and boat rides were enjoyed, after which Mrs. B. Bell called the meeting to order. She presented a gift to Mr. Barry Turpin and Mrs. Robert Sandercop made a presentation to Miss Sharon McCormick. Both are retiring from the Marmora staff at the end of June.

The executive held its annual business meeting with election of officers. They are: president, Mrs. Murray Walker; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Tom Neal; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. John Jowett; secretary, Mrs. Grant Aikhart; treasurer, Mrs. Gordon McCormick; ways and means, Mrs. Franklin Smith; publicity, Mrs. Richard Kotelski; membership, Mrs. Clinton Nickle; social, Mrs. Clarence McKay.

Arrangements were made for the school picnic and the graduation banquet to be held in June.

British Seamen Call Off Strike

ACCUSED OF PROLONGING STRIKE — Bert Ramelson, British Communist Party industrial organizer, was accused by Prime Minister Harold Wilson Tuesday of being the central figure in an operation to prolong the seven-week British seamen's strike. (AP Wirephoto by cable from London)

LONDON (AP) — Britain's 47-day seamen's strike was settled today.

The executive of the National Seamen's Union voted 29 to 18 to call off the strike after meeting all morning at their south London headquarters.

The decision followed by less than 24 hours a charge in the House of Commons by Prime Minister Wilson that Communists were pressuring the seamen to prolong the dispute for political motives.

The vote of the union leadership indicated that a hard core of militants were still holding out for better terms but had been beaten down by the moderate element.

When the end of the strike was announced, there were noisy demonstrations outside union headquarters.

"The initial reaction in shipping circles is one of relief," said a spokesman for the shipping federation.

The seamen went on strike for a 40-hour week.

ACCEPT FINAL OFFER

The shipowners' final offer of a cut in the working week to 40 hours—with 40 hours promised next year—was accepted along with 48 days annual vacation, four fewer days than the seamen now receive.

A spokesman for the union said the executive did not discuss Wilson's charges, although it must have been in the background.

"The whole discussion has been based on the present situation and the industrial dispute, together with the final offer," the union spokesman said.

The strike - ending resolution contained a formula for "redjourn strike action" for a year pending the report of a government court of inquiry into working conditions at sea.

The union, in calling the strike, had demanded an immediate 40-hour week. Working 56 hours, seamen average $42 a week.

The strike has tied up nearly 900 ships in British ports and 27,000 men have been idle.

The resolution said the executive had decided to accept the ship owners' latest offer "being aware of the great hardship caused to the citizens of the United Kingdom."

Wilson's charges in the House of Commons captured the attention of his parliamentary colleagues, the press and public.

The man named Ulrakhan Ramelson, Canadian-educated Bert Ramelson, is a British industrial organizer of the Communist party, the key man in the Communist pressure operation on the union executive.

The only mildly surprising names were those of two members of the seamen's union executive, who Wilson said were not Communists but were influenced by Communists and dominated the executive. They are Joe Kenny, 35, of Liverpool and Jim Slater, 48, of South Shore.

John Golan, Communist party secretary, called the prime minister's charges Red - baiting propaganda of the most shoddy kind.

Retired Army Chief Chosen New President of Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—Lt.-Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania is to be sworn in today as president of Argentina with sweeping power to govern the country as he and his military colleagues see fit.

His inauguration follows Tuesday's overthrow by a bloodless military coup of elected President Arturo, Illia's 32-month-old administration.

After taking the oath of office at Government House in central Buenos Aires, the 52-year-old Ongania—a tough anti-Communist and anti-Peronist—was expected to proclaim a "revolutionary statute" granting him and his new regime full government powers.

He was expected to replace the constitution used by Illia.

Observers believed Ongania also would adopt a tough stand against the rise of support for ousted dictator Juan Peron.

The coup leaders headed by Gen. Pascual Pistarini, commander-in-chief of the army, stripped the Supreme Court judges of their authority, disbanded political parties and dissolved congress Tuesday. This opened the way to a situation that could be similar to that in Brazil where President Humberto Castelo Branco gave himself sweeping powers.

Ongania, who in the past said he did not want to be president, stayed behind the scenes Tuesday as his friend and successor at the top army job, Pistarini, smoothly toppled Illia's regime.

In the capital, life continued normally with all stores, offices and banks doing business as usual. In cafes, the talk was of the coup. There were no reports of any arrests.

So far the only overt opposition to the new regime has been from Buenos Aires University, alleged by the military to be a leading Communist centre.

Asks Hosts Act to Curb Asian War

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin and Dmitri Polyansky of the Soviet Union's hierarchy clashed at a government dinner Tuesday night when the Soviet official launched a bitter attack against United States actions in Viet Nam.

Mr. Polyansky, first deputy chairman of the Soviet council of ministers, said in his attack that Canada and other nations should halt U.S. "interference" in the Southeast Asian country.

Mr. Martin, who earlier paid compliments to Mr. Polyansky and the Soviet Union, was angered by the speech which contrasted sharply with the general atmosphere of goodwill marking the dinner hour.

Mr. Polyansky, head of an 11-man delegation touring agricultural and other establishments here, said the U.S. had entered a "house that did not belong to it" thousands of miles from Washington and is destroying Vietnamese towns and villages, roads and bridges and industrial projects, poisoning the crops and burning forests. . . .

Not a single Vietnamese bomb has fallen on U.S. territory or killed or maimed an American man, woman or child," he said.

Session May Run Into July

OTTAWA (CP)— A weary Commons that was looking forward to a summer recess beginning Thursday night now finds itself facing a New Democratic Party filibuster that could carry the session deep into July.

Stanley Knowles, NDP House leader, announced Tuesday night the party plans a last-ditch battle to have the $28 monthly old age pension increased by $25 and given to all aged 65 or over, with no conditions.

The announcement came during second reading of Canada Assistance Plan legislation. Mr. Knowles (Winnipeg North Centre) moved an amendment to provide $100 monthly old age pension.

The NDP, with Creditiste and Social Credit help, then blocked a Liberal move to have the House sit an hour later than usual.

Committee Chairman Herman M. Batten planned to rule on the amendment today. Government spokesmen said it was blatantly out of order.

Mr. Knowles said even if the amendment is thrown out, the party will battle "as an increased pension during second reading of the bill. With 21 members, the party could extend debate well into next week.

Yet to come is a resolution on medical care plus clean-up of several other bills the govern-

Auto Critic Nader Assails Pipelines

Hospital Grant Hike Requested

OTTAWA (CP)—The pressure is being turned on for a second time this year to have the federal and provincial governments increase their grants for hospital construction to provide funds for higher construction costs.

Members of Parliament have been receiving requests from such organizations as the Ontario Hospital Association to turn the heat on Health Minister MacEachen.

"One result may have been a complaint Thursday in the Commons health and welfare committee by Marvin Howe (PC—Wellington-Dufferin) that current federal grants of $2,000-a-bed are unrealistic.

Mr. Howe asked whether the federal government has ever considered proposing "percentage - of - construction cost" formula.

Dr. J. N. Crawford, federal deputy health minister, said some consideration has been given to the idea. The most popular suggestion had been that federal, provincial and municipal governments share equally.

Dr. Lewis Brand (PC—Saskatoon) asked whether an increase is planned in line with rising construction costs and, if not, why not.

Dr. Crawford said the question was a matter of policy and WASHINGTON (AP) — Auto critic Ralph Nader has set out on a new crusade: To call attention to the "hazard" he claims is posed by the 360,000 miles of gasoline, oil and natural gas pipelines in the U.S.

"The construction, inspection and maintenance of pipelines is too often a zero sum game between costs and safety," Nader said Tuesday as he accused the industry of taking inadequate measures to guard against explosions.

And government watchdogs over pipeline safety "is shockingly small," he added.

"Population expansion increases risk exposure in what were formerly rural areas with the lowest pipeline safety standards," he told the Washington chapter of the American Society of safety Engineers.

Nader's persistent criticism of auto safety standards was instrumental in congressional investigation of the industry and proposed legislation to set federal standards.

By "the admission" of the natural gas industry itself, the author said, there has been one natural gas pipeline failure on the average of every five days since 1950.

And yet 34 states have no safety codes for natural gas pipelines and of the 26 that do, only California has drafted regulations in mandatory language."

The 25 others, he said "are faithful" to the industry "format of recommending, not mandating."

Nader cited "a tragic forerunner of what may be expected if rigorous corrective action and upgrading of existing standards are not undertaken."

Ont. Govt. Under Attack Over Subsidies for Milk

TORONTO (CP) — Farquhar, Oliver (L—Grey Bruce), who farms for a living, told the agriculture Tuesday that farmers in Ontario are disgusted and full of despair with the Conservative government's policy on milk subsidies.

In other legislature business:

—Donald C. MacDonald, leader of the New Democratic Party, said the government should make sure the farmers receive a fair share of benefits of an expanding economy.

—Keith Minister Matthew Dymond said a bill introduced in the house May 31 is intended to improve standards of ambulance services, not to provide free service.

—The Ontario transport department reported to the house in a statement that Canadian new travelling abroad now can obtain international driving permits for $45 fee.

—Mr. Dymond said the government has spent $700,000 to publicize its voluntary Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan. It goes into effect Friday.

Mr. Oliver said the government doesn't have a leg to stand on when it says it should not subsidize milk transportation costs.

He said if there is a proven need for a subsidy the government is bound to provide it "no matter what the justice shall be done."

The Ontario Farmers' Union has asked the provincial government to pay a subsidy on manufacturing milk so the farmer will receive $4 a hundredweight.

Agriculture Minister Wilbur A. Stewart contends the responsibility for such a subsidy rests with the federal government.

The basic price for 3.5 butterfat content milk is set at $3.25 and the federal government is paying 75 cents a hundredweight.

Mr. Oliver said there is nothing new about the paying of subsidies for farm products in Ontario.

Milk Prices Going Up On Monday

The result of higher milk prices to be paid to producers supplying the fluid milk market, the retail price of milk in the Belleville area will go up three cents on Monday.

A local dairy spokesman said the increase would up the delivered price of milk to 29 cents per quart which, he said, would be in line with the price at Peterborough and Kingston.

As of July 1st, local dairymen have been directed by the Ontario Milk Marketing Board to pay suppliers $5.75 per cwt. for milk. This is an increase of 46 cents from $5.29 per cwt.

Planes Bomb Oil Depots Near Cities

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Navy planes bombed North Viet Nam's major fuel depot in the dock areas of Haiphong today while air force planes attacked another large fuel storage area on the outskirts of Hanoi, a U.S. military spokesman announced.

It was the closest American penetration to date to North Viet Nam's two major cities.

In Washington Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara said the raids were intended to make North Viet Nam's infiltration of the south "more costly."

In London Prime Minister Wilson expressed regret over the bombings. He said Britain is unable to support the action.

Doctors' Views On Drugs Dismay Some MP's

OTTAWA (CP)—Doctors and layman participating in the Commons drug prices inquiry have expressed varying degrees of criticism or dismay about the stand of organized medicine on the question of drug prices.

"You've shaken my faith in doctors," said Joseph O'Keefe (L—St. John's East) at one point during the appearance Tuesday of doctors representing the Canadian Medical Association.

"I feel your brief is not just anemic, it's naive," commented Reid Scott (NDP—Toronto-Dan-forth) to another.

Mr. O'Keefe's comment seemed to draw a statement by Dr. Ramsay Gunton, chairman of the CMA's pharmacy committee and professor of therapeutics at the University of Toronto, that direct-mail advertising by drug manufacturers might pressure doctors into prescribing drugs that should not properly be prescribed.

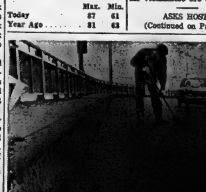
When challenged on the point by Mr. O'Keefe, Dr. Gunton replied that doctors are "human like anyone else" and some fall victims to drug manufacturers pressure campaigns.

Dr. Fred Fallis, a Toronto general practitioner and a member of the CMA, said he thought Dr. Gunton meant that a doctor's mind may be made up on the basis of "lightly-considered" material.

"Perhaps it (mailed material) makes us lazy and perhaps we are taken in by the slickness."

Both CMA representatives agreed that direct mail advertising by the drug manufacturers is objectionable. Dr. Gunton said he believes it adds to drug costs. Dr. Fallis said the profession is fed up with it although there is less of it now than a few years ago.

Scott's criticism of the CMA's brief as naive stemmed from a recommendation that the drug manufacturers exercise voluntary price restraint to help cut drug costs.



Dr. Gunton called the proposal a "plea" and Mr. Scott commented that all this amounted to was asking the drug manufacturers to be "nice fellows."

Mr. Scott also tangled with Drs. Gunton and Fallis about "detail men" who are salesmen sent by drug manufacturers to doctors and druggists to convince them of the merits of the manufacturers' brand of drugs. Mr. Scott called them "pushers for the drug companies."

Dr. Gunton disagreed, saying they perform a useful service in his opinion although others in the profession differ. If detail men were removed the doctor's access to one channel of information also was removed.

Mr. Scott asked why Dr. Gunton would oppose a Crown corporation in the drug-manufacturing field. Dr. Gunton said it would remove the private enterprise initiative which now is responsible for nearly all new drug discoveries.

"I suggest you look at the minimal amounts the manufacturers spend in Canada on research," retorted Mr. Scott. "They tried to hamboozle us with the same arguments last week."

OPP and City Police Will Increase Patrols To Keep Roads Safe

In a concentrated effort to keep holiday accidents at a minimum this weekend, Belleville O.P.P. and City Police will intensify patrols on highways and city streets.

O.P.P. officials have cancelled all leaves for them in this district. In a prepared statement, O.P.P. said, "all available police personnel and equipment will be on constant patrol of our highways for the protection and safety of our holiday-bound motorists."

City police will not cancel leaves, but all patrols will be intensified and schedules rearranged to coincide with the extra holiday traffic.

The O.P.P. statement showed that driver actions reported in fatal accidents show that inattentive driving is the largest contributor, followed by speed too fast for road and traffic conditions.

"We ask the motoring public to assist the police by co-operating, using common courtesy and obeying traffic laws.

"The only way we can have an accident free holiday is by assisting one another. Help us to help you."

Radio Program Compares Two Capitals

The national days of Canada and the United States are marked by two special programs on CJBQ Radio's Trans-Canada Matinee, Recorded in Ottawa and Washington, D.C., the programs aim to show the differences — and similarities — between the two capitals; their national and international flavor; the political and non-political scene.

The program on Ottawa, broadcast on the CBC radio network on Friday, July 1 at 2:03 p.m. marks Dominion Day. The program on Washington Monday, July 4, at 2:03 p.m., marks Independence Day in the U.S.

Both programs are written and narrated by Ed Reid, Ottawa broadcaster, who has produced and directed films for the CBC and the National Film Board.

These Trans-Canada Matinee "specials" wind up the current season. Matinee returns to CJBQ and CBC radio network on September 3). They illustrate how the two cities look to the casual visitor; to the people who work there; to the long-time resident.

The portion of road so designated lies between Concessions 2 and 3, from Hastings County Road No. 7, easterly to the road between Lots 20 and 21.

All Officials Except One Are Exonerated

KINGSTON (CP)—A judicial inquiry into the escape of four Collins Bay penitentiary prisoners, three of whom kidnapped a Scarborough, Ont., woman, has exonerated all penitentiary officials except directional officer C. A. McCrea.

The report, by county court Judge H. R. Deyman of Peterborough, says Mr. McCrea should have made further investigations into the behavior of prisoner Jack David Eaton, 25, prior to the Feb. 9 escape.

Red Shield Appeal Passes Objective

The announcement today that the Salvation Army Red Shield Appeal has surpassed its objective of $10,400 in the city, comes just one day before the departure of Brigadier and Mrs. Bernard Bernat, local corps officers for the past six years. While it is nothing new for the Red Shield Appeal to be successful, it should give the Bernats a measure of satisfaction to know the target has been reached and pushed over the top, as they prepare to head for a new appointment in Sydney, Cape Breton Island.

This year, the drive for funds has topped the mark in a reported record time. The appeal opened the first week in May and, strictly, the official figure stands at $10,800, with contributions still coming in.

More than 200 volunteer workers have been active in the door - to - door canvass. Campaign chairman is Colonel James Dully and his leadership has been a major factor in the success of the appeal, says Brigadier Bernat.

O.F.U. to Hold Meet to Plan Future Action

MARYSVILLE — So far this week farmers in the Marysville area have not been riding their tractors on the highway in order to register their protest against farm conditions. Instead, they are riding them in the hay fields, trying to make up the time they lost last week.

"But the farmers are only biding their time," Bernard Murphy warns. Mr. Murphy is the Hastings County director of the Ontario Farmers' Union. "We are meeting in the Tyendinaga Township Hall Wednesday night to talk things over and decide on the next step," he says. "A lot will depend on that meeting as far as local action is concerned."

The demand for $4 milk at the farm is only a small part of the farmers' demands," Mr. Murphy states, "but it is the one on which the demonstrators are concentrating now."

"The problem is much bigger than that. The basic question is, 'Can the family farm survive?' We think it can if the farmer is given a fair chance," he asserted.

"This is a big thing and may not be settled by a huffy," Mr. Murphy believes. "It has been a long time building up and so far farmers have done little except talk. The tractor parades have at least drawn attention to the fact that something is wrong."

Key to Pollution Problem Adequate Treatment Facilities Robarts Tells Mayors, Reeves

SARNIA (CP)—Premier Robarts told the executive of Ontario Mayors and Reeves Tuesday that industry in the province has recognized its responsibility for pollution control.

"Our ultimate objective," he said, "is virtually the complete control of industrial pollution, a very substantial proportion of which will be achieved within the next few years."

He told more than 700 delegates attending the association's annual meeting that the key to Ontario's pollution problem is the construction of adequate treatment facilities.

"In the past 10 years, water supply and sewage treatment works valued at more than $1,000,000,000 have been constructed or are under active development in the province."

The premier said the Ontario Water Resources Commission has increased surveillance of pollution sources and industry has spent more than $10,000,000 on pollution control in the last few years.

Earlier, delegates adopted a report calling for regional government and asked in a general policy statement that the province enact legislation that would allow municipalities to enter into a regional administration.

The province was also requested to adopt taxation and subsidy policies to encourage support regional government. The report said regional government cannot continue to exist in its present form and stiff meet the growing needs of communities.

"It should not be assumed that county government will automatically become the basis for regional government," the report said. "Some counties may be too large, or too small, or otherwise inappropriate."

In other business, delegates voted against amalgamation with the Ontario Municipal Association despite approval of the move by a committee appointed to study possibilities of the merger.

Possible loss of autonomy by elected officials to appointed officials on an amalgamated executive appeared to be the main barrier to acceptance of the union.

In its report on a year-long study, the committee said the merger would provide municipal government with a united voice, allow for the expansion of research facilities and permit the opening of a permanent office to screen pending provincial legislation affecting municipalities.

Mayor W. S. Powell of Peterborough, speaking against the amalgamation, said policy should be expressed by elected officials only.

"A very great deal more can be done to consolidate our position but can anyone tell me why we have to call in our hired people to achieve this?" he asked.

Meeting earlier on resolutions committee, delegates approved a motion requesting government action that would require motorcycle and motorbike riders to wear crash helmets.

The association also decided to bring in a resolution today that would remove the requirement that lotteries and raffles be associated with a bazaar to be legal.

Several delegates told of ruined fund-raising projects because of convictions under the present requirement.

Other resolutions approved came from:

—Kenora, asking provincial help with engineering and research plans involved in construction of sewage plants.

—Port Arthur, asking for legislation to permit municipalities to recover part of the cost of damages caused by juveniles.

—Espanola, asking for a federal-provincial study of escalating consumer prices.

Busy Day In Police Court For Magistrate

Magistrate T. Y. Wills had a busy day in city magistrate's court yesterday.

Gerry Angelatos, 40, proprietor of Gerry's Steak House, 13 Victoria Ave., appeared in court on a charges of keeping liquor for sale.

Angelatos' was arrested Apr. 28 during a police raid at his restaurant.

Evidence was presented yesterday, and the case was enlarged until July 16 for argument from defence counsel Louis Marakas and acting Crown Attorney John Lennox.

Gerald W. Carlyle, 46, of 275 E. Moira St., was given 10 days in jail by Magistrate Wills when he was found guilty of drunk driving.

Police testified that Carlyle was involved in an accident at 5.36 p.m. June 25 on Dundas St. E. near Ann St. He was driving west on the north side of Dundas, when he struck an eastbound car driven by Robert Earl Lloyd of Bellville. There was $420 damage to his car and $250 to Lloyd's.

Edward J. Leanor, 36, of 281 Ann St., was jailed for seven days for driving while his licence was under suspension and fined $30 and costs for failing to report an accident.

He pleaded guilty to both charges.

Police testified that on May 30 at 7:25 p.m., Leanor drove east on Victoria and turned north on Ann St., striking a parked car as he did so. He left the scene and was later apprehended at his home.

REMANDED FOR SENTENCE

Brian Henry, 19, of Napanee, was remanded until July 5 for sentencing when he was found guilty yesterday on a charge of car theft.

Police testified that on June 4, Henry stole a car belonging to Donald Forbes of Bellville at about 4 p.m. At 10:30 p.m. the car was found near Shannonville. It had been involved in an accident and was a complete write-off.

Henry was arrested June 28 following a police investigation into the matter.

Cecil Emerson Stone, 33, of Consecon, appeared in court yesterday on a charge of breaking, entering and theft and was remanded one week for trial time for him to secure counsel.

Police allege that Stone broke into the supply shed at the new hospital project and made off with a quantity of copper pipe valued at $300. Some was later located at 12:15 a.m. Sunday.

—William James Campbell, 27, of 175 Pine St., was fined $20 and costs on a charge of fraud and given a one-year suspended sentence for writing bad cheques.

Campbell first appeared in court June14 along with Bob Wayne Britton, 30, and Clifford Henry LaRue, 30, on charges arising out on an incident June 4 in the Hilltop Restaurant in Trenton. Britton and LaRue were both fined at that time, but Campbell was ordered to appear yesterday to allow time for his father to witness the proceedings.

MAY SERVE DRINKS

Three Persian Kittens Prefer Water to Land

You can't blame this story about cats that go swimming on the current heat wave.

As a matter of fact the mother Twinkies and her two offsprings have been regular bathers in the Bay of Quinte for five years now.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Collier of R.R. 2, Picton keep three pure white Persians as pets. Two of them are odd-eyed considered an oddity by feline standards. All of them, however, prefer cats to dogs and outdoors for exercise and play. Genetic imbalance may be the reason they prefer to swim every chance they get is even more abnormal according to Belleville veterinarian Dr. F. G. Rogers.

Whenever the Colliers miss one or all of their pets they've learned by start searching at the cove behind the house. Usually they find the three of them romping at the water's edge. Most of the time they surprise them while they're wading and splashing offshore, Mrs. Collier revealed. "They appeared to have no fear of water from the start, she explained, so we encouraged rather than discouraged them taking to their unnatural environment."

Since the hot spell set in the Colliers and their cats seek relief in the cool Quinte ooze and sometimes twice a day. "They'll swim to shore and then stand around on the beach and wait to be carried out again when it's deep, Mrs. Collier said. This goes on until we leave the water."

Some 15 per cent of the cat population is pure white. The majority in this category have odd coloured eyes — one blue and the other green in most cases. The percentage of them born deaf is high compared to the non-white species.

Trenton Ties Work Projects To Observance of Centennial

TRENTON — Trenton is reported to be ahead of many other eastern Ontario centres in its plans to celebrate centennial years, with several groups having come forward with scheduled events for 1967.

The town itself is stepping up its program to celebrate Canada's 100th birthday and is typing in a number of public works projects.

Tenders have been called for the installation of a 24-inch sanitary sewer from Middle Street to the immediate area east of the western approach to the new bridge, (scheduled for completion by mid-1967) and to north of this section to Bondhead Street. Tenders for the job are to be in by July 11. The John Gaffney Company, responsible for bridge construction, will do the installation of sewer in this area.

Trenton's official centennial project is the development of Phase One of the waterfront park, south of the community gardens area. Workmen are grading the parking area, immediately south of the arena, preparing for curb installation here. Tenders for curbs will be called next week. It is planned to make landscaped "islands" between the rows of parking space.

Meanwhile, workmen have completed curb construction on Dufferin Ave. from King Street to Spring Street, and are now putting in curbs on Lorne Ave., between King and Spring. Drainage problems have been solved here and the town plans to extend the asphalt surface of the road five feet on either side to the new curbs.

The McFarland Company was in town this week, completing asphalt priming of many of the town streets. This is a semi-permanent surface and should cope with the wet problem. Surveying and road work for 62 lots in the land assembly area, between Reid Street and Sidney Street, and north of the V. P. Carswell School, has been completed. The lots should soon be put up for sale.

Nothing But Trouble

Newspaper headlines and stories reflect the somewhat tempestuous state of world affairs obtaining at this time.

We do not imagine things will ever be as depicted in a cartoon a few years ago. Shown was the front page of a newspaper with such headlines as "United States and Russia settle differences" (along with a picture of a beaming President Kennedy shaking hands with Premier Khrushchev) and "South Africa ends Apartheid." At the bottom of the page was the headline, "Cartoonist Shoots Self . . . Out of Ideas."

However as every cartoonist, news analyst or editorial writer knows, there is always something worthy of their attention. There is never any need to go and jump in the lake for lack of ideas.

In some parts of the world things never seem to settle down. Before independence the former Belgian Congo was a peaceful, relatively prosperous region in the heart of Africa. Then came independence (in 1960) and chaos resulted.

The United Nations intervened and subsequently the mineral-rich province of Katanga seceded. The latter development precipitated a long period of internal unrest, and hostilities continued on and off until Katanga eventually returned to central government control.

Current leader of the Congo government is (General Mobuto, a former sergeant in the Belgian-led colonial forces and one of the few to have survived six years of military and political feuding.

Mobuto, while keeping a firm hand on affairs, has been a moderating influence responsible leader, one who is respected by the diplomatic community in the Congo.

Thus it is surprising to learn that there is renewed unrest among Belgian nationals who returned to the country following settlement of the Katanga issue, and that their disquiet stems from an anti-Belgian press and radio campaign by Mobuto. Another exodus of Europeans is reported under way.

From the Congo to the British Isles, where perennial Irish differences have led once again to bloodshed after several years of relative peace and quiet. In recent months there have been incidents between Protestant and Catholic elements in Northern Ireland, but hitherto nothing really serious.

Now three young men, believed to be Roman Catholics, have been reported shot in a Protestant district of Belfast. This is the sort of killing that sparked the terrible civil war at the time the country was partitioned, and subsequent outbreaks over the years.

For the whole sorry business to break out again is nothing short of tragic. It could mean trouble during the July 12 Orange Order celebrations, not to mention next week's scheduled visit to Ulster of the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh. The Queen always seems fated to find herself visiting Ireland wracked by political feuds from one corner of the Commonwealth to another, from Ghana and Quebec to Ulster.

Neville Chamberlain spoke of "Peace in Our Time," when he returned from Munich and talks with Hitler in 1938. Since then, unfortunately, it has been nothing but war or rumors of war, and this seems to be the natural condition of the world.

Rail Mishap

Railroad accidents happily are few. Thus it is all the more distressing that four Belleville men should have been hurt — one of them fatally — in Sunday's collision between two freight trains near Oshawa.

Brakeman Jerry Moher lost his life and three others suffered various injuries, as did a fifth man from Stirling. However, only J. R. Histed, of Elmwood Drive, who suffered a broken leg, was detained in hospital.

The cause of the accident has not been revealed, but we may be sure a thorough investigation will be made. Rail travel is one of the safest modes of transportation, but errors can occur. For this reason it is important to guard against a repetition of the Oshawa accident.

Isn't It Awful . . .!

A common expression in these parts is, "Isn't it awful . . .!" The saying covers a multitude of situations, from the state of the weather to idle gossip around the office or neighborhood.

As often as not, the exclamation that usually sparks the comment is pure utilitarian talk, in which case the expression is of particular significance.

However we had to agree with the remark overheard at Consecon's North Bay on Sunday. There were those two young fishermen and they had come from the water and were picking their way across the parking lot. Now the parking lot at North Bay is a cross between Macbeth's "blasted heath" and a wartime assault course.

Independent suspensions or not, this boulder-strewn wasteland offers a bumpy ride. And this, after a dust-laden trip on the approach road flanking the beach.

As the girl said to her companion, "Isn't it awful . . .!"

Heart Attacks in Dogs Seem Not Painful

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Readers who are interested in the heart — and aren't we all — may be intrigued, as I was, with some experiments by Dr. John Chenoweth and others at Harvard University.

A heart attack, or coronary occlusion, means that flow of blood to the heart muscle (or to part of it, rather) has been shut off by a clot or by a fatty deposit.

Once the patient has passed the immediate crisis, increased blood flow develops in the collateral or smaller arteries, compensating for the lost blood flow. There is, to be sure, some permanent damage to the heart muscle. There is necrosis, or destruction, of the part which has been deprived of circulation and thus of oxygen.

But the development of collateral circulation lets the heart return to reasonably efficient action, and three out of four heart attack patients, after sufficient rest and recuperation, return to their jobs.

The experiments at Harvard have been with dogs. A ringshaped balloon is placed around the coronary (heart) artery of an animal. By blowing up the balloon, pressure is put on the artery so it nearly as it would be by a clot lodging inside. This is an artificial heart attack.

A dog's heart has a large network of collateral blood vessels and the researchers found that these smaller blood vessels go into vigorous action within seconds after flow is shut off. The main flow has been well blocked for as long as 60 seconds, but afterward, when the ring-shaped balloon is deflated and blood flow resumes, there is no detectable damage to the heart.

* * *

One of the curious aspects is that the dogs are very docile about the experiments. After they become familiar with the laboratory, they return for fur-changing.

Billy Graham Versus London

MARTIN DEWEY in The Ottawa Journal

A month-long confrontation between the world's most sophisticated evangelist can't help being an exciting event — even, if you will, an electrifying one.

And so it has proved for the first half of Billy Graham's return bout against the forces of evil in the six-day city of London.

Throughout June, the American evangelist plans to lambaste the London capital's spiritual state. It pulpit in the 20,000-seat exhibition hall at Earl's Court (a suburb of London) which he is to way of being somewhat of a sitcentre in its own right).

And for a short time period, judging on present form, the nation's capital plans to give as good as it gets.

London's more telling counterswipes are being aimed at the glittering figure of Mr. Graham from editorial pulpits about Fleet Street where city editors have been letting their hair down sceptical and bloody-minded reporters on the American evangelist and where tongue-in-cheek has become preferred style for reporting his nightly doings at Earl's Court.

For Mr. Graham, of course, the characterization of the sceptical are a familiar occupational hazard.

But one gathers that there is something particularly sinister in

Ottawa Conscious of Status

Ottawa Journal

After 109 years Ottawa has to be watchful of her status as capital.

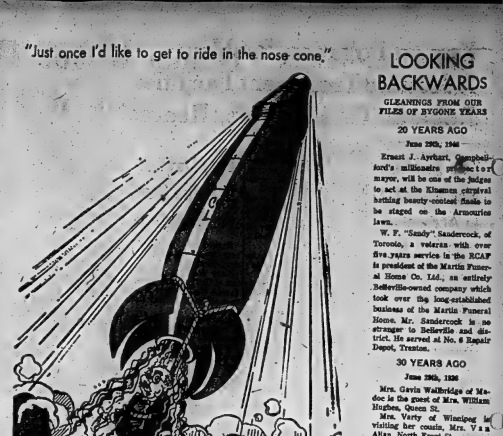
Every minister on taking office might well be given, writ in letters of gold, that section of the British North America Act which states:

"Until the Queen otherwise directs the Seat of Government of Canada shall be Ottawa."

If public men kept that in mind they would be less tolerant of suggestions about moving agencies of Government out of Ottawa. The National Film Board was allowed to go to Montreal and now the Forster Commission on Broadcasting says CBC headquarters should be in Montreal, not "remote" Ottawa.

In the old concept of departments and agencies being convenient to Parliament for the quick and official dispatch of public business to be abandoned?

The lack of concern with Ottawa's rights was displayed in the Waverley Road extension. Fleet Street's challenge.



As he himself has put it, hammering on fundamentals through more intelligent, sophisticated, sharper and far more cynical." Canadian than it is in Graham and thinking about the British press has said this, and can't help feeling that if by doing so it names he would single out as Devil's Disciple perhaps — that (usually) most liberal and tolerant of British newspapers, The Guardian.

The first Guardian article on the Graham London campaign appeared under a large picture in which the evangelist was seen with Princess Margaret. Nuts in one hand and extending the other in a gesture which suggested that he was about to present her to be throttled physically.

The Morgan: "Some prophets have travelled to Nineveh and others have been moved on their own by Mrs. Thatcher, returned to London yesterday in a suite aboard the Queen Mary and two hundred cartons of cigarettes on the 11.15 from Southampton."

The writer's tongue almost pierced his cheek as he said of Mr. Graham — now merely Billy—that his "deepest concern was for the soul and decay that he knew to be lurking around the corner."

"Just once I'd like to get to ride in the nose cone."

More on the Oscar Awards

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Quite a few indignant letters have arrived from children of all ages (mostly in their 60's, I suspect), who resent my recent column on "The Sound of Music" winning an Oscar as the best film of the year.

Most of these wrathful folk want to know why I've opposed "so good clean wholesome family entertainment," and ask challengingly whether I would prefer to have seen the award given to a film that featured depravity and disillusionment.

In the first place, I'm not opposed to good clean wholesome family entertainment. The film my whole family enjoyed the most this year was "Those Magnificent Men in Their Flying Machines," and I haven't a word to say against it — except that it didn't deserve an Oscar award.

What disqualified "The Sound of Music" in my eyes (and ears) was its cheap and obvious effort to combine a pleasant and sugar-coated musical with a Message. What I found offensive was not the loose vulgarization of the Trapp Family story so much as the ham - handed attempt to Say Something Significant about the Nazis and liberty and democracy and the religious spirit and all the other shibboleths of Broadway and Hollywood.

If it had contented itself — as "Magnificent Men" did — with simply telling an amiable tale in a beautiful Alpine setting, nobody could have faulted it for pretending to be what it wasn't. But when it laboriously interlineates such a fable with third-rate sermonizing about religious and spiritual truths (not to mention its political baby-talk), then the film asks to be judged by more severe standards of criticism.

Moreover, even these objections to the falsity of the picture do not cut to the heart of my original comment. I suggested that if the Oscar is to have any meaning, it should be awarded to a film of some stature, significance and bold handling of a mature theme. If it is simply given to a popular and commercial success, then we might as well have the theatre owners choose and give the award among themselves on closed TV.

As to presenting an award to a film that "features depravity and disillusionment," I don't think the content of a story determines its inner worth. Some stories of depravity are themselves depraved, and some are illuminating, moving, and even ennobling. As Dostoevski said to Gogol, "A question on which hell pay but into which pocket."

A "wholesome" story can be sickening if it ignores, distorts or falsifies the truths of history and the imperatives of adult psychology. There is certainly a place for wholesome entertainment, but why does that word always have to mean brainless, infantile, and sentimental?

Tape Shock For Teacher

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Tape recorders gave a jolt to a group of teachers who listened to playbacks of classroom tapes during a recent study. Most teachers were horrified that they monopolized talking periods, spoke repetitiously, or let sloppy speech habits result in disjointed sentences.

Perhaps they were too hard on themselves; anyone who has been confronted with a tape recording of his own voice almost invariably reacts with a sense of shock to the appalling sound.

Most of us smugly believe we speak much better than we do. But those who should be held forcibly before a tape recorder are the people in public office whose disjointed, rambling, inaudible or over-loud speeches are the bane of people trying to listen to them.

A prepared speech isn't too bad but off-the-cuff remarks, or the unrehearsed answers to questions from the floor, will sometimes put listeners in a frenzy. Stammering and hawing, the padding of what should be a lucid sentence, so boggle the brain that it's no wonder there are occasional misinterpretations of what the fellow actually said.

In addition to the usual prerequisites for public office, any aspirant should make sure he has an unbiased assessment of how he sounds — and the inability to check it regular intervals to keep speech abilities up to standard.

U.S. Policy on Indians

Kimmis Hendrick in the Christian Science Monitor

Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall recently announced a new federal Indian policy. It calls on the 19 western states to help steer Indians' affairs. It amounts to another warning that Congress is still minded to end the nation's long trusteeship over Indian lands.

Reservation Indians, might like this if Washington had been a good trustee or the states good stewards of land in them. Mr. Udall states frankly that the federal program has all but failed. Such a program has left the United States' poorest, most ill-housed, least-employed citizens.

For months recently the Bureau of Indian Affairs, under Mr. Udall has been taking a new tack. Whereas it has been a vast centralized bureaucracy, it has shown signs of giving its reservation superintendents new authority. This means a veering toward closer teamwork with the Indian people themselves.

"If it were given to me to make the policy," one superintendent said to me recently, "my first move would be to make tribal government meaningful. In most cases, the tribal council simply has carried out what bureau policy approves. This change would give us something like a tribal municipality."

William S. King is superintendent of the Salt River Indian Agency in Arizona. The Salt River Indians, mostly Pimas, own 47,000 acres of inculcatably valuable land outside Phoenix. Mr. King has had years of partnership problems, so little business knowhow, that the best they can hope to do is be too broke to lease their land to non-Indian farmers.

Mr. King said he would involve them more in reservation government. He would "reshape services" to Indians and welfare, for example — to fit individual needs." He would put it up to the tribal council to set the welfare policy and contract for the services. He would encourage Indian leadership.

He is doing these things, actually. An anthropologist turned Indian agent, Mr. King has years of background concern for Indians, and a gift for valuing Indian viewpoints. The Indian Bureau has a good many superintendents like him. Mr. Udall's new policy promises them scope.

Stratford Beacon-Herald

The average passenger car is actually in operation only during about 5 per cent of its life, says the American Automobile Association. The remaining time it is parked somewhere. That sounds reasonable. And we would wager that about 4 per cent of that 5 per cent operating time is used up looking for a place to spend the 95 per cent of parking time.

June 29, 1960 —

1613—Michel Jaz Federweldt, the world — famous Finnish and former prime minister of Finland, died in exile 26 years ago today. He was born when his homeland was under Russian occupation. Always a strong nationalist, Federweldt made propaganda in the First World War which contributed to the re-establishment of Poland after more than a century of foreign rule. He served as prime minister for 16 months in 1919 but bloodless coups in 1940, when he became president of the Polish parliament in exile, at the age of 80.

1864—86 people died in a railway accident near Belleil, Que.

1877—The first flight from the United States to Hawaii was made by Lieuts. Albert Hegenberger and Lester Maitland.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1916—Sir Roger Casement was sentenced to death for high treason in enlisting German aid for the Easter Rising in Ireland; British raiding parties were active on the Western Front.

Kingston Whig-Standard

Whatever happens, Canada has heard the last of the anti-English-speaking ravings of men such as Rene Levesque, who would do well to give thanks. But there is otherwise not much satisfaction to be gained from what has happened. Quebec is going to be a danger to Confederation no matter what government happens to gain power there and there is no sign, in spite of all the talk, that English-speaking and French-speaking are any closer to a loving embrace than they have ever been.

Be It Ever So Humble!

Boston Globe

President Johnson and Vice-President Humphrey agree that there is hardly the time to start building a White House for the Vice-President. Mr. Johnson signed the bill authorizing such a house, but he says he will be ordering a halt on the project.

Both parties, in Congress and outside, appear to be partially large and stately mansion would be in keeping with the rules and prerequisites of the nation's Number Two public figure. But the threat of inflation and the many Vietnam war cost argue against spending the money now.

For the time being then, the Vice-President and Mrs. Humphrey will have to make do with their modest suburban home in Chevy Chase, Md. As long as the White House admonished what has happened. Quebec is going to be a danger to Confederation no matter what government happens to gain power there and there is no sign, in spite of all the talk, that English-speaking and French-speaking are any closer to a loving embrace than they have ever been.

Oh Happy Holidays!

Today's the day that approximately 1,400,000 elementary school children from the public and separate school systems wind up their school year and commence their summer holidays.

School officials said that officially the school year ends at 4 o'clock this afternoon but it was just possible that at least some of the principals would reconsider, and classes would be dismissed a bit before that time.

Officially, the high school season also ends this afternoon, but students here get something got a break, with varied grades having been out of classes for days or even weeks.

Many of the Grade 8 students have been out of classes since June 3rd with Grade 13 students ending their examinations on Friday June 17th, almost two weeks ago.

600 Montreal Freight Men Finish 'Prayers'

MONTREAL (CP)—Some 600 freight handlers employed in Montreal harbor returned to work today, ending a nine-day walkout that had piled up 500 freight cars in the port.

The men, members of the Brotherhood of Steamship and Railway Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees (CLC), agreed to return to work after ratifying a joint offer by the CNR and CPR Tuesday night.

National Harbors Board officials said earlier that activity in the port had been severely affected by the walkout. The freight handlers left their jobs June 20, two days after longshoremen in Montreal, Trois-Rivieres and Quebec City ended a 28-day strike.

The new deal marks the first time Montreal freight handlers, part of the railways' general non-operating union group, will be paid premiums for overtime work.

Milk to Cost 30 cts. Quart On Monday

TORONTO (CP) — Consumers across the province will pay an additional two cents for a quart of milk starting Monday, dairy spokesman say.

The new price of 30 cents results from a decision by the Ontario Milk Marketing Board to increase milk producers' rates.

Farmers will get $3.75 per hundredweight on milk to be bottled, a 46-cent increase from the former $3.29.

The dairies are increasing their prices two cents a quart and will get an extra 30 cents a hundredweight for themselves.

The increase for the farmer does not cover milk to be used in the manufacture of other dairy products for which he get a $4 a hundredweight.

TORONTO (CP) — Regardless of the techniques it uses government should make sure farmers receive a fair share of benefits of an expanding economy, the legislature was told Tuesday night.

Donald C. MacDonald, leader of the New Democratic Party, said the trouble with agriculture in Ontario is that "it doesn't have enough bargaining in the market place."

The NDP chief was speaking during debate on agriculture department spending estimates as both opposition parties banded together to get government for not dealing with milk farmers' demands for provincial milk marketing board.

"Yes, and for a sound economic reason," Mr. MacDonald replied to a query from John Root (PC — Wellington - Dufferin) about whether he thought the government should pay farmers the cost of transporting their milk.

The NDP chief was speaking during debate on agriculture department spending estimates as both opposition parties banded together to get government for not dealing with milk farmers' demands for provincial milk marketing board.

Murray Gaunt (L — Huron-Bruce) urged the government to consider providing grants for farmers for such things as milk houses and cooling systems if it does not want to help them by direct subsidy.

Militia Units Under Canvas At Petawawa

CANADIAN FORCES BASE PETAWAWA — The first of more than 30 Canadian Army Militia units from all over Ontario converge on Camp Petawawa this weekend to commence their annual summer training. An estimated 2,500 militiamen will undergo concentrated instruction in the three-week period of camp from June 26 to July 16. Each unit will be on camp for one week only.

Militia units from as far north as Windsor and the Lakehead, and east to Cornwall and Ottawa will be under canvas for the tent town especially established on the banks of the Ottawa River 15 miles north of Pembroke.

With the "new look" already very much in evidence among Canada's week-end soldiers, training will be carried on up to the compulsory level, with special stress on the tactical handling of armour, reconnaissance, infantry and artillery. Almost all units will witness a demonstration of the handling of a mixed force to be presented by the 2nd Canadian Infantry Brigade.

Camp commander — one with troops and one without troops — will involve the militia company commanders in problems connected with the handling of armour and artillery, and will also permit 200 officers in a ... headnesses, naked or in indecent attire or lewd dress or to make any indecent or obscene exposure of his or her person.

Stevedores Back to Work

TORONTO (CP)—A wildcat walkout by cargo checkers and stevedores, which has tied up the port of Toronto since last Friday, ended this morning when all workers returned to their jobs, a union spokesman said.

The 600 members of the International Longshoremen's Association (CLC) were urged back to work by union leaders Tuesday night after a meeting with federal mediator Bruce McRae.

25 Unionists Given Release, Will Appeal

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Twenty - five trade unionists Tuesday were released from jail pending appeal after serving one day of their sentences for contempt of court by defying a court injunction.

The men were convicted after they picketed the strike-bound Tilco Plastics Ltd. plant Feb. 23 and 24 in the face of an injunction limiting the number of pickets to 12.

Sentence was imposed Monday by Chief Justice G. A. Gale of the Ontario Supreme Court. He gave five union leaders two months each and 20 other pickets 15 days apiece. One man had his sentence suspended.

Two officials of the Textile Workers of America (CLC) who were sentenced to two months' postal fall of $2,000 each. The rest of the men were freed on their own recognizance.

The convictions and sentences have touched off a heated reaction from labor leaders who are opposed to the granting of injunctions in labor disputes.

Tilco Plastics Ltd. was granted an ex parte injunction banning all pickets for three days early in the dispute.

After the three days, Tilco got an interlocutory injunction limiting pickets. This was granted with the union's consent. The dations in the upper chamber

Senate Should Get Out Of Divorce Business Is Opinion of Commissioner

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate should get out of the divorce business and leave it to the Exchequer Court of Canada, Senate divorce commissioner Allison Walsh testified Tuesday.

The commissioner, who doubles as a judge of the Exchequer Court, was the main witness as the Senate-Commons committee on divorce laws reopened its public hearings.

He said the present system of Senate divorces for Quebec and Newfoundland residents has many disadvantages. There were long delays when the Senate was not sitting, the case load was almost too big for one man and appeal provisions were "hopelessly inadequate."

He had heard 2,000 divorce cases since his appointment as divorce commissioner two years ago.

The commissioner bears evidence four days each week in the Senate Committee Rooms in the Parliament Buildings and submits detailed reports to the Senate divorce committee.

REVIEWS EVIDENCE

The committee reviews the evidence and makes recommendations to the upper chamber that Each divorce must be approved by a separate motion of the Senate, which goes through five stages of processing.

Mr. Justice Walsh, formerly of Montreal lawyer, said this procedure is too cumbersome. Divorces now were processed at the rate of 800 annually and the flow could increase to 1,500 a year if grounds for divorce were broadened.

If the Exchequer Court took over entirely, several judges could share the case load, delays would be out and appeals to the Supreme Court of Canada would be possible.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) said his party proposed just that two years ago but the Senate had rejected the idea.

Mr. Justice Walsh suggested that grounds for divorce be extended to include physical cruelty, bona fide desertion and separation of seven years.

But he warned against mental cruelty, separation and other "undefined" grounds as which could lead easily to divorces by consent as in Mexico and some states in the U.S.

The next hearing was set tentatively for next Tuesday.

Wishart Will Investigate Report on Crime Among Indians

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart says he will investigate a magistrate's report of increased crime among Indians in a part of northwestern Ontario.

Mr. Wishart said in the legislature Tuesday he has asked the Ontario Police Commission to examine the situation which Kenora Magistrate J. M. Cox has called a "reign of anarchy."

Magistrate Cox made the comment Monday in a report to the Ontario Court of Appeal on the case of two Ojibwa Indians who were appealing convictions on charges of robbery with violence.

The area near Kenora where the accused Indians lived contains less than 2,000 people but "report of increased crime among Indians in a part of northwestern Ontario.

Mr. Wishart said in the legislature Tuesday he has asked the Ontario Police Commission to examine the situation which Kenora Magistrate J. M. Cox has called a "reign of anarchy."

Magistrate Cox made the comment Monday in a report to the Ontario Court of Appeal on the case of two Ojibwa Indians who were appealing convictions on charges of robbery with violence.

The area near Kenora where the accused Indians lived contains less than 2,000 people but there were 60 cases of breaking and entering before the courts, the magistrate said.

"It is a way to a better life, consisting of better meals and a warm place to sleep," Magistrate Cox said. "When a prisoner is released he is quite happy to drop back to his former vation and after a few months he will again seek a pre-paid holiday by way of another conviction."

Magistrate Cox called it "a mark of distinction" for the Indian to go to jail for short periods.

REQUIRES HELP

"The situation has me baffled and I am convinced it is something requiring political help rather than legal assistance.

"Frankly, I do not know the answer. I do know we cannot tolerate the present reign of anarchy which is rampant among these people."

Justices J. L. McLennan, F. G. MacKay and D. C. Wells dismissed the appeals of Sanderson Loon and Jack Thomas, both 17, of the Onsaburgh Indian reserve.

MONTREAL (CP) — Lord Chalfont, British minister of state for foreign affairs, said Tuesday night there are many reasons why the countries of the world can not agree on disarmament, but one of the principal barriers is public apathy. Speaking to the English-speaking Union of Montreal, Lord Chalfont said politicians and the people who elect them do not really care enough about disarmament.

The Experts Say
Buy Antique Jewelry From Reputable Dealer

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP)—Always go to a reputable jeweller if you want to buy antique jewellery or precious stones abroad, says an expert who has travelled 80,000 miles around the world buying gems.

"Often people go to Burma or India and come back with a $1.50 California stone they bought as 'real' as $25," says Cecil Young, head diamond, colored stone and antique jewelry buyer for Henry Birks and Son's 38 Canadian stores.

The international market stimulates any bargain today, Mr. Young says. Jewellers keep track and usually know which stones are where.

And, unlike diamonds which are price-controlled, colored gems are sold for what the traffic will bear.

"The demand for colored stones and antique jewelry is rapidly increasing and today's competition is worldwide," says Mr. Young, who started with the firm in 1932 as a messenger boy. He later studied with the American Gem Society.

"Canadians were more diamond - conscious before the war, but now they are more familiar with colored stones and we are selling more every day.

"They are starting to buy colored stones and even pearls for an engagement ring, which now is often the girl's birthstone."

The gem expert says sapphires, rubies and emeralds are the most popular. They are usually used in combination with a diamond, "because the brilliance of a diamond enhances the beauty of a colored stone."

Mr. Young says few people realize the variety of color available in most jewels. Garnets, for example, may be any color but blue, zircons are blue and yellow as well as white, and sapphires, usually blue, may be pink, white or yellow.

ANTIQUES NEED EXPERT

Antique rings and other old pieces now are highly in demand, he said.

"A brooch that would sell for $25 a short while ago now sells for $60 or $70. Antique jewelry is very scarce and therefore very expensive."

Canadians, he said, will stop at a certain price, but Europeans will go incredibly high to obtain the piece they want.

Buying antique jewelry is dangerous and a reputable jeweller is a necessity, at home or abroad.

"Fakes may be mixed in with real antiques and it is difficult for an amateur to tell the difference." The date before which a piece ranks as an antique is January 1, 1840.

Mr. Young says special care should be taken before buying antique rings as "rings take the greatest wear of any piece of jewelry."

Antiques also should be carefully examined too, to see how much the links have been weakened by constant rubbing over the years.

Another trend in jewelry is toward yellow gold, rather than platinum or white gold, Mr. Young said, and cultured pearls are more popular than ever.

"This year there is a great shortage of 7- and 8-millimetre pearls, and so they're going to be more expensive. When pearls are scarce, the firms tend to take them out of the water too soon and the nacre on the pearl isn't so good."

"Women would never treat a car like they treat their jewelry," said Mr. Young. "But it requires regular maintenance like anything else and should be examined each year" by a jeweller.

Modern settings display diamonds better, but the stones are less safe than they used to be because they are no longer surrounded by metal. Pearls can be damaged by perfumes and hair spray.

Pearls should be wiped after each wearing and diamonds can be cleaned with a mild detergent. But, most important, all jewellery should be kept in a case with separate compartments, to prevent scratching.

CHANGE POODLE'S STATUS

BLACKS HARBOR, N.B. (CP) — Campaigners are at work to convert the poodle from a show dog and household pet into the working retriever his ancestor was. The poodle is not "a dandified sheep," said one, but a powerful dog able to compete with retrievers of other breeds.

JANEITE MOWATT, exchange student from Kingston, Jamaica, checks a newscast she has prepared with Radio Station CJBQ's production director and announcer, Lee Jourard.

Jamaican Student Receives On-the-Job Training at C.J.B.Q.

When Janeite Mowatt of Kingston, Jamaica, saw her first snowfall from the window of her Toronto room, she thought it was the most beautiful sight in the world. Then she did a double - take, and decided she could never set foot in the wet, cold stuff. So she went back to bed for the day.

Now a veteran of one Canadian winter, she can laugh at her reaction. She is trying to accustom herself to the other extreme of the Canadian climate, humid summer heat.

Miss Mowatt, an exchange student at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute in Toronto, has been in Belleville this month for on-the-job training at Radio Station CJBQ. In July she will go to an Ottawa station and in August to Saint John, New Brunswick. Her summer jobs, arranged by the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, are designed to give her a chance to meet a cross-section of Canadian people. She is one of the approximately 20 Jamaicans who each year receive scholarships through the Canada-West Indies Technical Assistance Program for study in Canadian schools and universities. She will graduate from Ryerson in radio and television arts in 1968.

"Belleville is a very friendly place," Miss Mowatt says. "You had so many invitations I can't accept them all."

MORE LIKE JAMAICA

The pace of life in Belleville is more like Jamaica, she adds, and she finds it a relief after the rush and bustle of Toronto.

"Canada is a wonderful place to visit," Miss Mowatt says, "but I wouldn't want to live here. I couldn't steel myself to face those long winters for the rest of my life."

In addition to an even temperature and dry climate, Jamaica has an added attraction for women. It offers them equality of job opportunity in Miss Mowatt's field of radio and television journalism.

"In Jamaica, a woman can go as far as she wants to, according to her ability, of course," Miss Mowatt says.

"For instance, the Kingston newspaper has ten female general reporters on its staff."

GOVERNMENT SCHOLARSHIP

Miss Mowatt went straight from high school into a job in the newsroom of the privately owned Radio Jamaica and Rediffusion station in Kingston. Last year, after five years experience there, her employer urged her to apply for the Canadian government sponsored scholarship. She is under contract to work for five years in Jamaica after graduation from Ryerson. She expects to assist with educational television programs produced by the government and, shown in Jamaican classrooms for two-hour periods each day.

Other than the climate, the only aspect of Canadian life Miss Mowatt found it hard to adapt to is food.

"We use a lot of spices and seasonings in our dishes," she says. "I found Canadian food flat tasting at first, but I'm getting used to it now."

JAMAICAN RECIPES

To illustrate her point, Miss Mowatt offered two Jamaican recipes. The first is for the island's famous rum punch, but she warns that Jamaican rum is twice as potent as the dilute version sold in Canada, so double the mount of rum may be called for.

RUM PUNCH

Mix together: 1 cup sour lime or lemon juice; 2 cups sweet strawberry syrup; 3 cups Jamaican rum, 3 cups water and a dash of bitters. This recipe serves 12.

Miss Mowatt's second recipe is for curried goat.She suggests that Canadian cooks substitute lamb stewing meat for an economical main dish.

CURRIED LAMB

About eight to 12 hours before the meat is to be cooked, sprinkle it liberally with curry powder and hot chili pepper flakes. Add a chopped clove of garlic or two, and cover with sliced onions.

When ready to cook the meat, remove onions and excess spices and save. Deep fry the meat in vegetable oil. Jamaicans use cocoanut oil, but corn oil will do. When the meat is browned, drain off the oil and add boiling water to cover. Cook slowly over low heat until almost tender, then add reserved onions and spices. When they are soft, add the seeded cherry tomatoes can be added for extra flavor.

In Jamaica curried mo ney ed on a bed of rice, with alloed tomatoes at the side.

Ann Landers
In Premarital Sex, Girl Always Pays

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know you receive many letters from unwed mothers because you have printed them. Why don't you ever publish a letter from an unwed father?

You, Ann Landers, have done more to damage the image of the unwed father than anyone in this country and I resent it. My son is a lovely young man, just 19 years of age, and every time you print a letter from an unwed mother he shows it to me and says, "Why doesn't Ann Landers ever say anything good about us — we have a side, too."

Are you blind that you don't realize that some girls run after boys, pester them, get ANN LANDERS them full of liquor, and then offer themselves in such a way that no male could refuse? This is exactly what happened to my son, and to some of his fine friends, too. Yet the boy always gets called the terrible names and ends up with a black eye. I dare you print this. — MOTHER OF A GOOD SON.

DEAR MOTHER: I have yet to hear from an unwed mother who wouldn't cheerfully take the black eye in exchange for what she got left with.

Sorry that I don't have any good conduct medals lying around for the unwed fathers. And I don't have any advice for them, either. They don't need my list of maternity homes. They can go right on living as they always have — continuing at their jobs or remaining in school.

Unfortunately, when a foolish young couple decides to "Have fun now — Pay later," it's the female who does the paying.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a salesman in a large department store. Like most salesmen of major items (furniture, rugs, jewelry, refrigerators, stoves, etc.) I work on commission.

Last week I had the better part of two days with three couples. They asked dozens of questions, which I was happy to answer. That's what I'm here for. I gave them my card and said if they decided to buy I'd be happy to help them.

At the end of the week I followed up by telephoning these couples and all three told me they had been in the store and bought the item from someone who just happened to be standing there. They all added, "You aren't on commission are you?"

Well, on behalf of most salespeople of major items, I'd like to say that I am on commission. This is how I've made my living. When I spend hours with a customer I expect him to return to me if he decides to buy.

Thank you, Ann Landers, for letting me have my say. — NO SALE.

DEAR NO: You just made a very nice sale, my friend. You got your message before the eyes of millions of customers.

And now I'd like to add a word: When a salesman hands you a card, that's the hint and here's the message: "I have time and energy invested in you. If you return to buy, I hope you'll remember to ask for me."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mother and dad were a grand couple. Mother passed away last November.

Fifteen years ago, when Dad was in his early fifties he had a torrid affair with a married woman who lives in this city. She was well-known and was an unpleasant, grasping sort of person that hurt Mother deeply.

The other woman is a widow now and dad has taken her to dinner a few times. We just learned of his renewed interest. Naturally, we are furious. Mother forgave him but we can't. Any advice? — DAUGHTERS.

DEAR DAUGHTERS: If your mother forgave him you can — and you should. Life is for the living.

U.C.W. Meetings

COLLEGE HILL U.C.W.

A potluck supper marked the last general U.C. meeting of the season held in College Hill United Church. After supper a cup and saucer was presented to Miss L. Wellman in honor of her forthcoming marriage.

The devotions were taken by Mrs. R. McDonald, Mrs. R. Armstrong and Mrs. C. Bailey.

The business session was in charge of Mrs. A. Dickson. A presentation of a cup and saucer was made to Mrs. Clare Reid and Mrs. Herb Kern who are both moving out of town.

Mrs. Neal informed the members that there are three weddings during the summer that are to be catered to.

Following the business a successful auction sale was held with Mrs. W. McIlquham as auctioneer.

Gorky Park Is Mecca for Moscow Lovers

MOSCOW (Reuters) — On a warm summer evening, the tree-lined alleys and open air dance floors of Moscow's Gorky Park are a meeting place for thousands of the Soviet capital's young people.

Some amateur statisticians calculate that up to 10 per cent of all the marriages in Moscow have their beginning there.

Ludmilla Vlasova, a 19-year-old blonde book store salesgirl, says three of her closest friends met their husbands in the park. She herself will marry Yury Nikitin, a student of English at Moscow University, later this year.

"I was standing in a line for ice cream in the park one night last summer when I met him," she says. "He was just in front, and kept looking at me over his shoulder.

"At the counter he bought two ice creams and turned round and gave me one. I did not want to take it, but he was very polite, not like a lot of the other boys. We have been going out together ever since."

Ludmilla and Yury are typical of thousands of young Russian city dwellers today.

They will probably marry in the Moscow Palace of Weddings, where, instead of the dry registry office ceremony, young couples are given more of a feeling of occasion.

But the idea of an official engagement does not occur to Ludmilla and Yury. This custom went out among young Russians soon after the 1917 revolution, and they will not exchange rings until the wedding ceremony.

Ludmila took Yury home to meet her parents six weeks after she met him.

Women's Institutes

BETHEL - ZION W.I.

BETHEL - ZION — With the vice-president, Mrs. Charles Huffman in charge, a meeting of the Bethel Zion Women's Institute was held in the Community Hall on Thursday evening. The meeting was in charge of the girls club under the direction of Mrs. D. Mead and Mrs. Allen Lott.

In her remarks, Mrs. Mead gave a resume of the year's activities and told of the co-operative efforts of the girls in their work. A special thank you was extended to Mrs. Mead, who will be leaving the community, and a small gift was presented by Mrs. F. Wellman, past president of the Institute. The housecoats made by the girls were modelled and a skit "Shoes and Stockings" was well enacted. The girls later contributed and served lunch.

Competitions to be entered at the Belleville and Tweed fairs were discussed.

Successful Living

Husband Has Cake Needs and Eats It Too

DEAR DORIS: My husband and I and our teen-aged son and daughter were a happy jolly family. He almost worshipped the children ever since they were born and they have always thought the world of him. Then some new people moved in across the road and it seems to have changed our life.

DORIS CLARK

The woman is ten years younger than me but completely dumb about everything. She began to drop in where my husband was doing his electrical repair work in a shop in the front of the house. He laughed at her boldness at first, then I realized that when I came in I was extra baggage.

Now his offhand manner with our children is troubling them to the point of interfering with school work. My girl cries herself to sleep. He ignores me, and is excited if this woman comes in.

He is irritable with us and has begun to drink. She is an obsession with him. He sees not a thing wrong with her. Would the shock of us leaving help? — WORRIED.

DEAR WORRIED: It might. It is the flattery and the novelty of a newly attentive woman which inflates him; but take his settled life out from under and I'm guessing he'd fall to earth with a crash.

Change your tactics. Why keep courting and coaxing someone who is deaf and blind? Plan with your children for fun which leaves him out; not because he is not welcome but because you know he is not interested.

Try what one or two expeditions or projects or parties without him will do to set him back on his heels.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GEORGE, MOTHER OF 3

Did it ever occur to you that when baby gets fussy—budgety for no apparent reason, it may be that he's tried to accomplish some new feat and failed in the endeavour? Like trying to roll over, sit up or grab for something that's tantalizing miss out of reach? If you can spot what it is baby wants to do, you can lend a helping hand. If you can't, an extra helping of attention and affection will usually soothe a thwarted heart.

Sandman strategies. If your baby has trouble entering the land of nod for his night visit, these tricks often help:

(1) A gentle oil rub-down or a spot of warm milk are most relaxing.

(2) A quiet 10-15 minute rocking-chair session is one of the best sleep-coaxers I know.

(3) A lullaby, sweet and low, bath charms to soothe.

Breakfast bonanza or supper appetite. No matter when you serve Gerber Cereal and Fruit Combinations, you're sure to delight your darling. Gerber Strained Oatmeal, Mixed Cereal, or Rice Cereal... all with Applesauce and Bananas... make a wonderful change of taste for your tyke. Each cereal is cooked with the fruit and comes in a jar all ready to serve. The smooth texture and subtle flavours are bound to win ones of approval.

Mouth-watering menu. Fruits score high as baby favourites. Especially Gerber Strained and Junior Fruits. And for good reason. Gerber Fruits are cooked in a flash to preserve their appealing colours and sun-kissed flavours. A delightful range of "straight" fruits and fruit combinations. Served "as is" or used as topping for Gerber Cereals or Custards, they're super. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Church Groups

ST. JAMES' W.A.

TWEED — The regular monthly meeting of St. James' Anglican W.A. was held at the cottage of Mrs. Cyril Latta on Tuesday evening.

After a potluck supper members and guests were welcomed by the president, Mrs. Harry MacLean. Mrs. MacLean conducted the worship service with Mrs. John Marsha giving the Scripture reading.

It was reported that the proceeds from the spring tea and bake sale were turned over to the wardens to be used for the church. A donation was made by the W.A. to complete payment of the new hymn books which had been purchased. Mrs. MacLean gave a report on a meeting she had attended in Actinolite on Wednesday on centennial planning. Different suggestions were given as to how Tweed could participate in the centennial celebration.

ARE BETTER UNCOOKED

Leafy vegetables are more wholesome when raw than when cooked because cooking reduces their vitamin and mineral content.

A clear shimmering jelly ring of colorful crisp ingredients is Mary Moore's topic for today. Hard-cooked egg and olive slices decorate the top when the jelly ring is turned out for serving.

SUMMER SALAD RING

A new jellied salad ring calling for hard cooked egg and olives and crisp vegetables could be made in advance for Dominion Day entertaining. If you do not have a ring mould use one 3 or 6-cup size of mould you have on hand.

EMPRESS SALAD RING

(Hard-cooked egg and olives and crisp vegetables)

1 large hard-cooked egg, sliced
3 tablespoons (3 envelopes) plain gelatin
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
½ cup water
2½ cups water (second amount)
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon instant onion (or 2 tablespoons finely chopped green onion)
¾ cup pitted ripe olives
1 cup finely chopped inner celery
1 cup coarsely grated carrot
1/3 cup thinly sliced radishes

Hard-rock the egg and chill it. In a large bowl mix together the gelatin, sugar, salt and ½ cup water. Stand bowl in simmering water and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from heat and add the 2½ cups water, vinegar, lemon juice and onion. Cool until slightly thickened. Pour about ½ cup gelatin liquid into a 5 or 6-cup ring mould. Peel and carefully slice hard cooked egg in egg slicer and arrange in ring. Between slices place halves of some of the pitted ripe olives, rounded side down. Chill until egg slices and olives are set in jelly. Now to remaining jelly liquid add the remaining olives, chopped, celery and carrots and radishes. Carefully spoon over firm layer. Chill until very firm.

When serving, time arrives dip mould in hot (not boiling) water and count steadily to ten. Invert large serving plate over jelly and deftly turn over and out. Garnish with endive or watercress or delicate lettuce leaves, and wedges of tomato and slices of cucumber. Pass mayonnaise.

by Mary Moore

Broiled Shoulder Lamb Chops Marinated in Herb French Dressing; Now Spinach; Potatoes in Parsley White Sauce; Chilled Canta-loupe Halves with Lime Sherbet; Tea.

Obviously this jellied salad may be set in individual moulds. If you do make individual salads, place a ripe olive half, rounded side down, on 1 tablespoon of jelly liquid in bottom of small moulds. Cover it with a hard-cooked egg slice and chill until firm. Proceed with directions as above.

MAN HEADS NURSES

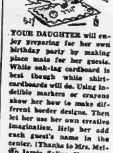
Alouette Club Marks St. Jean Baptiste Day

Sunday afternoon, at 1.15 p.m., about 100 members and 30 children of the French Alouette Club for Bellevile and region gathered in St. Joseph's Church in Belleville, to attend a ceremony in honor of their patron saint, St. Jean Baptiste.

Mgr. J. A. Carley, parish priest of St. Joseph's, presided at the ceremony, taking the opportunity to mention the patron saints of the different people in this country and to talk about the particular virtues and merits of Saint Jean Baptiste who was given as patron saint to French Canadians.

For the second part of the day's program, members and their families gathered at Cove Beach, Cherry Valley, in the middle of the afternoon for the annual picnic. Mr. J. A. C. Berube presided accompanied with Mrs. Berube and other members of the executive committee.



In the absence of Mr. Michel Thiffault, secretary of the club, games were organized for the children by "Aunt Lise", assisted by Mr. Claude Duchesne, and a few ladies of the club. In spite of the intense heat, games, swimming were enjoyed and watermelon "for the thirst" was well appreciated. The meal around the tables set together gave an occasion for a good time of fellowship.

Mr. Bernard Gagnier, vice-president of the club, thanked all the participants, especially those who prepared for the successful event.

At dusk the traditional fire of St. Jean's Day was lit and a French sing-song ended the meeting.

Golden Wedding Advice

People in Retirement Sit Down Too Soon

"Never sit down, always keep active."

That's the advice of Mr. Norman McConnell, 11 Dunbar Street, where Mr. and Mrs. McConnell, yesterday celebrated 50 years of married life.

Noting that he can always find something to do, around the house and garden, Mr. McConnell says that the secret of a happy retired life is to keep on the move.

Most people sit down too soon, he feels.

Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. McConnell were "at home" to friends and relatives at their Dunbar Street home.

Although a native of Peterborough county, Mr. McConnell says he was born "just over the line" from Hastings in the Marmora area. Mrs. McConnell the former Catherine Cole, was born in Hastings, also near the county line. The two grew up only two miles apart.

Following their marriage the couple lived for 25 years at Cordova Mines, where Mr. McConnell worked as carpenter for the mining firm.

Then the couple moved to Belleville and for the past 19 years, Mr. McConnel worked at Point Anne for Canada Cement. Mr. and Mrs. McConnell have one son, Harry McConnell of this city, and one granddaughter, Joan.

Talk Makes Marriages Happy Or So Sociologists Report

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Sociologists have found that conversation does much to keep marriages happy . . . Typical couples talk to each other about 11½ hours a day, have only one real argument a month—even when they discuss money and in-law problems.

Odd legislation: In early times in Massachusetts a law decreed that people had to take a bath before going to bed . . . One reason: Innkeepers had only limited quantities of bed linen, and didn't want to have to change their sheets for each new guest.

Husbands, if you want to save on your food bill, send your wife to the supermarket only after she has had a big meal . . . Psychologists say housewives usually splurge on groceries when they are hungry themselves.

Here bounce to the sunset "They're putting springs in some feminine high-heel shoes now to act as shock absorbers when unlady gose strolling.

DROWN WARPS

Items that: If yellow jackets are terrorizing your backyard, put out a pan of soapy detergent suds . . . The suds attract them insects, who fall in and drown.

Second chance: If you had your life to live over, what would you do? . . . Some 43 per cent of a test group asked this question said they'd get more education.

Folklore: Boring holes in your ears—as if for earrings —will help cure weak eyes . . . Eating bread crusts makes the hair curly . . . It is healthier to sleep with your head to the east, because that's the way the earth turns . . . If you sniff at your stockings before going to bed, it will prevent you from having nightmares.

It was Tad, the famed cartoonist who observed, "Life is like an artichoke—you have to go through so much to get so little."

WHY THERE COULD BE A SHORTAGE OF DAIRY FOODS IN CANADA

In Canada, one of the world's great agricultural countries, it is ironic that there could be a shortage of milk.

One of the main reasons for this is that each year an average of 10,000 dairy farmers are leaving the business.

Despite increased efficiency, high costs of operation, equipment and feed are forcing dairy farmers out of business. Nearly all farm expenses have increased while the price of dairy foods has remained fairly constant.

There is a serious shortage of farm labour. More and more farm workers are attracted to other industries where they can work fewer hours for more pay.

If dairy farmers continue to leave the business at the current rate, there could be a serious shortage of vital dairy foods in Canada. The dairy industry is important to Canada's economic and nutritional health. And dairy foods are still one of your best food values.

Schoolhouse Used for Indian Crafts

CAPE CROKER, Ont. (CP)—An abandoned schoolhouse on this Bruce Peninsula Chippewa Indian reserve 30 miles north of Owen Sound has come back to life and now is a thriving means of livelihood for a group of Indian craftsmen.

A year ago four reserve women who had studied silk screening at a training course sponsored by the department of Indian affairs, moved into the barren schoolhouse and started making notepaper decorated with Indian motifs.

Now seven Indians work there, netting in an average of 30 hours a week each. Their products are their sole means of livelihood.

Production has doubled with the increase in workers and the craftsmen are—learning new techniques and using new materials.

Merle Moorhouse of Hamilton, a graduate of the Ontario College of Art, is spending nine weeks, with the Indians to improve their skills. The group is running a test lot of calendars and learning to print on cloth.

They are working on a variety of distinctly Indian tablecloths, placemats and notepaper that will be sold in craft shops across Canada.

What Quality Beef Does A&P Sell?

That's a fair question. And an easy one to answer.

A&P sells only Canada's finest, Red Brand Beef.

But that's not the whole story.

This is important!

A&P buys only Red Brand Beef that meets our high "Super-Right" Quality specifications.

Some beef labeled Red Brand just isn't good enough to be called "Super-Right."

You see we're very fussy about the meat we label "Super-Right."

Are "Super-Right" Meats a good reason for shopping A&P?

They're one of many!

Bert Herridge, Kootenay M.P., Recalls Battle of the Somme

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP)—In the "mass butchery" of the first Battle of the Somme in the First World War, 24,000 Canadians were killed or wounded. One of the casualties was a wiry sergeant named Bertie Herridge.

Today H. W. Herridge, a spry 71, is the veteran New Democratic Party MP for Kootenay West. Talking to a reporter in his parliamentary office, he has called that he was hit at the edge of the French village of Pys.

It was a late afternoon in November, 1916, in the dying days of the five-month battle of attrition. Sgt. Herridge's platoon was making along the Transmont Road and had just reached a sign that said "Englebelmer 2½" when a German stronghold opened fire.

The sergeant got four bullets in his right arm and side—"it felt like being stung by a wasp each time."

A British tank officer found him lying there "some hours later" — backed him to Dessert Trench and dumped him in. That was the end of the war for the 21-year-old English-born soldier.

Later in hospital he was given up for dead, he says, but he lived, and his arm was rebuilt to allow partial use.

RETURNS TO SCENE

This week Mr. Herridge will walk down that road again. With other members of the Commons veterans affairs committee, he is touring Canadian war cemeteries and memorials in Europe. It is his second return visit to Pys; the first was in 1956.

The committee will attend ceremonies June 30 to July 3 marking the 50th anniversary of the Battle of the Somme. They will be held in the Arras-Amiens area of northern France.

It will also visit a memorial erected with money collected in Newfoundland honoring the Newfoundland Regiment, which was all but wiped out during the bloody battles.

The term "mass butchery" was used in the official history of the Canadian Army in the First World War, written by Col. G. W. L. Nicholson. There were more than 1,000,000 casualties on both sides.

The Allied offensive in the Somme started July 1, 1916. Sgt. Herridge's unit, the 54th Kootenay Battalion, came down much later from Vpres, where it had been bloodied.

"There were tanks in the battle—huge, lumbering things that traveled only three miles an hour." But they weren't a major factor, tending to get stuck on trenches, Mr. Herridge recalled.

"It was a straight slugging match—Allied infantry against German machine-guns."

And infantry use bayonets.

HANDY WITH BAYONET

"Before we entered the Battle of Somme we spent the whole day sharpening our bayonets."

Sgt. Herridge had used the dexterity picked up as a light-weight boxer in college to win the 4th Division bayonet-fighting contest. "I was in the finals against a Black Watch sergeant. He slipped in the mud and I won."

Another member of the Kootenay battalion was a tall officer, Howard Green, who later became external affairs minister in the Diefenbaker government.

"Green was very well liked by his troops. They used to call him 'Speed' because he walked at a faster clip than the others."

Listening to Mr. Herridge reminisce was his wife Ellen. A Red Cross battle nurse, she met him in an English hospital where he was recovering from his wounds. Mrs. Herridge is accompanying her husband on the European tour.

There are still about 30 survivors from the 54th, Mr. Herridge said. "Most of those left were the original members, not those who joined later. They must have been tough."

Mr. Herridge said the mass give casualties at the Somme failed to kill the soldiers' morale. Nearly all were convinced they were fighting for right in this last "soulinental war."

Col. Nicholson provides history's footnote. At best, he wrote, the Somme campaign gained only "a few miles of mud-mate." But it did shatter the illusion of German invincibility on the Western Front.

26 Entries Received for Boat Races

PICTON (Staff) — The latest entrant in the Maple Leaf Gold Trophy races at Hayward Beach is Tim Moriarty of Gets ville, N.Y. who will drive "Lets West" in the 280 class. This brings to 26 the number of entrants so far, but publicity chairman Donald King said the majority of boats will arrive on Friday July 1, opening day of the three day classic.

The Prince Edward Yacht Club, sponsors of the race have rented lane which provides the two hour area for watching the mile-and-a-half measured course. There is room for 25,000 spectators and free parking space for up to 8,000 cars. Improved motorists use the official parking area.

Campers will be able to put up their trailers or tents on the property of Michael Cole.

Refreshment booths will be staffed by local organizations such as the Rotarians, Scouts and Rebekahs.

CHC Radio will have two boats inside the course to broadcast descriptions of the races on the national network.

Mr. King said visitors should avoid the possibility of buying bogus tickets by following the ticket booth sign on which the official passes. Tickets cost $1.25 if bought separately for each day or $2.50 for the full three days. The Maple Leaf Trophy Race for limited class power boats was last held in the United States in 1956. The winner that year, and the defending champion is Wilson who was killed while competing in the President Cup races at Washington a few weeks ago. This is the first time the classic has been held in Canada.

Ottawa at A Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

TUESDAY, June 28, 1966

The Commons northern affairs committee was told attendance at national parks is running 18 per cent ahead of this time last year.

The Defence committee learned Canada's four NCAF interceptor bases now are stocked with nuclear rockets for the Voodoo fighter.

A group of visiting parliamentarians toured the Central Experimental Farm before receiving a desk - thumping welcome in the Commons.

Finance Minister Sharp announced in the Commons Canada has bought back 10 other $200,000,000 worth of Canadian bonds held by U.S. investors.

The Commons passed a $50,000,000 addition to the Atlantic Development Board's funds to bolster the economy of the Atlantic provinces.

Four more bills received swift passage before the government rose late tonight during debate of a bill to set up the Canada Assistance Plan.

Agriculture Minister Hays proposed an amendment calling for a $100-a-month old age pension and blocked a government move to extend the sitting past 10 p.m.

WEDNESDAY, June 29

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. to resume debate on the Canada Assistance Plan. The Senate meets at 3 p.m. and the United States the aggressors, he asked.

"It is the duty of all governments, parliamentarians and public figures to see to it that foreign interference in Viet Nam be halted, and that the Vietnamese people, like any other people, be given an opportunity to solve their domestic affairs by themselves."

Although Mr. Polyanskiy made the duty-free quota all countries, Canadian officials interpreted the speech to be directed against Canada, which also sent retired diplomat Chester Ronning to the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi several times to determine whether negotiations on the Viet Nam war are possible.

Canada is a member of the International Control Commission for Viet Nam, along with India and Poland.

Mr. Polyanskiy's speech shocked the audience of 100 visitors, MPs and diplomats gathered at Ottawa's Rideau Club. External affairs officials expressed astonishment that the remarks were made on Canadian soil and at a dinner given by Mr. Martin.

Mr. Polyanskiy's attack on the U.S. established in the afternoon among guests and there were audible exclamations of shock and anger.

"He's going too far," J. Waldo Monteith, former Conservative cabinet minister, told a reporter.

The external affairs minister replied with strong praise of the United States, saying it is Canada's "great neighbor" and has made an "enormous" contribution to resisting aggression and promoting peace.

Mr. Martin declined any extended comment on the Russian's speech.

"I'm the host," he told a reporter later. "You heard what I said."

When Mr. Polyanskiy launched no attack on NATO, he said he was convinced the Canadian people would prefer their arms were at home. Mr. Martin replied that Canada's members of the NATO and the armed forces are proud Canada is participating in the peacekeeping operations of the United Nations.

After Mr. Martin's reply, Mr. Polyanskiy said the speeches proved there are many differences between the two countries and that it is important to work "hand in hand" for peace and friendship.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker declined comment when asked whether the speech was appropriate for the occasion.

Agriculture Minister Greene thought Mr. Polyanskiy's expression of "honest views" was better, than hearing platitudes.

The Soviet delegation earlier attended a reception given by Gov.-Gen. and Mrs. Vanier.

Fire Destroys Variety Store On Lake St.

PICTON (Staff) — Fire of undetermined origin destroyed Yorke's Variety Store on Lake Street Monday morning.

Owner James Yorke, who tried to fight the flames with a hand extinguisher required treatment for smoke and to stain his nerves, after being overcome by fumes.

Mr. Yorke and his wife were in the single story frame structure when the fire started in the back store room. Neighbors called the Bloomfield Fire Department who arrived on the scene in about five minutes but by that time the flames had too good a start and firefighters then directed their efforts towards preventing the flames from reaching gas pumps, which were located only twenty feet in front of the store.

Mr. Yorke during the excitement of the fire called in some guards who were passing in an auto and they turned in an alarm at Picton Army Camp. Firemen from Camp Picton arrived to help control the flames with additional men and equipment.

Mr. Yorke said that the entire contents of the store were lost with the building which was insured. He will continue to serve gas and hopes to be able to continue his business in time for the coming long weekend.

The Rural Scene

PICTON — 4-H members are reminded of the bus trip to Northumberland County on Thursday, June 30th. Places to be visited on the tour will include: the Agricultural Service Centre, Brighton; Codrington Fish Hatchery; the new Prince Farm; Presqu'ile Provincial Park and the Smithfield Experimental Farm. The bus will leave the Department of Agriculture Office at 8:15 in the morning and will leave for home at 3:45 in the afternoon. The cost of the trip will be $1.50 per person.

MEETINGS CALLED

On Tuesday, July 5th, the Prince Edward Corn and Barley Clubs will meet in the Department of Agriculture Board Room at 8 o'clock in the evening. On Wednesday, July 6th, at 8 p.m. the Milford 4-H Calf Club will meet at the farm of Keith Walker, R. R. 2, Picton. The program will include instruction and practice judging.

ARGUE SPEAKS UP

REGINA (CP)—The Canadian Federation of Agriculture should oppose any proposal to increase bank interest rates at Saturday's meeting and should make its position known immediately, Senator Hazen Argue said Tuesday. He said in a telegram to James Bentley of Edmonton, CFA president, that farmers are in no position to absorb any increase in credit costs.

Auto Critic

4, 1965, in Natchitoches, La., of a gas pipeline owned by Texas Gas Transmission Co., since renamed Tennoco Inc. The fact that the pipeline ruptured early in the morning, he said, "prevented a larger disaster than the 17 people who were incinerated in their homes."

Danger, Nader said, is posed by excessively thin pipe, so low in alloy as to lack "toughness, insufficient depth of installation and inadequate inspection.

"Pipeline deterioration, particularly through the inroads of corrosion, is alarming experts in this field," he added.

Nader quoted from a report by the U.S. Federal Power Commission last April that "the maximum credible single accident possibility" for a failure of an interstate natural gas pipeline "is high, possibly higher than that for railroad, motor car or air transportation."

He said the report continued: "Population centers are expanding and homes are being constructed near buried pipelines which were designed and installed under safety standards suitable for unpopulated or rural areas."

Hospitals

ces to which the health minister would have to reply. He revealed that the federal-provincial tax structure committee was looking into the whole question of shared-cost programs.

CONTINUE GRANTS

Ottawa has been under a lot of pressure to increase hospital construction grants. Mr. MacEachen had announced earlier in the year that the grants, scheduled to end in 1968, would be continued another two years until March, 1970, and there was no plan for an increase.

Dr. Crawford said the federal government recognizes that $60,000 a bed is "not very much." It amounted to about 15 per cent of the cost of a new bed now.

But over the years 7 great many beds had been built under the stimulus of the grants and the extent of federal participation was something for the federal cabinet to determine.

The hospitals plan, Dr. Crawford's statement included last February's federal - provincial conference, will enable the federal government agreed, under provincial pressure, to extend the life of the construction grants.

The reason for the two-year extension at current levels was based on Quebec's decision at that time to opt out of such grants in favor of an equivalent cash payment provided money system could be worked out for doing so. Working out the syst has led to the tax structure committee.

The other provinces, under pressure from hospital associations and municipal governments, were only partly satisfied with the arrangement. A spurt in building costs since then has aggravated this dissatisfaction.

Sessions

ment wanted passed before the recess.

Earlier Tuesday, the Commons passed bills to:

—Add $50,000,000 to the Atlantic Development Board's funds;

—Increase to 95 per cent the present 50-per-cent rebate to the provinces of federal corporation tax collections from privately - owned gas, steam and electric utilities;

—Establish the Company of Young Canadians;

—Integrate existing federal pension plans with the Canada Pension Plan.

Bilingual storm blew up again on a bill to set up a Crown agency to operate the $26,000,000 National Arts Centre in Ottawa. The debate was adjourned when Creditiste MPs indicated they were ready to speak at length.

Liberal back-bencher Raynald Guay (Lotbiniere) lambasted Ottawa on the art centre's board. Its appointed ready to withdraw his amendment after a personal appeal by Prime Minister Pearson, but Creditiste objections left the matter up in the air.

The Canada Assistance Plan bill came up an hour before adjournment. It provides for increased federal funds to provinces to provide aid for the aged or needy.

Mr. Knowles said the plan is a milestone of great value. He had was the means test required. He then moved his amendment, a few minutes before the regular adjournment hour.

Berlin 'Wall' Weaving Barrier Which Wears Variety of Faces

John Best, Canadian Press correspondent in Moscow, visited East Berlin during travels in Communist countries of Eastern Europe. In this story he describes his experiences in travelling back and forth through the Berlin Wall.

By JOHN BEST

EAST BERLIN (CP) — At first it's difficult to see the Berlin Wall because you don't know what to look for.

Then you begin to notice it, and it's everywhere.

Seeing it for the first time, you find it impossible to suppress an emotional reaction. You think of the cliche about the wall being a monument to the failure of a system—the Communist system.

But this a less meaningful than the realization that quickly strikes you of how stark the confrontation is, here in Berlin, between East and West.

In a vague way you feel you know more than before what the Cold War is about. Here you are at the epicentre, a potential flashpoint should the Cold War ever turn hot.

I came to the wall from a different direction than most Western visitors. My view was mostly from the Communist side of the city, which is really better than West Berlin for grasping how sinister the wall is.

Nevertheless, I also had occasion to see it from the Western side. Twice in my days I had to make trips back and forth across the border on the S-bahn, the elevated railroad that still connects the two parts of the civil city.

From the railroad the "wall" you see is mostly canal, on one side of which are a no-man's land and miles of barbed wire, on the other West Berlin.

You wonder where the real wall can be. Later you realize it's an undulating barrier of many faces. Much of it consists of the walls of houses, apartment buildings or factories with the space between them bricked in.

The wall itself, erected in 1961, stands 10 feet or so high and is topped with embedded, broken glass or barbed wire.

At key points there are rope patrols, and leashed police dogs prowl for would-be refugees trying to get to the west against almost impossible odds.

There are also wide strips of open area with signs warning people to keep out. You guess that they're mined.

Peering through the Brandenburg Gate, which used to be a crossing point but now is closed to east-west traffic, you see little knots of tourists and West Berliners peering inquisitively into the eastern sector.

Checkpoint Charlie, one of the few remaining road links, is a busy place. Each vehicle is checked through with customs, immigration and other formalities, just as in border crossings elsewhere.

But to get the feel of what the division of Berlin means to Berliners it's best to travel the S-bahn (stadt-bahn, meaning city railroad).

ONLY OLD FOLKS

Every day in the East Berlin S-bahn terminal you can witness heart-rending scenes of Berliners taking leave of loved ones before getting out for the other side.

Those taking part in these tearful partings are old people. Only retired East Germans with relatives in the western sectors may visit the west.

Travellers are carefully scrutinized by East German officials both going and coming. This extends not only to passport control but also currency declarations and, for returning East Berliners, minute inspection of luggage or parcels.

Despite all the red tape, and the problem of dealing with people often bewildered and emotionally overwrought, the border officials click travellers through at a good pace.

Impressed with this triumph of good organization over a cumbersome system, I made a note to the effect that Germans can't help being efficient even under the heavy hand of communism.

Some time later I mentioned this to a high-ranking West German diplomat—causing him to beam proudly. It was an indication that German national feeling transcends ideological barriers.

NEEDED VISAS

My reason for travelling back and forth was that the Polish military mission is in West Berlin and that's where my wife Joan and I had to get our visas for Poland when we proposed to visit after Christmas.

We never did figure out why such visas should be handled in the western zone rather than by the Polish embassy in the eastern zone, unless it's because West Berlin is where the money-laden tourists are.

Our experiences with the S-bahn, if not painful, were no less difficult than those of Berliners.

This was largely because we often had three different types of currency to count up and declare—West German marks, American dollars and American dollar travellers' cheques. East German marks presented no problem—you're not allowed to take them to the West.

We got so inured around the first day that I neglected to get a travellers cheque changed into west marks before entering the passport-processing mill. The result was that we ended up, in the ticket zone with no means of buying our transportation.

Finally the ticket-taker, an understanding woman, took two used tickets off a pile and slipped them to us. Then we walked past the wicket she graciously accepted them from us again.

We looked for her every time we went on the S-bahn after that but she was never there. We owed the equivalent of about 10 cents.

PACKAGES CHECKED

We never brought anything of consequence back with us from West Berlin but we often had the chance to observe some of the things East Berliners brought back — small food packages, chocolate, sometimes cosmetics.

One time a young man ahead of us opened his briefcase to reveal several bottles of Coca-Cola.

When my turn came the inspector's eyes lit on an Egyptian and an American newspaper I was carrying under my arm. He gazed at them intently for a long time before sparingly satisfying himself they were not subversive.

Once or twice my wife had her purse searched.

But our most memorable experience came one day when we returned together to East Berlin and were sitting waiting for our passports to be processed. Joan had placed her movie camera and case on a table.

Suddenly we became aware of a ticking noise. If it wasn't exactly like the ticking of a time bomb, it was easy to mistake it for that in a room permeated with the atmosphere of the Cold War.

A uniformed official heard the noise and reacted with alarm. Who knows what emergency measures might have been put into force during the next few moments if the ticking had continued?

But Joan, rising to the occasion, calmly opened the case and pushed a button on the camera back into the lock position from which it had slipped.

Tomorrow: An East Berliner talks frankly.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonfuls a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if unsightly pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy recipe directed by those who have tried this plan and bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Like Dust Eddies Before Sandstorm, Signs of Crisis Are Seen in Arab World

Arabics in the Arab world focus on President Nasser of Egypt and King Feisal of Saudi Arabia. A Canadian Press reporter who visited the Middle East finds current tensions reminiscent of the situation a decade ago when the area was in turmoil for three years.

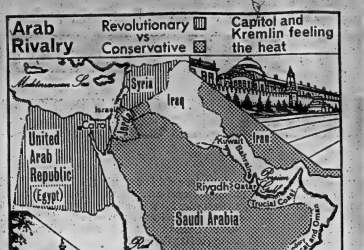
By CARL MOLLINS

BEIRUT, Lebanon (CP)—Signs of impending crisis abound in the Arab world like telltale eddies of dust before a desert sandstorm.

On a six-week tour through seven Arab territories early this summer, tiny cups of velvet Turkish coffee and jars of sweet, clear tea lubricated talk of abrasive rivalries and sour relations in the Middle East.

Antagonism between Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser and King Feisal of Saudi Arabia disturbs the careful coexistence of the last few years. Arms are flowing into the area from East and West.

Feisal's campaign for a revival of pure Islamic principles, throughout the Moslem world implies criticism of Nasser's socialism and explicitly rejects dealing with Communists. Nasser replies that Feisal is a feudalistic front man for another imperialist plot against the Arabs.



The Nasser and Feisal philosophies collide most sharply in the Arabian peninsula itself —today in Yemen, tomorrow no doubt in Aden and the next day perhaps among the oil sheikhdoms of the Persian Gulf.

In Yemen, 70,000 Egyptian troops have been fighting for the Republican cause against Saudi - backed Royalists for most of four years.

FEAR NASSER PLOT

In Aden, Feisal-style leaders of the South Arabian Federation speak darkly of a Nasserite scheme to pounce from neighboring Yemen — after the British leave Aden in 1968—as the first step in a plot to pick off the Persian Gulf sheikhdoms.

Across the Gulf of Aden in Djibouti, the French talk philosophically of powerful Soviet and Egyptian influence in neighboring Somalia and predict their own departure from French Somaliland under pressure in five or six years.

TENSION AGAIN IN ARAB WORLD — Rivalry for the Arab mind between Egypt's President Nasser and King Feisal of Saudi Arabia is shaking down the Middle East into revolutionary and conservative camps. The two blocks have been fighting in Yemen where Egypt backs the Republicans and Saudi Arabia supports the Royalists. Moscow is backing Nasser with arms and moral support; Washington has pledged defence of Saudi Arabia in case of attack. (CP Newsmap)

The tension is palpable in places — among the riflemen on the streets of Aden; talking to a Yemen army officer in Egyptian crowd that hails Nasser's threat to attack Saudi cities; among Aden revolutionaries in their Cairo headquarters; even hearing the restrained suggestion of Feisal that Egypt has no business in the Arabian peninsula.

But the quarrel has repercussions elsewhere. Other Middle East governments are being drawn into the dispute — some reluctantly, others eagerly. Behind them, the big powers grope among the subtleties of shifting Arab alignments.

The fervent young Baath socialists who seized power in Syria last February have joined in the polemics against Feisal. They are actively promoting a "revolutionary front" in concert with Egypt, Algeria and Iraq against Saudi Arabia's "imperialist and reactionary" conspiracy.

RUSSIANS ACTIVE

The move to confront Feisal is motivated in part by domestic difficulties in the four "front" countries. An external threat may divert attention from their precarious economic and political instability.

Whatever the motive, the result could calm quarrels between Egypt and Syria, Egypt and Algeria, Syria and Iraq. The Middle East would be left divided between conservative and radical blocs.

The Russians, engaged on what one Canadian envoy in the area called "a quiet but effective diplomatic offensive," have declared for the revolutionaries.

Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin gave Nasser at least moral support during his visit to Egypt in May. Soviet arms are flowing to Egypt, Syria, Iraq, Republican Yemen, Somalia and the Palestine Liberation Army. Syria is getting much Soviet economic aid and has permitted Khaled Bakdash, the Middle East's top Communist, to return from exile.

The Russian activity is said to be intended in part to keep out the Chinese—once busy in Syria, Yemen and Somalia. But Western diplomats are edgy.

The Americans and the British are hesitant about siding wholeheartedly with Feisal, although both governments wear the pro-Saudi label as far as most Arabs are concerned.

BUYS WESTERN ARMS

Feisal is buying $430,000,000 worth of arms from the West, including British planes, radar and communications systems and U.S. Hawk anti-aircraft missiles.

The United States has placed Egypt on what one diplomat described as "a short rein" by making food aid harder to get. When Nasser threatened to attack the Saudi bases of Yemen royalists, the U.S. state department issued a statement of support for Feisal.

Feisal's late-June meeting with President Johnson and his advisers Kosygin's trip to Cairo.

All this disarray in the Arab League has done nothing to relieve the chronic Arab-Israeli tension.

Armed incidents along the Israel armistice line have been more frequent. In May Egypt attempted unsuccessfully to put stop to fights along the Sinai frontier by RCAF planes of the United Nations Emergency Force, after reports of a build-up by both Israeli and Egyptian forces in the area.

In fact, allegations of a Saudi-linked "imperialist conspiracy" have been tied in with "Zionist plots." The reasoning here was expressed by a Lebanese politician: the West is using its own arms shipments to Saudi Arabia as an excuse to provide Israel with a balancing supply, he said.

KEPT IN TURMOIL

Experienced Arab and Western observers here have remarked that current discord in the Middle East is reminiscent of tensions 10 years ago, tensions that kept the area in turmoil for three years.

A decade ago, the tensions led to the Suez clash of 1956; the abortive "Eisenhower Doctrine" of 1957 that tried to set up Saudi Arabia as a counterweight to Egypt; a threatened Communist takeover in Syria, the overthrow of Iraq's royal government and civil strife in Lebanon that brought U.S. Marines to Beirut and sent British paratroops to Jordan in 1958.

Few experts expect history to repeat itself precisely. As one Arab journalist remarked with a wry smile: "Surely everybody involved — including Nasser, Britain and the United States—is wiser from experience."

Nevertheless, politicians and diplomats in their air-conditioned offices forecast that this summer in the Middle East will be long and stifling, with storms a possibility.

Tomorrow: Feisal's pan-Islam policies stir shock waves in Middle East.

SAUDI KING LEADS ARAB BLOC — King Feisal of Saudi Arabia (right) is trying to promote a return to basic Islamic principles throughout the Arab world. Opposing him is a radical bloc led by Egypt's President Nasser. Feisal is shown during an interview in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, with Canadian Press reporter Carl Mollins who recently completed a seven-week tour of seven countries in the Middle East. Mollins, a native of Windsor, N.S., wrote on international affairs for Reuters before joining CP five years ago. (CP Photo)

FICTION: — The Spirit of '49 - .41 is shroud in this race-mad hub of Prince Edward county. In the sheraline shadows of Hayward Lazy Ranch a ghostly "Miss Supertest III" slides along in a misty patrol. Somewhere along the sidelines of spectadom's Valhalla lingers the spirits of Bob Hayward and Bob Finlayson.

The sun-glinted gently-rippled waters of Hayward Reach softly lap a shoreline overture to the forthcoming nautical spectacular the World Limited Power Boat Championship scheduled for the holiday week-end.

The cast of some forty actors are either here champing their bows, or enroute to the stage where it is expected world powerboat history is in the making.

Commodore Jack Hartwick of the Prince Edward Yacht Club and his hard-working committees; Mayor Harvey J. McFarland and others directly connected with the operations are highly optimistic over the success of the second world championship speedboat classic to be held within their confines.

Don King, chairman of publicity told this agent, "We feel this classic will be a tremendous success — and that is not just wishful thinking. Entries for the big event are still coming in. We expect some as late as Friday morning. We have nearly 40 at the moment."

Town organizations and individuals are channeling their efforts into a fine spirit of co-operation, Mr. King said. "The J.C.'s are handling the program; the teen-set the concessions and all-in all it has developed into a real community effort."

Top men of limited power boat racing are or will be here. The American Power Boat Association headquartered at Detroit, the "pentagon" of United States racing, will be represented. Commodore Charles Speers, veteran chief of the Canadian Boating Federation the supervising organization has been here for some time. High ranking officials of both organizations will accompany their chiefs. It is expected a representative of the world governing body, the Union of International Motorboating, Ghent, Belgium will be on hand.

It will be a nostalgic event for Jim Thompson, head of the Supertest Corporation of London, Ontario, designer, builder and driving genius of "Miss Supertest III", Canada's undefeated Harmsworth Trophy champion, now retired.

Mr. Thompson is returning to the scene of his world triumphs of 1963 and 1961, the climactic efforts of his driver Bobby Hayward who was killed in 1962 driving "Miss Supertest II" on the Detroit River.

If is hoped the weatherman will send a warm sun tempered with mild breezes, over the lovely Prince Edward terrain that frames the ribboning Hayward Reach. Arrangements have been made to accomodate an expected 25,000 people. There will be free parking.

Thrill-seekers won't be disappointed. The best drivers in the United States and Canada will throttle their wave-spanning hellions over the ten-lap 25-mile course at speeds close to 150 miles per hour. The world record is 153.47. And they'll be shooting for the new "Maple Leaf Trophy" a thing of golden beauty for the first time. The "keeper" donated by Mayor McFarland and the Procter-Silex people almost rivals the beauty of the parent trophy.

The "O'Keefe Trophy" presented for the first time for annual competition for the regatta's special "Grand Prix" race is another thing of beauty.

It will be a weekend of spectacle, dare-devil driving and spills, chills and possibly spills.

Qualification and elimination heats are being staged on Friday. Competitive heats will be raced on Saturday with the climactic final of the "Maple Leaf Trophy" race scheduled for Sunday at 4 p.m. The race program which appears on the sports pages will give you all the details.

Vaughan Out Of Retirement

OTTAWA (CP) — Kaye Vaughan, attempting a gridiron comeback at 36, signed a one-year contract Tuesday with Ottawa Rough Riders, for whom he was a standout at tackle and guard for 12 years before retiring in 1956.

The club also announced signing to one-year contracts of fullback Rick Black, 23, and halfback Ron Stewart, 30. Black will be playing his fourth season with Ottawa, Stewart his ninth.

Kansas City Athletics never had it so good.

The Athletics, perennial American League tailenders under a succession of frustrated managers, continued their upswing under new pilot Alvin Dark Tuesday night by snickering first-place Baltimore Orioles 4-3.

The victory was the fifth for the Athletics in their last six starts. They are eighth in the American League standings, nine games below the .500 mark but only one-half a game behind New York Yankees who lost 8-3 to last-place Boston Red Sox.

Dark has his club on the move. After losing 15 of their first 20 games, the Athletics have gone 30-20 since May 8.

In other games, Detroit Tigers clobbered California Angels 13-3, Minnesota Twins blanked Cleveland Indians 4-0 and Washington Senators beat Chicago White Sox 6-1.

LOST 19 PLAYERS

Ten Kansas City players have departed since spring training—including 1965 favorites John Wyatt, Wayne Causey and Ken Harrelson—but Dark is getting mileage out of newcomers Danny Cater (White Sox), Roger Repoz (Yankees) and Jim Gosger (Red Sox).

Cater and Gosger each doubled in a run against the Orioles in the first inning while rookie Chuck Dobson (16-6) and reliever Ken Sanders and Jack Aker checked Baltimore on six hits. Mike Hershberger's sacrifice fly after singles by Bert Campaneris and Gosger added a run in the fifth and Sanders's runscoring single in the sixth wound up the Kansas City attack.

Home runs by George Thomas and Mike Ryan, coupled with five Yankee errors, helped the Red Sox down New York behind the six-hit pitching of Jose Santiago, who survived two home runs by Mickey Mantle.

DROVE IN THREE

Mantle smashed a two-run homer in the first inning and hit the ninth of the season with the bases empty in the eighth.

Willie Horton paced a 20-hit Detroit assault with two singles and a homer, driving in five runs as the Tigers climbed within 2½ games of the league lead. Jake Wood knocked in four runs with three singles while Al Kaline and Norm Cash also homered for the Tigers.

Camilo Pascual and Al Worthington subdued Cleveland on five hits as the Twins rolled to their fourth victory in a row. Tony Oliva, Cesar Tovar and Harmon Killebrew produced Minnesota runs with a homer, two triples and double, respectively.

The Senators breezed past Chicago as southpaw Mike McCormick scattered five hits and belted a homer. Don Loch cracked a three-run homer for Washington while Bill Skowron had a homer, double and single for the White Sox.

AHL Buffalo Bisons

Ask Franchise Suspension

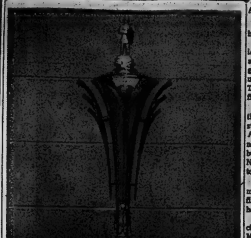
HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Fred Hood, general manager of Buffalo Bisons, asked the American Hockey League Tuesday to suspend Buffalo's franchise, believed to be because Buffalo is unable to get top-quality players.

Hunt made the surprise move at the league's annual owners' meeting.

The board of governors immediately requested Buffalo owner Ruben Pinter to attend today's meeting to discuss the matter.

Buffalo, believed to have lost money last year even though the nine-team league grossed more than $3,000,000, has had a working agreement for several years with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League.



Last year, however, the Black Hawks called up several outstanding players from the Bisons, including Art Stratton, Len Lunde and John Miszuk. Several Bison players called up were later reassigned to the Hawks' St. Louis team in the Central Professional League.

Buffalo joined the AHL in the 1956-57 season and has won four Calder Cup championships.

In another matter, the board of governors named Paul Bright, Cleveland president and general manager, as interim president.

Bright is a member of a three-man committee that will recommend a successor to Jack Riley, current president, resigned to become general manager of the new Pittsburgh team in the NHL.

Point Anne Boat Seeks World Trophy

A single local entry in the limited power boat world championship races at Picton's Hayward Reach this weekend is owned and driven by a veteran competitor from Point Anne.

Murney Carter has been racing for some 12 years.

The boat Carter will be driving this weekend is distinct in that it has no name.

It is in the 150 class, the same class boat that the famous Pops Cooper was driving when he was killed near Picton.

Carter last raced in Valleyfield, Quebec, last July and was in an accident that has sidelined his boat until now.

He has owned this boat for about three years.

Prior to that, Carter raced smaller boats and won the C.O.D. World Championship. The name of that boat was "Maybe."

There is no "maybe" about it this weekend.

Carter and his unnamed 150 will be bidding for another world championship but as the entry list shows, the competition will be extremely tough.

There are currently 25 boats entered and more are expected.

Hunter Mays Hot On Trail Of Foxx

Reds Drop Dodgers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ted Williams, one of the most feared sluggers in baseball history, doesn't mind being passed in the all-time home run derby by Willie Mays.

"I'm very happy for him," Williams said in extending Mays congratulations for displacing him as the game's No. 3 home run hitter.

Williams, scheduled for induction into the Hall of Fame next month at Cooperstown, N.Y., played for Boston Red Sox from 1939 until his retirement in 1960. Despite hitches as a marine corps flyer in the Second World War and the Korean conflict, he batted .344 and hit 521 homers.

Mays passed Williams by cracking his 522nd career homer in San Francisco Giants' victory over St. Louis Cardinals Monday night. The Giants' spectacular centre fielder now trails only Babe Ruth 714 and Jimmy Foxx 534 in career homers.

Mays made it 523 when the Giants' topped the Cards 7-4 Tuesday night.

Righthander Bobby Bolin held the Cards to two hits and the National League-leading Giants remained four games ahead of Pittsburgh Pirates.

PIRATES DOWN ASTROS

Meanwhile, the Pirates downed Houston Astros 4-3, Jim Bunning pitched a two-hitter for Philadelphia as the Phillies nipped New York Mets 1-0, Cincinnati Reds dropped Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1 and Atlanta Braves whipped Chicago Cubs 4-2.

The Giants jumped ahead early, scoring two runs in the third and two more in the fourth. Mays' two-run homer in the eighth capped the scoring.

Bob Veale scattered eight hits for the Pirates. Run-scoring singles by Roberto Clemente and Don Hoegan in the fifth inning put Pittsburgh in front for good as Veale blanked the Astros over the last six innings.

Bunning, who pitched a perfect game in New York two years ago, allowed the Mets only two singles, in the fifth inning, and the only run he needed on Bill White's two-out homer in the seventh.

Cincinnati won its 10th game in the last 11 as Sammy Ellis limited the Dodgers to five hits. Tommy Harper slammed a homer and two singles, leading Cincinnati's attack.

Joe Torre drove in three runs with a single and his 17th homer accounting for half of Atlanta's hits against Chicago.

Pointers Shade City Hotel

A single run in the bottom of the ninth shoved home the winning run as Point Anne edged City Hotel 4-3 at the Point last night.

The victory was a big one for the Connemara, moving them into a points tie for the top with Stewart Warner. Point Anne has three games in hand.

Winning pitcher Maurice Kimmett ignited his own winning inning with a base hit. He reached third on a wild throw and a passed ball and raced home to win it on Gerry Maher's single.

City Hotel had plated two in the second; the Pointers three in the third and City another in the fourth to send it into extra innings tied 3-3.

Wimmett hurled nine-hit ball over the route. He struck out three and walked four.

Dave Feeney also pitched well in defeat. He gave up seven hits, fanning none and passing a pair.

Rick Rossbush and Maurice Kimmett collected two singles each for the On-Pointers. Ray Summers hit a double. Gerry Maher and Glen Maracle a single each.

Dave Feeney led his own attack with a double and two singles and Doug Hall picked up a pair. Gerry Genereaux added a double, Doug Moreau, Doug Murray and Bob Brooks a hit each.

Summers' double plated two and K. Maher's sacrifice bunt netted another in the winners' third.

Hits by Murray, Brooks and Feeney combined with an error to net the losers' first pair. Genereaux and Feeney hit doubles to tie it 3-3. They had men on second and third with one out in the ninth but left both.

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method

by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

A SURE WAY TO RATTLE YOUR OPPONENT

From Walter Hagen on down, the great match play golfers have been those who never know when to quit. These players just love to beat you, and they often do just that.

I've noticed that good competitors often play their best when they are behind. They realize that there is nothing more demoralizing to an opponent than to steal a hole he apparently has won. They seem to welcome the opportunity to come from behind.

Let's say your opponent is on the green in two shots (see illustration) and you are shooting four from the sand. Don't give up; try to hole your shot. Can you imagine how that would frustrate your opponent? It could change the whole tide of the match.

Never give up. A key shot that steals a hole is much more valuable psychologically than any other well-played shot.

Belvedere Thumps S. Warner

Belvedere Hotel exploded for nine runs in the fourth frame to defeat the sagging Stewart Warner ball club 11-5 in a Commercial softball fixture last night.

The losers have now dropped five of their last six games, dropping from a 7-1 won-lost record to 8-6.

Warners held a slight 3-1 lead up until the fourth, when Belvedere jumped on two Warner pitchers for the bagful of runs, on two three-run round-trippers.

Warners added five more in the last three innings but fell short by three runs.

Larry McMasters hurled the win, giving up 10 hits, walking seven and whiffing one.

Junior Day, Jim Meens, and Doug Edis all shared the losers' plunging load. They allowed 18 hits, walked five and did not strike out a man.

Cliff Bowman lashed a double, single and homer to lead the winners' attack. Jim Muir slammed a single and homer, Jack Casey hit a home run, and Pug Kellar stroked a pair of singles. Jack Hughes, George Perry and Doug Reid had safeties.

Pat Glancey banged out two doubles and a single, Bert Ellis and Gary Gow had a double and single each, and Charles Rowbotham smashed a home run for the losers. Lyle Wannamaker and Gary Gee had singles.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Ernie Terrell of Chicago, World Boxing Association champion, Tuesday night gave away two rounds on low blows and still won a lopsided decision over dogged New York Doug Jones.

Terrell's next opponent may be Cleveland Williams, the Houston heavyweight on the comeback trail after a serious wound from a highway patrolman's gun.

Williams appeared on the card Tuesday night when Terrell won a unanimous 15-round decision over Jones before 9,346 fans who paid $102,185. Cleveland proceeded to beat up Ted Herring of Houston so badly he got a technical knockout early in the third round.

Williams' manager, Hugh Benbow, already has offered $50,000 to Terrell to fight his boy. Terrell also has a $75,000 offer to fight Canadian George Chuvalo, the man he defended his title against the first time last November.

BOO BOLDING

Jones was bitter about Terrell's holding tactics in the late rounds — something the crowd booed lustily. Jones said it was a wrestling match, not a boxing match.

The second and 14th rounds were taken away from Terrell for low blows. Before the referee, Ernie Taylor, could even rule on the second foul, a Jones second, Robin Blackmon, rushed across the ring and the referee had to order him out.

Terrell said he had hurt his hand on Jones' head "or I would have knocked him out."

The WBA champion gets $40,886 from the live gate while Jones receives $25,541. The fight also was carried over 67 outlets on closed television and Terrell gets 42½ per cent of that revenue while Jones receives 30 per cent.

Terrell should wind up with more than $120,000 from both sources and Jones about $125,000.

Outlast Trudeaus 11-8

Cats Win Hit-And-Misser

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Base hits and errors came in Chunks at last night as Park League action got underway with the Cats outlasting the Trudeaus 11-8.

All told, there were 16 hits in the contest, 11 by the Bobcats, and a dozen errors, eight by Trudeaus. And when Trudeaus went to pieces they went all the way. As well as the four ninth-frame bobbles, they had three to go with as many 'Cat hits in last fourth, producing a 9-1 Bobcat lead. Not until Trudeaus ripped back to lead 4-3 in the bottom of the inning on three solid shots, topped by Larry Mavety's three-run circuit blast.

Again the Bobcats surged ahead, scoring four in the fifth for a 7-4 margin, five hits and a walk did the damage this time.

Trudeaus had their own field day in the ninth, aided by five Tabbie miscues, three hits and a walk. That chased four runs home and put the score ahead 8-7.

It stayed that way until the ninth.

Each side used three pitchers. For the Bobcats, Clair Leahy started and was chased in the sixth in favor of Bob Lott who gave way for a pinch-hitter in the ninth. Joe Barnes hurled the bottom of the inning to preserve the win for Lott.

Bill Baldwin lasted until the fifth as the Trudeau starter. Pat Miracle toiled until arm trouble forced him out, with the 6-7 lead, after the eighth. Howard Jaffe pitched the ninth and received the loss.

Every starting player in the winners' lineup hit safely, led by Terry LeSage, with a double and single, and Rick Locke, with two infield hits. Paul Zahos doubled, Paul Merwe, Lon Mowat, John McKibbon, Garry Duggan, Bill Moore and Clair Leahy notching singles.

Ralph Plaxe lashed a double and single and Larry Mavety hit home run for Trudeaus, with Pete Weston singling twice, Roger Drake and Bob Wannamaker once each.

Abigail Sets New 880 Mark

TORONTO (CP)—Abigail Hoffman of Toronto set a Canadian women's 880 - yard record of 2:07.8 in a race here Tuesday night. Her time was 2.1 seconds lower than the mark she set in June, 1965.

Motorcycle Races

Top Riders Here Friday

Some of the nation's top motorcycle riders will converge on Belleville Friday, July 1st, when the Belleville Agricultural Society in co-operation with the Picton Pushers Motorcycle Club stage the first race meet of the season.

It's expected that at least forty Canadian Motorcycle Association competitors will be entered in the four major classes: Junior, Senior, Expert and 250 cc.

Racing fans are looking for the big action in the Expert Class when rivalry resumes between Yvon Duhamel, of Montreal, the 1965 National Champion and presently Canada's No. 1 rider; Don McHugh, of Brampton, six time National Champ and eight time Ontario champion, and Doug Showler of Cleveland, Ohio, who won the 1965 Ontario Championship here in Belleville last August.

These three experts put on a 'classic' duel at Belleville Fair last year. Every lap record was broken as Showler won over McHugh by half a wheel with Duhamel right in the pocket behind them. Straightaway speeds up to 95 mph were recorded.

This year with the track surface in perfect condition and new lighting installed, the old records could fall again. A hot newcomer is Dave Sehl of Waterdown, Ontario. Dave is still in the Junior and 250 cc class. On June 17th, he won all 250 cc heats and the final at New Hamburg, Ontario.

The Fair Grounds oval is the only half-mile lighted track available for racing in Ontario.

HEARINGS END

MONTREAL (CP) — Formal conciliation hearings into contract disputes between the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC) and four Canadian railway companies wound up Tuesday after the CNR gave a final summation of the railway's arguments. The union, which represents some 22,000 non-operating railway workers, is demanding a 90-cent-an-hour wage increase for all employees.

Close Race for Gals' Golf Spots

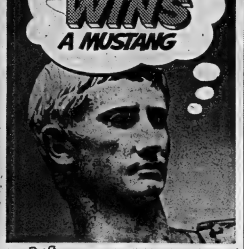
TORONTO (CP)—Only eight points in three of the seven team points separate six women battling for the last two places on spot in the four-member Ontario women's interprovincial golf team, maidenhead third place Tuesday.



The fifth test match was with 14 points.

The first test match was with 14 points, played Tuesday at the Mississauga Golf Club, about 20 miles west of Toronto.

Norreen McKay of Lambton shot 88 and picked up three points for a total of 13 while Kay Hellner of Toronto won only two points and fell to fifth place with 12 points. Pat McClellan of Toronto is sixth with 11 points.

Gail Harvey, Canadian closed champion, is an automatic member of the team. Marlene Stewart Streit has amassed 39 points.

How They're Biting

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Most folks swaltered and complained in the hot, humid weather that swept over Ontario last week. But not the angler. He sweltered, yes, but he enjoyed excellent bass and pickerel fishing.

The bass season opened generally throughout the province last Saturday and good to excellent catches were reported by the Ontario department of lands and forests. And pickerel — with a general opening last month — continued to be fair to hot and lure in goodly numbers.

However, the hot weather had a noticeable effect on speckled trout, with poor to fair results reported in most of the department's 32 districts.

SOUTH

Lake Simcoe—Speckled and rainbow trout fair in Nottawasaga River. Bass good and pickerel fair in Lake Simcoe. Bass, pike and pickerel fair to good in Lake Couchiching and Sparrow Lake. A 6-pound muskellunge, 55 inches long, caught in Lake Couchiching.

EAST

Lindsay—Lake trout and bass good in Gooderham area, pickerel fair, muskellunge and smallmouth bass poor. Bass fair in all lakes in Apsley area. Lake trout fair in Eels and Anstruther lakes. Pickerel fair to good, muskellunge and bass fair in Burnt River and good in Rice Lake.

Kemptville — Fishing generally poor. Trout in Lanark County fair to poor. All species poor in the Ottawa River. Pike and perch excellent in the St. Lawrence River and Lancaster area.

Pembroke — All species poor to fair in the 1,196-gnawed pike in Round Lake.

Tweed—Lake trout good in Burns, Clear, Lesley, Wesley, Limerick and Lamabla lakes; speckled trout fair to poor throughout district. Rainbow trout good in Sleepy Lake, fair in Diamond Lake, fair to poor in rest of district. Pickerel excellent in Plevna Lake, good in Buckshot, Cross, Malcolm, Mud and Stoco Lakes and in the Ottawa River at the Chenaux Dam. Pike fair in the County Marsh section of the St. Lawrence River. Bass excellent in Sydenham and Limerick Lakes, good in the St. Lawrence and Rideau rivers and Lake Ontario around Main Duck Island. Panfish good throughout the district. Best baits spinners, plugs and worms.

Robert Taylor at 54 Making Another Movie for MGM

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Robert Taylor is back making a movie at MGM.

That should evoke a rush of memories for the movie buff. All the wondrous old films: Camille, Waterloo Bridge, Broadway Melody, Johnny Eager, A Yank at Oxford, etc., etc.

And what about these titles: Wicked Woman, Society Doctor, Gorgeous Hussy, Her Cardboard Lover, Times Square Lady, etc., etc.?

All these films and many more were made by Taylor during the longest contract ever fulfilled by a Hollywood star. He signed with MGM in 1934 when he was Spangler Arlington Brough, just out of Pomona College. His exclusive contract ended in 1958, but he remained until 1960 on a non-exclusive basis.

Now he's back playing in a western, Return of the Gunfighter.

At 54, Taylor's face is a bit more lined, but his figure remains a trim 175. The famous Taylor hairline, widow's peak and all, is the same as ever.

WAS LIGHT

"I was skinny as a rail back in the early days here," he recalled. "I think I weighed 140 pounds when I made Camille. Now I'm pretty careful to mix my arms and carry her and I'm most didn't make it. Those pictures after me was carrying must have weighed 50 pounds."

Whereas he started his career as a romantic leading man, Taylor has specialized in tough cops in recent years. He did his first television with his Detectives series, which lasted three years. Now he prefers to do features.

"I just want to make enough money to pay my bills," he said, "and I usually accounts to a couple of pictures a year. And I try not to plan them during the fishing season."

Fishing is almost another profession for Taylor. Luckily his wife, the Germans beauty Ursula Theiss, shares his love of angling. The couple and their two children spend vacations on the Colorado River, where they keep a cabin cruiser.

"That's where we're heading as soon as this picture is over," he said.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Tilted Here, owned by Mrs. Ethel Jones of Queen's Plate, was a 5-2 favorite Good, who has twice defeated Tilted Here this year, have been assigned top weight of 126 pounds for Saturday's Toronto Cup Handicap.

The Toronto Cup, carrying a purse of $10,000 added, is for three-year olds over 1 1-16 miles of grass.

Tilted Here, owned by Peter Marshall and trained by Pat MacMurchy, was Canada's top two-year-old of 1963.

Edward Pasquale's Stevie B. Good had to miles the plate. The 5-year-old gelding wasn't kept eligible. In five 1960 outings Stevie B. Good has three wins and two seconds.

Belleville Parsons, United Draw 1-1

Belleville Parsons and Kingston United failed to snap their first-place deadlock in the Kingston District Soccer League standings last night.

They battled to a 1-1 draw in one of the season's better games under the lights at the Fairgrounds last night.

Despite the heat, both teams travelled at top speed all night and goalies Roy Rivers, of Parsons, and G. Nicholls, of United, played excellent games.

Belleville jumped ahead after 30 minutes of play. Bob Rotherford blasted a hard shot which deflected into the net off a Kingston defender.

Houghton, at centre half for United, and Parsons' Jim Bryce and Herb Mueller, played strong defence games as the teams remained 1-0 until near game's end.

With ten minutes left to play, Kingston tied it on a penalty shot after a Parsons player had handled the ball. Joe Weir drove the shot low into the corner for the final 1-1 score.

Parsons' striker came close to winning it. Joe Iasenza hit a good post and Subject Medford drove the rebound off the cross bar. United also came close on a rush by Westerhof but his narrow-angle shot missed by inches.

Belleville's next league game is in Kingston, against Brockville, on July 9. They are attempting to play an exhibition game against Trenton High School next Tuesday.

Big Hotels Coming Down To Make Room for Offices

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—During a period when many people go on vacations or do some travelling, CBS Tuesday night presented an amusing urbane hour about a vacationless subject—the places they will stay.

Essay on Hotels started with a brief history of lodging places. The first real hotel in the U.S. was in Washington in 1793. By 1829 "palatial palaces" such as Boston's Copley-Plaza, New York's Plaza and Downer's Harbor Palace were going up.

Then there was the era of the great resort hotels, few of which still remain, the Greenbrier at the site of the famed Grand Union of Saratoga there now stands a shopping center with the same name. Going also are the smaller hotels and inns that feature family meals and many downtown hotels are in trouble and many are coming down to make room for office space.

HOTELS MULTIPLY

Motels are increasing along with the increase in automobile and plane traffic. They are popping up along all the main roads and at the airports and are invading the cities.

The program often accompanied the pictures with witty background music. It played Here's a Small Hotel as the cameras panned the unbelievable architecture of Miami beachfront.

Rooney bowed to San Francisco as "maybe the best hotel town in the world," and skipped over the neon-lighted spots of Las Vegas and Reno and Texas, illustrating a recent vogue, with cameras lingered on some initiation Greek and Roman art standing around incredibly modern motels as the crisp voice of narrator Harry Reasoner stated,

"There are hotels in this country that are veritable museums of bad taste in sculpture."

In addition to seeing the most luxurious and the latest in lodging houses, we also were given glimpses of life in a Bowery flophouse.

Favor Senor Santana

LONDON (CP) — Spaniard Manuel Santana today is favored to defeat unseeded Australian Owen Davidson. A victory by Santana would leave the Andrew Jr. tennis finals without an Australian for the first time in 14 years.

Santana Tuesday was against Australia's Ken Fletcher 6-2, 2-6, 8-6, 6-8, 7-5.

The other big semi-final match today has Dennis Ralston of the U.S. going against South Africa's Cliff Drysdale. Tuesday Drysdale upset Australia's Tony Roche, the No. 2 seed, 9-7, 6-2, 6-3.

Britain's Mrs. Ann Jones defeated Nancy Richey of the U.S. 6-4, 6-1, 6-1, the defending women's champion, Margaret Smith of Australia, crushed Trudy Groenman of The Netherlands 6-0, 6-4, Maria Bueno of Brazil downed Francoise Durr of France 6-3, 6-3 and Mrs. Billie Jean Moffitt King of the U.S. overcame Annette van Zyl of South Africa 1-6, 6-2, 6-4.

In today's semi-finals, Miss Smith will play Mrs. King and Mrs. Jones will face Miss Bueno.

Double Bill At Alemite

Softball fans will get a "double dose" of action at Alemite Park tonight.

One Commercial league game and one Belleville and District tilt will be played.

The Commercial game, between Belvedere Hotel and City Hotel, has been moved up to 6.30.

Saturday's E. and D. game: Madoc vs. Ellis Juniors, has been moved into the 8.30 time slot tonight. And Trudeau Motors go to Picton for a 8.00 p.m. game.

Meanwhile, Picton Kinsmen and the Bobcats will play a game postponed on June 9, this Saturday night, at 8.30, also at Alemite Park.

Turning to baseball, the South Hastings league game between Hamilton Place's and Belleville Acme, postponed because of motorcycle races this Friday, has been re-scheduled for Monday, July 4, at 8.00 p.m. at the Belleville Fairgrounds.

Minor Baseball Results

Mel Barrage Construction slipped past Mead Johnson 8-7 in a BMBA bantam battle last night. In pawwer, I.B.E.W. defeated Fountain Park 8-3 and in a tyke tilt the Jaycees clobbered Little Oven Bakery 22-2.

Moe Thompson pitched for Barrages, fanning nine, walking four and giving up 12 hits. Jim Potts and Chuck Crossen buried for the losers, striking out seven, walking two and allowing nine hits. Six errors by their team mates proved costly.

Brian Coughlin lashed a double and two singles for Barrages. Glen Carleton stroked two singles, and Moe Thompson and Paul Hall had singles.

Al Smith slammed a homer and double for Mead Johnson. Don Baskey doubled and singled, Paul Muldoon and Stan Buck hit two singles each, Jim Potts tripled, and Jeff Mason, Garry Wood and Chuck Crossen all had base hits.

In the peewee contest, Art Wellsley belted for I.B.E.W. He whiffed 11, walked seven, and allowed three hits.

Stan Brooks threw for the losers. He gave up only four hits, struck out eight and walked seven.

Bill Coughlin doubled, and Mike Burley, Brian Carley and Al Wood singled for I.B.E.W.

Paul Wolfe, Jim Richardson and Stan Brooks had base hits for the losers.

Tim Whalen and Ron Wood pitched for the Jaycees, in the tyke league, giving up six hits, walking five and fanning 12.

Murray Dales, Rick Bell and Mark Coates pitched for the Bakery. They fanned 13, walked one and were pounded for 22 hits.

Dave Fisch, Dale Sullivan, Tim Whalen, Bruce Clark, Pat McEnany, Mike Watt, Bill Sturgess, Vern Woodcock and Ron Wood hit for the Jaycees.

For the losers, Ernie Duffy, Murray Dales, Steve Cowan, Brian Duffy and Rick Bell were the hitters.

LIFT BAN

ROME (AP)—The European Boxing Union lifted a ban on European fights by Sonny Liston Tuesday and cleared the way for the former world heavyweight champion to fight Gerard Zeh, German heavyweight, in Stockholm Friday.

Four Bouts On Deck For Cassius Cashing In

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay will meet unranked Brian London in London Aug. 6 or 13 and Germany's Karl Mildenberger in Frankfurt Sept. 10 or 17 in an effort to cash in quickly on his popularity overseas.

Arthur Grathoe, attorney for Clay's Louisville sponsoring group, said Tuesday night the London fight is set for indoor Wembley Stadium, which seats 12,000, with Aug. 6 the most likely date.

The Mildenberger - Clay fight would depend on Clay's beating the 35-year-old former British champion.

The fights also depend on Clay getting clearance from his draft board to go overseas. He is classified 1-A, making him subject to military call-up, but he has appealed his classification.

Clay was cleared for title fights against George Chuvalo in Toronto March 29 and Henry Cooper in London May 21. He outpointed Chuvalo in a one-sided 15-rounder and stopped Cooper on cuts in the sixth round.

Leafs Edge Jets 5-4, Hens Split

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs surged to within one game of the International League's first division Tuesday night, and pitcher Gary Waslewski took the lead in the circuit's pitching race.

The Leafs came within a single game of fourth-place Buffalo Bisons and Toledo Mud Hens with a 5-4 victory over league-leading Columbus Jets, and Waslewski became the winningest pitcher on the circuit by increasing his season record to 10-4.

It was the fourth consecutive victory for the Leafs over the Jets.

Elsewhere, Toledo won the opener of a doubleheader 4-1 from Buffalo, but the Bisons won the nightcap 8-6, Rochester Red Wings defeated Richmond Braves 4-3, and Jacksonville Suns edged Syracuse Chiefs 4-3 in 10 innings.

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

The Buick Special Deluxe Sedan

There are few cars that can offer the same pride-of-ownership that a Buick can. Prestige, luxury, comfort, performance; Buick has them all. It's no secret that Buick is a superlative automobile. Most everybody knows it. But we'd bet that most everybody doesn't realize that there's a Buick model around that's right in competition with lower-priced cars. Buick Special!

Buick Special possesses all the traditional Buick qualities . . . tuned ride and handling, tuned performance, tuned styling. But Buick Special is just a little smaller. And remarkably easy to own.

Buick Special is practically in a class by itself. For one thing it's the only car you'll find with a standard V6 engine that achieves that elusive combination of performance and economy.

Buick Special is available with a choice of three seating styles. Standard bench, notch-back bench (buckets with the armrest down, bench with the armrest up), and honest-to-goodness buckets. So pick your Special and furnish the interior like you would your living-room.

OK. Buick Special is a little great. It's a Buick and it has a lot going for it. It's a Buick and it's priced lower than a lot of cars that can't come close to Buick for prestige value. So what else is new?

Deals. Right now you've got a better-than-ever chance of getting the price you want along with a pretty astounding allowance on your present car. We call this a Sensational Summer Saving. You'll call it the easiest (and smartest) way to go first class you've ever seen.

So hop in your trade-in and drive on down to your Buick dealer's. And remember, do up your seat belts before you start the engine. It's a good habit.

Area School Board Approves Plans for School

TYENDINAGA — Tyendinaga Township will build a new school to contain eight classrooms, and auditorium, offices for principal and for teachers, 4 large kitchen and several washrooms. The teachers' room will double as a nurse's room.

Preliminary plans were presented to the area school board meeting Monday night in School number seven on Highway 502. The plans did not meet with the entire approval of the board members, and the architect was instructed to submit a new sketch plan which would incorporate the changes the members desired at a meeting next week later.

The board is desirous of getting away from the usual box like type school, and wish to build a school which will be beautiful as well as functional. It will be situated on the Shannonville gravel road, just north of Highway 401.

Once the sketch plans have met the approval of the board, a copy will be submitted to the Department of Education for its approval.

Work has already been done to get the project under way. Tyendinaga Township Council has approved the issuing of debentures for approximately $235,000, and the approval of the Ontario Municipal Board has been secured.

The board is tentatively looking forward to Easter as the opening date. Also, it is hopeful of getting the construction Raymond wedding at Roseneath where recently.

Two CBC VP's For Programs Recommended

OTTAWA (CP) — Immediate appointment of senior CBC vice-presidents to live in Montreal and Toronto and direct French and English network programming was recommended Wednesday by the Commons broadcasting committee.

The committee, which found evidence of serious problems between management and producers, also proposed establishment of a grievance procedure to handle personnel problems and try to prevent them bursting into public.

And, concluding that the many functions assigned to the CBC president make his job almost impossible, it said the duties of his authority should be defined more clearly.

The report, tabled in the Commons, follows one by Stuart Keate of Vancouver on the Seven Days dispute and comes only hours or days before the government produces its long-awaited white paper on broadcasting.

It was studied Wednesday by the CBC's board of directors at its annual meeting here, a board statement—not necessarily short in the committee's opinion—is expected sometime today.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said in the Commons committee report is "condemnation in a diplomatic way" of CBC management and "a most early attention by Parliament.

He said the committee's recommendations for redefinition of the terms of authority of he corporation's president receives parliamentary study and cannot be left to the CBC.

Nobody at the CBC "seems to know what is constitutionally Mr. Diefenbaker said.

The committee heard evidence from CBC officials, journalists on the strike in protest against management decision not to keep Patrick Watson and Lister LaFleche—co-hosts of the television program This Hour Has Seven Days.

Others before the strike dead-line, Prime Minister Pearson appointed Mr. Keate to act as fact-finder in the dispute; two producers postponed their deadline for striking.

Mr. Keate's report asked

Holiday Weather To Be Good

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Promise of fair weather across most of the country for Canada's 99th birthday Friday is expected to bring thousands of persons out of their homes during the three-day Dominion Day weekend to watch or participate in recreational summer pastimes.

Boating regattas, car racing, track and field meets, riding derbies, horse racing and just plain loafing in the sun are only a few of the prospects open as police predict traffic-swamped highways in most areas.

Airlines and railway officials say extra service will be provided on some routes.

The usual scorching heat comes from the Canadian Highway Safety Council which this week predicts 84 persons will die on Canadian roads during the weekend. The National Safety League estimates 76 more will drown.

Summer Recess Delayed

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) —An opposition plan in force an old age pension increase appears to have caused at least a one-week delay in the start of Parliament's summer recess.

The government had hoped for an adjournment of the first session of the 27th Parliament today. Now informed sources say the likely date is Thursday or Friday of next week.

With the NDP showing the way, opposition members chose to speak rather than vote on a bill to establish the Canada Assistance Plan.

The plan, up for second reading — approval in principle— would provide extra government assistance for needy people.

Members from all opposition parties claimed Wednesday the plan did not go far enough. They also wanted an increase in the old age pension to $100 from $75 a month without a means test.

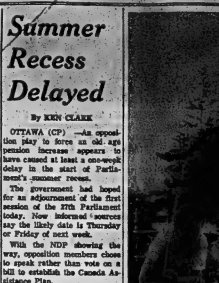
Health Minister MacEachen, showing no signs of giving in, accused the NDP of a "persistent filibuster" of the assistance plan.

EXCHANGE WAS SHARP

The sparrk came in a sharp exchange with NDP Leader Douglas who said Mr. MacEachen had no right to impute motives.

Later Ed Schreyer (NDP—Springfield) said an filibuster was involved. NDP members preferred to term their actions as "unhurried examination" of the assistance bill.

In line with this they dished a long list of speakers, each of whom spoke at some length.



Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) joined the chorus saying he was "prepared to sit here all summer" to get the proposed legislation in shape.

Real Caouette (Creditiste — Lapointe) expressed the same view.

The battle lines were hardened earlier when Prime Minister Pearson said the government had no plans to bring in old age pension increases before the summer break.

A possible way out was put forth by Eric Winkler (PC—Grey Bruce), who said he had been told Mr. MacEachen was almost ready to announce a

Municipalities Want Control Of Social Welfare Budgets

SARNIA (CP)—Delegates to the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves convention agreed Wednesday that municipal authority transferred to private social welfare agencies should be handed back.

Mayor Lester Cooke of Barrie, outlined Wednesday at the end of the three-day meeting as association president, said erosion of civic power must be brought to an end.

He said private agencies "are quick to stand clear of responsibility for civic tax increases but don't mind placing a heavy weight on the tax bill."

Changes a the provincial Child Welfare Act last year reduced municipal influence over budgeting by Childrens' Aid Societies and required municipalities to finance extended services offered by such agencies.

The association contends that control of publicly-supported social service agency budgets is not restored to civic government, the entire operational cost should become a provincial responsibility.

Mayor Cooke said some private agencies are not qualified to handle family service problems.

Mr. Cooke succeeds Reeve A. M. Campbell of Scarborough.

Inquest Hears Bizarre Details Of Bomb Death

By RONALD LEBEL and GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — A housewife described Wednesday night how she sold explosives to Paul Chartier and mistakenly gave him wrong information about vital fuses.

Mrs. Norma Lougheed of Newmarket, Ont., near Toronto, told a five-man coroner's jury of the dynamite transaction May 13. Five days later Chartier was killed when a home-made bomb blew up in his hands as he was leaving a washroom near the Commons chamber.

Injunction Inquiry Promised

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts of Ontario Wednesday promised a public inquiry into the use of court injunctions to limit picketing during strikes.

His announcement came after he met with labor leaders who gathered here earlier Wednesday to lay plans for province-wide demonstrations against injunctions.

Mr. Robarts told a press conference following a meeting with Labor Minister L. Phillip Rowntree, Attorney-General Arthur Wishart and labor officials that the form of the inquiry has not been settled.

But, he added, "perhaps we eventually are going to need a royal commission" covering the broad field of labor law and not only the matter of injunc-

"It would be impossible for the inquiry to be limited to injunctions alone," he said.

No Publication Dominion Day

Friday being Dominion Day and a statutory Holiday there will be no publication of The Intelligencer.

A 10 - page prepared speech found in his pocket said he wanted to "exterminate as many members of Parliament as possible" and proclaim himself president of Canada.

Mrs. Lougheed said she overestimated the burning time of six fuses she sold to Chartier, along with 10 sticks of dynamite at 45 cents each and six detonators. She told him the fuses burned a foot a minute but learned from her husband after the blast that the rate is one foot every 40 seconds.

She picked up Chartier in her car when he was on his way to Newmarket, gave him a detailed briefcase to carry the blasting materials and then sent an employee to drive him to a Toronto station.

Twenty witnesses testified Wednesday and another 17 were scheduled to be called today. Sittings are to end Friday.

Chartier sat in the Commons gallery a few minutes before the blast, asked for directions to the nearest washroom and said he wished to return. He had been drinking but was not intoxicated.

Two RCMP fingerprint experts testified Chartier had "gone" in Toronto," said his partner was "a rather psychopathic man" with a history of chronic anxiety and occasional depression dating back at least to 1960.

—A CNR worker, Jules Irving McGrail, said he met Chartier on Parliament Hill early in March, when stormy debates were raging over the Gerda Munsinger and Victor Spencer security cases, and told him "any nut" could escape detection on the Hill the MPs by

Circular Called 'False'

TORONTO (CP)—Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) told the legislature Wednesday that a New Democratic Party circular saying that Conservative and Liberal members talked out an NDP bill that "would have abolished six parts injunctions as we know them" was "despicably false."

The Sudbury member said the NDP statement, contained in a circular published by the Fisherborough riding association of the NDP and dated June 27, "imputes dishonest motives to the members of this house."

In other business:

The legislature's select committee on aging recommended that its second interim report that the federal government increase old age pensions to $100 from $75 a month, and make them automatically payable at age 65;

The select committee on youth recommended that the government establish a separate department to deal exclusively with the problems of Public personnel and terms of reference of a committee to study aspects of the "healing arts" were outlined.

THE TEMPERATURES

Synopsis: Mainly sunny conditions are expected today and again Friday in most regions although a few isolated thunderstorms will likely develop across the more northern areas. While daytime temperatures in Northern Ontario will not be as high today as they were Wednesday by Friday it will be quite warm in all sections of the province.

Hanoi Area Is Again Bombed As Uproar Swells

FBI Ordered to Trace Source of Forecasts of Raids

Radar Site Is Hit

SAIGON (AP) — American Marine Corps Capt. Murphy Neal Jones, 28, of Baton Rouge, La., who apparently piloted the lone U.S. jet reported lost by the American authorities in the raids. Hanoi radio said seven planes were shot down.

The North Vietnamese displayed Jones at a press conference where, standing under klieg lights, the Soviet news agency Tass quoted him as saying: "I regret very much that I undertook this criminal action against the Vietnamese people."

Jones said he took off from Takli airbase in Thailand and was hit by heavy ground fire near Hanoi, according to the North Vietnamese news agency.

The fuel dumps hit Wednesday stored an estimated 60 per cent of North Viet Nam's oil reserves.

Meanwhile, hard fighting was reported 50 to 60 miles north of Saigon today after an estimated 2,000 of the enemy swooped down on an American armored reconnaissance squadron of about 700 men in tanks and armored personnel carriers on Highway 13. Spotter pilots estimated that between 60 and 80 of the enemy were killed by air attacks.

The U.S. military command reported 131 Americans killed by enemy fire and 735 wounded last week, compared with 79 killed and 567 wounded during the week that ended June 18.

This brought the total of U.S. servicemen reported killed in battle in Viet Nam to 5,186 since last Jan. 1 and 4,014 since Jan. 1, 1965. The American wounded total 13,525 since last Jan. 1.

The flier was identified as air force Capt. Murphy Neal Jones, 28, of Baton Rouge, La., who apparently piloted the lone U.S. jet reported lost by the American authorities in the raids. Hanoi radio said seven planes were shot down.

FBI Ordered to Trace Source of Forecasts of Raids

WASHINGTON (CP) — The FBI has been ordered by President Johnson to trace the source of news forecasts that the United States was preparing to hit Hanoi-Haiphong petroleum dumps, reliable reports said Wednesday.

The White House and FBI declined comment.

The objective of the FBI investigation, it was stated, is to prevent in future such leakage that could tip off American military actions in North Viet Nam.

There were several such reports last week that heavier bombing was imminent, specifically naming the petroleum dumps.

In fact, the only question here in the last 10 days among observers has been when—not if—the execution of the attacks Wednesday followed the script despite some last-minute Sunday jitters of doubt.

What also tends to be taken for granted here is that the president went ahead despite recently - received views from Canada, Britain and other Western allies opposing such a step as a major escalation of the war.

Not Escalation Bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. bombing of oil supply depots in the outskirts of Hanoi and Haiphong Wednesday has caused an uproar both in the United States and abroad.

Johnson administration spokesmen emphasized the United States was "not attempting to escalate the war."

Reaction abroad was mostly critical to the bombings which Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara said inflicted heavy damage on facilities representing more than 60 per cent of North Viet Nam's remaining oil storage capacity. One American plane was downed.

McNamara told a news conference every effort was made to avoid destruction of non-military facilities.

But a North Vietnamese army communique charged the U.S. planes "indiscriminately bombed and strafed residential and economic areas, causing human and material losses to our people."

Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey said "we are willing casualties resulted." American allies had been told of the bombing decision in advance.

British Prime Minister Wilson expressed regret over the bombings and said Britain was unable to support the action.

Initial reaction from Russia, Czechoslovakia, India and the United Nations was critical.

In Ottawa, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons the bombing does not change Canada's policy favoring a letup in air strikes against North Viet Nam and its "assist settlement" of the war.

Russians called the raids "international piracy."

United Nations Secretary-General U Thant expressed regret. In New Delhi, Indian Foreign Minister Swaran Singh expressed "deep concern and distress."

From his Gettysburg, Pa., farm, former president Dwight D. Eisenhower issued a statement supporting President Johnson's decision to hit the oil depots.

Johnson maintained a public silence on the bombings.

In New York, the stock market suffered its third sharp loss of the week Wednesday and some brokers said part of the drop was a reaction to the air strikes.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, reported the pilot of the U.S. plane shot down was paraded through Hanoi. He was identified as air force Capt. Murphy Neal Jones, 28.

The U.S. defence department said a Capt. Murphy Neal Jones of Baton Rouge, La., had been officially listed as missing.

In Washington, the dispute over the bombing broke party lines today as key groups of hawks and doves.

The Senate Republican leader, Senator Everett M. Dirksen, supported Johnson's decision. Democrats such as Senate Majority Mike Mansfield and Senator Robert F. Kennedy of New York regretted the decision and Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon called the bombings "shocking outlawry."

Half Inch of Rain Dumped On City in Severe Storm

A brief electrical storm sweeping in from the northwest dumped close to half an inch of rain over the city last night, shrieking streets with limbs and causing temporary power interruptions in several parts of the city.

The sudden downfall of heavy rain flooded streets and backed up storm sewers with numbers of basements being reported flooded.

Wind gusts of up to 50 miles per hour were reported, smashing off tree limbs. Hailstones were reported to have fallen in the Mountain View area.

The storm started about 8:30 p.m., lasted just over half an hour, and cut only a narrow swath across the Belleville area. At Trenton no rain was received but the sudden wind upset at least one sailing craft on the Bay of Quinte.

One couple, members of the Trenton Air Base sailing club, had to be rescued by Search and Rescue, but a second craft, reported upset at Bednerville, could not be located although a helicopter continued the patrol until nearly 10:00 o'clock.

25 CALLS RECEIVED

In the city about 25 calls were received by the city public works department, reporting limbs down in all areas of the city. Numerous basements were temporarily flooded as storm sewers backed up due to the heavy rainfall.

One limb fell across power lines near the Federal building and cut power in the Front St. area.

Other minor power interruptions occurred as lightning blew transformer fuses or cut switches at power sub-stations.

"But there's nothing serious and most of the interruptions were only for brief periods," E. H. Burnham, public utilities manager reported.

Marysville Farmers' Union To Back Any Future Protests

Inquest

throwing a bomb into the Commons. "I planted the seed," he said.

—Dr. J. S. Cross, an Ottawa coroner, said Chartier's answers was the product of a disturbed mind but added, "in justice to the memory of the man we might say that many of the things he said are true."

The prepared speech said MPs forget about the plight of the poor as soon as they start drawing their $10,000 salary and waste their time fighting over scandals and personalities.

HAD CRIME RECORD

The picture of Chartier emerging from the evidence was that of a high-strung man with mental-type-product delusions and dizzy spells who drifted from city to city, and settled heavily on transfixing pills. He had a criminal record, including a forgery conviction.

Nelson Lapalme, owner of a Toronto rooming house, said Chartier moved in last April after arriving from Quebec. He said Chartier had kept to himself but was "as normal as anybody in this room."

Mrs. Loughead, whose husband operates one of the few explosives retail stores in Toronto area, testified Chartier gave his name as J. H. Hendershot of Kingston. He said he needed the dynamite for a processing trip.

Under critical questioning by Jurors, and Dr. R. B. Cotnam, Ontario supervising coroner, she said she often sells explosives to strangers without restrictions. There were no regulations or licences governing the sale of explosives.

Crown Attorney John Cassells, who questioned witnesses, commented that the jurors might wish to make recommendations in this regard.

"Dynamite is cheaper than cigarettes and even more dangerous," he said.

SUFFER 79 WOUNDS

Medical evidence was that Chartier suffered at least 79 wounds from the Parliament Hill explosion, including two skull fractures, a shattered leg and heavy chest and abdominal wounds. Grape fragments throughout his body and head showed up in X-rays. His right arm was fractured at the elbow and fingers filtered the washroom floor.

Dr. R. J. Heggtveit, Ottawa pathologist, said the copper fragments and powder burns indicated Chartier was not committing a shrapnel-type device.

Mr. McGrail, a CNR employee from Greenfield Park, Que., identified himself as the anonymous railway man mentioned in writings found by police in Chartier's Toronto room. He went to the RCMP after the blast.

Newspaper reports of May 19 quoted parts of a speech Chartier evidently wanted to make.

Members of the Marysville branch of the Ontario Farmers' Union will stand behind a provincial organization if the provincial union executive decides on strike action to support demands for better farm prices.

A resolution to this effect was passed last night as about 75 area farmers attended a tractorcade meeting at the Melrose township hall.

In the resolution farm union members pledged to "stand as firm in any future decision of the OFU to stage tractor demonstrations or "take strike action if necessary," and to be prepared to support such action.

In the Commons. It said at one point:

"For all of one year I have planned to do this. Do you people know what I came to Ottawa for was to drop a bomb and kill as many as possible for exactly the way you are running this, country, but I found it was too early.

"The day I arrived I ran into a railroad man. He told me how easy it would be to do this. He also said that they do it all the time and say nothing in this building. He also said most of you are very intelligent."

Mr. McGrail said he was walking on Parliament Hill early in March when Chartier introduced himself as a tourist from Edmonston.

IDENTITY PUZZLE

Mr. McGrail said he had believed Commons security was tighter since the time he had entered the public gallery with his railway bag in hand and no one searched him. It was only then then that it could have been full of explosives.

Mr. Chartier questioned him intently and he got the idea Chartier might be a Commons security man.

"I told him any out can go up there and throw a bomb down and kill half the people there."

The first four paragraphs of a seven-page typed letter in Chartier's inside left breast pocket May 19 were read into evidence Wednesday. It was titled: "If I was President of Canada," and said the "simple" reason Chartier wanted to be "president" was that no one was governing

Ontario Residents on Monday To Be Paying Highest Price In Canada for Quart of Milk

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario's two-cent-a-quart increase for homogenized milk, bringing the price in most cities to 30 cents, means citizens may be paying the highest prices in Canada for a delivered quart.

Most Ontario increases are effective Monday. The Ontario Milk Marketing Board, a producers' organization, instructed farmers to raise their milk prices. Increase at retail or cost, by $5.75 a hundred pounds. This was a 46-cent increase.

Occasionally the prices across the country as shown in a survey by The Canadian Press: Prices are effective today unless otherwise noted.

Toronto is one of the few centres in Ontario where the retail price of delivered milk was not expected to rise to 30 cents.

However, in many Ontario cities milk can be bought from out rate stores cheaply as 22 cents a quart or for 57 cents a three - quart jug, which works out to 19 cents a quart.

Similarly, in Montreal a cut-rate price of 22 cents is set for a quart of homogenized milk at one dairy's stores. It has no home delivery.

In Winnipeg, the Milk Control Board of Manitoba has set a maximum price of 75 cents for a three quart jug but some stores sell three quarts for 69 cents and supermarkets retail them for 50.

Marysville branch president, Harold Murphy, reported on a telephone conference of provincial O.F.U. executive members in which president John Dolmer said that if demands for higher farm prices were not met it may be necessary to stage a tractor demonstration in Queen's Park.

Farmers in the Marysville area last week staged tractor demonstrations along No. 1 and 302 highways but it is expected buying operations will be completed before the tractor parades are resumed.

At last night's meeting several farmers expressed dissatisfaction over prices received for milk.

Summer

plan for a guaranteed annual income for the elderly.

'BASED ON REPORT'

Mr. Winkler said he understands the government's intention is to implement the plan after the summer recess. It is based on the report of the Senate committee on aging, which recommended a minimum income of $105 for single persons and more for married couples.

How long the opposition was willing to hold up the assistance bill without a government commitment to make it of greater work going into today's sitting.

The Commons worked late Wednesday night—normally a night off—in hopes of being free by 8 p.m. today for the Dominion Day weekend. The plan now is to return Monday.

It's expected the Commons will be back in the assistance plan for the short afternoon sitting today.

But Wednesday was taken up with argument over the validity of an NDP amendment to the bill, and a reading of the assistance plan until the government moved on the previous question. It was finally ruled out of order by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

Still awaiting discussion by the Commons are Bank Act amendments and a resolution proposing a national medical care plan. Both are controversial subjects.

WOULD END

Concerning the assistance plan, Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo South) said the pension were increased to $100 and to include medical insurance proper consideration to many of the country's welfare problems would disappear.

He said he is certain the cabinet is aware of the "deep feeling" on this subject held by members of the opposition parties and the Liberal back bench.

Mr. Winkler said he was sure every Liberal MP would support the recent Senate report on aging, and was rather for a fixed income for older people. Yet, because Prime Minister Pearson and his cabinet colleagues rejected bigger pensions, each would vote against them.

He said he wouldn't doubt that Liberal MPs would hate to go home during the summer recess and face the wrath of the older people.

Quebec Floats Bond Issue Of $50 Million

QUEBEC (CP)—Paul Dozois, Quebec's minister of finance, said Tuesday the government has floated a $50,000,000 bond issue unconditionally guaranteed by the government of Quebec.

Funds from the bonds will be applied in the construction program of Hydro-Quebec, a provincially-owned utility, which it is estimated will cost $1,400,000,000 over the next five years.

VALEDICTORIAN REWARDED — Linda Top, (Massassaga school), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Top of R. Presentation was highlight of Amelisburg public school's Grade 8 graduations.

Grade 8 Graduates Hear New Central School Head

AMELIASBURG — The first principal of the new Amelisburg central public school urged graduates of township public schools to expand their horizons and prepare themselves for space-age opportunities.

Douglas Trumble, head of the English department of Quinte Secondary School who has been appointed head of the area school opening here in September, was the guest speaker at the annual graduation exercises in the township hall here last night. More than 200 persons were in attendance to watch 67 graduates receive their certificates.

Mr. Trumble, continuing his remarks told the graduates they would be expected to be educated and trained and ready to take over in the 1970's when many of the leaders in today's public school would be retiring.

"A good education is good insurance for a full and rewarding life," he pointed out.

Pointing out that the evening's ceremony marked the completion of the longest single unit of education they will receive in their lifetime, he called on the graduates to think twice, and then some more times, whenever they considered quitting school.

"It would be dangerous for them to stop at attitude—they were tired of hearing teachers and parents say you must work harder, tired to homework, tired to strug on money available and tired of school in general," he warned.

PRESENT BURSARY

Honors for the top Grade 8 graduating student went to Linda Top the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Top of R.R. 7, Belleville. She was a student at Massassaga school. ## Population and Poverty

Dr. W. E. Swinton's recent warning regarding overpopulation and the associated poverty have been echoed of late by publications throughout Canada and the United States.

The director of the Royal Ontario Museum, addressing Belleville Rotarians and their wives, inferred that Canada and the United States, along with the other wealthy countries of the western world, have the material and scientific means of ridding this planet of the misery that grips such a vast section of its total area.

He spoke of areas now desert (including parts of the United States) which should be developed in face of the mounting need for food production. The Sahara, he noted, was once the granary of the Roman Empire.

Another life-giving element in the Sahara, paradoxically, is water. Dr. Robert Ambrogi, hydrologist of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, points out that the Sahara itself contains vast quantities of water in rock formations below its surface, which if tapped could transform the lives of the 148 million inhabitants of the 13 countries in the region.

Of the million children born across the globe every day 90 per cent, according to Dr. Swinton, will never know what it is like to be properly fed and clothed. And yet nobody, he says, is doing anything about it.

Comparatively speaking, that is. The United Nations Word Economic Survey for 1965 puts it in cold figures. Disclosing that the flow of foreign aid capital has been stationary since 1961, the survey says that in each of the previous years (1961 and 1965) the total aid from the western and communist countries was $9.1 billion. Aid from the west, however, had fallen from $8.1 billion in 1961 to $7.9 billion in 1965, while the communist contribution — exclusive of aid to Cuba — had risen from $1 to $1.2 billion.

As may be seen, the western world's contribution still is much greater than that of the communists. Yet this is not a propaganda issue, but one of humanity and compassion, of performing what can and ought to be done on behalf of starving millions by nations everywhere, western and communist, which have the means to alleviate the plight of such a vast number of people.

There are problems of course, but nothing that is anywhere beyond the capacity of nations working in concert and with the will to help where the need is so great. The United Nations and private organizations, aided by contributions from private individuals and groups, do what they can. What is needed, however, is a concerted effort by the governments of the wealthy nations to assist those who are patently desperate.

If promotion of methods of birth control must go hand-in-hand with such an effort, this is only realistic — as also are efforts to increase food and water resources wherever possible.

We shall conclude with a statement made by Canada's Minister of Agriculture, J. J. Greene, in a recent address to a gathering of Ottawa women.

"... The world now has the capacity to produce enough to feed everyone," said Mr. Greene. "All that is lacking is an effective system of distribution ... I believe the solution of this problem of food distribution across the world is the greatest challenge facing humanity today. It is certainly the greatest problem facing Canada and the other prosperous countries of the west.

Is this not something worth thinking about — this greatest challenge of all — as we sit before our next meal, or go to bed at night in a comfortable home, sheltered from any peril known without and knowing that in the morning life will present no greater immediate problem than that of getting to work. And having given it thought, doing something about it.

Russian's Outburst

In diplomatic parlance the Ottawa speech by Soviet spokesman Dmitri Polyansky, sharply criticizing United States "interference" in Viet Nam, was scarcely diplomatic in the true sense of the word, particularly as it was made at a government dinner at which he and a touring agricultural delegation were guests of honor.

However, if Mr. Polyansky chose this wrong time and place for his outburst many would agree with Federal Agriculture Minister J. J. Greene's remark that the Russian visitor's expressed as "honest views" was better than hearing platitudes.

On the other hand, we support External Affairs Minister Paul Martin's words of praise for the United States. He and Mr. Pearson is Canada's greatest neighbor and has made an "enormous" contribution to resisting aggression and promoting peace.

The real irony of the situation is that hitherto Mr. Polyansky had been charming everyone with his wit and humor, making everyone think that here was a Russian cast in uncharacteristic mold. But obviously he can turn on the diplomatic heat when the occasion presents itself.

French and de Gaulle Are The "in" Elements in Ottawa

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Not so all of a sudden, it has become the "in" thing in Federal Ottawa to take French lessons so you can become bilingual.

Any ambitious young Civil Service executive with his eye on his share of Room-at-the-Government-Top realizes that when Prime Minister Pearson has learned a "willingness to learn" French — if not to actually speak it as a working language — has become the next thing to a condition of employment.

You go to French lessons now as a sort of Civil Service status symbol, just as once you carried a battered old dog-eared attache case.

At cocktail parties and receptions you greet your hostess with a gallant little bow and a charming "Bonsoir, cherie, vous etes definitement absolument ce soir."

En Anglais, before the Capital went on its bilingual binge, that would be "Good evening, darling, you look positively smashing tonight."

Or, in the Rock and Sock sets: "Like wow, Baby!"—

Fashionably, it is now still regard Britain as anything of a mother-country, you make her sound like a wayward and unwanted parent You speak with tolerant bitter still, even condescending understanding of her straying. Best of all if you are married, it you contrive to sound just a civilized bit ashamed of the Empire's decline.

AH OUI

France, like French is in high Ottawa fashion, and Paris rivals or than London the new Mecca for the National Capitals newstyle Bureaucrat wishes with it.

Proud, prickly General de Gaulle and his grandeur, his pot pourri, pipe-smoking Prime Minister Wilson and his unpretension, is the new international political pin-up.

Forget about the $50,000,000 Canadian taxpayers sunk into those NATO bases in France that now must be abandoned, and try to understand why La Grand Charles feels about it.

Even some of the English Members of Parliament are taking French—although you do not hear much about the French MPs studying English.

French, as much, almost, as English, has become the language of Parliament, and any day now at least six MPs — conservatives Davie Fulton of Kamloops, Bob McCleave of Halifax; New Democrats Bob Prittie of Burnaby-Richmond, Ed Schreyer of Springfield; and Liberals Stanley Haidasz and Hugh Faulkner of Peterboro—are going to start doing some of their Commons business in it.

Stars of the Commons special French class, they were streamed out of it, like so many gifted students, to work together in a special study course.

Quietly over the last three years bilingualism has become the key to Ottawa success, political and administrative, in Parliament and in the Civil Service.

But few have stopped to ask how really bilingual is this new bilingualism?

Ottawa has been bending over so far backward as to be able to do everything in French that to give French equal working status with English.

But what about equating English with French?

AH, DIFFERENT

It turns out that bilingualism isn't really all that bilingual.

If you're French and speak even passably working English with without question you're bilingual.

But if you're English and speak not just tattlebrent, but instead excellent working French there you're by this bilingual—and maybe you're not.

Case in point has been Thomas Van Dusen, Special Assistant to Conservative Leader Diefenbaker.

Former newspaperman and ex-National Film Board staffer, Tom Dusen lives somewhere, Ottawa River in Quebec, learned French in Quebec schools from kindergarten to matriculation, campaigned through two Federal elections as a Quebec candidate, French, and speaks French with all the accent and excellence of a graduate of a Quebec City French classic college.

Van Dusen not only speaks it, his French friends swear he thinks French.

But is he bilingual?

No, rule the bilingual referees of the Civil Service Commission after examination. Merely unilingual.

An exception to the rule? No, the rule itself, as it generally is being laid down by the Civil Service.

Bilingualism is even more of a one-way language street over the Ottawa River and into Quebec.

Ever tried calling, in English, any official government department office in Quebec City? Chances are when they find somebody at the other joke is that when the Americans bit town for Expo 1967 they'll be Canada's biggest traffic jam as they turn off the Trans - Canada looking for the town of "Sortie."

Bad Grammar Is Drawback

United Counties Packet, Brockville

There are thousands of men and women in this country who are trying to learn how to dress properly for every occasion, how to hold a golf club properly, how to conduct themselves in many situations which will lead to better business or social contacts. But few take any time at all to improve their own language habits. We heard, the other day, of a well - qualified man who lost out in a language position, until he spoke. His English was so loaded with gross grammatical errors that all his skills could not make his employers ignore this bad side of his educational background.

It will not be French which defeats English in Canada. It will be the most vociferous defenders of English who undermine it from careless practice.

Sparks St. Bohemians

Ottawa Journal

People watchers on the Sparks Street Mall are of two schools now: the new commonplace sight of barefoot youth promenading casually among bourgeoisbod respectability. Those who approve envy the free spirits who shrug off conventions (only, of course, to adopt new ones) and relieve the businessclothed orthodoxy. The shredded shorts and long hair which is evidently go with the bare feet constitute a declaration of independence which, far from being viewed with alarm, is considered a healthy sign of youthful exuberance. If a boy is going to be duly respectable at 16, what will be be at 60? Besides, this school says, if you are going to plant trees down your main street don't be surprised at bare feet on the pavement.

The frowners hold that barefeet are an insolent defiance of the mores of the community, sign unto anarchy breaking through. They speak of decorum, dignity — all those checking words. Mall and all, Sparks Street is still not Mooney's Bay, Shovellerville or dress, if ever carefully calculated slovenliness is taken as expression of carelessness about everything else. What are parents doing to allow their children to make such spectacles of themselves? Where will this sense of freedom end?

It will end, alas, with growing up. The time when youth can feel unshackled is pitifully short. Give the teenagers their brief moment on the Mall when they look like children to make way for the yuppie is beach-comber. Next year it will be somewhere else. But be glad they leaven the drab, doing races to brighten Sparks Street than the pink petunias and the yellow marigolds.

Mirror, Mirror on the Wall

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

It is a gross mistake to believe that a mirror tells us how we look to others; all it can do is tell us how we look to ourselves, which is always a distortion of the external reality; for the expression we adopt while looking in the mirror is not the expression by which the world catches us unawares.

Much of what we call our "modesty" is a mere fear of being at how much pride we privately take in some accomplishment for which we are praised.

One of the oldest proverbs is that "money talks" — but no one has ever suggested that it ever enters into a true dialogue.

The "nature" of a person is not necessarily communicate with his "position" — for a man is no bigger than the things that annoy him.

In this time of international tension, one must learn to appreciate Richard Aldington's distinction: "Patriotism is a lively sense of collective responsibility; nationalism is a silly cock crowing on its own dunghill."

It is only the whole truth that makes us free; clinging to even a substantial part of it, and ignoring the rest, condemns us to a lifetime of intellectual and emotional servitude.

Why should one child turn out badly when they were all treated the same way?" asks the distrait parent never realizing that to treat dissimilar children the same way is pathological blindness.

Executive ability consists largely in making decisions to be carried out by others who when the decisions turn out badly, can be blamed for not understanding how you wanted things done.

The wages of sin is not death, but that is the wages of everything; the particular wages of sin is to keep on sinning compulsively, long after any pleasure has gone out of it — and surely this, psychologically is the meaning of Hell.

It is hard to believe that man, who is presently constituted, is the final step in the evolutionary process; it may be true that we were created in God's image, but an image may be only a dim approximation of the substance it reflects.

What two men would strike a bargain if they knew that both would be losers; yet this is what nations do when they strike a war, only they are not big enough enough to perceive their mutual loss.

The conservative believes that an old error is made sacred by its antiquity, while the liberal believes that an ancient truth is rendered obsolete merely by its age; both are seduced by Time, its opposite directions.

To Your Good Health

Pruritus Just Means Any Kind of an Itch

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there a cure for pruritus? — G. W.

Pruritus is a funny word. (But the ailment isn't.) All that pruritus means is itching. Any kind of an itch is pruritus. For reasons not hard to guess, it has become customary for many people to use the word when they mean pruritus of the anus, or so-called rectal itching.

If your nose itches, you say your nose itches. If your skin itches, you say so. If it is an anal itch, you call it pruritus. (Pronounced proo-rigit-us.)

Severe itching, of course, can be sheer misery, but there are all sorts of causes. Where is the itch? Is it generalized? Generalized itching can result from too many baths (making the skin dry), or from such systemic conditions as jaundice, leukemia and sometimes diabetes. It can be from irritation from soap, detergents or other chemicals. Sometimes it is a psychological manifestation.

In local areas it can be from any number of skin diseases, contact dermatitis or contact with something irritating, perhaps something acid, or from smoke or fumes.

In a word, the first essential is to find out whether a basic cause or a transient one is involved. Sometimes a salve or lotion which merely softens and moistens the skin will solve an itch. Sometimes not.

If we are talking specifically about anal itching or pruritus, that same rule holds true. What, if anything, is wrong? Hemorrhoids can itch aggravatingly. Get rid of the hemorrhoids and you get rid of the pruritus.

Again, neither of these conditions is the present, but you itch anyway. In such cases, careful washing after each visit to the bathroom, then careful drying, and finally placing a little wad of cotton there, to keep the area dry, often does the trick. (While skin that is too dry will itch, an area that remains moist can be unduly sensitive to very minor irritation, and itch.)

Finally, if the pruritus comes and goes, it is wise to pay attention to what you eat or drink. Itching can be a manifestation of allergy.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: My mother and I have been discovering for a year. She says I should wash my hair only once a week, because otherwise it will become very dry in a couple of years. I want to wash if twice a week because if I don't my hair is very oily and dirty. What is your opinion? — D. D.

Shampooing only a week is perfectly healthful and will have no drying effect except for a few people (older folks at that!) with unusually dry skin.

Shampoos with a high alcohol content (tincture of green soap is an example) may tend to dry the scalp temporarily, but even then the natural oils soon reappear. Show this answer to mother, unless she has seen it first.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

June 30, 1966 . . .

The Allies completed the evacuation of the Rhineland 12 months ago today—in 1930. Although the 1930 Versailles Treaty had said the area would be occupied for at least 15 years, British and Belgian troops withdrew in 1926, and the French were obliged to pledge withdrawal following a new agreement with Germany and new reparations. The only solace to France, who considered German hardship to ease the Rhineland for military purposes a major part of her defence, was a German commitment to keep the area demilitarized. The commitment was broken within six years.

Fort Wadsworth occupied Staten Island, N.Y.

Fifty years ago today—in 1916—Fort Thiaumont was recaptured by French forces at the third phase of the Battle of Verdun ended; British artillery bombarded German lines on the Somme front; the Turks were driven back by Russians in the Black Sea region.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1941—Leningrad citizens were conscripted for work on the city's defences; Germany claimed to be within 250 miles of Moscow after capturing Minsk; Ottawa proclaimed compulsory military training for single men up to 35.

The Chains Of Matrimony

Dennis Braithwaite in The Globe and Mail

Women want electric heating at home, a new car, a fur coat if they're young enough to enjoy it, stockings that give support but look revealing, an if the wife has chess their skirt; they expect to spend half their time anointing themselves and the other half running along a beach with the gusts wheedling overhead and Mr. Right coming at them in this fabulous convertible.

Even if they are diving champions their count is only natural to end up in a kitchen washing dishes — and bragging about how it keeps their hands smoother than in the old days.

Is it possible? Is this what marriage means to the average Emmeline Pankhurst and Nellie McClung, Betty Friedan and Simone de Beauvoir? Where's the New Woman, the Sexual Revolution, the Feminine Mystique, the Single Standard? Do you mean to say that after all these years, after the revelations of the Voice of Women and the position of the Mother's March Against the Marriage Bureau — that after all these victories and sacrifices womenkind's want to get married and settle down to become—for gawd's sake—home makers?

Well, the men who spend the advertisers' billions believe it's so. The real estate agents believe it, the diamond merchants believe it. The Department of Education believes it, Eaton's and Simpson's believe it, I believe it. And you better believe it.

End of Re-construction On Pinnacle St. in Sight

OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Reed

"I know all the world loves a lover but this is ridiculous."

It's been close in a year since the first excavations were made to commence installation of sewers and other facilities, but the end of the re-construction on Pinnacle is now in sight.

Final paving of the new widened Pinnacle Street section was completed on Tuesday and all that remains is cleaning up and blending in pavement at some of the intersecting streets.

Sodding of lawns disrupted by the installation of new sidewalks is also underway.

All of the new traffic lights are in place and remain only to be properly phased before being put into operation. When they are in operation the old post mounted traffic lights will come down.

Still to be installed, however, are the new street lamps to be done by the Belleville Public Utilities Commission.

City Hall officials admit the reconstruction job has taken a long time but they feel the completed job will have been worth all the inconvenience and traffic disruption.

"We feel we have turned Pinnacle Street into a fine appearing traffic artery," noted Deputy City Engineer Richard Kraft.

Luncheon was in Rockcliffe park, and supper in Westgate Shopping Plaza, where the group had two hours of free time.

Although it had been a day full of pleasure, everyone was glad when the bus reached Deseronto.

facts about the price of milk

Everyone is concerned about the rising cost of living. It is reflected by recent advances in the cost of almost everything one must buy.

An essential food, milk, is due to increase in price July 1st, 1966. Consumers deserve to understand clearly why this is happening.

It is directly due to an order of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, that Ontario dairies must pay an increased price for raw milk to producers, beginning July 1st. The dairies did not decide on this increase. They are not represented on the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, and neither are the consumers of Ontario. The increase must be paid, however, on July 1st, in accordance with the Ontario Milk Marketing Board order.

We appreciate the position of our suppliers, the dairy farmers of Ontario. Like ourselves, they are faced with rising costs on every hand. But unlike the dairies, they have a government-appointed body to set the price that they receive for the milk that they produce.

We appreciate equally the position of the consumers, especially the very young and the very old, who most need milk's benefits and who use it as a low-cost, healthful source of nutrition. Even at the new price, milk remains the most economical high-protein food.

Let it be clearly understood that the dairies of Ontario (some 300 of them are represented by this Association) did not bring about this increase and, indeed, have warned in public briefs that it will lead to reduced consumption of an essential food.

We invite your understanding and your appreciation of the facts of the situation.

Mrs. G. Priest gave an interesting lesson on Christian stewardship. She said "Christian stewardship is what the church needs to make it strong; it's what the nation needs to make it strong and it's our labels put to use for God's will that will do it.

Ann Landers

Many Wiser After Defending Innocence

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I stared in disbelief at your reply to the man who helped the little girl in the men's room of the church recently. To refresh your memory: A little girl about 4 years old wandered into the men's bathroom and pleaded, "I have to go. Please help me."

The man did help the little lady in distress and then as he was leading her out, one of the other men berated him for having taken such a chance. "We all could have been arrested on a phony molesting charge," he said. "Don't make such a stupid mistake again."

The gallant gentleman wrote to ask you if the guy was right. When you backed him up I almost dropped my eyeglasses in the coffee.

I am no Philadelphia lawyer but it seems to me that if a man of good intentions and good character can be arrested on a molesting charge for assisting a child in a church restroom, then some of our laws need changing.

It's a good thing you aren't a bellyhaver, Ann. You'd be sliding the bench for that one. — DULUTH DUKE.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR DUKE: When you said some of our laws need changing you weren't just clickin' your molars, Dad. If you knew how many innocent people have spent fortunes defending themselves against phony charges, you'd drop a lot more than your glasses.

I've said it before and I'll say it again, if a little girl wanders into men's room and you happen to be in there, skip the Good Samitan act and get her out of there — and fast. You may be a sterling character of fine reputation but some trouble-making 80-and-6c could quickly put up so fast your head would swim.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Two days ago our cat, Tuesday, ran up a tree and stationed himself on a branch 15 feet from the ground. The tree is on a steep, rocky hill, which means it would not be easy to use a ladder there.

The night Tuesday ran up the tree we called the animal rescue league. They said they were very busy and short-handed but that they would try to send a man in a day or so if they possibly could find somebody.

This morning I called the league again and they said someone had been out last night. The man never came but decided the tree was in a very dangerous spot and that he was not going to risk his life trying to get the cat down. He left without even singing our doorbell to let us know his decision.

I asked the man on the phone what we should do. He replied, "Wait a few days and the cat will come down by himself." He didn't say whether the cat would be dead or alive.

I think it is just horrible that people call themselves rescuers of animals and then refuse to help an animal in distress. Please print my letter and your comments. — UP A TREE.

DEAR UP: By the time you read this reply Tuesday will have come down — alive.

I am told by a woman who works with the Anti-Cruelty League of Chicago that in her 18 years of experience she has never heard of a tree cat that didn't come down on his own — eventually.

Your sweeping accusation that animal rescue people do not bother themselves to rescue animals is unjust. I have heard about many who have gone to extraordinary limits to save animals. (Your apologies are accepted.)

CO - OPERATIVE COOKOUTS — Actress Beverly Lunsford prepares a "stackburger" for Bill Fraker as the informal atmosphere of the barbecue lends itself to on-the-spot fun as well as ad-lib cooking.

Helpful Hints for Hopeless Hostesses

By Reba and Bonnie Churchill

Get out the chief's cap, fire up the grill, and put on the burgers! It's barbecue time! Such party fare is the ideal solution for the resident who request "helpful hints for hopeless hostesses." First success secret is: Turn the cookout into a co-op event. Let everyone get into the act — some serving as salad makers, others as charcoal watchers or thirst quenchers. Another togetherness tip, practiced by actress Beverley Lunsford, is using a sign to direct guests to serve themselves, cafeteria style. The placard is inserted in the hands of a stuffed toy, in this instance a "mangy chief."

The informal atmosphere lends itself to on-the-spot fun as well as ad-lib cooking. The young actress has plenty of praise (as well as a strawberry "medal") for Bill Fraker's "stackburger," complete to kabob spear, laden with onion, tomato, pickle, mushroom and olive garnish. And, don't think the fellows don't enjoy showing off their skill at the grill. Like Bill, they may come up with another invention — burgers, brushed with barbecue sauce and covered with crunchy corn chips and melted cheese.

Table settings also follow this easy-breezy treatment. A produce basket, brimming with fresh vegetables, provides an appropriate centrepiece, as well as a nibbling good snack tray. Standing guard over the food findings are his and her "vegetable people" with onion heads, celery arms and carrot legs. Even the girl gardener has a ruffle skirt fashioned of cosmic cabbage leaves. Bandana napkins make handy "wrappers" for the silverware in addition to serving as colorful placemats.

Susanna's Family Fare

SHOO FLY

Hi Su: That time is here again. I'm referring to the "eating outside" fever that hits most of us in the beautiful weather.

The oldsters love to barbeque, while the youngsters seem quite content with great stacks of sandwiches.

In either case my lamp shade covers are marvelous protection against pesky flying insects.

To explain, I had three old lamp shades from which I stripped the material. The metal frames that were left, I covered in green colors of nylon net and I use these elegant, see-through covers for the round platters of food that are set out waiting for family and guests to help themselves . . . and believe me, sometimes it's a really big group. — Mrs. Geo. Nasmith.

OVER THE YEARS

Dear Susanna: I'm delighted to send a couple of my special hints your way.

When you store that suitcase, place a bar of nice - smelling soap inside.

The fragrance of the soap discourages any slight musty odor and the next time a trip comes up, there you are — you're own special brand of soap is already packed.

On laundry days, a piece of white chalk beside the washing machine is a great help.

Just before dropping the white shirts and blouses into the wash, I run over the cuffs marks on the neck with the chalk. Result? A spanking white wash every time. — Pat.

If you have any hints for running a successful household — or any problems — write to Susanna, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope when requesting pamphlets.

Quiet Wedding Best In This Situation

DEAR DORIS: God bless you for your friendly and rational advice last January. Neither one wanted to give up the baby, so he is now in a foster home, until the parents marry.

My son's fiancee wants a wedding with 100 guests and says she will pay for it—since her family is in Scotland. Miss Clark: I want the wedding to be a happy one but quaver at the slights that will be thrown by relatives. Marnie is wearing an old ivory gown and no veil.

I am still weak from my illness and often worn out. The doctor thinks I am close to a stroke. A big feast terrifies me since Marnie is just an office worker and we have no income at present. I might help by making gelatin salads and sandwiches at home.

DORIS CLARK

Kindly send me menus and amounts required for 100 guests. I have matured some and hope I can take this in my stride too. — NOT QUITE SO CONFUSED.

DEAR NOT QUITE: A small, quiet ceremony would have shown better taste; and might have avoided some of the gossip. At least Marnie knew enough to avoid a veil and white gown.

But for your own peace of mind and physical health you simply cannot afford the luxury of worry. It will be your attitude of equanimity which will carry the day; the relatives will be guided by you. Show them by word and action that nothing which your son and his bride have done would keep you from wanting a happy future for them.

I'm sending your letter to the caterer for a wedding reception with 50 guests. You can double this. At the same time, I'd advise a serious talk with your bride and groom. If Marnie would organize an evening of cooking and sandwich making with about six of her energetic young friends, this could make all the difference to your blood pressure.

Confidential to NOT TOO YOUNG: By now you will have seen the answer to your letter in the column. I hope you will find it helpful. Please do not write again unless you are prepared to supply me with your proper name and address, even if you have to give your address as "General Delivery" and the name of your post office.

DEAR DORIS: Would you please help me with a daily schedule that I could use in order to keep a clean house, keep the children happy and my husband pleased?

I have three girls, ages four, two and one year. We live in a four-roomed house. I have to wash almost nearly every day and I wash and iron a white shirt a day for my husband.

At present the girls and I stay in bed until after Daddy goes to work (seven a.m.), but we all have supper together at night. — VERY TIRED.

DEAR VERY TIRED: The leaflet "Tips for Harassed Homemakers" is on its way to you. Make up a timetable and fit your chores into the times when your husband is not at home.

Raising a family calls for energy, organization and rare good humor, if it is to be done well. In the hurry and worry, couples are prone to forget to allow time for staying acquainted with each other and in love.

Which points up the urgency of setting aside times for holidays, dinners out, bridge foursomes; adult fun-times. Just as important as a clean shirt.

Confidential to STEPDAUGHTER-IN-LAW: While the stepmother has money in the bank she is on her own.

But there are laws which require sons and daughters to contribute to the support of parents who have nothing; and this goes for stepchildren as well. Better sort out your husband's particular dilemma by seeing a lawyer.

Women's Institutes

REDNERSVILLE W.I.

The Redneraville Women's Institute meeting was held on Tuesday evening with Mrs. Harman Montgomery as hostess.

The members toured the new school at Ameliasburg and later participated in a discussion of educational problems in connection with the new area school. Mrs. Langman, school trustee was leader, and was presented with a gift by Mrs. E. Young.

Presentation Held for Field Day Winners

Susan Bramley and Michael Rollins repeated their triumphs of last year by again winning the Queen Victoria Home and School trophies as outstanding athletes of the school. First place in the girls' section this year was a tie between Cindy Walker, a grade 3 student and Susan Bramley.

The trophies were presented by Mrs. H. M. James and Mr. W. Coveney on behalf of the Home and School, at an outdoor presentation ceremony Wednesday morning.

Michael Rollins, of grade 7, drew the gasps of onlookers at the recent Field Day when he scored 6 feet 2 inches in the high jump. Both broad jumping events were won by Susan Bramley, while Cindy Walker excelled at running events.

Crests went to all children scoring a minimum of three points in the events. All members of the victorious baseball teams at the school were also presented with crests. Captains of these teams were Marnie McIntosh, Marilee Jones and Raimo Heyduck.

The winning Conservation tour team of Robert Broad, John Bailey, Rhonda Badgley, Patty Cole, Danny Sprackett and Donald Buchanan also received crests.

WORK WITHOUT DRINK

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—Most of Finland's dentists are women, Prof. Heikki Waris of the University of Helsinki told a conference on addiction at Waterloo University. Women have been equal with men in Finland since 1906 but they don't claim equality in the realm of drinking and there are few women alcoholics.

Cummings – Zakos

(A Princess Portrait)

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT WAYNE CUMMINGS

Archdeacon A. S. McConnell performed the ceremony in St. Thomas Anglican Church, Belleville, on June 28, 1966, at 2:00 p.m., which united in marriage Sandra Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Zakos of Belleville and Robert Wayne Cummings, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cummings of Point Anne.

Organist was Donald Davenport, and wedding selections were sung by six choir boys.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length sheath gown of pure silk organza over taffeta with a Chantilly lace bodice and sleeves. The skirt and border of the Watteau train were appliqued with the same lace. Her headdress of rose petals held her four-tier shoulder-length veil and she carried a semi-cascade bouquet of pink delight roses, white Shasta 'mums and ivy.

Miss Mary Langton was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Judy Nancy Cummings and Jackie Cummings, sisters of the bridegroom. All wore floor - length dresses of butteryup yellow chiffon with empire waistlines, pleated chiffon frills around the neck and sleeves and flowing back panels. They carried semi - cascade bouquets of white and yellow Shasta 'mums and green velvet ribbon and wore headpieces of white Shasta 'mums to match their bouquets.

Mr. Howard Sowden, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Paul Zakos, brother of the bride, Mr. Jim Henn, cousin of the bride and Mr. David Burnett.

At the reception held in St. Thomas Parish Hall, lace bride's mother received the guests, wearing a Capri blue two-piece dress of pure silk knit with Guipure lace trim, white accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a pink crepe sheath dress, matching lace coat and hat and a corsage of blue and white feathered carnations.

For her wedding trip to Grand Bend, Ontario, Niagara Falls and Detroit, the bride chose a two-piece sea cotton knit dress with white accessories and a corsage of a white gardenia and pink sweetheart roses.

On their return, the couple will live at 13A Donald Street, Belleville.

CHICKEN AND HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

When you first read this recipe for Chicken Breasts Birchwood you may think there are too many steps but the results justify every one of them. They deserve a haute cuisine award.

I have simplified each step as much as possible and in the process you learn to make foolproof Hollandaise Sauce. For those of you who are crazy about ripe olives there is a variation, substituting ripe olives for mushrooms.

CHICKEN BREASTS BIRCHWOOD (Serves 5 or 6)

6 chicken breasts (3½ lbs.) deboned (ice below)
4 tablespoons butter
½ pound scrubbed, sliced mushrooms or ½ cup sliced pitted ripe olives
1/3 cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup chicken broth (from boiling bones)
½ cup sour cream or table cream or milk *
4 tablespoons sherry (optional)

HOLLANDAISE SAUCE:

2 egg yolks
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup melted butter (warm not hot)
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice *

* When be is not busy ask your butcher to debone the chicken breasts or do it yourself with a very sharp knife. Put the bones on to cook in 4 cups water until any meat falls from bones. Strain. Measure 1 cup of broth.

In a very large frying pan melt 2 tablespoons butter and saute chicken breasts until golden on both sides. Remove from pan and keep warm. Add 2 more tablespoons butter to pan. If mushrooms are used add them to pan and saute until limp. Remove and reserve. Add flour and salt to pan and stir to blend. Stir in the 1 cup chicken broth until thick. Stir in cream or milk. Return chicken breasts to pan, cover and simmer 45 minutes, turning breasts over once. (If your frying pan has iron handle leave breasts in it for in the next step the dish goes under the broiler. As you know, an electric frying pan must not go in the oven.) Transfer breasts to ovenproof platter or large shallow baking dish. Pour gravy over. Cover with sauteed mushrooms or sliced ripe olives.

Cover all with Hollandaise Sauce: Beat egg yolk until thick. And salt and very slowly ¼ cup warm melted butter. Add lemon juice to remaining ¼ cup butter and slowly beat them until thick. Chill.

When Hollandaise Sauce is spread over, sprinkle with sherry, if used. Place about 6 inches from hot broiler burner until heated through and bubbly and golden. Serve this to gourmets.

Two CBC

whether it would not be useful as a first step "to appoint forthwith a vice-president with particular responsibility for this area (communications between management and public affairs producers) who enjoys the confidence of both groups."

He said CBC President J. Alphonse Ouimet "expressed some sympathy towards this proposal."

A CBC spokesman said the recommendations of Mr. Keate and the committee about vice-presidents are in conflict.

The corporation interprets Mr. Keate as favoring a vice-president for programming located at Ottawa headquarters, while the committee made it clear there should be a vice-president working and living in Montreal, centre for the French network, and one in Toronto, centre for the English network.

The committee said improved, constant communications between management and the production level can best be achieved if there are senior vice-presidents responsible for programming and production in the French and English networks.

REPORT DIRECTLY

Concentrating on news and public affairs, these vice-presidents should report directly to the president and the board "with whom the ultimate responsibility should rest for the over-all CBC operations."

Evidence before the committee indicated the flow of information between top management and the production staff had to go through many layers of personnel.

The grievance procedure proposed would be similar to one that has worked well "remarkable good results" in the French network since its inception following a producers' strike in 1959, the committee said.

The procedure is needed so disputes can be settled quickly and effectively before they spill into public, the report added.

The committee said there is evidence management ignored an oral agreement made two years ago to make no changes in artists and performers on a program without consulting the producer.

'SPELL DISASTER'

It criticized management for "extreme nervousness or jumpiness" about public reactions to programs and producers for touchiness or irritability. Both attitudes "spell the very formula of disaster."

The committee advocated promotions for younger, more dynamic persons to top management levels and added "the present failure to achieve this goal indicates a certain amount of sclerosis has crept in."

The committee said a serious fault in the CBC structure is in the "unfair" definition of the president's functions and authority at present.

"He is expected to be at the same time versed in all aspects of culture, politics and social evolution; aware of all the latest developments in communication techniques as well as an able administrator capable of supervising the management of a budget that exceeds $100,000,000."

HEADS AID OFFICE

OTTAWA (CP) — Maurice Strong, 37, Montreal business executive, has been appointed director-general of the External Aid Office succeeding H. O. Moran, recently named Canadian ambassador to Japan, Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced Wednesday. Mr. Strong has been president of Power Corp. of Canada Ltd.

Feisal Trying to Resurrect Idea Thirteen Centuries Old

The objective of King Feisal of Saudi Arabia to build pan-Islamic unity as a foundation of Mohammedan principles has aroused the ire of President Nasser of Egypt. A Canadian Press reporter who toured the Middle East reports on the bitter rivalry between the two men.

By CARL MOLLINS

BEIRUT, Lebanon (CP) — The progress minded Arab world has been thrown into political disarray by an idea 13 centuries old.

The idea, proposed by King Feisal of Saudi Arabia, is that Moslems should unite in rejecting alien political and economic creeds and reviving the principles of Islam "as their sole guide."

To seek social and economic advance through the seventh-century teachings of Mohammed, to forge pan - Islamicunity, are time-tattered sentiments that have collapsed time and again in recorded history when tested against political realities.

But Feisal's revivalist campaign has set up shock waves through the Middle East and beyond. Basim Kfizel, authoritative Lebanese writer on Arab affairs, says the resulting disunity could be a turning point in Arab politics, with the region's governments split into rival leftist and traditionalist blocs.

NASSER FURIOUS

The Saudi ruler's idea, promoted on pilgrimages during the last seven months to Iran, Jordan, Sudan and Pakistan, has provoked furious Communism and threats from Egypt's Colonel Gamal Nasser. Syria, Iraq and Algeria are linked with Egypt in a plan to form a nationalist revolutionary front against Feisal's "imperialist and reactionary conspiracy."

The strength of the reaction to Feisal's quiet initiative may stem in part from the zeal of the critics to focus attention on an external threat.

Egypt's propaganda accusing and stringent development plans promise lean times. New regimes in Syria, Iraq and Algeria are struggling to consolidate their power. Negative nationalism has served todays to tide political leaders over a sticky time.

Indeed, the ferocity of the criticism seems at first glance to exaggerate the threat posed by Feisal's quiet campaign.

Nasser, the durable revolutionary and dominant figure in the Middle East for a dozen years, has presented the Arab world with a progressive blueprint for advance in his dictation National Charter of 1962, his emphasis on scientific socialism and his success in playing off one great power against another.

BELIEVES IN CAPITALISM

Feisal, prime minister of his country for most of the last eight years but king only since the fall of 1964, believes capitalism and the Koran are sufficient to lead his rich but backward country out of the Middle Ages.

However correct Feisal's methods may be for Saudi Arabia, his caution is hardly a social or political model for impatient young Arabs. Even educated Saudi youth is restive under inhibiting religious laws.

In terms of power, the 30,000,000 Egyptians outnumber Saudis more than six to one. The Egyptian army is five times the size of Saudi forces which are just beginning to get modern weapons and training.

To many Arabs, Feisal's initiative looks suspiciously like a repeat attempt by the Western powers to set up Saudi Arabia as a counterweight to Nasserism.

The fact that Feisal has extended his Islamic solidarity proposals to the non - Arab states of Iran and Pakistan supports the charge that he is attempting to revive the moribund Baghdad Pact of a decade ago, an anti-Soviet grouping of Iraq, Iran, Pakistan and Turkey, sponsored by Britain and the United States.

Again, Feisal's move recalls the West's abortive attempt in 1957 to make Saudi Arabia the keystone of a right - wing grouping under the Eisenhower Doctrine. Feisal's brother, exiled ex-king Saud was to have been a kind of "Islamic Pope," in Eisenhower's phrase.

CHALLENGE IS REAL

Despite such apparent weaknesses, Feisal and his ideas constitute a real challenge to Nasser and his doctrines when seen against the backdrop of domestic Egyptian politics, recent Arab experience and Moslem tradition in the Middle East.

The most serious challenge to Nasser's power at home has come from the extremist Moslem Brotherhood, several score of whom are now on trial in Egypt on charges of plotting to assassinate the president and overthrow his government.

The evidence is that the brethren were receiving arms and inspiration from Saudi Arabia. Some of the leaders were members of the World Moslem League, which has its headquarters in the holy Saudi-Arabian city of Mecca and is guided by the Wahabi sect's stark adherence to classical Islamic law.

Feisal constitutes the chief barrier to the spread of the Nasser gospel in the fringes of the Arabian peninsula itself. Egyptian troops in Yemen have been partially baited by Saudi-backed Royalists in a costly civil war that has become Nasser's Viet Nam. Conservative leaders in South Arabia are looking hopefully towards Saudi Arabia for help against Nasserite opponents after the British leave Aden in 1968.

HAVEN'T FOUND ANSWER

For these emerging Arab nations — and for others — Feisal - style conservatism could offer an alternative to the Nasserite route to progress.

In several Arab countries that have achieved political independence in the last 20 years—notably Syria and Iraq —freedom has been followed by chaotic uncertainty about what to do next. Western-style nationalism, like communism or pseudo-communism have proved so far to be borrowed gods that failed almost everywhere in the Arab world but Egypt.

For the Arabs, writes Islamic scholar Wilfred Cantwell Smith of McGill University, "religion is relevant to all aspects of life, permeating the civilization in a way that religion in the West does not attempt. . ."

"The crisis of the Arabs . . . is the degree to which those who in the fullest sense know the religion have largely lost contact with the modern world, and those genuinely attuned to modernity have largely lost contact with their religion."

IS FEISAL THE MAN?

The question is whether Feisal is the leader who can provide the effective blend of religion and modernity.

To outsiders, his adherence to classical Koranic law may appear hopelessly conservative. But he holds that Islam is flexible enough to accommodate 20th-century progress —and he has the new roads, schools, hospitals, factories and development programs to support his case.

Shorn of his "imperialist" associations, Feisal's plea to discard alien political doctrines in favor of a muscular Islam has the appeal of being a purely Arab solution. It is a reminder that past greatness between the seventh and 13th centuries was rooted in Islamic faith and law.

The attempt may be too late and too little against the formidable appeal of Nasser's "Freedom, Socialism and Unity." But it is already creating turbulence that could reshape the Arab world.

DOESN'T KEEP UP

TORONTO (CP) — Water safety isn't keeping up with highway safety, but it should be, says Ontario's supervising coroner. "The authorities are too engrossed with motor vehicle accidents and appear to have forgotten the water accidents," Dr. H. B. Cotnam said in an interview.

FACEOFF IN THE ARAB WORLD — Political attitudes in the Arab world are polarizing around two men. On the left is Egypt's President Nasser, the revolutionary and exponent of Arab socialism. On the right is King Feisal of Saudi Arabia who wants the Arab world to return to the strict principles of Islam. The two forces are engaged in hot war in Yemen where Egypt backs the Republicans and Saudi Arabia the Royalists. (CP Photo)

Feisal and Nasser State Their Creeds

"We call on our Moslem brothers to band together, to observe the Book of God and the teachings of the Prophet as their sole guide and to heed no form of government, creed or mandate law incompatible with these.

"If this call does not please certain quarters, and the forces of evil, such as Imperialism, Communism and Zionism, still remain confident that Moslems will disregard slanders. . . . Let objectors unleash their displeasure and, apart from our prayer for their guidance, we have for them no other answer.

"But, by the help of God, we will not abandon our goals."

—King Feisal of Saudi Arabia, Mecca, March 27

"Someone with a beard claims that socialism is atheism and blasphemy. . . . Those who say socialism is against religion are the rich who steal the money and eat up the wealth of the country. . . .

"The spirit of the revolution demands that all the nation's revolutionary forces work shoulder to shoulder to achieve their aims in liberty, socialism and unity. . . .

"We are confident that we can, in this decisive battle, eliminate reaction and the stooges of imperialism in the Arab world."

—Colonel Abdel Nasser, Medalla el Kebra, May 1

If the weather man is back in snuggles and girdle after his self-imposed heat wave, the sports fraternity will be able to purge itself from a varied menu over the holiday weekend.

Highlight of a mere or less colorful calendar is the World Limited Power Boat Championships slated for Picton's Harmony Beach Friday through Sunday.

Some 25,000 spectators are expected to view the mighty mites of the seven-litre racing clan and sustaining races.

But back to his own.

Thrill seekers will be given a double helping if their appetites can stand an entree of motorcycle racing and speedboat dessert.

There's softball of varying calibres and baseball likewise. The lawn bowlers are holding forth, as are the golfers at their Country Club.

There will be a clattering of cutlass, cabin, campello, resort, motel and hotel. The creek-ribboned, lake-dotted highlands of Hastings and other piscatorial spots will be freckled with holiday-making Waltons.

There are those who are too dam lazy to do anything except "blackamblay" at parking in the enrockin' chair on the cottage verandah with the "fridge" within calling distance. And who can blame 'em?

They're far from the madding crowd and the ribboning highways where Death rides herd on unsuspecting vacationers who reck not the cost of carelessness.

Highway hazards will be doubled over the weekend for our Dominion Day celebrants will almost dovetail with those of the Americans who will hail the "Glorious Fourth" and many of whom will seek surcease from labor and what not this side of the border. And that works both ways.

Kicking off the thrill-seekers football will be the motorcycle races at the Fair Grounds tomorrow night when top riders of Canada and the United States will vie for various championships. These speedsters of the pillion pistes are expected to exceed 100 miles per hour on one of the best tracks in Ontario. The meet is sponsored by the Fair Board and gets under way at eight o'clock.

The Belleville Lawn Bowling Club is sending a number of rinks to Kingston in an effort to bring home the Whig-Standard mixed doubles' trophy.

The Sam Sneads and Ada McKenzies with golfers of downgrading ages will det the Ray of Quinte Country Club course where on Saturday the Men's "If" Tournament is slated to be played, as will the business women's CLGU play.

The white wings of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club will heel — it is hoped, to the breezes of the bay or on planned cruises to other sailing resorts. Many other craft, sail and power, will be out in force if the weatherman is favorable to weekend sailorama.

There's B. and D. softball at the Alemite Park Saturday evening when Picton hooks up with the Bobcats while the Ellis Juniors trek to Owen Sound for tournament play Friday and Saturday.

In South Hastings Baseball Lalia goes to Canifton for a Saturday game with Latta at Read on Sunday. The baseball tykes go to Oshawa Saturday with two peewees tussling in Peterborough and one playing host to Wilby on Sunday.

Down Point Anne way Earl Anderson and his merry Cementmen are holding forth with their annual picnic — and that should be another outstanding success.

The wrestling card and Quinte Driving Club harness meet will not be held over the holiday weekend.

That's the gay colorful enjoyable side of the holiday picture. But Death has a holiday, too — and takes it for the inevitable toll. The Reaper waits at every corner and crossroad, swimming spot and sailing area, road to pounce at the first sign of carelessness or whatever causes death and injury.

His toll is inevitable despite repetitive warning. An accident-free holiday is something that can scarcely be hoped for but surely there is some way of reducing the cost in human lives.

Which reminds me of a sign I saw on the back of a florist truck. It read:- "Don't take a chance, buddy. The next load may be for you".

Mick Twins Homers 2nd Time In Row

* * * * * Birds Up Lead

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Mickey Mantle's goal is 500 homers. There's some doubt, however, whether he can reach it this season.

There also is some doubt whether he wants to.

MICKEY MANTLE

Mantle hit two homers for the second consecutive night Wednesday, leading New York Yankees to 6-3 victory over Boston Red Sox. They brought his home run total to 484.

"I'm counting the home runs," Mantle said. "But I may stop one short of 500. It will give me an excuse to come back next year."

Mantle considered retirement after the 1965 season. But the Yankees talked him into undergoing a shoulder operation, and giving it at least one more try before finishing a major league career that now spans 13 years.

FEELS STRONGER NOW

He has been bogged down around the 250 mark most of the season, but he is feeling strong now. He had seven hits, including the four homers, in his last 12 trips to the plate.

Mantle hit a three-run homer in the first inning Wednesday and a solo blast in the third, giving him homers in three straight at-bats. But, in the fourth inning, with a chance to tie the record for most consecutive homers, Mantle settled for a single.

The homers brought his total for the season to 11.

Meanwhile, Baltimore Orioles increased their American League lead to 3½ games by downing Kansas City Athletics 5-2. Second-place Detroit Tigers edged 5-4 by California Angels. Cleveland Indians whipped Minnesota Twins 4-1 and Chicago White Sox blanked Washington Senators 5-0.

The Orioles cracked a 2-2 tie in the seventh inning when Lee Krausse filled the bases by issuing walks to Andy Etchebarren, Russ Snyder and Frank Robinson and reliever Ken Sanders followed with a walk to Brooks Robinson. Boog Powell followed with a two-run single and it was out of the Athletics' reach.

DRIVES IN THREE

A five - run second inning capped by Ed Kirkpatrick's three-run homer and the job done for the Angels. Tigers starter Dave Wickersham forced in the first run of the inning by issuing a bases-loaded walk to opposing pitcher George Brunet. Jose Cardenal hit a sacrifice fly and Kirkpatrick provided the finishing touch.

Gary Bell pitched a twohitter and Leon Wagner drove in three runs with a homer and a double in the Indians' victory over the Twins. Bell allowed both hits in the fifth inning when Minnesota scored on a walk and singles by Jerry Zimmerman and Zoilo Versalles.

Tommie Agee and Tom McCraw each smashed two - run homers for the White Sox while Bruce Howard and Bob Locker collaborated on a seven-hitter that kept the Senators scoreless.

City Hotel Turns Back Belvedere

City Hotel exploded for five runs in the sixth inning to break up a close ball game and whip Belvedere Hotel 8-4 last night at the Alemite, in Commercial softball play.

Each team packed away at the other for four runs up to the sixth frame, when City jumped ahead. The losers scored one run in each of the last two innings but could not pot enough.

Gerry Generieux hurled a nine-hit victory, striking out three and walking two, on the City mound.

Jim Nichols and Ken Osborne shared the losers' pitching chore. They allowed only six hits, walked five and fanned three.

Bob Brooks slammed a triple and Generieux and Moe Hawkins doubled for the City Hotel. Doug Moreau, Larry Potter and Billy McGuire all singled.

Jim Muir stopped three singles for the losers. Slack slammed two doubles, and George Perry, Cliff Hinsman, Gord Vaughan and Jack Calnan had singles.

Cheesemen Rally Nips Lightfoots

The tail-end Black Diamond Cheese squad overcame an early 6-2 deficit to edge Lightfoot Construction 7-6 in Commercial Softball League play last night.

Lightfoots had a five-run second to lead 6-2 and were also in front 7-4 until the Cheesemen won it with two runs in the bottom of the sixth inning.

Sonny Holoway pitched eight-hit ball to get the victory. He struck out seven and walked three.

George Young allowed 11 hits on the Lightfoot hilltop, fanning three and walking none. Four errors hurt.

Jack Francis slammed a home run and two doubles and Ross Empey a homer and one single to lead the winners. Their fourth game was to-back in the fourth, tying the score. Sonny Holoway also chipped his own cause with two doubles and a single. Jack Douglas added a double and Bob Jones and Bonnet Hall single each. Holoway won his own game with a two-run double in the sixth.

Don Wood paced the Lightfoots with a triple and double, aided by Jack Gilby with a single and triple. Frank "Shiner" Murray also tripled, Jack Whiting, Ken Young and Don Dolan adding singles.

Wimbledon Tennis
Favor Santana For Singles Title

LONDON (CP)—The two defeated - semi - finalists today picked Manuel Santa, Spanish tennis artists, to beat American Dennis Ralston in Friday's Wimbledon final.

Cliff Drysdale, South African star defeated by Ralston Wednesday, said: "Santana is the finest player in the world today, in my opinion."

Ralston downcame Drysdale 6-4, 8-6, 2-6, 7-5, 6-3. Santana beat Owen Davidson of Australia 6-2, 4-6, 9-7, 3-6, 7-5 in the other semi - final Wednesday. Each semi - finals lasted for nearly three hours.

Davidson, an unseeded player, said: "I think Santana will win this title. He has no weakness for an opponent to concentrate on."

Friday's final will be the first since 1956 in which no Australian has participated. The top three seeds this year were all Australians — defending champion Roy Emerson, Tony Roche and Fred Stolle, in order.

LEVEL AFTER FOUR

Davidson, 22, was level at two sets all. But Santana, 28, gained an early service break in the decider, helped by a lucky netcord, and raced on to lead 5-1 in games and 30-love on Davidson's delivery in the seventh game.

Then Davidson staged one of the greatest last-set rallies ever seen on the centre court. He pulled up to 4-5. Santa, serving, led 40-love to hold three match points.

Three great service returns averted the crisis and the Australian stood at deuce. Even Santana joined in the thunderous applause.

Davidson hit a superb, line-clipping passing shot, to level at five-all. But he surrendered his next service and Santa held MP delivery to become the first Spaniard to reach the Wimbledon final.

PLAY CRICKET

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Canadian junior interprovincial cricket tournament will open Sunday with teams from Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia meeting the Bob Quinn Cup, emblematic of the Canadian championship. The four-day tournament will be a round-robin affair.

Tradeuse Give Rain An Assist

PICTON — The rainmaker decided to play havoc with a ft. and D. Softball contest here last night, and Belleville Tradeuse Motors tore him for K With Picton ahead 7-1 in the bottom of the fifth inning, and having obtained what appeared to be an easy victory, the clouds suddenly sprung a leak and poured water on the Bay of Quinte area, stopping the game.

The soaking dampened Picton's hopes of moving to within two points of the league-leading Bobcats and Tradeuse Motors.

Eldon Gray, recently acquired by Picton from Madoc, declared war on Tradeuse pitcher Bill Baldwin with a home run, triple and double in three trips to the plate.

Other hits that will only be memories were Picton pitcher Johnny Dolilliw's second inning home run, and Trudeau first-baseman Roger Drake's circuit blast off Dolilliw in the fourth frame.

Dolilliw had given up two hits, while Trudeau's Baldwin had been combed for eight, when the game was called.

Another game, Madoc at Ellis Juniors, in Belleville, was washed out seconds before the first pitch was thrown.

Jets Split With Leafs, Wings Lose

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Columbus Jets raked four Toronto Maple Leaf pitchers for 14 hits and a 13-0 International League victory Wednesday night, after losing the first game of the doubleheader 2-0.

Richmond Byrd nipped Rochester Red Wings 3-2 on Jim Beauchamp's ninth-inning homer, Greg Goossen drove in four runs with a pair of homers as Jacksonville Suns shaded Syracuse Chiefs 8-6 and Fred Toth put down a ninth-inning threat to preserve a 5-4 victory for Toledo Mud Hens over Buffalo Bisons.

METS SHUFFLE

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Mets of baseball's National League restored Gerry Arrigo, left-handed pitcher, to active duty Wednesday. To make room for him the Mets sold Dave Eilers, a right-hand pitcher, outright to Jacksonville, their farm club in the International League.

Postpone Request Action

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — The American Hockey League postponed action Wednesday until next week on a request by Buffalo Bisons to quit the league because they are unable to get top calibre players.

League president Jack Riley spent the day meeting with Reuben Pastor, owner of the Bisons, and the league's board of governors.

The league will meet in New York Wednesday.

"Mr. Pastor feels there is still a possibility that the club will operate, and there wouldn't be any point in taking action until everything is finalized," said Riley. "The American League is anxious to have Buffalo remain as a member of the league."

Buffalo lost money last year while finishing in last place in the league's Western Division.

In another matter, Paul Bright, president of Cleveland Barons, said a conference with the Western Hockey League to discuss plans for a merge of the two leagues would begin as soon as possible.

Minor Softball Results

Kiddies Korner Astros bombed the Browns 15-3 in a squirt East Hill contest last night. Dave Taylor hurled a three-hitter and struck out 15 for the Astros. In another contest, Rockskins outlasted the Vaughan Packers 13-10, and Stephen Lleesse Indians edged Shopping Plaza Rams 14-12.

On the West Hill, Peacock Cardinals beat the Cubs 17-10, and Stephenson Mustangs clobbered the Steelers 23-18.

In bantam, Belch's Peewees whipped the Aces 15-1.

Marichal Loses 3rd

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Don Drysdale, a $500,000 holdout in the spring, has become a 5- and 10 pitcher.

The Los Angeles right-hander won his first game since May 30 and pulled his season's record to 5-10 Wednesday night when his Dodgers beat Chicago's Cubs 9-5.

He also hit a pair of singles in an eight-run, third-inning outburst.

Drysdale lasted until the seventh inning, giving up three runs on nine hits before finally being relieved by Phil Regan. Tony Perez' two-run homer in the eighth closed the gap but Regan hung on to save it.

The victory ended a six-game losing streak for Drysdale, who finished with 23 victories last year.

GAIN ON LEADER

Third-place Dodgers and second - place Pittsburgh Pirates picked up ground on the National League - leading San Francisco Giants. The Pirates pushed across a run in the first of the ninth for a 6-5 victory over Houston Astros while Juan Marichal lost his third game as St. Louis Cardinals nipped the Giants 2-1.

In other games, Philadelphia Phillies downed New York Mets 5-2 and Chicago Cubs rallied for seven runs in the ninth inning and a 9-5 victory over Atlanta Braves.

Roberto Clemente's ninth-inning single delivered Matty Alou with the winning run as the Pirates downed the Astros. Alou had opened the ninth with an infield hit and moved up on Manny Mota's sacrifice.

Chuck Harrison and Jim Wynn hammered two-run homers for the Astros with Wynn's two-out shot in the ninth tying the game.

HITS LONG HOMER

Ex-Giant Orlando Cepeda walloped a tremendous home run into the upper deck in Busch Stadium—the first ball hit in that sector of St. Louis' new park — as the Cardinals beat Marichal (3-18) and San Francisco. Wilbe McCovey accounted for the only Giant run with a homer in the seventh.

Richie Allen drove in two runs with a double and a single as Philadelphia defeated the Mets. Cleon Jones and Jerry Grote whacked bases - empty homers for New York.

Billy Williams ripped a two-run homer in Cubs' big ninth inning which wiped out a 4-3 Atlanta lead. Marty Keough and Glenn Beckert each drove in two runs in the rally.

Senior A Hockey

Woodstock, Galt Pull Out

TORONTO (CP) — Woodstock Athletics and Galt Hornets announced their withdrawal Wednesday from the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series as a result of a dispute over expansion plans.

The two members withdrew in protest of a decision to have 10-team series with each club playing 42 games a season. Galt and Woodstock had previously voted in favor of expansion if it were in the form of two five-team divisions.

A motion from Oakville to ask the OHA to reconsider the 10-team proposal was defeated and the OHA has ordered the plan to be implemented.

Woodstock and Galt along with Guelph and Oakville are the four playoff members from 1965 when the senior series was re-organized.

Galt and Woodstock were given until July 8 to reconsider their withdrawal. If they refuse to retract, other groups from the same two cities have until Aug. 1 to file entries.

Robert Temple, spokesman for Belleville's entry in the O.H.A. Senior "A" series, said here this morning Belleville will take part in the grouping, regardless of the number of teams in it.

Temple made the comment when discussing the appointment last Wednesday of Galt officials who withdrawing from the league as a result of a dispute over expansion plans.

The two clubs were protesting the decision to have one ten-team grouping rather than two five-team divisions, playing an inter-locking schedule.

Temple said he feels that both Galt and Woodstock will both definitely be in, or at least we hope so since a ten-team grouping would be much better than a five.

The Belleville spokesman was slightly unhappy over the fact that Kingston had supported Oakville in its motion to reconsider the ten-team grouping.

However, Ujhich everything will be ironed out and we will have a one-division, ten-team grouping. As a matter of fact, we even have a tentative schedule but it will be subject to further developments now."

All-Star Squads Selections

Double - Barrelled Power In Outfields

Pitches Two Hitter, Loses Game

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Robinson of Baltimore Orioles joined Jim Bunning and Schoolboy Rowe in the select circle of men picked for both leagues' All-Star teams Wednesday when he was named to the American League starting outfield.

The American League players, managers and coaches voted three right fielders into the starting lineup with their ballots for Robinson, Minnesota's Tony Oliva and Detroit's Al Kaline.

Hank Aaron, who had hit 24 home runs for Atlanta Braves in games through Tuesday, was the top National League vote-getter with 255. Also picked were Willie Mays of San Francisco Giants, 206 votes, and Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh Pirates, 134.

It was the 13th time Mays has made the team and the 12th each for Kaline and Aaron.

For the first time, the voters will not have to decide by positions. Previously, a right fielder, a centre fielder and a left fielder had to be selected.

Players were not permitted to pick their own teammates.

Batting order selection for the July 12 All-Star game at St. Louis were named Tuesday.

The catchers will be announced Sunday and the pitchers and the remainder of the 28-man squads later next week.

Walter Alston of Los Angeles Dodgers will manage the National and Sam Mele of Minnesota Twins will boss the Americans.

Although Oliva and Kaline normally play right field, each has appeared in centre several times this year. Under the rules the starting players must play three innings, unless injured.

The Nationals wind up with two right fielders in Aaron and Clemente and one centre fielder in Mays.

If the managers follow custom, and pick the next three men to complete their outfield contingents, the Americans will have Carl Yastremski of Boston, Rick Reichardt of California Angels and Mickey Mantle of New York Yankees, as a backup trio. Mantle, who has played in 14 All-Star games, received only eight votes.

Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh, Curt Flood of St. Louis and Felipe Alou of Atlanta are the next three in the National voting.

Robinson was on the National League team six times when he was with Cincinnati although not always a starter. Bunning and Rowe, both pitchers, made the team with both Detroit and Philadelphia.

The National took the series lead for the first time in 1963 and holds an 18-17-1 edge.

Walks and errors cost Cannilton Plane's Pat O'Connor a 3-3 setback at the hands of Reed in South Hastings Baseball League play last night.

O'Connor pitched two-hit ball over the six-inning distance but he issued five walks and the club committed four errors to hand him the defeat. He struck out four.

Read had a 4-1 lead after two frames and after Plane's netted two in the third, scored the clincher in the fourth.

Ted Abrams hurled the victory, allowing six hits, fanning six and walking three.

Carm Milligan and Wayne Pascoe had Read's only two hits, both singles.

Hugh Pretty got three Cannilton singles with Pat O'Connor, Eric Emerson and John Tweedy spilling the others.

Bucks NFL-AFL Merger

$24 Million Backs New Grid League

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—A new pro-fessional football league, with $24,000,000 in its kicker to cat-bird the National and American Leagues for player talent, has been announced by Fran Leahy, the former Notre Dame coach.

It is a unique corporation pro-gram consisting of 12 franchises in metropolitan centres with Anaheim, Calif., and its new stadium, the only member so far Mentioned.

Bruce Erthol of Santa Ana, Calif., an attorney named exec-utive vice - president of the United States Football League, said the $24,000,000 includes the price of franchises.

Leahy, who will serve as chairman of the board with broad powers, said Wednesday: "We are willing and adequately prepared to spend money for outstanding players—and can go to $200,000 to get any one of them."

The recently-announced NFL-AFL merger touched off the USFL.

"We will have a common player draft based on a central scouting system as soon as the regular IntercoRegiate football season is completed in Novem-ber and will be ready to start business in the fall of 1967," said Leahy.

The USFL will be pro-grammed like this:

1. Incorporated in Delaware with headquarters in New York.

2. The first six franchises will be announced July 30, the next three Aug. 15 and the last three Sept. 1. Among cities suggested were Chicago, Washington, Phil-adelphia, Memphis, New Or-leans, Seattle, Phoenix, Cincin-nati.

3. Players and coaches will have rights to buy stock in teams they represent.

4. Intra - league exhibition games will be played, and per-haps televised by Telstar, in Eu-rope, South America and the Orient during the first three years.

5. Each franchise owner will assure satisfactory off - season employment for players.

6. Each team will have a president, who will sit on a board of directors that will set policy in business matters.

7. A coaches' board will sched-ule games and handle a central annual draft.

8. The league will have a chairman of the board (Leahy) who will have jurisdiction over the separate divisions of the league.

There was no comment from NFL or AFL officials.

Solomons said that Clay had signed contracts for the defence of his title.

NEED OWN STYLES

Crothers Beaten In 220

NAIROBI (Reuters) — Top athletes from Canada and New Zealand had a taste of high-altitude running in Kenya Wed-nesday in conditions similar to those they will face in the Olym-pic Games in Mexico City in 1968.

They were competing in the Rift Valley section of the Kenya police provincial championships at Nakuru, 6,000 feet above sea level.

The big surprise of the meet-ing was the defeat of Canada's Bill Crothers, the 800 - metre Olympic silver medallist in Tokyo in 1964. The Markham, Ont., pharmacist was beaten in the 220 yards by 20-year-old Daniel Rudisha of Kenya.

Rudisha ran smoothly to re-cord 21.4 seconds, half a second ahead of Crothers, who seldom performs in the sprints.

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method

by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

"EXPLODE" SHORT SHOTS FROM THE ROUGH

I'm sure that all golfers can re-call times when they have hit be-hind the ball unintentionally. They will re- ll how the ball sort of flonted through the air and then fell short of the target.

This same shot can be made intentionally to good advantage. It should be used when you find your-self near the green with the ball lying low in deep grass.

Merely play this shot as you would an explosion shot from sand. Play the ball forward in your stance as you would on a sand shot (No. 1) and then swing so that the club-head enters the turf behind the ball (No. 2).

The best club for this shot is a pitching wedge or a 9-iron. Such a club will float the ball out of the rough and onto the green so that it will settle quickly.

Blake Signs Contract

MONTREAL (CP) — Hector (Toe) Blake, the National Hockey League's most successful coach, Wednesday signed a one-year contract to guide Montreal Canadiens for the 1966-67 season.

TOE BLAKE

Blake, who has led Canadiens to seven Stanley Cups and eight league championships in his 11 years at the helm, agreed in terms after receiving a clean bill of health from club doctors.

Sam Pollock, Canadiens' general manager, said Blake will continue with the club on a year-to-year basis, pending the outcome of annual medical examinations.

Blake, elected earlier this month in the Hall of Fame for his exploits as a player, said he has every desire to remain with the club in future years.

Shannonville Defeats Latta 4-1

A four-run explosion in the sixth and a neat pitching chore by Larry Lewis gave Shannonville a 4-1 South Hastings baseball victory over the sticking Latta squad, at Latta, last night.

Lewis gave up only two singles over the six-inning route but trailed 1-0 until the last frame. He struck out two and walked two.

A single, McGall's double and a squeeze bunt bit put Shannonville ahead 2-1 and Boomhower's two-out single with the sacks loaded plated two more.

Doug Chisholm was the loser, giving way to Bob Smith in the final-frame rally. He gave up seven of the eight hits, fanned five and walked two. Smith whiffed one and walked one.

Metcalfe paced Shannonville with a double and single while Carl Boomhower and Chuck Rowbotham had a pair of base hits each. Doug Dafoe and Rickman had the others.

Ross Parks and Doug Chisholm collected the Latta singles.

Braves' Bragan Bowing Out?

ATLANTA (AP)—Bobby Bragan takes his Atlanta Braves on an 11-game road trip today amid speculation he might not be managing the club when it returns.

The fatal blow to his shaky hold on the job may have been a seven-run ninth-inning rally Wednesday by Chicago Cubs which carried the National League's basement team to a 9-5 victory over Atlanta.

Fans here have been booing Bragan each time he steps out of the dugout. Wednesday was no exception.

The loss left Atlanta 14 games out of first place and only a game in front of ninth-place New York Mets. The Braves were considered a contender for the league title when the season began.

John McHale, general manager of the Braves, has passed up numerous chances to assure Bragan of his support, and the front office told Bragan Tuesday he was not needed at a booster club luncheon.

Last Saturday, McHale hired former big league manager Paul Richards to head a new instruction department and said Richards was available for any job in the organization.

There also has been speculation Bragan would be replaced by Billy Hitchcock, a coach with the Braves who formerly managed Baltimore Orioles of the American League and Vancouver Mounties of the Pacific Coast League.

Also mentioned as a successor is Eddie Mathews, veteran third baseman in the waning years of a great career with the Braves.

Bragan is aware of the reports.

"I know I can always get a job, no matter what happens," he says.

Bragan, former manager of Pittsburgh Pirates and Cleveland Indians has handled the Braves three seasons. Red Schille under him for the Braves who moved to Atlanta from Milwaukee this season, was fifth in 1964 and 1965.

Departmental Softball

Public Works created a three-way traffic jam for second place in the Departmental Softball League last night by shading the frustrated Intelligencer squad 8-7.

The Intelligencer blew a 6-0 lead late in the game, suffering their second loss. Works, City Hall and Firemen are two points behind the leaders.

Moe Huddleston pitched the victory, striking out 15, and Johnny Edwards was the loser, with Ron Culloden finishing up. The losers' at-bat was winners 7-6.

Bill Hannah and Jim Sweet marked Public Works with home runs as the club scored six runs in the fifth.

Maurice Switzer playing a strong game at the Intelligencer shortstop position, hit a home run and three singles, scoring four times. Lyle Thompson contributed a double and single.

Young 'Lifter' Champs

A pair of Belleville youths brought further weightlifting honors to the city last week by capturing their division titles in the Canadian Teen-Age Championships.

Bob Walt won the lightweight crown, for 148 pounders, with a sparkling 633 pound total.

Larry Carr-Briant, son of Canadian coach Ken Carr-Briant, won the flyweight (114 pounds) title with a lift total of 545 pounds.

The twin victories were most impressive, giving the Apollo Barbell Club championships in two of the seven weight divisions.

125 lifters participated, via telegraph, and the winners were announced here Saturday.

Walt, entering his fourth year of weightlifting, made his 635 total with a 180 press, 195 snatch and a 260 clean and jerk.

Carr-Briant, who has been at the sport for only two years, pressed 105, snatched 95 and clean and jerked 145 pounds for his 545 total.

Coach Ken Carr - Briant praised both boys: "They won their titles due to hard work and real effort and training over the past few years. We are a real proud of them," he said.

Ike, Mamie Look Back Over 50 Years

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—Ike and Mamie Eisenhower, looking back over 50 years of married life, have decided "these last years" are the happiest.

For former president Dwight D. Eisenhower it's because he has more time for such things as exploring supermarkets or painting "anything that intrigues me."

For his wife, the former Mamie Geneva Dood, it's because she has a home for her own for the first time since she married a young army lieutenant in the parlor of her mother's red brick house in Denver July 1, 1916.

In a rare joint interview, the couple reviewed their lives together—the moments of tragedy, such as "the death of our first son," the exciting moments "when we saw our first grandchild" and the great moment "when I was inaugurated as president."

Eisenhower called his eight years in the White House—the longest they ever lived in one place—"a very thrilling, very exciting, very humbling experience."

Ike, 75, said he's learned from the newspapers that he and Mamie, 69, were the first presidential couple to celebrate 50 years of marriage since John Quincy Adams and his wife, Louisa, marked a similar occasion in 1847.

AROUND THE WORLD IN 1825 DAYS — Claude Dube started out last September 1 from Vancouver to go around the world by bicycle in 5 years. He passed through Belleville yesterday afternoon with 5,700 miles to his credit.

Cycling Around World Aim Of Quebec Visitor to Quinte

TRENTON — Claude Dube, from Claude, or make out-and-27, of Quebec City decided to out donations to this adventlet the world go hang while he turesome spirit. Sometimes, makes a five-year trip around they buy him a meal.

the world on a three wheeled bicycle and trailer outfit.

He started out last Sept. 1 from Vancouver and made it to Sudbury where winter road conditions forced him to call a halt. He went back to Vancouver, where he worked for the winter, then picked up his bike at Sudbury and started out again for the east coast. Once in Halifax, Claude hopes to be able to work his way across the Atlantic on a boat to England.

In Trenton and Belleville yesterday, Claude said he had worked as a carpenter, but decided his money was sit going in taxes and "entertaining the girls," and that it was time to take time out to do some travelling and thinking.

"I may write a book about my experiences," he said.

Claude carries a tent in his "packing box" tfsiter behind his bike and sometimes sleeps in motels and hotels if he has the cash. He started out with $5 and has never had more than $12 in his pocket. People along the route buy postcards

In his 5,700 miles across Canada so far, Claude has worn out 14 tires and a gear shift. He was wearing his second jacket yesterday, as the original jacket had got covered with crests from the various communities and provinces he has visited. The premiers of each province have greeted him, as have the mayors of the municipalities he has visited.

Claude says he has received indications that he would be welcome in Russia but he doesn't intend to chance China on his trip.

In London, Ontario, last week he was given an invitation to attend the Lions Club International convention in Japan in 1986, and this he hopes to do, late October.

May Be Months Before Cost Of Seamen's Strike Known

LONDON (CP)—British ships will sail again Saturday but it will be months, even years, before the cost of the seamen's strike settled Wednesday, is known.

Shipowners say their losses will be counted in tens of millions of pounds. But only time will tell how much of Britain's export sales has been lost for good in foreign customers who turned to other suppliers during the 47-day strike.

The balance of payments suffered by an estimated £17,500,000 ($52,500,000) through use of foreign shipping during the strike.

The general public, however, felt almost no effects. There were no shortages and no major rise in prices.

The stoppage involved more than 850 ships and 26,250 seamen and cost the union £400,000 ($1,200,000) in strike pay of £3 a week to its members.

Shipowners were thrown into confusion and changed their plans to get the ships going when the seamen's executive said after the settlement that the strike would not officially end until midnight Friday night.

The seamen won a reduction in the work week to 48 hours from 56 and to 40 hours next year, as proposed by a judicial report June 7 which they abruptly rejected, demanding the 40-hour week immediately. The negotiations which started again last week they won 48 days leave a year compared to the 39 the inquiry proposed and the 53 they demanded—in return for a promise of increased productivity.

William Hogarth, the seamen's leader, hailed the settlement as a victory. But militant members charged betrayal.

Seamen protested the settlement in several large northern ports and the executive of the 9,000 - member Irish branch voted to reject it and continue the strike.

Cunard Steamship Co., which has re-attained £4,000,000 on the strike, said its services would be back to normal in 14 days.

The Queen Elizabeth is due to leave for New York as soon as the strike ends. The Franconia will sail for Montreal Saturday or Sunday.

EMPRESS WAITING

Canadian Pacific Steamships with two passenger and five cargo ships affected—said the Empress of Canada will sail for Montreal and Quebec July 5 and the Empress of England July 14.

The settlement was hailed by some newspapers here as a victory for Prime Minister Wilson, who Tuesday put Parliament in detailed account of what he called a Communist attempt to take over the union and prolong the strike to destroy the Labor government's policy of holding back wage increases.

But union officials insisted the prime minister's charges had nothing to do with it.

After the 29-to-16 vote that ended the strike they unanimously approved a motion condemning Wilson's attack and affirming their faith in two members of the executive he said had been influenced by Communists.

171 Canadians Holding Tickets On Irish Sweep

DUBLIN (CP)—A total of 171 Canadian - held tickets were drawn Wednesday in the Irish Sweepstakes based on fortunday's running of the Irish Derby at The Curragh, Dublin's historic racetrack.

The international lottery held three times a year to aid hospitals in the Irish Republic was unusually light for the Irish Derby, with tickets drawn on only 20 eligible horses. In previous sweepstakes, tickets have been drawn on more than 300 eligible horses in a race, and Canadian tickets have often totalled more than 300.

Final list of starters and odds for the Irish Derby is expected to be announced at a cashover in London Thursday evening. It was not known Wednesday how many of the 50 eligibles would start.

Holders of tickets drawn Wednesday win about $1,300 for non-starters and horses who run out of the money Saturday. Holders of tickets on the winner get prizes of $100,000 each. Tickets on the second and third finishers win $60,000 and $30,000 respectively.

The first Irish Sweepstakes of the year was held on the Epsom Derby in England in March. A third will be held on England's Cambridgeshire Handicap in late October.

Union Proposals Provoke Sharp Response From Railway

MONTREAL (CP)—Proposals for stabilizing railway work forces and working conditions on the CNR were put before a federal conciliation board this week and provoked a sharp response from the railway.

During hearings by the board which began last Thursday and wound up Tuesday, the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC) asked for a series of work stabilization agreements to become effective Jan. 1, 1968, including a demand for retraining for workers displaced by technological advances.

The CNR brief was not read but was entered into the transcript of the hearings. It says the union's demands, if implemented, would amount to "gross discrimination against the railways of an unprecedented kind since no other industry in Canada is subect to such restrictions as are envisaged by the union."

The union's work stabilization proposals would pile exorbitant costs on the railways "the payment of which would serve no productive use whatever," the brief says.

Following the presentation of final arguments for both sides Tuesday, board chairman C. A. Cameron of Ottawa, a retired Exchequer Court judge, gave notice he will resume hearings shortly with the brotherhood and the CNR in an attempt to reach an agreement.

The union's work stabilization demands stipulate that basic railway employment each year should be frozen at a level equal to the number of manhours put in the previous year.

Any material changes in working conditions or proposals to reduce the size of the work force should be subect to negotiation without necessitating negotiation on the whole contract.

The union also asked that employees dropped from the force be given first consideration for work-training programs without pay.

The CNR replied in its brief that the proposals for a ob freeze would impede management in its efforts to increase efficiency and to effect economies essential to meet increased costs.

Employees would "stagnate in reluctance ghost jobs" under such a system, the CNR said.

The brief added that the CNR already has an extensive retraining program for career undertake to retain men for jobs it ,tsers are already qualified people available elsewhere.

Committee on Aging Wants $100 Old Age Pension At 65 Without Means Test

TORONTO (CP)—The federal government should increase old age pensions to $100 from $75 and make them automatically payable at age 65, says the Ontario legislature's select committee on aging.

The committee's second interim report, tabled in the legislature Wednesday, says the pensions should be tied to the cost-of-living index by what it calls an "escalator clause."

Recommended also is abolition of means tests and its replacement by a test based solely on need.

Alex Carruthers (PC — Durham), committee chairman, said in a statement to the house that the committee has been struck by a "continuing lack of information on the part of persons both in authority and in the lay public of what exists and what could exist in the field of services and programming for the aged."

Mr. Carruthers said he thinks "it is clear that the major responsibility for resolving the problems related to aging still rests and continues to rest with the provinces rather than the federal authority."

SUGGESTS CENTRES

He suggested that five regional offices be established across Canada to deal with the problems of the aged which would "be provincially directed and operated," perhaps with unconditional grants from Ottawa.

The offices would be in "the Maritimes, Quebec, Ontario, the Prairies and British Columbia. There already is an Ontario authority to deal with the problems of aging.

Other committee recommendations include that:

—Municipalities be encouraged to avail themselves of government support to develop a complex of services including hospital - based home-care programs for the aged;

$3,500 Set of Teeth Will Be Seen in New Movie

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Enter Laughing, and with a brand-new smile: Reni Santoni.

Reni Santoni, 27, a New York comedian, is playing the lead in Enter Laughing, a fictionalized version of Carl Reiner's advice-to-the-show business.

What's this about the new smile?

"My teeth," he points out, exposing them happily. "They're new. Cost me $3,500."

Reni smiles often, and the effect is beguiling.

"This is something new for me," he admitted. "I never used to smile much. Or, if I did, I'd smile on one side of my mouth, because my teeth were crooked on the other side. Now it's different. I'm so happy about it that I think there should be screen credit: 'Mr. Santoni's teeth by . . .'"

He is starring in his first film with a cast that includes Jose Ferrer, Shelley Winters, Elaine May, Jack Gilford and Janet Margolin.

His capped teeth natural obviously are not doubtful appearance—he can pass for 18, as required in the script—won him a role.

Reni studied journalism at Syracuse University and as teenager handicapped the horses for a Perth Amboy newspaper. A rangy six-foot-two, he turned into a topnotch baseball player and almost tried for a career in the big leagues. Acting appealed to him more.

He rattled around television, off-Broadway and night clubs for a few years with inspectacular results.

Reni finally hit his stride with the Merv Griffin TV show, which signed him for 30 appearances. He was spotted on the show by Joseph Stein, producer of Enter Laughing.

Debut Time for a Clutch Of New Commercials on TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—This may be a rerun time for entertainment programs, but it is debut time for a clutch of new commercials on U.S. television.

There is always a seasonal change of commercials—they tend to get outdoorsy when the weather warms up. There are more scenes designed to suggest cool refreshment—tinkling ice, frosted glasses, beach scenes, top-down convertibles.

It is a little early to spot a trend, but there are indications that the fantasy-fad has about run its course. True, some housewives are wearing dark glasses to protect their eyes from the blinding whiteness of their laundry. But, on my set anyway, that washing machine has stopped shooting skyward and it has been weeks since housewives have flown out of kitchens or doves flown in. The kangaroos are no longer scratching up the kitchen floor and the giant hand has left the top-loader washer.

Still with us, now in fresh settings, are the 'teen parties, the old-maid-success stories (before and after changing mouth washes, tooth paste, hair color, deodorant brands).

And, praise be, after all these months, some of the comedy-style commercials are coming in with some new jokes.

A fine old show business tradition has been reversed in television. Gaye Huston, an actress since she was eight, has a leading role in NBC's soap opera, Another World. This week her mother, Marcella Martin, made her acting debut in the same show.

Gaye, now 20, had her first part playing a bratty kid in the Sid Caesar - Imogene Coca sketch in Your Show of Shows. For the last 12 months she has played Lee Randolph, a teenage problem child, in the serial. Her mother, who always encouraged Gaye's acting ambitions, has been a model and a close scene TV commercials. She auditioned and won the part of a new character named Flo, described as "a floozy type," who is a hat-check girl and cashier in a second-rate nightclub.

AT THE BELLE — Repertoire — It's 1966. Suzanne Pleshette but the Unsinkable that gives birth to a household of trouble in Walt Disney's Technicolor comedy, "The Ugly Dachshund." Dean Jones and Charlie Ruggles co-star in the latest Walt Disney "Nine to Nine Pooh," in Technicolor. ...

THEY MAKE THE SYSTEM WORK — East Berliners head for home along Karl Marx Allee, the city's principal thoroughfare. Although it appears they have no love for communism they're applying their talents and resourcefulness to make the economy work. (CP Photo)

Pragmatic East German Gives Unexpected Views on Regime

During a visit to East Berlin, Canadian Press reporter John Reed talked about his major communism with an unusually outspoken East German. His frank views are related in this story.

By JOHN REED

EAST BERLIN (CP) — He was born before the war, was too young to take part in it.

As a lad he experienced the full Wagnerian horror of the Berlin siege and can give you a concise account of the battle between Nazi and Soviet troops.

Now he's a married man, reasonably content, well-educated and with a good income by East German standards. He also has decidedly undoctrinaire views on just about every aspect of the German and Berlin problems.

He describes himself as a Marxist communist — certainly not for Germany—but he's not notably anti-Communist either. More than anything he seems to be a realist and pro-peace pilot.

If he's not necessarily an average East Berliner, he is at least a well-informed one, and a person with definite opinions of his own.

Gunter (not his real name) doesn't believe what the East government says about the Berlin Wall. The regime tries to spread the view that the wall was necessary to stop "provocations" from West Berlin, to halt currency speculation and other types of illegal trade - border transactions.

HALTED REFUGEES

Gunter sees the wall as people in the West see it: A device for preventing East Germans from running away. Even government officials privately admit the truth of this.

"Let's face it," one official told me, "it was a question of sealing the border or handing this country over to the West Germans."

In the 16 years preceding the erection of the wall in 1961, about 3,000,000 persons fled the Communist sector.

At the same time Gunter, the realist, thinks the wall was necessary to halt East Germany could begin "closing the gap" between it and booming West Germany.

This statement seemed to hint at a curious contradiction in the collective attitude of East Germans to the system under which they are forced to live.

Although they have no love for the system—and the government recognizes this by bolting the wall—they are, consciously or otherwise, applying their talents and their resourcefulness to make it work.

PEOPLE LIVE BETTER

Certainly as Communist countries go, things are well-organized in East German zone. The people probably live better than in most other Communist states — though conditions still can't compare with West Germany.

East Germany's economy is healthy—again by Communist standards—though closely tied to that of the Soviet Union. The emphasis has been on building up heavy industry.

The government is engaged in what appears to be a campaign to make more convincing East Germany's claim to be an independent nation, with East Berlin as its capital.

In different parts of the city new office buildings are being erected to accommodate government departments located until now in makeshift quarters.

The idea appears to be aimed at making East Germany look more like an established concern and less like a temporary phenomenon.

Gunter is rather proud of the success East Germany has achieved in economic reconstruction.

"Yet just can't imagine how hard it was in those early post-war years," he says with feeling.

DOESN'T BLAME RUSSIANS

He holds no grudge against the Russians for stripping East Germany of most of its industry, forcing it to start from scratch, while the Western Allies artificially helped West Germany rebuild its economy.

His attitude is that since Germany lost the war it had to face the consequences.

But he does resent the imposition of what he considers an alien system on the country. It may or may not have been good for other East European states, he says, but it was not suited to an advanced economy like Germany's.

He implies that the gap between the western and eastern sectors would be much narrower if East Germany weren't held back by communism.

Driving around East Berlin one day, he proudly showed me where workers rose in rebellion against Communist authority in 1953 — from the square where the uprising began to the place in Leipziger Street near the east-west border where it was crushed.

It was the first of the big anti-Communist revolts that flashed across Eastern Europe in the post-Stalin era.

At the same time Gunter has a defensive attitude toward West Germans. He doesn't like the "superior" attitude of those who come to the East bearing gifts for their kin on the Communist side of the Iron Curtain.

And he remembers with a touch of bitterness that when East Germans visited the West before the wall went up they were treated as "second-class citizens."

Nevertheless, he would like to be able to go back. "I used to go to West Berlin frequently before the wall went up. Naturally, I haven't been there since then."

He resents the fact that foreign tourists and West Berliners can see both sides of his city while East Berliners can't. Only retired people, with relatives in the West are permitted to visit.

He has a vague fear that reunification of Germany should it come, would mean commercial domination of his part of the country by the West Germans.

But ask him point - blank whether he feels Germany should be reunified and he answers with a quiet but firm "yes."
